Arabs Pledge Finish Fight Against Palestine Partition

387 Deaths Recorded In 17-Day Communal Strife

Jerusalem, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Under clouds of hate and strife, tormented Palestine entered the Christmas season today — the season of "peace on earth, good will to men" — confronted by an Arab threat to wage a war to the finish against partition and the Jews.

The Arab League proclaimed in Cairo last night, at the close of a long conference of leaders of the seven Arab states, its intention to fight to the end against the United Nations decision to split the Holy Land into separate Arab and Jewish states.

In Palestine, the pace of communal Arab-Jewish blood-letting of the last 17 days since approval of the partition plan had slowed somewhat but there was another shooting and an apparent reprisal today, underlining the continuation of violent feelings.

Arabs surrounding Jerusalem's Jaffa gate captured and killed a 30-year-old Jew who tried to slip through the Arab quarter to reinforce Jews garrisoning the old city's Hebrew quarter. A short time later a 16-year-old Arab boy was shot to death in the same area by assailants officially described as "unknowns."

In addition, a Spanish priest who was wounded Dec. 13 while watching the fighting died today.

These deaths brought the total in the Holy Land itself to 266 deaths, made up of 132 Jews, 122 Arabs, eight Britons and four others for the whole Middle East there were 387 deaths during the 17-day period.

Assail U.S., Russia

The end of the Cairo meeting —attended by officials from Egypt Iraq, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Trans-Jordan and Yemen —was followed by a declaration from Nuri el Said Pasha, chief member of the Iraq delegation to the U.N., assailing the United States and Russia, for their support of the partition.

The British military continued to turn more and more authority over to the Jews in the central coastal area of Palestine. An announcement today said the first infantry division had removed its headquarters from Tel Litwinsky to Sarafand, relinquishing control of the former of the Jews.

At Nazareth, whencé the Virgin Mary set out for Bethlehem about this time of year nearly 20 centuries ago to give birth to her son, 14,000 Christian Arabs were waiting for the annual flood of Christmas tourists—who won't be coming this year.

The roads to Nazareth, atop a mountain in Galilee, lead through areas ripped by strife. Arabs guard the winding mountain road which used to bring 15,000 tourists a year. They check passports. If it is Jewish, the holder probably will die on the spot. Others are turned back.

FOUR POLICEMEN AND CIVILIAN AWAIT JUDGMENT

Charged With Illegal Possession of Deer in Algonquin Park Game Preserve

Barry's Bay, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP) —Four police officers and a civilian, all charged with breaking Ontario game laws through illegal possession of deer in Algonquin Park game preserve, today faced a three-week wait for a court decision in their case. Meanwhile the policemen stand suspended from their posts.

After a day long hearing that stretched into the night in a crowded Barry's Bay courtroom where 16 Crown witnesses were heard Magistrate W. K. MacGregor of Pembroke, reserved his decision. He described the case as serious and with "complex aspects" and promised a decision about Jan. 7.

The five accused—Police Chief William Cudmore and Constable G. H. Bishton of Bracebridge; Ontario Provincial Constable W. Byrnes of Bracebridge; night Constable George Taylor of Huntsville police and Walter Trull, Bracebridge civilian—pleaded not guilty to the deer possession charge.

They also face a second charge of illegal hunting in Algonquin Park which provincial authorities have not yet proceeded with. Whether it will be pressed will be decided after decision on the fir. charge is given.

The Crown's case, presented by Prosecutor W. M. Martin of Toronto, special counsel of the Attorney - General's Department, hinged mainly around the testimony of Jeffrey Isaacs, caretaker of Killarney Lodge in the park who said he was awakened by shots in the park early on Dec. 2.

Belonged to Constable

He testified that he had seen a car on the road and had chased it in his truck until he got the licence number. Evidence was entered to show the car belonged to Constable Bishton.

Isaacs said he later found fresh deer entrails and warm bloc where he had first seen the ca and someone trying to drag something into the vehicle.

Magistrate MacGregor ruled out some of the Crown testimony because the customary warning had not been given the five defendants after they were arrestd by a park ranger. But other witnesses including rangers, fold of finding what looked like deer hair on the clothing of the suspects, blood on their car and of the finding of four deer carcasses just off a park highway. Two of the deer had been decapitated and all had been gutted.

Defence counsel moved for dismissal of the charge on the ground the men had not been found in possession of either deer or firearms and held that there was no direct evidence. He called no defence witnesses.

Ex-Convict Sought After 3 Slayings

Toledo, O., Dec. 18 (AP)—The death early today of a year-old baby, abandoned without food in an unheated home, increased the toll of victims to four as authorities sought the baby's father for questioning in the slaying of the infant's expectant mother and her parents.

John Osinski, one-year-old son of Mrs. Lorette Osinski, died of malnutrition and exposure after being found with his brother James, two, huddled near the bodies of his mother and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ditmyer. Bullet wounds through the heart probably fired Saturday caused the deaths of the last three said Coroner Paul Hohly.

Detective Capt. Ralph Murpny issued an arrest order for Mrs. Osinski's estranged husband, James Osinski, 37, whom Murphy described as an ex-convict with a criminal career that began at seventeen.

BCG Vaccine Treats TB Successfully

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP)—Success is in sight in the age - long fight against tuberculosis, it is suggested editorially in the current issue of the magazine Health, published by the Health League of Canada. The magazine reported on the work of a Montreal clinic where treatment of 900 children with BCG vaccine was said successful in every case.

Christmas Glow Enters Drab Flat Of Former Sea Cook, Terry McGowan

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP) — A Christmas glow has entered the drab, sparsely-furnished, third-storey flat of Terrence McGowan former assistant cook in the Merchant Navy, and got there in a kind of round-about way.

The picture was bleak enough when McGowan faced Magistrate Robert J. Brown a few days ago, charged with theft of cloth and four rag dolls.

The ex-seaman explained he had taken them to give his children at Christmas. The cloth would make garments for them. He disclosed his war record included three torpedoings, said his legs had been frozen while he drifted six days in the North Atlantic on a life raft. His weak legs prevented him from taking a job in which he had to stand.

The Magistrate suspended sentence. Then news of the trial was published and sympathy was immediately shown to the family that included Terry, 4, Sylvia 2, and Linda, 10 months. The Navy League sent the father a cheque for $100. Other donations have brought the total to $180.

"The money will be used to buy clothes and toys for the children," McGowan who finds it hard to stretch his $104-a-month income to cover living costs, said.

PREDICTS RUSSIA MAY CHANGE MIND, JOIN IN A-PACT

Third Struggle Opens Over Atomic Energy

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

Lake Success, Dec. 18 (AP) — The United States and Russia turned today to their struggle over atomic energy with a United States delegate predicting Russia might eventually change her mind and join other powers in a sweeping world pact controlling the atom.

The working committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission was called to plan work on the third phase of its long search for atomic agreement.

Canada's delegate, Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, also expressed hope in a speech yesterday that eventually Russia will join with the other powers in a form of international control. In an address to the Canadian Club in New York, he added that it seemed "reasonably probable" that there will not be an atomic war "on any significant scale for a while yet."

As the delegates completed preparations for this meeting, Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the atomic commission, told a press conference that the Kremlin had made a "number of basic economic and political mistakes." He felt that there is "great ignorance" in the Kremlin on the sincerity of proposals for an international atomic development authority, backed by the United States and approved by 10 other members of the 12-power commission.

No One Wants to Break off Talks

Declaring that he had not heard a word from the Russians and that neither the Russians nor the American delegates had made any attempt to settle their difference since the last commission meeting in September, Osborn said that no one country desires to take the responsibility of breaking off the atomic talks.

The first phase of the Russian-American disagreement in the commission saw the majority approve last December virtually the entire American plan for an international atomic development authority laid down by Bernard M. Baruch before the commission in June, 1946. Russia rejected this plan but did not vote against it in the commission.

The second phase saw Russia and the majority split over plans for the function of the control authority. Russia voted against the second report embodying these plans. It still has to be considered in the security council.

The third phase coming up deals with the organization of the authority, how its directors will be chosen and what powers they will have.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—Synopsis: Yesterday's storm now is racing eastward into the Maritimes. In its wake a decidedly cold polar air mass has pushed over the entire province. Temperatures this morning range from 20 below over northern Ontario to 20 above over the lower lake regions. There likely will be cloudiness with some very light snow over the Lake Erie and southern Lake Huron regions on Friday.

CHEESE FACTORY CURING ROOM DESTROYED

Atwood, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—The curing room of Elma cheese factory, one mile north of here was destroyed by fire today. The fire was prevented from spreading to the main factory building and the nearby home of Donald Howes, cheesemaker.

'Hostile Propaganda' Blamed For Conference Breakdown

London, Dec. 18 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin said today Russia's "hostile propaganda" during the London conference of the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council had made it impsosible "to get to grips with the fundamental principles involved."

In a formal report to the Commons, Bevin also charged that Soviet opposition to participation by her neighboring countries in the Marshall plan is violating "the free choice of free states and is an interference with their independence and sovereignty."

Just as he told Foreign Minister Molotov himself near the close of the talks Monday, Bevin reported to the House that "we were met with a number of long speeches and unjustified and false accusations."

Bevin said "unfortunately, ever since its creation," the council has alternated between carrying out its original purpose of drafting treaties for submission to a peace conference and "being used for entirely different purposes."

"There is no doubt that this has created despondency in the world."

He asserted that any government to be set up in Germany must be representative "and not a tool in the hands of the occupying powers."

In discussing reparations—the immediate issue upon which the conference collapsed—Bevin said that the western powers could not be expected to commit themselves without having all the facts on the Russian zone of occupation.

But, said Bevin, "we were told that we could only have this if we agreed to the Soviet claim for reparations in advance."

(Russia has demanded $10,000,000,000 with payment to begin from current production.)

He added:

"We cannot go on as we have been. We have hoped against hope that four-power collaboration would work. Most of the world can find a basis of agreement and they cannot all be wrong."

Britain, in striving for peace, "shall close no doors."

Emphasizing that in the view of the United Kingdom government the negotiation of the peace treaties for the Satellite countries had taken far too long and created much unnecessary misunderstanding; and that the Italian treaty was delayed much longer than it should have been; Bevin said the Austrian peace treaty ought to have been settled easily.

Bevin detailed efforts to reach agreement on this subject and recalled Britain's offer to waive her claims for compensation.

"In spite of the present breakdown and as there are indications that a new proposal might be forthcoming, the question has been referred back to the deputies."

Dalton in Disclosing Budget Did Not Expect Premature Use Of Information by Reporter

London, Dec. 18 —(Reuters)—Hugh Dalton, then chancellor of the Exchequer, made a "premature and unpremediated disclosure of the contents of his budget which he had no right to make," a few minutes before making the budget speech to parliament Nov. 12, an all-party parliamentary committee of enquiry reported today.

But the report added:

1. Dalton did not believe that in telling some of his secrets to the political correspondent of the London Star there was any possibility of them being published prematurely.

2. The disclosure did not cause any stock exchange movements of prices or sales.

The report, published as a White Paper, is the result of the inquiry of the select all-party committee set up when Dalton resigned after confessing to parliament that he had given away some of his secrets to the correspondent.

The budget information was published as a "stop press" forecast minutes before the Chancellor actually announced his new measures.

With publication of the report it now rests with parliament to decide whether any further action is necessary.

The committee's report said that John Carvel, the Star's political correspondent, made an error of judgment "in all good faith" in disclosing his information to the paper. He was mistaken in his belief that he was at liberty to disclose the information in the guise of a forecast.

Dalton Gives Evidence

Dalton, in his evidence to the committee, said: "Having regard to the time and to the subject matter of our talk, it certainly never entered my mind that he (Carvel) would telephone it to his paper, or that he would publish it, or indeed that they would have time to publish it before my speech began to come through.

"My quick thought was (and it all passed very quickly) to give him, in reply to his questions, the main points in advance, so as to help him to make a good note for his paper."

Dalton agreed it was the absolute duty of a Chancellor of the Exchequer not to disclose budget information to journalists before opening his budget speech.

"The point is that I should not have told Mr. Carvel what I did, that the responsibility for doing so was mine and not his, and that I thus committed a grave indiscretion for which I apologized the next day to the House . . .

"My conversation with Mr. Carvel passed entirely out of my mind until 1 p.m. next day when I first heard about the publication in the Star.

"As soon as I heard this I said to two colleagues who were with me this means that I must resign my office.

"I saw the Prime Minister at 2:15 p.m. and offered him my resignation before coming down to the House."

Crew Jettisoning Cargo of Rice As Ship Breaks Up

Honolulu, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The freighter Simon Benson, which radioed she was breaking up 1,400 miles north-northwest of Oahu, was turned head on into heavy seas late last night as her crew of about 45, began jettisoning a cargo of sacked rice in the fight to save their lives.

The United States Coast Guard reported a message from the Benson's master said the vessel was "cracked from below strengthening plate to hatch combing. Water coming in. Rice swelling, but water gaining."

The Coast Guard cutter Iroquois, dispatched to the Benson's aid, reported it had established radio contact.

A Coast Guard officer here said the rice cargo of the Benson "may blow the ship wide open" if it swells appreciably. An earlier distress call from the Benson had indicated only that she was breaking across the deck but was proceeding toward Honolulu.

The Coast Guard indicated the Iroquois would require 72 hours to reach the distressed ship, but said three other vessels were speeding to her aid.

The Benson, of 7,176 gross tons, is operated by Sudden and Christenson, Ind., out of Portland, Ore.

Noted Criminal Investigator Is Found Dead

London, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Sir Bernard Spilsbury, 70, noted British criminal investigator, was found dead last night in his laboratory at the London University College and a colleague said the room was filled with gas.

Sir Bernard, former pathologist for the Home Office, often had experimented on himself to probe the secrets of murder mysteries. He once gassed himself with carbon monoxide and then had a blood test made.

An honorary pathologist of the government, he was credited with having sent more murderers to the gallows than any other criminal investigator in British history. He retired from the Home Office in 1934.

One famous murder Sir Bernard investigated was that of Belle Ellmore Crippen, who was poisoned by her husband, Dr. Hawley Crippen, in 1910. Walter Dew, 84-year-old former chief inspector of Scotland who also investigated the case and arrested Dr. Crippen in Canada, died Tuesday in Worthing.

HOUSE DEBATES DOLLAR-SAVING ECONOMIC PLAN

Members Charge Govt. With Colossal Blunders

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP) — The Commons yesterday debated the government's dollar-saving economic program amid a flurry of opposition charges that it had committed 'colossal blunders' and was leading the country down the road to "dictatorship."

These charges were levelled by Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) and John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) as they spearheaded a Progressive Conservative drive against a bill, up for second reading, which would give legislative effect to the exchange conservation program launched Nov. 17.

The C.C.F. group forced the Chamber into a recorded vote when they tried again by amendment to postpone approval of the principle of the measure until price ceilings have been established on the imports affected by the economic measures.

Speaker Fauteux ruled the amendment, similar to one put forward Tuesday, out of order and C.C.F. members contested the ruling, which was upheld by a vote of 162 to 32.

These developments followed a statement by Reconstruction Minister Howe in which he outlined the government's plans, said the basic solution to the country's shortage of U. S. dollars would be found in increased production and called for the best use of Canada's basic materials, such as steel.

Nothing to Report

Amid reports that an announcement may be made shortly, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Chamber he had "nothing to report" for the moment on the negotiations proceeding here for the renewal of Anglo-Canadian food contracts for 1948.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King read a letter of thanks from Princess Elizabeth for the silver service and the mink coat she received from Canada as wedding gifts.

The Senate gave first reading to a bill authorizing the Bell Telephone Company of Canada to increase its capital and heard Senator A. W. Roebuck (L — Ontario), speaking in the throne speech debate, assert that Canada must either retrace its steps in the matter of "governmental interference or go on to a completely-controlled economy."

Resuming the exchange debate in the Commons, Reconstruction Minister Howe ascribed Canada's U. S. dollar shortage chiefly to the current investment boom.

"The government must therefore," he said, "take steps to regulate the huge volume of imports we now are making for ca-

FOUND INNOCENT OF DANGEROUS DRIVING

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Because he could see no criminal negligence on the part of the driver of a car which killed a man last June 13, Judge A. J. Gordon today found Francis J. Furlong, 17, of Windsor, innocent of dangerous driving.

Furlong had first been charged with manslaughter after his car struck and killed Robert J. McEwan. The charge was later reduced.

King, Queen Dance With Servants As Christmas Festivities Open

London, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Christmas festivities were officially opened at Buckingham Palace last night when a dance band struck up "People Will Say We're in Love" and the King, with Princess Elizabeth's maid, Margaret MacDonald, in his arms, glided across the polished floor.

The Queen and her page, Cyril Hayley, followed suit.

It was the annual Christmas staff shindig, held for the first time in a state apartment — the room in which Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip held their wedding breakfast — and more than 500 of the folks and their friends were on hand.

The Prince and Princess did not attend. They dined privately with friends.

Footmen, pages, servants and clerks of the Royal Household had just finished the "hokey-cokey" when the Royal Family arrived.

To the roll of drums, the King, in dinner jacket, the Queen, in an oyster satin evening gown with full skirt, tiara of diamonds, necklace and earrings of the same stones and Princess Margaret, in lemon yellow, walked into the room.

The Royal couple later danced together to the fast - stepping "The Wood Chopper's Ball" and to the fox trot "I've got the Sun in the Morning." They stayed around to watch exhibition dancing, went into the steward's room for refreshments and talked with many guests before retiring to their own apartments just before midnight.

The dance program included the Palais Glide, The Lambeth Walk and well-known British old-timers, like the St. Bernard Waltz, the Veleta and the Dashing White Sergeant.

Highways Heavy In South Ontario After Snowstorm

12 Passengers Marooned In Buses Near Norval

Toronto, Dec. 18 —(CP)—Highways are "heavy" throughout Southern Ontario today in the wake of Central Ontario's first crippling snowstorm of the season, officials of the Department of Highways reported.

Described by department officials as "a typical mid-winter storm," a snowfall ranging in depth from five to 12 inches blanketed the province last night.

The storm kept 12 passengers marooned in buses stuck in snowdrifts on No. 7 highway between Georgetown and Norval for four hours until the vehicles were dug out. High winds and driving snow tore down power lines and cut off power at Shelbourne and in the Clifford district of Wellington county.

Department of Highways officials warned motorists to stay off Collingwood district roads unless on urgent business. Icy pavements made driving perilous in that area and the snowfall was heavy. At noon garage operators reported a large number of cars and trucks stuck in roadside ditches.

Highway No. 6 between Mount Forest and Arthur, was blocked during the night but snow removal crews opened it this morning.

"No provincial highway is completely blocked," a Highways Department spokesman said this forenoon. "We expect the condition of the roads will improve during the day as no precipitation is forecast."

Skies Clearing

Windsor, Dec. 18 —(CP)— As skies cleared and the temperature dropped throughout Southern and Southwestern Ontario today, Highways Department snowplow crews worked to re-open roads clogged with drifts by last night's storm.

All main roads in the Windsor district were reported open this forenoon as high southwest winds abated. At Stratford, officials of the Department of Highways reported roads in their area "none too good" and said several stretches of main highways were "heavy."

The storm built an ice jam at the mouth of Kingsville harbor last night and two fishing tugs were trapped for some hours before being released by veteran Kingsville captains.

But in the Windsor district all main roads were reported open today as high southwest winds abated.

A storm moving across the Kirkland Lake region brought the weather disturbances in Southern and Western Ontario, with very cold temperatures promised for the entire province by noon today. Snowflurries general over the province intensified into heavy snowfalls in the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay areas.

Along with the colder weather clearing skies were forecast later today for most of Ontario.

Caught in Ice Jam

The fishing tugs Sandy Pat and Marlin were caught in the ice jam at Kingsville. The tug Arlene under Captain John Stewart liberated the Sandy Pat and then took the Martin in tow. The Marlin had engine trouble and was caught in ice and a rising swell.

Captain Stewart was out for three hours bucking a passage through the ice jam. He was assisted by Skipper Doug Murray in the John D., and James Rankin.

Beyond the ice jam in the upper end of Lake Erie a heavy sea was pounding, giving fear that many fishermen's nets would be lost.

Many Western Ontario highways were blocked last night and motorists were warned, especially north of London. Snow was reported to have reached a depth of 16 inches in parts of Wellington county and in the Wallaceburg area motor-driven road plows were put in operation for the first time this winter.

FIRE SURVIVOR TELLS OF EFFORTS TO SAVE FAMILY

Jas. Boomhour Says His Wife and Son Within Few Feet of Escaping

Kingston, Dec. 18 —(CP) — James Boomhour, 35, lone survivor of a farmhouse fire which took four lives near the districts farming community of Hartington, told Provincial police his 30-year-old wife, Lillian and his baby son came within a few feet of escaping from the blazing dwelling.

Boomhour talked to police last night from a hospital bed here where he is recovering from shock, severe burns and lacerations suffered early yesterday as he dashed from the flaming house to seek help from neighbors.

Cpl. Harry Ramsbottom of the Provincial Police, Kingston detachment said today Boomhour told him he awakened to find the 80-year-old log-walled farmhouse on fire. He aroused his wife and she picked up the six-month-old child, Harry James Boomhour, from a basket beside the window in the upstairs bedroom. Boomhour went to the stairway which led down to the kitchen and told his wife to follow him.

Reached Foot of Stairway

They groped through the smoke trying to keep their faces turned away from the roaring flames which were gaining headway in the kitchen woodwork. At the foot of the stairway, Boomhour told his wife he would break a window and that she was to follow him through it.

Boomhour smashed the kitchen window, climbed through it and jumped down into the snow. He turned to assist his wife and child but saw no sign of them. They had disappeared in the flames.

By that time, tongues of fire were leaping from the entire lower part of the house. Above the crackle and roar, he called to his wife and shouted to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Steven Card 69, and his brother-in-law, Henry Card, who still were upstairs. He received no answer.

O.S.D. STUDENTS ON WAY HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Two hundred and ninety students of the Ontario School for the Deaf here left last night for the Christmas and New Year's holidays. They will return in readiness for the school opening on January 6th.

Approximately twenty students will spend the holidays in school residence due to lengthy distances from home or illness in the family.

These students will enjoy an old-fashioned Christmas dinner, with a tree and all the trimmings. Relatives send gifts to the school and usually a jolly time is had.

The teaching staff also left for the holiday vacation, but the household staff will divide the holidays, one half remaining on duty for part of the time and the other taking over at the end of that period.

TRUSTEES NAMED FOR SCHOOL AREA

NAVY AIRMEN TO RECEIVE WINGS

The first wings parade since the end of the war will take place at the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton on Friday afternoon, it was announced today. The class will compose navy trainees and it will be the first time that navy airmen have been completely trained by the R.C.A.F. The chief of the naval staff, Vice Admiral H. T. W. Grant of Ottawa will be present to present the wings to the airmen. The parade will be held in the sports hangar at the south of the station.

Police Court

Fined for Taking Fish Illegally

Pleading guilty to transporting fish contrary to the Fish and Game regulations, three Trenton men were assessed fines of $50 and costs of $13.50 each when they appeared in county police court this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Charges of taking fish illegally which had also been laid against the three men, were withdrawn, while a like charge against a fourth Trenton man was enlarged until a later court. Pleading guilty to the charge of transporting fish were Gerald Smith, Lorne Smith and Frank Aikins, all of Trenton. The fourth man charged with taking fish was William Storms.

Albert Haines, Shannonville, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to supply an Indian with liquor contrary to the Indian Act and was sentenced to one month in jail to date from Dec. 7th. Haines is now serving a three-month jail term following being found guilty on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. The three-month sentence is up on January 6th.

A number of traffic cases were before the court, several of them being settled out of court and two others involving dangerous driving being enlarged until a later court.

Moscow, Dec. 18 (AP) — The Russian people were told by Pravda today that the Council of Foreign Ministers in London did not fail, but rather it was the plans of the United States Department that failed.

A Tass dispatch from London published in the Communist organ said, "there is no doubt but what the state department contemplated using the London session to cloak the American policy of establishing an imperialistic peace with the authority of the Council of Foreign Ministers and the colonial policy of the occupation authorities."

Pravada said that when State Secretary Marshall found out that there was no chance of using the council for this purpose he "applied aggressive tactics to hamper the conference."

Father of Dead Girl Tells Coroner's Jury Jean Badgley Was Exceptionally Good Shot

"Jean was a good shot. She could knock over a sparrow quicker than I could," Hugh Badgley, Frankford, told a coroner's jury Wednesday afternoon at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of his pretty 25-year-old daughter who three weeks ago was found in the back kitchen of her parents' home with a .22 bullet through her temple.

The Badgley girl died on the evening of November 30th, her body being found in the summer kitchen of the home by a boy friend, Harold Hagerman of Stirling, who had called to take the girl to Belleville. The parents were at church at the time.

Shown the .22 rifle found beside his daughter's body Mr. Badgley stated he recognized the gun as his own. He had it many years before they had left their farm on the 5th concession two years ago. He stated he had used the rifle last during the early summer when it was used to shoot starlings in his strawberry patch.

Could Not Remember

Asked if he had unloaded the rifle after using it last Mr. Badgley stated he could not remember. "I cannot say that," he said. "Sometimes I had to load the rifle to catch the starlings and at other times I did not." He was positive, however, that at no time had he left the rifle cocked. Jean had known where the rifle was kept on a shelf in the summer kitchen.

Only two witnesses were called during the afternoon's inquest proceedings which were held before Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott. These were Mr. Badgley, father of the dead girl, who was on the stand for two hours and William Madill, assistant C.N.R. agent at Frankford, who had called at the next door to Badgley's on the night of the shooting.

Adjourned Two Weeks

After the two witnesses were heard the inquest was adjourned for two weeks at which time a definite date for resumption of the inquest will be determined.

In questioning the father, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan went to some length to bring out the exact position of doors and windows in the Badgley home and also made inquiries as to boy friends in the girl's life.

There had been boy friends the father stated. Harold Hagerman had been the last with Jean having kept company with him for about one month prior to her death.

"Did your daughter at one time go with one Gordon Elder?" asked the Crown. "Yes" was the reply. "Jean kept company with Gordon before he went overseas and corresponded with him while he was away. She also kept company with him for a short time after he came back."

On question from the Crown, Mr. Badgley stated he felt sure if Jean had had any serious intentions or if she had been engaged to be married at any time she would have told the parents.

Almost breaking down at the thought of the mysterious circumstances surrounding his daughter's tragic death, Mr. Badgley told of taking Jean home from Belleville at noon on the Saturday before she died.

Did Usual Work

"She did the usual work around the house and was in good spirits," the father sobbingly related. "She did the washing and relieved her mother of the baking." He recalled that Jean had not gone out that evening.

The Sunday had been spent quietly with the household doing the usual routine tasks. "Jean suggested to us that the evening would be a good time for us to go to church as Harold would be taking her to Belleville."

"Harold who?" asked the Crown. "Harold Hagerman, her boy friend," was the reply.

Walked to Church

The father continued that he and Mrs. Badgley accordingly had gone to church, walking the two blocks. It was during the church service that Police Chief Edmund McGeachy of Frankford, had called him from the service to inform him that his daughter had been shot.

When he and Mrs. Badgley had left for church at 7.05 in the evening, Jean had been in good spirits and had her bags packed ready to return to her job in Belleville as private secretary.

"How many times had Hagerman been to the house?" questioned Mr. Donnan. "Two or three times," was the reply, "they had been going together only a month or so."

Here in answer to a question Mr. Badgley replied that the front door of the home was never used but was kept locked. The south door leading to the winter kitchen was used as the entrance.

"Then can you suggest why Hagerman on the night in question attempted to gain entrance by the front door instead of the side door."

"No, I cannot," replied Mr. Badgley. "The driveway is at the south and it would be only natural for him to go to the side door."

To further questioning Mr. Badgley stated that he had seen Hagerman at the house after he had returned with Police Chief McGeachy from the church but could not recall their conversation.

Continuing with his questioning Mr. Donnan brought out that Jean had been a "good living girl" and had never caused any trouble while at school. She had always been happy but recently had been troubled about the strike of workers at the Corbin plant in Belleville where she worked as secretary.

Called Out Near End

Here Coroner Dr. Russell Scott asked the witness at what time church started and when the service ended. Mr. Badgley replied the service started at 7.30 and ended around 8.30. It had been near the end of the service when he had been called from the church by Police Chief McGeachy.

Floor plans of the Badgley house showing doors and windows were introduced by the Crown as well as photographs showing both exterior and interior views of the home.

William Madill, second witness called stated that he had visited at the home next to Badgley's on the night of the shooting to visit his girl friend. Driving up the street he had seen Mr. and Mrs. Badgley walking to church.

However he had seen no movement around the Badgley home and insisted he had seen no car in the Badgley driveway.

Turkey Wishbone Sent Brooklyn Girl

New York, Dec. 18 (AP) — Four-year-old Julie Anne Alloro was the proudest girl in Brooklyn today.

From Buckingham Palace, she received the wishbone of the turkey she sent Princess Elizabeth as a wedding present.

And in addition she had a letter expressing gratitude for the 17-pound turkey.

Early last month Julie, who had heard of food shortages in Europe, picked up her piggy bank containing $4.20 and travelled alone to Manhattan to place an order with an exporting firm for a turkey to be sent to the Princess. Julie's mother was notified by the firm and she added $5 as part payment on the bird.

The turkey was sent with a note asking that the bird's wishbone be returned to the sender.

IN MEMORIAM

ALLORE—In loving memory of my dear father, Paul L. Allore, who passed away December 18th., 1946.

He is gone, but not forgotten
And, as dawns another year,
In my lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness still come o'er me,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within the heart concealed.

Lovingly remembered by your daughter May and son-in-law George and grandchildren Clarence, Allan, Joseph Kaiser. D18

ALLORE—In loving memory of our dear father Paul Allore, who passed away one year ago, Dec. 18th., 1946.

Farewell dear father, thy work is o'er,
Thy willing hands will toil no more,
A loving father kind and true,
No one on earth we'll find like you.

Sales of Christmas Seals Very Good But Have You Bought Yours Yet?

"The response to the Christmas Seals appeal has been very good so far, but a lot of people whose intentions are the best in the world have forgotten to send in their contributions, probably due to the Christmas rush," mayor-elect D. L. Storey, chairman of the Hastings Tuberculosis Association said this morning.

"We are exceedingly grateful for what has been contributed thus far," the mayor-elect went on, "but we would like to jog the memories of the fellows and girls who have neglected to forward their donations."

Aim of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association and the sponsoring organization, the Belleville Shrine Club, is the installation in Belleville General Hospital of an X-ray machine which will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. Through this modern equipment, every patient admitted to the hospital will be given X-ray examinations free of charge.

This work will be done in conjunction with the mass T. B. surveys which are paid for from the proceeds derived from the sale of Christmas Seals. The association expects to conduct a complete survey of the residents of the city next year.

"So," smiled the mayor-elect as he waded through a pile of receipts and cash donations, "please remind the good people that we are still in business and will gratefully accept their contributions, no matter how large or how small."

Pedestrians and Motorists Asked To Use Care to Avoid Accidents

With city streets in an extremely slippery condition as result of recent snow storms and with increased numbers of Christmas shoppers in the downtown section of the city. Police Chief Walter Probert today warned motorists to exercise the greatest care to avoid possible accidents.

"Motorists must realize that with snow and ice on the pavement they cannot hope to bring their vehicles to a stop as quickly as they might on a dry pavement therefore greater care must be exercised if accidents are to be avoided," the police chief warned.

Pedestrians were also urged to exercise care and were asked to cross streets only at intersections and other designated points. With increased traffic on the street due to the Christmas shopping period additional care is necesary if accidents are to be avoided.

"The practice of shoppers stepping out from behind cars is one of the most frequent causes of accidents," continued Chief Probert. "When pedestrians step out suddenly from behind parked autos motorists are given little opportunity to avoid striking them and the danger of accident is considerably greater with streets covered with snow and ice.

A few weighty steers were bringing $13.50 to $16.25 a hundredweight while plain to medium heifesr sold at $11.50 to $13.25. Butcher cows were $8 to $11 and plain stockers moved at $10 to $11.

Hogs remained firm at $23.25 for Grade A and $22.85 for B1. Sows brought $15.50 dressed.

Lambs were steady at $16.50 for good ewes and wethers.

Sheep ranged steady from $4 to $9.

Store Windows Broken When Taxicab Skids

Three plate glass windows of the Martin Senour store on Front Street were broken early this morning when a local taxi cab driven by James Brown, Y.M.C.A., skidded on the slippery pavement and slid sideways across the sidewalk into the window. The driver was charged by police with careless driving.

According to police Brown was driving south on Front Street shortly before seven o'clock when turning out to avoid a parked car his auto went into a skid and continued out of control across the sidewalk into the window. Fortunately no pedestrians were nearby and no one was hurt.

The taxi had chains on the rear wheels but the driver was unable to control the car when it went into the skid.

Hills, Streets Slippery

Several other accidents as result of slippery streets occurred in the city during yesterday afternoon's storm and last evening when streets and hills were in an extremely slippery condition.

The hill on Bridge Street, W. proved too great an obstacle for many motorists, particularly transport drivers, whose vehicles failed to negotiate the grade. During the afternoon in height of the snowstorm cars and transports were stuck on the hill while in the evening large trucks slithered sideways in the roadway as tires failed to get needed traction.

Late in the evening the department of public works had the sand truck on the job to relieve conditions.

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—Reports to the State Department say Russia's revaluation of the ruble his farmers particularly hard and the peasant element is taking rather a dim view of it, Robert Lovett, Undersecretary of State, disclosed today.

He also said at a press conference that the department intends to meet what he terms Russian propaganda distortions by identifying falsehoods and telling the true facts.

Lovett read from official reports from Moscow on the Russian currency order announced Sunday. The order provided for exchange of one ruble of a new issue for 10 of the outstanding issue if the holder had cash.

The undersecretary termed this 90 per cent confiscation of cash.

The department's report from Moscow aid that there were some indications of rather ironic comment because the Soviet Government had urged the farmers to do all they could to increase production, which was the source of the rubles they held.

Speaking ironically, Lovett said in other messages there appeared mystification how this shockproof, waterproof, self-winding Soviet economy could go through the same type of readjustment found necessary in other countries.

It would be a great mistake to conclude that the Soviet's fundamental economy was falling apart, but Lovett added that the revaluation showed that this form of economy was subject to the same human frailties as others.

On the matter of replying to Russian propaganda, Lovett said this policy will be followed on the "Voice of America" official radio, in statements to the press, and in public addresses of officials.

Trans-Arabian Pipeline Project At Standstill

(The following story was written by Tony Smith of the Gannett News Service on assignment in Saudi Arabia. It is distributed by The Associated Press with permission of the Gannett News Service.)

By TONY SMITH
(Copyright, 1947, By Gannett News Service)

Sidon, Lebannon, Dec. 18. (Via Cable).—Work on the strategic trans-Arabian pipeline propect is at a complete standstill throughout the Middle East, except in Saudi Arabia, because of Arab enmity.

This is the project which Defence Secretary Forrestal has called vital to United States interests.

The projects known as "tapline", runs from Abquaiq on the Persian Gulf to the shores of the Mediterranean.

In an aerial survey, I found that the work stoppage is virtually complete.

Bedouin tempers in the wild country of Trans-Jordan and Syria are still boiling with resentment against the United States' part in the United Nations partition of Palestine.

It is unsafe for American crews anywhere in the desert outside of Saudi Arabian King Ibn Saud's jurisdiction. American work teams at this end of the project have been called in, and work suspended.

A check at the Rasma Shasb staging base in Saudi Arabia, 200 miles north of Dhahran, revealed that the thousand Arabs there still are friendly toward the community's 350 Americans. But they are becoming more outspoken in their criticism of the American part in the Palestine partition.

At Duwald, an isolated camp 500 miles west of Mashaab, seven Americans are surrounded by 500 Belouins but appear to be getting on all right.

Tell-tale black specks among the brown rocks and sandhills showed a surprising number of desert nomads are concentrated along the pipeline route.

At the time of this desert crossing, the outlook for channelling oil to Europe under the Marshall plan is dark.

Magic of Coming Yuletide

Christmas trees and entertainments—what charm there is in these and in their very name! What visions of merriment and happiness are conjured up these days by those who have attended such gatherings and entertainment in other years! And what greater magic awaits the younger boys and girls who have no recollection of having before attended a Christmas entertainment. They will henceforth have indelible memories of those delightful occasions!

These days of the second half of pre-Christmas week find the spirit of Christmas in everything, in the thoughts and in the actions of everyone. Christmas is now casting its glow ahead and the youngsters are remarkably perceptive.

From now on more and more the spirit of the time will touch every thought in play and in planning. Holidays near at hand for the schools will bring the thousands of youngsters into the pre-Christmas picture.

Sunday this year is half a week ahead of the great festivities. On that day there will be the most impressive presentation of the Christmas theme in music, tableaux and in sermons. Sunday will usher in the last days before the celebration, throbbing with anticipation.

Days are passing with the rapidity of pre-Christmas days in December. Less than a week remains before the festival. The remaining time will be filled with the preparations for the anniversary.

Still despite the volume of business much of the buying has yet to be done, buyers counting on the remaining days in which to do the rest of the shopping.

Weather has been favorable with the evidences of winter. Wednesday's storm looked more rugged and wintry than any of the season so far. It gave a thorough winter cast to the landscape and a setting which is considered desirable and fitting at Yuletide.

Fire Tragedy

Tragedy by fire shocks not only the immediate neighborhood of the scene of death but also the entire country. And winter is the time when many such tragedies predominate.

News of the deaths of four persons in a fire at Hartingdon, north of Kingston, was one of the disasters which naturally cause profound feeling of shock and sorrow.

Fires in homes very often occur during the night when the inmates have little or no opportunity to save themselves, for fire gains headway swiftly and with smoke and darkness and confusion even if inmates are awake there is great danger that they will be dazed and quite overcome by smoke as well as badly burned or be smothered in their sleep.

Fire is an insidious enemy of man and when it gains control as in the dead of night, it is likely to leave a trail of death and total loss of property.

In the face of such untoward events, there is the sense of deep sympathy for the hapless victims, who so often include children and whole families.

At such a time the thought strikes everyone who has the duty of looking after fires, to be eternally on guard lest fire break out whether in daytime when one is more on guard or at night when the stealthy flames can wipe out a home and its occupants in a few moments.

Paris via Dunkerque

Train ferries have been restored between London and Paris by way of Dover and Dunkerque. That means that there has been this much of restoration from pre-war conditions. The train ferries are one of the proofs that the war has now been past for some time and that the rule of peace has been at work. The traveller may now travel without fear of molestation or disturbance. Guns will not awaken him and he does not need to change cars.

In reference to this a New York Times writer remarks that "the Straits of Dover may be rough but there will be no enemy submarines, no enemy planes, nor friendly planes limping home with riddled wings and coughing engines and men dying in the cockpits; the traveller need not wake.

"He need not wake at Dunkerque; there is no firing in the town or on the beaches; the evacuation is over; the dead have been buried; the living no longer wait on the sand and in the water for the nine hundred little ships and launches that saved an army there, in Britain's and France's darkest hour, seven and a half years ago. He may sleep tranquilly as he passes through Bethune, where the British held back the Germans, at such sacrifice as was required, from 1914 till 1918; through Loos, where the British cemeteries tell of thousands of men dead in a two-mile advance in 1915; through Arras, under the shadow of blood-drenched Vimy Ridge. The dead and the memories of the old war and the later one will slip past the traveller in the night and early morning; he need not wake."

That is the price which was paid by many thousands of men that the free way of life may continue. Twice the Teutons in a generation disturbed the peace of mankind and twice this area about Dunkerque was the scene of service where the Allied leaders and men in that historic path fought the way to peace and freedom.

The reference to Dunkerque brings so vividly to mind memories of the time when this was the road to freedom and glory.

This part of Europe has seen the centuries pass and will witness the passage of centuries. That they may be centuries of peace is the prayer of millions who have known what the late war and the earlier struggle have meant.

Signed by Canute

Richard Dimbleby was recently in the old Norfolk seaport of King's Lynn and saw there the town's treasures, ancient, precious things that are rigorously protected. "The sight of them," said Dimbleby, "gives you an odd feeling of steadiness in facing the changes in the tempo of life in this post-war world."

The treasures lie in a glass case behind bars, in a brick-built strong room at the side of the city's Guildhall. There is a gilt and enamel Cup of John that has been in the town's possession for six hundred years and is still used at ceremonies, the sword given to the town by King John and used in every Mayoral procession and the famous beadle's staff. This dread staff on its proud way through the town is said to invite pieces of anyone who gets in its way to drop off, vital pieces such as ears or noses. Nobody does get in its way. Most interesting of all, perhaps, is a prosiac wooden filing cabinet, where "Among Charters and Documents sealed by Kings and Queens of nearly seven hundred years is one parchment sheet bearing the name of King Canute, who did other things than stop the tide coming in, and at the bottom is his name in Latin sccript — and at the side of it (for Canute could not write) is a shaky cross — Canute his mark."

Weight of Dress Materials

All over the world there is a noticeable tendency to make materials for women's dresses and coats lighter, without reducing their ability to keep the wearers warm. Experts in Britain's textile industries's research laboratories are concentrating on the solution of this problem by new methods of treating the yarn and new methods of weaving. They have succeeded already in reducing the weight of new materials to two-thirds the weight of customary cloth. These new materials have become popular rapidly, as women were unreservedly convinced of their suitability for dresses and coats. Part of this success can be ascribed to the fact that English and Scottish manufacturers produced new color shades corresponding to latest fashion trends. — Woodstock Sentinel Review.

The motor vehicle is a potentially dangerous mechanical device when operated on the public highway, and the fitness of those who would operate one should be established before a license is issued. "Fitness" should include not only the ability to drive the car, but a working knowledge of highway traffic laws and regulations and freedom from serious physical handicaps, such as poor eyesight. — Edmonton Journal.

Only five more shopping days in which to get ready for Christmas! Yet how much remains to be done!

TRUE CHAMPIONS

To strength and skill high praise is paid.
Records by champions are made,
But who would have his victory whole
Must touch with glory mind and soul.

A brute his rivals may defeat.
The cleverest man may be a cheat,
But howsoever large their gain,
Still brute and cheat they both remain.

The champions rise and disappear.
Strength falls to strength from year to year,
But win or lose, through good or ill,
The great of heart are honored still.

The friendly men, the kind and just,
The faithful men that all can trust,
The men who what is best defend
Are champions to the journey's end.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was the original Watchdog of the Treasury?

"Watchdog of the Treasury" is applied to a public official, usually a member of Congress, who advocates economy and persistently tries to prevent excessive appropriations and expenditures.

It is supposed that the epithet was first applied to Peter Hager, who in 1817 was appointed third auditor of the United States Treasury Department in charge of adjusting financial claims against the Government and who performed his duties so efficiently that he was twice thanked by Congress.

Later the epithet was applied to several different Congressmen. Representative Richard Meade of Virginia, according to the Congressional Globe, made the following reference to Representative George Houston of Alabama on March 3, 1853, his last day in Congress: "If I were to elect a man in this House who was the most faithful watchdog of the Treasury of the United States, I would elect the gentleman from Alabama."

Elihu B. Washburne of Illinois, who served in Congress from 1853 to 1869, was the first to bear the specific nickname "Watchdog of the Treasury." It was applied to him after he became chairman of the appropriations committee in 1867 because of his efforts to limit expenditures of public money.

The sobriquet, however, became most popular in connection with William Steel Holman, an Indiana Democrat, who served in Congress 16 years between 1859 and 1897. He was also known as "The Great Objector" because he so frequently objected to appropriation bills in his efforts to keep down Government expenses.

The Fifty-First Congress (March 4, 1889-March 3, 1891) was the first to make appropriations totalling more than a billion dollars. In the first session $500,000,000 was appropriated and in the second session a slightly larger amount. During the second session in 1891 Holman and his Democratic colleagues ridiculed this alleged extravagance and called that Congress "the billion-dollar Congress." Thomas B. Reed of Maine, Republican Speaker of the House, retorted: "This is a billion-dollar country."

On one occasion Holman did not object to an appropriation bill that contained an item for the special benefit of his own district, whereupon another member arose and quoted the following lines from Byron's "Don Juan":

Bay deep-mouth'd welcome as we draw near home.

"Watchdog of the Treasury" is now often applied to the Comptroller General of the United States, head of the General Accounting Office, an agency created in 1921 to settle and adjust independently of the executive departments, all claims made by or against the Government and to investigate all matters related to the receipt, disbursement and application of public funds. The Comptroller General performs the functions of a watchdog of the treasury by seeing that all appropriations are spent according to the intent of Congress.

Company, Union Reach Stalemate

Philadelphia, Dec. 18—(AP)—Contract negotiations between the Western Union Telegraph Company and its 50,000 employer-members of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.), have reached a stalemate with the union ready to call a United States-wide strike next Tuesday.

Negotiations were recessed until further notice late Tuesday after the union had rejected as "insulting" a company offer said by the telegraphers' representatives to call for a 1947 bonus of about $22 for each employee and a wage increase.

The company had no comment on the offer but earlier in the day management negotiators were quoted as saying:

"The union is entitled to no increase at all and besides the company has no money for a pay boost."

DREAD OF DENTAL TREATMENT IS STUPID TOO

Several dentists I have asked are unable to tell me the name of the pain-killer you said a dentist or physician can use to prevent suffering when one must undergo painful dental treatment. They say they know of nothing but—which is dangerous to a patient who might fall asleep on leaving the office. As I have several cavities that need attention I am delaying making an appointment until I hear from you. I suffer the tortures.. in the dentist's chair...

(Mrs. G. C.)

In the first place I did not suggest a pain-killer. I mentioned a sedative which your dentist or physician must prescribe or administer, to calm just such a dread, which amounts to a phobia, as you describe by mouth a few hours before the dental treatment is given, calms such dread or fear and enables the dentist to do better work that is possible if the patient is unduly timid or jittery about the "ordeal."

Then, too, a dentist who is reasonably skilled can use local anesthetics and make whatever treatment the condition requires really painless.

So I say that if your dentist knows his business it is just plain stupid to permit such fear or phobia to make you evade or put off proper treatment, no matter what may be necessary to restore your masticating function to normal.

I wince even now when I recall the bout I fought with my dentist who was trying to extract the root of a wisdom tooth when I was a medical student. It was in several rounds, but he got it at last. Few dentists used local anesthetics in those days. Two or three years ago I had another bout—but this time the dentist injected local anesthetic, fiddled or whistled around the place for a while and pretty soon went to work and did a swell job and I never felt the slightest discomfort then or later.

You say several dentists are unable to tell you the name of the sedative (it is not a pain-killer). Ma'am leave the name of the sedative to your dentist. Let him prescribe or administer it, or your physician if your dentist has any doubts about the propriety of a dentist prescribing for his patient.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Old-Gallstone Humbug

Please state whether gallstones can be removed from the body solely by oil or other medicine, or by electrical diathermy or by any kind of ray treatment

(Mrs. R. C.)

Answer — Occasionally gallstones pass through the gall duct into the intestine and out of the body naturally. No oil, medicine, electrical ray treatment can remove gallstones—the day when that humbug could be perpetrated on the gullible public has passed. Operation is the only way to remove gallstones.

Have a Shower

Your preference for the shower rather than tub recalls what a hospital superintendent said regarding baths for invalids. It was much easier to wheel them under the shower, than wheel them out, than to bath them in bed or lift them in and out of a tub.

(Miss C. R. S.)

Answer—The superintendent has something there. Look's as though the bath tub is necessary only for storage of coal or potatoes or for Junior to try out his latest sailboat or submarine.

Who Pays the Freight.

Please send me an Iodin Ration pamphlet. (Mrs. F. B.)

Answer—Postcard requests do not comply with rules. For "Instructions for Taking an Iodin Ration" send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Canada Dredge And Dock Co. Given Contract

The Canada Dredge and Dock Company of Toronto was awarded the contract to construct a water main across the Moira River by the Public Utilities Commission at a meeting held in the Board Room on Tuesday afternoon. It was the last meeting of Mayor Frank Follwell before retiring to private life and he stated that he hoped his years of service to the city had been beneficial to the consumers of the three utilities. He thanked the commissioners and the management for their co-operation and the staff for their kindness during his term as Mayor. Mr. Wotten, chairman of the Commission, M. P. Duff and Mr. O. H. Scott each expressed their regrets at his retirement and thanked him for the many favors shown.

In awarding the contract for approximately 27,000, Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers, gave instruction to the Commission to place an order for all material to be purchased by the Utilities to complete this work. The commission is awaiting a further report on the extension of the mains in the city, which may be started in 1948. A letter was read from the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario urging further power conservation and the Commission ordered that this letter be published in the press.

DISGUST FOR MODERN THIEVES

Tokyo, Dec. 18 (AP)—Matsukichi Tsumaki, Tokyo's terror of the late '20s, was paraled today from a life sentence for robbery, and offered this advise to crooks:

Play with the victims' crying babies as you prowl.

"When a baby cried in a home I was robbing, I went away leaving the place untouched after I have played with the child," said Tsumaki, who served 19 years before being paroled for heroism in a prison fire. He expressed disgust for the new generation of robbers.

AGITATOR DOWNED BY ITALIAN POLICE

Seated on the street with his hands to his head is an alleged Communist agitator, after he was down by Italian police who broke up an impending riot outside the Italian Chamber of Deputies, during the general strike called by Communist Labor boss, Giuseppi Di Vittorio. The riot started outside the Chamber of Deputies building in Rome when police tried to disperse mobs of yelling strikers. Red deputies from the chamber ran out to try and halt the police beating their fellow Reds, and they, too, fared very badly because police mauled and beat some of them, too. The strike was called off when thousands of workers returned to work after two days.

Groups Oppose Shipping Of Arms to China

Vancouver, Dec. 18 (CP) — Longshoremen prepared to load a $1,200,000 cargo of ammunition and aircraft ground equipment on a China-bound ship here today despite growing protests from church, labor and C.C.F. groups.

S. R. Mackenzie, vice-president Local 501 of the C.I.O.-Affiliated Longshoremen's Union said last night that the dispute was not a labor problem but a mass demonstration against ammunition being sold by Canada to another country. In order to uphold their contract the longshoremen would load the ship — the Panamanian -owned S.S. Colima — under protest.

Delegates from church and other protesting groups, meanwhile planned another conference today in an effort to halt departure of the cargo, which government sources in Ottawa said presumably would be used by Chinese forces against insurgent Communists.

In his statement last night Mr. Mackenzie said the ship would be loaded "pickets or no pickets."

Pickets were threatened yesterday by the National Federation of Labor Youth, but decision to delay action until today was finally reached. The Vancouver Labor Council (C.I.O.) in an emergency meeting backed the suggestion that a picket line be thrown around the ship.

The protested cargo is said by Ottawa sources to be based on the 1945 Chinese-Canadian mutual agreement which provided for Canada shipping about 170 surplus Mosquito fighter-bombers to China along with guns, ammunition and ground maintenance equipment.

The shipment was criticized by Rev. Andrew Roddan, First United Church Minister, on the ground that "what China needs at present is food and not additional means to continue destruction."

F. J. Mackenzie, C.C.F. Provincial Secretary, wired M. J. Coldwell, National C.C.F. leader, asking that he "urge banning the reported shipment."

Rifle Explodes Accidentally And Boy Injures Hand

Picton, (Special) — When a rifle he was handling accidentally exploded, Bobby Wood, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Wood, Cherry Valley, suffered severe injury to one hand. The bullet severely tore the flesh on two fingers and tore the bone out of the joint of one. Doctors hope that one of the fingers can be saved. The boy had been accustomed to handling a .22 rifle and was putting a shell in a .22 repeater which had been left at the home. He was unaware that it already contained a bullet.

Also victim of a shooting accident ten days ago. Oakley Craig, 12, of East Lake expects to return from Kingston hospital tomorrow. He was gravely ill after being shot through the addomen while out hunting, but has made a remarkable recovery. Eight wounds in the bowels were made by the bullet and the boy suffered loss of a great deal of blood.

When Mrs. Stanley Rankin returned to her home to secure some decorations for a Christmas tree at Salmon Point Church it was a lucky visit. Previous to going to the church to assist in preparing for a concert, she had put her daughter Judy, 5, in bed, along with a heating pad. When it was decided to decorate the tree, she made an early trip home to secure the materials. Entering the house she noticed a small of burning. On investigation she found that the child's bedroom was full of smoke and that the heating pad had burned a hole completely through the mattress, but had not yet burst into flames. The child suffered few ill effects due to the early discovery.

Move To New Home

Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Grant who left yesterday for their new charge at Augusta were much entertained prior to their departure from the Parish of Wellington. Members of St. Andrew's church, Wellington and Christ Church, Hillier gathered at Wellington town hall to honor the esteemed couple. W. A. Davern was Master of Ceremonies. King Terry made the presentation of a purse of money. On behalf of the St. Andrew's Guild, Mrs. Jean Wallace presented Mrs. Grant with a boquet of flowers and a cup and saucer. Mrs. A. Jones, on behalf of Christ Church Guild, presented them with a beautiful quilt.

Rev. and Mrs. Grant were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weir, Consecon. Members of Consecon Guild through Mrs. Edgar Matthews expressed appreciation at the fine service given by Mr. and Mrs. Grant and presented them with a Kenwood blanket.

'Peaceful' India As Seen Among The Refugees

(By Alan Moorehead in the London Observer)

When Earl Mountbatten said on his arrival in London recently that only three percent of India's 400,000,000 population was involved in the present disorders, he was very justifiably making a point which has been overlooked because it was not news. But it is hardly a normal peace among the other 97 percent.

One is strongly inclined to agree with Pandit Nehru's last words to me as I left Delhi: "It is not really possible for a foreigner to understand our minds or our ways of conducting negotiations." But conduct the negotiations they do, and I cannot see that the immediate future lies with the submerged 97 percent of the people in the peaceful country. They wait, and they suffer what fate and the individuals in the cities may bring them. Only their family ties, their work, and their religion are their own.

Not fifty miles out of Delhi I came upon one of those scenes which shock the mind in India, no matter how often they are repeated. We had been travelling through flat, half-desert country, seeing nothing more remarkable than the tree-rats and the monkeys and the brilliant birds that come in to nest on the roadside trees in the evening. Suddenly a dust-haze appeared on the horizon, staining the blue sky yellow for a quarter of a mile above the earth, and over this and wheeling through it, many vultures.

As we drew nearer we saw more and more vultures on the ground, tearing at the carcasses of bullocks and other dead animals. Then we were in the midst of a Moslem refugee column heading south and west, away from India towards Pakistan. The people and the bullocks grew thicker and thicker until they sprawled across the countryside to the horizon on either side.

For six or seven miles this huge host stretched away to the south, tens of thousands of ragged, half-starved bodies crawling and sprawling about over the brown earth, compacting themselves around the water holes, stamping up the yellow dust, and in that choking dry fog they looked like ghosts, or at least like something sub-human.

There are no individuals in such a desperate migration as this, and a human life has no more consequence than that of an insect—which perhaps is just as well because so many of them will certainly be dead long before their journey's end. The refugees do not beg. They stand and stare at a man in a motor car, washed and clean and fed, as though he were some phenomenon from another planet.

There are many other columns like this, but then one cannot comprehend these others any more than one really comprehends when one is told that the sun is only one of the smaller stars in the sky. This one column, when you are in the midst of it, seems universal. It staggers on at the pace of a bullock, dropping off its rejects for the vultures as it goes. It will still be on the road next week and the week after. Nobody really cares what happens to it.

These refugees are worse off than prisoners of war. But then this is not war. Nor is it peace.

W. M. A. W. Drew; I.P.M., C. Bell; S.W., C. Watson; J.W., C. R. Whittemore; Chaplain H. O. Loveless; Treasurer, F. R. Wells; Secretary, C. H. Buskard.

Foxboro United Ch. Scene of Inspiring White Gift Service

Foxboro.—A very inspiring "White Gift Service" was enjoyed on Sunday evening by a large congregation in the United Church.

The choir was assisted by boys and girls gowned in white, who contributed several Christmas numbers to the choir music. The front of the church was beautifully decorated in white, with two lighted trees, one on either side, and when the curtains were drawn apart an impressive manger scene came into view, with Miss Reta Christie, as "Mary" in adoration for the "Babe in the Manger".

Rev. A. L. Shorten, pastor of the church, used as his theme "Gifts for the King", relative to the origin of the White Gift Service, which was very interesting and informative.

A large array of gifts, wrapped in white, were placed near the front of the church, and these will later be sent to a minister in London, to be distributed to those in need.

Another pre-nuptial surprise for Fern Bamber took place last evening when her friends and co-workers presented the bride-to-be with a beautiful hammered pewter service tray of leaf design.

The bride-elect, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. V. Bamber, Frankford, (formerly of Foxboro), who will marry Lloyd Green on December 20, was recently entertained at a social evening by Dorothy Kaywood, St. Clair Ave. West, and a dinner party by Mrs. Ted Thring, The Kingsway.

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD

The Christmas meeting of the Tabernacle Young Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. G. S. Stanton, 12 Donald Street, on Monday evening. The President, Mrs. Grant Coulter, presided and after the business meeting several favorite Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. R. Wardle read a number of Christmas legends, which were both interesting and enlightening. Miss Jane Smyth then gave that very inspiring story, "The Other Wise Man", by Henry Van Dyke.

Mrs. J. A. Buchanan had charge of the Worship Service, which consisted of a beautiful story of the birth of Christ as a modern reporter would have told it.

The meeting closed with prayer and the hostesses for the evening, Miss Olive Elson and Mrs. A. E. Cornish, served delicious refreshments.

3rd Hillier

3rd Hillier.—Mrs. Stewart Wood and school children will have their Christmas Party on Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m., at Niles' Corners' School.

The Hillier Institute will meet at the home of Mrs. F. Sherwin, Hillier, on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roote of Melville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway.

Mr. Clark Clapp of Hillier, has been building fence for Ross Benway this past week.

It's the Week Before Christmas

It seems that all the cooks in the country are vying with each other and with themselves to prepare the best Christmas dinner they ever served.

In each family there is a one general pattern for this special dinner when sons, daughters, aunts and cousins with all the children have returned to gather around the table.

According to this tradition, the main course may be turkey, goose, roast beef or some other meat or poultry. Plum pudding, mince pie or perhaps ice cream in the shape of Santa Claus has been established by predecent as the perfect ressert but there is plenty of room for variation in appetizers, garnishes and in choice vegetables.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture has several suggestions for those last minute fixings that add so much to both elegance and savour of the meal.

Tomato Sherbet may be quickly made in the morning and will be ready in the refrigerator tray to serve as an appetizer. The parsnip salad is delicious and unusual. The pudding sauce is very light and fluffy.

May everything add up to a Merry Christmas for you and yours.

TOMATO SHERBET

2 1-2 cups canned tomatoes
6 peppercorns
3 cloves
Bit of bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 slice onion
½ teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar
2 teaspoons gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water

Combine tomatoes, spices, sugar, salt and onion and simmer 10 minutes in a covered saucepan. Strain and add lemon juice or vinegar. Soak gelatin in cold water, then stir it over hot water until melted.

Combine with tomato juice, pour into refrigerator pan and freeze. Stir and beat several times while freezing. Serve in small glasses as an appetizer. Six servings.

PARSNIP SALAD

2 cups grated raw parsnip
2 cups diced apple (with some of the red skin left on)
¼ cup diced orange
¼ teaspoon salt
1-2 cup tart salad dressing

Toss all ingredients lightly together. Chill. Six servings.

FLUFFY SAUCE

2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg white
1-2 cup water
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon of orange rind.

Combine sugar and flour. Add water slowly. Cook over boiling water until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Just before serving (while still hot) add orange juice and rind and pour mixture slowly over stiffly beaten egg white. Blend well and serve immediately. Makes 1 1-4 cups approximately. A very light, fluffy sauce.

GEORGE BRENT MARRIED

Yuma, Ariz., Dec. 18—(AP) — Actor George Brent and Janet Michael were married here yesterday. It was the fourth marriage for Brent. The bride, a San Francisco girl, gave her age as 27. Brent placed his at 43.

Miss Phyllis Ward Guest of Honor At Tea-Shower

The home of Mrs. H. Arthurs, on Albert Street, was the setting for an afternoon tea and shower held recently in honor of Miss Phyllis Ward, bride-elect of this month, with Misses Jean Diamond and June Domosly as co-hostesses.

Guests were entertained and employed with the making of a "Bride's Book", after which the hostesses presented Miss Ward with a large basket, beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, which held gifts of all sizes and shapes wrapped in pastel colored coverings.

Having opened the interesting packages Miss Ward graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation to her friends, and delectable refreshments were served.

MAY MOVE TO SENATE

Quebec, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Le Soleil in a dispatch today from its Ottawa correspondent said C. G. Power, Liberal Member of Parliament for Quebec South and former air minister, may return to the Federal Cabinet as minister without portfolio occupying a Senate seat. The newspaper said Senator Thomas Vien, former Senate president, is expected to receive an "important diplomatic post" and that Mr. Power would be appointed to his Upper House seat.

FINED FOR TAKING BONUS

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Samuel Florence and his son Dr. Joseph Florence, accused of taking a bonus of $300 from a prospective tenant for occupancy of an apartment, were each fined $150 and costs in police court Tuesday.

Mr., Mrs. Wm. Liddle Celebrate Their 50th Wedding

Salem.—On Monday evening, December 8th., about fifty friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Liddle, Corbyville, to celebrate with them, their 50th wedding anniversary and to present them with a davenport while Mrs. John Milligan read a congratulatory address on behalf of the neighborhood. They were also presented with many other gifts among which were a wall mirror from Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkinson and a gold-colored bedspread from Mr. and Mrs. Jim Leverton, Mr. and Mrs. John Sine and Mr. and Mrs. Will Clarke.

Refreshments were served and the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Liddle many more happy anniversaries.

COMEDIAN'S FATHER DIES

Hollywood, Dec. 18 — (AP) — J. Darsie Lloyd, 83, who started his son, Harold Lloyd, on a motion picture career with a flip of a coin, died yesterday. Harold decided he wanted to act in 1912 and wanted to decide between New York and Hollywood. The coin sent him west.

Scouts Provide Yule Program

The December meeting of the 8th Belleville Auxiliary took the form of a "Cub and Scout" Christmas concert and was held in the auditorium of Queen Mary School.

After the guests had been cordially welcomed by Mrs. M. Button, president, Mrs. Poste presented signal flags to the Cubs and a plaque to the scouts, gifts of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Wagar led in the singing of Christmas carols with Mr. K. Martin at the piano.

Carol, by Scouts: "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks"; solo, by Billie Post, "White Christmas"; carol by Cub group, "Christmas Bells", by Bruce Dobbs, Bobby Latchford and Skippy Dracup; recitation by Bill Whittaker, "Made to Order"; solo, by Jack Lafferty, 'Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"; song and dance by Galbraith Sisters; duet by Jack Lafferty and Billie Post, Scout Vesper Hymn; solo by Jack Lafferty, "O, Come All Ye Faithful"; carol, by Cubs, "Silent Night".

The Cubs and Scouts showed their appreciation to the Auxiliary, by the giving of three hearty cheers.

Mrs. Button then introduced Mr. B. Brown "Scout Commissioner" and Mr. M. Button, chairman of the local Association, both of whom gave short addresses on the good work of Cub and Scout leaders, and gave a challenge to the fathers in the audience to join with them in forming a Scout Committee.

Gifts and a Christmas treat from the Auxiliary were distributed to each Cub and Scout, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Wagar and assistants.

Don't Be a Drive-Yourself Woman; Stop for Relaxation

Screen Star Jeff Donnell's lovely smooth skin shows that she is always careful to get adequate rest and relaxation

By HELEN FOLLETT

EXERCISE helps beauty's cause and so does relaxation.

Considering the delirium of life at the present moment, it behooves every one to find a balance of activity and rest. When you feel that time is nipping at your heels, keeping you on the run, that you are suffering wear and tear, grant yourself a few quiet moments. Go to your room. Shut the door. Close your eyes and think about nothing at all. In half an hour you will enjoy a sense of refreshment, can hop up, pick up the threads of your job again.

A Tense Look

City dwellers, tearing along in crowds and rushing currents, often show faces that are tense. Eyebrows drawn together. Shoulders thrown forward. That's bad. We are continually wasting energy through hurrying hither and yon. Let's be calm now and then. Let's iron out tense facial lines and muscles. Let's relax.

More and more families are moving to the suburbs that make for a quieter, more leisurely existence. It's nice to have a yard filled with green growing things, to smell the good earth when you open the door in the morning. The mama will stay younger and prettier under such conditions. The children will have more normal lives.

Be Kind to Yourself

If you are drive-yourself woman try to be a little kinder to yourself. You can endure so much fatigue and no more. The tired woman can't be gay and interesting She doesn't feel gay. She feels as old as the hills.

Let her gaze into her mirror and see what weariness has done to her. Skin pale, shadows under her eyes, lips tight and taut.

No cosmetics will help at these moments. Nothing but rest will restore the bloom to the cheek, the sparkle to the eye, the alert step. Think it over you girls who tear around like crazy!

Fashion Flashes

A BIG ITEM this year is the afternoon costume of separate skirt and blouse. Black velvet is used for a small-waisted, wide hemlined velvet skirt with high waistband. With it a short-sleeved blouse of black lace over flesh-colored embroidered net.

ALL HAIL the three-piece suit. Imported brown wool jersey is used for a handsome suit. The full-length topper turns back wide cuffs to a three-quarter sleeve length to disclose lining of same material, but with medium pink stripes, which also lines the entire coat. The long, fitted, double-breasted jacket of the suit has a collar trimmed with the striped fabric, which is also for the skirt.

THE THREE most popular furs in the budget group are mouton, muskrat and kidskin, with wonderful designs available in each fur and in all price ranges. Gray kidskin is used for a back-flared 40-inch coat, with notched collar, and balloon sleeves above deep, bracelet cuffs. Detachable hood is lined with bright blue velvet.

STILL AROUND, despite the hats, is the off-the-face bonnet. Black velvet is used for a pretty model, its scooped brim lined with pink satin to tone with a cluster of tiny ostrich tips at one side.

A quick glimpse of winter resort fashions discloses lots of white with hand-painted colorful touches. White pique is used for a smart suit. The long, fitted jacket, with softly rising color, is painted at one shoulder with a pink water lily complete with green lily pads. Similar decoration at the opposite hemline of the skirt.

MUCH SMARTER than the suit simply dripping with fur is the suit with just a bit of fine fur, well placed. Black broadcloth is used for a nice suit with tiny ermine petal collar and crescent pockets edged with the snowy pelt.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Try to Rush This Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 years old and have been in love with a young man of 27 for eight years. He never paid much attention to me until six months ago when he called one Sunday afternoon and asked for a date that evening. He continues to call every Sunday, and I always accept.

He has a very good position and therefore he is able to take me out more than once a week, and I just can't understand his not doing so, as I know he has many free evenings and has no other girl friends. Do you think he loves me even though he only takes me out once a week? I know he is not the bachelor-type because he's told me that some day he wishes to marry.

What shall I do—try to forget him, or continue to accept these last-minute Sunday dates?

"Puzzled"

Dear "Puzzled":

If this young man calls every Sunday to invite you out, I wouldn't consider it a "last-minute" date exactly. Perhaps he has begun to take it for granted that Sunday evening is a regular date with you and thinks you will also consider it so.

If you have known this chap for eight years and he has only begun to take you out on dates for the last six months, perhaps you are expecting too much of him all at once. It would seem to me encouraging that he has now begun to give you invitations when he seems not to have been paying you any attention for so long.

Don't forget that you have been interested in him much longer than he has been in you, and naturally you are more conscious of the situation than he is. Don't try to rush him in any way. That is the surest way to scare him off. But have some dates during the week with other men that you can tell him about in a perfectly natural way when you see him.

Her Boy Friend is Going Away Should She Go Out With Others?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 years old and have been going steady with a sailor, 18, for quite awhile My mother and father like him better than any fellow I have ever gone out with, and so do I and all my friends. But he will be leaving for about a year and six months. He has asked me to wait for him and I told him I would, but he said he didn't mind if I went out with other fellows once in awhile.

My problem is, should I tell any fellows I may in the future go out with that I am someone else's girl? Or should I just not say anything about him at all? I would be perfectly satisfied not to go out with anyone, as I think he is worth waiting for.

"Pearl"

Dear "Pearl":

If your sailor is going to be away as long as a year and a half, I don't think it would be fair to yourself, at 15, to cheat yourself out of all the good times you ought to be having at your age. I don't think it is necessary, however, for you to make a point of telling any boys you may go out with that you have a boy friend who is away, but, if you like, you can casually bring him into the conversation now and then. Since you and the sailor have an understanding about your going out while he is gone, there is no reason for you to make your other dates uncomfortable by bluntly making it clear to them that you are far more interested in somebody else. That would not even be polite.

Just go along naturally and have fun with your other friends, and I am sure you will find everything will come out all right.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP)—A vegetable or meat casserole is both nutritious as well as economical. It also may solve that problem of what to have for supper tonight.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, recommend sausage vegetable scallop as an excellent one-dish meal.

Ingredients: one pound sausage meat (or sausage removed from casing); three tablespoons flour; one teaspoon salt; dash of pepper; three cups of milk; three cups thinly sliced potatoes; 1 1-2 cups grated turnips.

Brown sausage meat in frying-pan, breaking it apart with a fork as it cooks. Remove from pan, and drain fat. Mix flour, salt, and pepper and blend until smooth with one-half cup of the milk. Pour remaining milk into frying-pan and heat. Gradually stir in the flour mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Place half the sausage meat in the bottom of a casserole, cover with half the potatoes, turnips, and sauce. Repeat layers. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for one hour or until potatoes are tender. Remove cover for the last 15 minutes. Six servings. Top may be sprinkled before baking with bread-crumbs mixed with some of the melted sausage fat.

Onions are about the cheapest vegetable on the market these days and it's surprising the variety of ways they can be put to use.

Onion Short Cake—Ingredients: 10 medium-sized onions; one teaspoon salt; three tablespoons fat; biscuit dough; one cup medium cream sauce; one-quartery teaspoon paprika; one-quarter cup chopped parsley; dash of nutmeg; one-quarter cup grated cheese; one egg.

Peel and slice onions and sprinkle with salt. Melt fat in frying- pan and add onions. Cover and simmer until tender. Drain well. Prepare a biscuit dough using one cup flour as a base and adding two tablespoons tomato catsup with the milk. This should be a drop batter rather than a "roll-out" dough. Prepare one cup medium cream sauce, add paprika, parsley, nutmeg, and cheese, and beat an egg into it. Place cooked onions in bottom of a deep greased casserole. Pour sauce over onions and drop dough from a spoon on top. Bake in a hot oven for about 20 minutes or until dough is cooked. Six servings.

Cream Fried Onions with Eggs, Liver, or Meat—Ingredients: two tablespoons mild-flavored fat; four cups sliced onions (4-6 medium); four tablespoons flour; two cups hot milk salt and pepper to taste.

Melt fat in frying-pan. Add onions, cover and cook slowly until tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in flour and cook one minute longer. Pour in the hot milk and cook until thickened. Season to taste. Served with sliced hard-cooked eggs, liver or meat. Six servings.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Heart-Warming . . . Hand-Written Name and Message on Christmas Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Do you think that, in general, friends prefer to receive a Christmas card with the signature hand-written or with the name printed or engraved?

Diane

My answer to this question would have to be personal. . . and personally I prefer, vastly prefer, to receive a card signed with the sender's handwriting. To me it seems more in keeping with the friendly personal Christmas spirit than a card, no matter how handsome and costly, with an impersonal greeting and a printed or engraved name. I like handwritings, and "my heart leaps up when I behold" the familiar handwriting of a friend! Immediately the handwritten signature makes the greeting highly and deeply and warmly personal. . . . . like a cordial handshake. Also, and happily, I've noticed that when friends sign their names to cards, they are tempted to add a sentence or two of greeting or message. . . .and this "special added attraction" is particularly welcome. Nothing perfunctory or impersonal about such Christmas greeting-cards . . .they are endearing, heart-warming!

Godfather Gives Gift to Godchild, Not to Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
My brother and his wife have asked me to be godfather to their baby daughter, who is to be christened in a few weeks. Please advise me if it is the right thing for me to give them a gift, or a gift of money, for the christening. What do you suggest?

M. E. D.

It is the baby, not the parents, to whom you give a gift at the time of the christening. You may, if you wish, give your godchild one of the customary gifts. . .a silver cup or mug or bowl, or a silver food set (small spoon, knife and fork or pusher), or a pair of baby pins of plain gold or delicate enamel. But much wiser and more practical would be a gift of money in some form. For example, with even a small amount you might start a savings bank account in the name of your goddaughter. . . . perhaps adding to this in money-gifts on her birthdays, graduations, and at Christmas-time. Or how about giving her a savings bond, in any denomination consistent with your means?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
When sending Christmas cards to married persons, is it proper to address them to both the husband and the wife, even though you know only one of them?

V. R. S.

Socially, yes. In other words, we should apply the same rule we use when sending invitations and announcements. And, if you are married, you should sign the card with your name and your husband's (or wife.s) name.

And this rule of the social world may properly and graciously be followed in most cases in the business world. Let's say, for example, that you would like to send a Christmas card to Mr. Brown, who is a business friend of yours, and whom you would very much like to have your wife (or husband) meet. Quite naturally this friendly relationship suggests that the gracious thing to do is to send your Christmas card addressed to 'Mr. and Mrs. Brown" at this home address, and to sign it with your name and your husband's (or wife's) name. However, if Mr. Brown is merely a business acquaintance whom your husband (or wife) does not know, you may properly send a card to him only, and to his business address. In this case, of course, you would sign only your own name.

Handsome Handbag

By ALICE ALDEN

HANDBAGS ATTUNE themselves to the changing trends and so the elongated bag to match the longer length skirt is very much of the mode. Josef designs an elegant handbag and handles the elongated silhouette to excellent advantage, with a rolled yoke and soft dressmaker shirring for elegant effect. Suede is the material and the handles are of the double ribbon type.

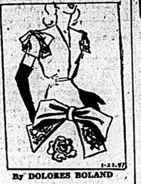
Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. T. Hamilton and daughter, June, in the sudden passing of a loving wife and tender mother in the person of the late Mrs. Hamilton.

NO HOPE OF SAVING CHILD

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 — (AP)— A baby boy, with heart and part of his intestines on the outside of his body, was born at Delano in Central California last night, and physicians here said there was no hope of saving his life. The child was rushed here by ambulance.

It's About Time . . .



By DOLORES BOLAND

IT'S ABOUT TIME to whip up this gay pair of accessories to tack on your basic black frock for after-five fun.

Make bows of grosgrain or taffeta ribbon. Tack large roses or other posies under bows. One flower-decked bow for each shoulder. A good way to boarden a shoulder line.

DRIFTING DOWN THE RIVER

Port Dickinson, N.Y., Dec. 18— (AP)— A "body" drifting down the icy Chenango River turned out yesterday to be a Port Dickinson resident enjoying a favorite pastime of floating in an inflated rubber suit.

Police said Lawrence C. Himrod had drifted down the river once or twice a week since early fall, often going three or four miles accompanied by friends.

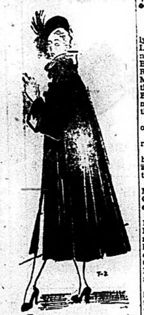
HORSE-POWER COSTLY

Saskatoon — (CP) — Cost of living for horses has gone up too. The Civic Teamsters Union asked city council for an increase in water-delivery rates because of a 28-per cent increase in the cost of maintaining their horses.

Versatile Coat



Black broadcloth topper with flared back

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

ELEGANT ENOUGH to double for an evening wrap over a slim frock is this handsome flared-back coat of satiny black broadcloth. The collar buttons up high to envelop the chin line, but it can also be worn turned down. Ball buttons are used for the front closing, and the cuffs are wide. This is a nice daytime length that would be good with the longer line that marks after-dark clothes.

BLUFF WORKS ON CROOK

Portland, Ore., Dec. 18 —(AP) —A stick-up man thrust a gun against his stomach, contractor Joseph P. Johnson told police yesterday, and demanded money.

"I'm in the same business myself," Johnson said he replied.

The ruse worked.

The holdup man put his pistol back in his belt and walked out.

Women's Activities

I.O.D.E. MEETING

Marmora—The regular monthly meeting of Marmora Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Hugh Brady with the Regent, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, in the chair. Miss Miriam Savage read a letter from the chapter's adopted family in England in appreciation of the monthly food parcels being sent there.

Miss Rita Deacon took charge of the Empire study period.

One new member was formally received into the chapter.

$30 was voted for Christmas boxes to be distributed locally and a donation of $5 was voted to the Santa Claus Parade Fund.

The gift of a picture of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will be made to each of the Deloro schools.

Nominations for officers for the 1948 executive were received. Election will take place at the next regular meeting which will be held January 8th at the home of Mrs. A. W. Drew at Deloro. Conveners for that evening are Mrs. J. McCrodan, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds and Miss Miriam Savage.

Upon conclusion of routine business the meeting closed with the presentation of the flag and the singing of the National Anthem.

CONSECON W.A.

Consecon—The Woman's Association of Consecon United Church held its regular meeting in the vestry of the church, Tuesday, with a large attendance.

The President, Mrs. Earle Rathbun, opened the meeting with the carol, "Away in a Manger", and The Lord's Prayer in unison. The Scripture Lesson was taken from the Second Chapter of St. Luke's gospel.

During the business period three groups presented financial reports for the year 1947, as follows:

Mrs. Frank Abbott for Group 1, reported $240; Mrs. Vernon Elmy for Group 2, reported $251; Mrs. Wesley Kizer for Group 3, reported $213; Miss Annis Johnston, treasurer of the W.A., reported the proceeds of the bazaai as $243, and the total for the year amounting to $828.

Plans were discussed for the redecoration of the church in the Spring.

Rev. W. H. Bartlett presided for the election of 1948 officers, with the following results:

President, Mrs. Ross Bush, (South Lakeside).

1st Vice President, Mrs. V. Elmy; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. E. McDonald; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. Abbott; Treasurer, Miss A. Johnston; Parsonage Committee, Mesdames R. Bush, E. Rathbun, Steinburg and Miss Johnston; Flower Committee, Mrs. W. H. Bartlett and Mrs. W. Kizer; Visiting Committees, Ameliasburg side of village, Mrs. Steinburg, Miss Johnston; Hillier Side of Village, Mrs. F. Hickerson and Mrs. L. Alyea; Main Road, Mrs. C. Blakely; South Lakeside, Mrs. R. Bush, Mrs. E. Burris; North Lakeside, Mrs. S. R. Chase; Mrs. E. R. Walt; Stinson Block, Mesdames V. Elmy, L. Clarke, S. Mastin; Group Leaders, 1, Mrs. R. Bush; 2, Mrs. V. Elmy; 3, Mrs. E. McDonald.

A vote of thanks was extended to Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Bartlett, and to the retiring president, Mrs. Earle Rathbun.

Delectable refreshments were served and enjoyed.

ROSLIN W.I.

Roslin.—The December meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Fargey with twenty ladies present.

Mrs. J. Empson, the vice president, conducted the opening exercises. Members responded to the roll call with a favorite hymn, its author or composer. The leader for the day, Mrs. Slingerland, took charge of the following program. Readings were given as follows: "Good Will" by Mrs. C. Hart; "The Way of Peace" by Mrs. K. Sharpe. "Hymns, Old and New" by Mrs. D. Leslie. A Christmas story was told by Mrs. W. White and Mrs. Empson gave a humorous reading "Awful Luck".

Mrs. M. Fargey presided at the piano for the singing of a number of Christmas carols.

A letter of thanks was read from a lady in England, who had received a gift food parcel, sent by one of the members. Christmas gifts were exchanged among those present. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half-hour enjoyed.

ROSLIN W. A. MEETINGS

Roslin. — The Woman's Auxiliary held its December meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. Slingerland with a good attendance.

The President, Mrs. W. Slingerland, opened the meeting and Rev. F. C. Beazer presided for the election of officers which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. F. Gray; Secretary, Mrs. F. Meeks; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Bates; Dorcas Secretary, Mrs. W. Kerr; Little Helpers' Secretary, Mrs. W. Clapsaddle.

Mrs. W. Clapsaddle, leader for the month, had arranged a program in keeping with the Christmas season of Peace and Good Will.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon December 9th., at the home of Mrs. D. Chisholm and the following week a quilting was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. Colden.

QUOTES DEUTERONOMY

Camden, N.Y., Dec. 13 —(AP) — The "slacks - in - school" controversy centring around a 14-year-old Camden girl brought this anonymous postcard comment yesterday:

"Deuteronomy 22:5."

The Biblical verse states that "A woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man; neither shall a man put on a woman's garment."

The terse reference was mailed in nearby Oneida to Thomas Delahunt who is backing his daughter, Jeannette, in her attempt to wear slacks to her eighth-grade classes over opposition of school authorities.

Reds in E. Germany Protest Plan For West Germany

Berlin, Dec. 17 — (AP)—Communists in Eastern Germany sent telegrams today to politicians throughout the four occupation zones protesting plans of Germans for an economically unified Western Germany.

The telegrams from the Russian-sponsored and communist-controlled Socialist unity party asked leaders to "reject every attempt that has as its aim 'the division of Germany."

German politicians in the United States and British zones of the west, meeting in Frankfurt, announced tentative plans for a western German state which would counteract Communist influence from the Russian zone.

Britons Cheered By News of More Fruit, Butter

London, Dec. 18. (Reuters)—Britons today received good news from Food Minister Strachey concerning Christmas supplies of turkeys, oranges, bananas and grapefruit. He told a press conference that stocks of turkeys total 2,230 tons more than last year.

All areas in Britain would have at least one allocation of oranges before Christmas, and every one would get half a pound of grapefruit.

Three Ounces Weekly

London — (CP) — Food Minister Strachey announced today that effective Jan. 4 Britons will receive three ounces of butter and there of margarine weekly. The present rations is two ounces of butter and four of margarine.

Two Derricks And Tanks Burn

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 17 — (AP) — An explosion in the rich Signal Hill oil field, causing a fire which burned two derricks and two crude oil tanks, was reported under control today after a two-hour battle by six fire companies.

Police said the cause of the explosion, which awakened residents in a wide area, had not been determined. There were no reports of any injuries.

Firemen said one of the 5,000-gallon oil tanks blew up after the fire started and that one of the derricks collapsed soon after.

Oil men at the scene said they believed the explosion may have resulted from escaping gas.

Rising Living Cost Seen as 'Menace To Health, Morale'

Toronto, Dec. 18—(CP) — The Board of Directors of the Christian Social Council of Canada in a statement Wednesday expressed concern at "the menace to health and morale resulting from the rising cost of living in Canada." The Board serves as the Department of Social Relations of the Canadian Council of Churches.

It urged upon both people and governments the elimination of all waste and all unnecessary purchase or use of foodstuffs and other essential supplies, a moratorium on non-essential building and "reasonable and necessary controls of prices, wages, rents and profits."

Sex Crimes Down In Middlesex Co. Since Last War

London, Ont., Dec. 18 — (CP) — During the past five years 27 women have been indecently assaulted in Middlesex county but the incidence of sex crimes has decreased since the war, Crown Attorney Claude Savage said yesterday.

In a report for the Attorney-General's office in Toronto, he blamed a "floating population" during the war years for many of the sex crimes in this country.

"The problem confronting the court and police officials is how to deal with sex perverts," Mr. Savage said. "Psychiatry is being tried but the difficulty is in knowing if or when a cure is effected."

He said there have been many cases where suspected perverts have been examined by psychiatrists and sent to institutions for treatment. After several months they appear to be normal and are released as cured. But in many cases, when they are presented with the opportunity they have relapses."

No Evidence Of Fraud Found

New York, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The New York State Athletic Commission declared Wednesday that it has found no evidence of fraud in the Jake Lamotta-Billy Fox fight at Madison Square Garden Nov. 14. The Twentieth Century Sporting Club was ordered to pay both boxers their purses, which had been withheld.

Fox, a knockout specialist from Philadelphia, gave Lamotta a beating, forcing the referee to stop the contest in the fourth round. Because of persistent reports that Lamotta had not done his best, the Commission ordered both purses of $23,910.22 held up.

White's District

White's A.Y.P.A.

White's District — The Young People's Union of White's Church met at the home of Miss Della Meyers for their annual meeting and election of officers with a good attendance and a missionary program conducted by the convener, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, was much enjoyed. The Rev. A. C. McCallum took charge of the election of officers for 1948 which are as follows: President, Mr. Donald Sandercock; vice President, Mr. Franklin Jones; Treasurer, Miss Della Meyers; Secretary, Mr. Donald Dudley.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Personals

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. Arthur Saylor in the recent death of Mr. Saylor. The Rev. A. C. McCallum of the Bayside Circuit, assisted by the Rev. H. Hillis, conducted the funeral service on Saturday at Martin's Funeral Home, Belleville.

Master Mervyn Bowers had the misfortune to be struck by a car as he was crossing Highway No. 2 to attend Sunday School service at White's Church on Sunday afternoon. It is hoped that he will suffer no ill effects.

W. I. Meeting

Mrs. Fred Wilson opened her home on Wednesday afternoon for the December meeting of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute with the president, Mrs. John Reid, presiding. Mrs. Clarence Holmes was in charge of the Christmas program. Christmas presents were exchanged and a very enjoyable time was enjoyed by all.

The members of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society met together to practise for the candle-light service which they are conducting at White's Church on Sunday evening.

Centenary

FARM FORUM NEWS

Centenary.—Mr. and Mrs. G. Sills opened their home for the organization meeting of the Forum for 1947-48.

Mrs. P. Sutherland and Mr. G. Sills, were appointed directors and Mr. Fred Edmondson as Secretary.

It was decided to hold the Forum at the school house, and two meetings have already been held with a good attendance.

Mr. Jack Sargent as chairman, was successful in getting some action in regard to projects started. One is to take up the matter with the proper authorities on having the community drainage system improved, and the other to develop the school into a community centre.

It is hoped that with something definite in view, more interest will be created in the Forum and add to the attendance.

Mountain View

The December meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. William Burkitt with a good attendance. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Burkitt, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Grant Minaker with Miss Ileen Minaker and Miss Lillian Sprague served delectable refreshments.

Mrs. Ross Burr, Mrs. Ronald Burr, Mrs. Ewart Harns and Mrs. Douglas Harns, of Burr's, spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William Burkitt and attended the Institute meeting.

Mrs. William Slater and baby spent a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Keeble, before returning to her home in Foxboro.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1947

U.S. Holds Key 'To Very Future of Our Civilization'

—Abbott

New York, Dec. 18 —(CP)— A call for United States leadership and financial help to bring the world out of its difficulties was voiced by Canada's Finance Minister Abbott before the Life Insurance Association of America.

In an address prepared for delivery to the association's annual meeting, Mr. Abbott declared the U. S. held the key to "the welfare and freedom of the world, the very future of our civilization."

And he expressed the confident hope this country would meet the challenge imposed on it by history.

He saw in the Marshall Plan for European rehabilitation, evidence that the U. S. was accepting that challenge. He said Canadians hope and pray that the U.S. will "act promptly."

The Marshall Plan was seen by Mr. Abbott also as a help to Canada in getting out of her dollar exchange difficulties. It could help her in two ways:

1. By helping Europe get back on its feet, which would enable it to repay Canadian credits.
2. By the direct spending of U. S. dollars in Canada to buy supplies for Europe.

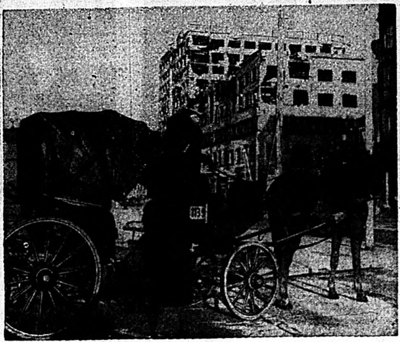
Most of the minister's address was devoted to an explanation of Canada's U.S. dollar position that led the government last month to clam down import restrictions to conserve its dollars. He emphasized that the Dominion's position had come about, despite a healthy internal economic situation, largely because it could not get payment from Europe for materials on whose manufacture it had to spend U. S. dollars.

He laid part of the blame on Russia, after giving weight to crop failures and other factors.

"The unco-operative attitude of Russia," he declared, "has also contributed to political unsettlement which has certainly slowed Europe's recovery."

TEA SHIFT

Early in the 19th century the centre of the tea industry shifted from China to India, Ceylon and the Dutch East Indies.



With trains moving west from the Russian zone of occupation of Germany reported packed with passengers, German family in Berlin (left) piled their belongings on a little home-made cart. With what they can carry on their backs, they are making their way to the British or U. S. zones. They live off the land, trading a few of their meagre possessions to farmers for enough to live. German political leaders in British - U. S. zones hope to attract 17,000,000 of their fellow countrymen from the Soviet area. They are planning campaign to combat Russian propaganda and influence. Bomb shattered Berlin offers few transportation facilities. Its aged driver claims taxi at right is the only one in Berlin and has been on stand outside the Potsdammerplatz station since 1890. The only motor vehicles used for taxis are received for occupation personnel.

RUMORS JUST "HOOEY"

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—William Griesinger, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, said last night that rumors current in Ottawa and Toronto of a pending increase in the price of beer in Ontario are "a lot of hooey."

Picton

H. Leavens, H.S. Colliver Acquitted on a Conspiracy Charge to Defraud Govt.

Picton — Howard Leavens and H. S. Colliver, joint owners of Cherry Valley Canners, were found not guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government, at the close of a five-day jury trial here. They were charged with conspiring to defraud the government of income tax on approximately $50,000 over a period of nearly six years. The trial was heard in the General Sessions of the Peace of the County Court of Prince Edward County with Judge J. C. Reynolds presiding.

Mr. Leavens was discharged, but Mr. Colliver, although discharged on this count, was required to post a $5,000 bond on his appearance in January on three charges of evasion of personal income tax.

The special Crown Prosecutor for the Enforcement Branch, Department of National Revenue, charged that for five years the accused had made false statements on sales tax and for three years they had filed false income tax returns and had diverted cheques to their personal accounts. He claimed that evidence had shown that although their inventory for 1942 showed $3,000 goods on hand, they really had goods for $32,000. "Their sales for this year were shown by them as $16,000, although they were actually $20,000," he said. "The next year their statement of sales," he said, "gave a figure of approximately $179,000 although sales actually amounted to $241,000 and cheques to the amount of $10,451 were diverted to their own accounts."

Turning to 1944, Mr. Robb claimed that diverted cheques amounted to $22,229 and there was a difference in stated sales tax and actual sales of $15,000. The next year $22,000 in cheques were diverted, he claimed.

Defence Counsel R. E. Nourse, Picton, told the jury that a great deal of stress had been placed on the fact that $52,000 in business cheques had been diverted to their own bank accounts. "There was no question of this," he said, "but they had not sought to hide the money in outside centres. They had put it into their own accounts in Picton. They had not thought this to be wrong, since the money was merely a repayment for monies which they had advanced out of their own pockets for wages, travelling expenses and other items in connection with the factory."

"Neither Colliver nor Leavens owed any apology to the Department of National Revenue," Mr. Nourse said, except that they had not kept proper books. But this was merely their "old-fashioned way" of carrying on business.

Mr. Nourse admitted that company sales might have been higher than were indicated at the time by the owners but asked what difference that made as long as the net income was the same. He claimed taxes had been paid in full.

Judge Reynolds, in his charge, said it was obvious that income tax returns filed were incorrect but the jury must decide whether there was a conspiracy to defraud involved.

Evidence was given by H. L. VanCleaf and Llewellyn Hughes to show that Mr. Colliver had always carried on his business on a cash basis with few records.

Witnesses were C. Weston, Inspector, Income Tax Department, Belleville; J. M. Fell, Ottawa, Acting Chief Enforcement Officer for the Dominion of Canada who was subpoenaed by the defence, Messrs. Colliver and Leavens, and C. J. Mason, Toronto, accountant, now with the Income Tax Department and former auditor for the Cherry Valley Canners.

CLAIMS RECORD

Indio, Calif., Dec. 18—(AP) — Flier Jacqueline Cochran yesterday laid claim to a double - barrier speed record of 413 miles an hour, claiming the mark as a record for propeller-driven aircraft over a three-kilometre course and as topping the women's mark of 338 miles an hour by the late Marge Hurlburt in March this year.

Wm. R. Kelly Veteran Railway Man Dies in Madoc

William Rupert Kelly, veteran railwayman and widely known throughout Canada in railway circles died in Madoc Village Wednesday evening where he lived retired since 1935.

Born at Unionville 84 years ago the late Mr. Kelly was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelly. At an early age he entered the employ of Mackenzie and Mann, railway construction contractors and he continued in their service when they became the owners and operators of the Canadian Northern Railway. When the Central Ontario Railway was taken over by the Canadian Northern he went to reside in Trenton and was there for sometime. Eventually the Canadian National Railway absorbed the Canadian Northern and Mr. Kelly remained with the new organization. He continued to advance in the service and eventually was raised to the rank of superintendent. In this capacity he served efficiently at Ottawa and retired there in 1932. Three years later he took up residence in Madoc and during the years he lived there he was well known and highly esteemed by all residents.

Mr. Kelly was a member of Trinity United Church, Madoc, and fraternally he was a member of Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F.&A.M. Belleville; Madoc Lodge No. 48 A.F.&A.M. He was prominent in the Order being a 33rd degree Mason and a member of Rameses Shrine, Toronto.

Surviving him are two sisters, Mrs. J. J. Middleton, Merchantsville, N. J., and Mrs. Mary E. Heeney, London, Ontario; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Curtis, Madoc. His wife, the former Ida Simmons, died in 1936.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Madoc, until Thursday evening, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Valley Conservation Authority Meets To Elect Officers

Napanee, Dec. 18 (CP) — The newly-established Napanee Valley Conservation Authority met yesterday and appointed its officers. The organization was set up along lines of similar conservation authorities in other Ontario watersheds under provincial legislation for study of flood control measures.

E. F. Purcell, Reeve of Camden township, was appointed chairman and Samuel Sills, Reeve of Hinchinbrooke, Vice-Chairman, and A. L. Dafoe of the Napanee Public Utilities Commission as Secretary-Treasurer.

Reeve William Wager of Newburgh, who asked how townships would figure in the costs, was informed that the cost of surveys is paid entirely by the Federal and Provincial governments.

The meeting agreed on a formal request to the Ontario minister of planning and development for the department to proceed with a plan for development of the Napanee watershed.

Cloth is Lighter But Just as Warm

London — (CP) — All over the world there is a noticeable tendency to make materials for women's dresses and coats lighter, without reducing their ability to keep the wearers warm.

Experts in Britain's textile industries' research laboratories are concentrating on the solution of this problem by new methods of treating the yarn and new materials to two-thirds the weight of customary cloth and the materials have become popular rapidly.

Santa to Visit 700 Children Of Navy Personnel

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP)—Santa Clause is going to make a special trip down from the north pole six days early to attend a party for about 700 children of naval personnel based at Halifax Dec. 19.

The navy announced this Wednesday and said that Santa would be on hand to distribute individual gifts at the party to be held in H.M.C.S. "Stadacona" gymnasium next Friday.

Santa's progress from the north pole to Halifax will be followed by radio and will be broadcast to the youthful gathering up to the time he makes his appearance by way of the gym chimney. Then Santa and his assistants will hand out the gifts and return to the north pole to prepare for Christmas proper.

Friend in Need Gets Big Reward

Wanganui, N. Z. — (CP) — Twenty-three years ago Mrs. M. G. Taylor, of Wanganui, was reading in the public library when she was approached by a shy couple with a problem. They wanted to get married in the registry office, but had no witnesses and no friends. They asked if Mrs. Taylor would be witness for them and she agreed.

After the register had been signed the bride said to Mrs. Taylor, "You'll benefit from this," but she never saw either of them again. Now, however, she has heard from the public trustee, that she is a substantial beneficiary under their estate.

Chance Started Unusual Career

New York — (CP)— One "woman in white" at Bellevue Hospital operating rooms handles a pencil rather than a scalpel.

Mary Lorenc, medical artist for the New York University College of Medicine, illustrates the steps in operations for medical books and journals.

However, she emphasized in an interview that the complete drawing is not made in the operating room.

"You just can't see that well," she said. "And often my hands are wrapped in a sterile towel."

Describing the procedure for a medical drawing, Miss Lorenc said the first step is making a drawing from a disection made on a cadaver of the area to be operated on. During the actual operation Miss Lorenc just watches, dressed in a completely sterile outfit.

Then, after the operation, the surgeon performs the same work on the cadaver and Miss Lorenc finishes the drawing in water color.

Miss Lorenc's unusual career started by chance. She was a student at the Art Students' League and interested in the study of anatomy. A friend worked at N.Y.U. where she finally was given art work after many visits to operating rooms.

On the walls of her studio in the medical building hang prints by Matisse, Cezanne and Daumier. On the shelves of her bookcase are formidable medical volumes.

She does not confine herself to medical art. Her "Sunday and vacation work" includes landscapes of Maine and Long Island.

100,000 German Men, Women Comprise Labor Force Working In Uranium Mines in Saxony

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Berlin, Dec. 18 —(AP)— The biggest booming industrial enterprises in the Soviet occupation zone of Germany today are the uranium mines in southern Saxony. Returned miners say the Russians are working them with a labor force now estimated to number nearly 100,000 German men and women.

It is an expanding enterprise which is worked largely with conscripted labor → and with almost feverish haste, as the Russians extract from pitchblend the uranium they require for atomic research.

Penetration into the uranium fields, in the Erzgebirge (ore mountains) near the Saxony-Czechoslovakia frontier, is forbidden to personnel of the Western Allied countries, it is difficult for Germans who are not employed there.

But recently some expanded accounts of Russian operations there have been brought out of the "forbidden area" by German miners who deserted their jobs and fled westward and by travellers who came through the region. These accounts were published by Die Welt, the official German newspaper of the British Military Government.

They indicate that in the last two years the Russians have almost totally transformed the economy of a region once devoted to resort and manufacturing enterprises to an all-engrossing job of digging for uranium, even in the mine shafts long deserted as played out or uneconomical.

Using Forced Labor

Die Welt said that the Russians were conducting the uranium enterprises through a Soviet company named "Vitriol" which "despite denials, is known to be continuing the use of forced labor—labor sometimes compelled under threat food ration cards will be withheld from the families of recalcitrant men.

Working conditions in the mining area were reported to be improving, but still poor. Wages were called relatively good and the Russians are distributing special bonuses in foods, fats and tobaccos.

"However," the newspaper added, "there is a catch in these premiums. Whoever becomes ill immediately loses all special grants and is reduced to the normal ration. These is no excuse for sickness, exhaustion or age."

"There are many accidents in the mines because safety precautions are lacking," the newspaper reported.

(The Neue Zeitung, official German newspaper of the American Military Government, reported recently that 96 German workers were killed in an accident in one of the uranium mine shafts and attributed the accident to lack of safety devices. The Russian authorities never publicly disputed this report.)

The uranium belt, according to Die Welt, now is 60 kilometers (about 38 miles) wide across the Erzgebirge.

Uses Banknotes To Kindle Fire

Stewart, B. C. — (CP) — Clane Leinen, on his way over the Salmon Glacier to Morris Summit Mine in search of a job, used every scrap of paper in his pockets, including some folding money, to start a fire to keep warm.

Constable G. Nelson and trapper Bill Ruddell, who had warned Leinen against making the trip because he was dressed lightly and had no equipment, went out to search for the young man when a cold spell set in suddenly.

They met him on his way back to Stewart. He had reached the Morris Summit cabins which are always kept supplied with food and oil and thus was able to cook himself a meal. He then decided to turn back.

NORTHLAND LEMON

Nipawin, Sask. — (CP) — A fully-matured lemon, grown in a flower pot by the late postmaster of this northeast Saskatchewan town, weighs 12¼ ounces and is 11 inches in circumference. It took five months to mature.

After a session of the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers, which reached the verge of collapse because of Soviet Minister Molotov's attack on the Western Powers, U. S. Secretary of State George Marshall and Molotov drink a toast. They are shown as they lunched together at the London home of U. S. Ambassador Douglas.

CHESS WIZARD PLANS BRITISH MEDICAL STUDY

Winnipeg.—(CP)—Four times Canadian chess champion and at 22 one of the world's youngest chess masters, Abe Yanofsky may soon be leaving Canada for six years to study medicine at Glasgow or London.

Yanofsky, whose ambition is to become a doctor, has application entered at universities in both cities. He must be in Glasgow within the first six months of next year to be interview for acception there, but to date, London hasn't said when he must report. He already has a bachelor of science degree from the University of Manitoba, conferred in 1944 before he joined the navy for two years' service.

Abe hopes to reach Europe in time to watch the six top chess masters compete for the world's championship.

He has been asked to second defending champion Dr. Max Euwe of Holland at the 12-week tournament, half of which will be played in Holland and half in Russia, beginning in April.

Last year in Holland, Yanofsky was acknowledged a chess master after finishing 14th in a field of 20 of the most prominent players. His average of victories was well above the 30 per cent required for such rating. The recognition climaxed his tour of the continent and British Isles.

Although playing the game since he was 8½ years old, he doesn't eat, sleep and breathe chess. In fact he last played in the United States open chess tournament last summer at Corpus Christie, Tex., where he finished tied for second place.

Wants to Rest

"I want to relax," says Abe, a slight, brown-haired youth.

"I've been competing in Dominion and international events since I was 11. Every stay at home has been a visit."

Now working as a book keeper in a Winnipeg wholesale fruit firm, Yanofsky won the first tournament he entered — the Toronto boys' — at 11 and followed with first place in the Toronto mens' competition which is one of the major events leading to the Dominion matches.

He first won the Dominion championship in 1941 and has held it ever since, with the exception of 1946 when he failed to contest his crown.

Most of his experiences and many of his more important matches since his first tournament in 1937 will be outlined in a book he has written, due to be published early next year by a New York firm (McKay).

Robert Wade, former New Zealand champion, who toured Canada early this summer with Abe, assisted him in some of the important games included.

The book's title, not yet definite, might be "Chess the Hard Way," Yanofsky says, because most of his experience has come in the rugged school of competition and little from theory.

Right now, a career in medicine occupies his attention and he smiles when it is suggested a doctor may not have time for chess.

"That," says Abe, "will have to look after itself."

City Pair Escape ToBackwardFarm

(By The Canadian Press)

In the back-country hills of a summer-holiday area in Ontario nestles The Owl Pen, a remarkable country haven sought out and found by a man (and his wife) who abandoned the weariness of city life.

Implicit in the origin and growth of this miniature Garden of Eden are the personal experiences of Kenneth McNeill Wells, former newspaper man, and his artist wife, Lucy — and the intimate doings of all their farm animals.

Wells' first book, "The Owl Pen," (Dent) is named after his picturesque hide-away. It relates how they fashioned their home from the oak timbers of a decayed pioneer farm house near Orillia, survived the extreme winters, created a profitable honey and poultry business and eventually bought additional property to start all over again.

Reshaped from Wells' weekly series of newspaper articles, this enterprising volume has a particular appeal for those who dream of getting away from the city. Its humorous recital of the painful development of The Owl Pen reflects Wells' ability as a feature writer.

Discouraging Incidents

Wells makes light of discouraging heart-breaks, such as when his starving bees were almost annihilated in a hive-against-hive battle for food; or when most of his pullets died from eating shavings from the new hen house floor.

Although he professed a boyhood dislike of the country, Wells displays an inherent understanding of the pioneer's life. He becomes lyrical over "the song of the manure spreader," names precisely every bird and beast around, sees beauty and romance when snow-blocked roads threaten the entire economy of the farm, and even tolerates goats.

The trials, accepted (in retrospect) with a deep philosophy, would discourage the timid man planning a similar retreat were they not far outweighed by the happy outcome of the ventures tackled at this merry little farm.

Quite as true a reflection of life at Mendonte as the author's text are the 40 wood-cut illustrations engraved by his wife, Lucille Oille. The deft blending of illustration and decoration is the more remarkable since the artist —well known as a sculptor — is self-taught in wood-engraving technique. The volume is an admirable example of quality book-production thoroughly Canadian in character.

Mahouts Missing, Elephants Try to Die

Consternation reigned in the palace of the Maharaja of Patiala recently. It was not that 100,000 Moslems had fled from that Punjab state to refugee camps during the massacres that followed the partition of India. But the prince's mahouts — elephant drivers—had joined the panic-stricken hordes and their pachyderm charges were literally dying of grief.

All Patiala's mahouts belong to the same family, which has tended the state's elephants for generations. The oldest of the animals is 65, his driver almost as aged. With the departure of their attendants the elephants became restless. Soon they began to mope. Nobody could do anything with them. They lay down apparently to die, refusing to eat the most tempting tid-bits and even to drink.

After a week of this the worried Maharaja ordered the refugee camps to be searched. The mahouts were found and brought back under military escort to the capital, which bears the same name as the state. Ruler and state officials, immensely relieved, gave them a royal welcome, to their no little surprise. But this was as nothing compared to the joy of the elephants, who manifested by loud trumpetings renewed interest in life the instant their huge ears caught the mahout's voices. The reunion of the men and beasts is described as infinitely touching. The mahouts poured out a torrent of endearing admonitions as they tendered dainties to the animals, exhausted by the long fast. The elephants partook of nourishment and drink with their former accustomed eagerness and soon were enjoying normal food and exercise.

N.Y. Rangers in Third Place With Victory Over the Bruins And Canadiens Down in Fifth

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Strange things are happening in the National Hockey League this season.

New York Rangers are in third place and Montreal Canadiens down in fifth and executing what look like rather desperate player shuffles in an effort to get back in contention.

Riding on a streak of seven games without a defeat, three of them ties, the Rangers last night walloped the Boston Bruins 5-2 at Madison Square Gardens. In the other game, Detroit Red Wings defeated Chicago Black Hawks 7-1. The results leave Toronto leading Detroit by one point, with New York third another three points back, Boston fourth by a point and two points ahead of Canadiens.

The only team in the loop that can relax is Chicago — they're in the cellar 10 points behind Canadiens.

Boston Minus Schmidt

At New York, Boston was minus star centre Milt Schmidt with an injured leg. Frankie Brimsek in the Bruin nets handled 28 shots while Sugar Jim Henry had only eight drives to handle in the entire game.

Grant Warwick and Rene Trudell each scored twice and Cal Gardner got the other Ranger goals. Billy Taylor scored for Boston in the first period and Pat Egan got their second in the dull final frame.

At Chicago, Detroit rolled up a 7-0 lead before Bud Poile averted a shut-out with his goal in the last minute of the game. Syd Abel, Ted Lindsay and Bep Guidolin each scored twice and rookie Jim McFadden got the other Detroit counter.

Stage is Cleared

Now the stage is cleared for the Christmas week jam which is going to be vital in lining up the teams for the closing drive to the play-offs.

Montreal's player deals result in the Habitants obtaining Joe Careth from Boston, plus cash, in return for Jimmy Peters and Johnny Quilty. From Buffalo the Canadiens are getting Bob Fillion, Floyd Curry and Hay Laycoe. Canadiens are sending Bobby Carse to Cleveland and Murdo Mackey to Buffalo.

ne Y .. pt.

One player the Canadiens really wanted, apparently, was Gaye Stewart, who'd been traded from Toronto to Chicago. Canadiens made several different offers for Stewart but Chicago's boss Bill Tobin wanted ace players, and Canadiens can't afford to lose any of these.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Gord Howe, Detroit, who assisted four times as Red Wings trounced Chicago 7-1 last night.

Don Raleigh, New York, who picked up three assists as Rangers defeated Boston 5-2 last night.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The RCAF Flyers, selected as the Dominion 1948 Olympic Hockey team will be definitely "on the spot" in their exhibition game here on Friday night against the Belleville Senior "B" veterans squad. The Olympics badly mauled by McGill University, and an Ottawa Army team, neither of which can be rated as high-class senior material, will be strengthened by reinforcements from outside material" and on their performance here Friday hinges their future as Canada's Olympic representatives.

Hockey experts and officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association who saw the Olympics perform against McGill and the Ottawa Army were unanimous in their opinion that the team needed plenty of strengthening if it was to be a worthy representative of the Dominion in Switzerland next year.

Secretary George Dudley, Midland, secretary of the CAHA said yesterday that although present plans call for the airmen to proceed to the Olympics the necessity for reinforcements from outside sources has been realized by his association.

The reinforcements, it is believed will be on hand Friday night, and it will be do or die for the Flyers. If and when the Belleville "B's" defeat them, it will mean curtains for the lads in blue as Olympic representatives, for, and in all fairness to the localsenior "B's," they cannot be regarded yet as tops in their particular division. Some idea of comparison can be gained from the fact that the Olympics defeated the Queen's intercollegiate squad 8-5 scoring four goals in as many minutes in the last period, while our Reds, in a mediocre exhibition bowed to the Tricolor by a 6-4 score.

Be that as it may. High-ranking officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the RCAF, Ottawa and possibly of the Canadian Olympic Committee will be here on Friday night to pass judgment on the team's strength and ability to represent Canada at the Olympic winter games in Switzerland.

In telephone conversation with Secretary Dudley last night, we were informed that the RCAF team will be strengthened by more RCAF material, but more information will be forthcoming before the game.

"We hope you have a strong team down there," Mr. Dudley said, "as we want to make this game a real test. I would advise your team management if it can, to bolster the squad with other players of the district if that is possible, as we would like to see Flyers face the best aggregation you have."

So to the Belleville Senior "B" hockey team falls the dubious honor of making or breaking, perhaps, a Canadian Olympic hockey team. As far as the Red team is concerned, it is understood here that the Olympics are just another hockey team which can be beaten and will be, if possible. There will be no punches pulled and the ANAFS will skate out there to do their best for victory regardless of what it means to the Flyers.

Organization of the Belleville Merchants Midget Hockey Club has been completed. President Newton Wilbur announced today. Other officers are secretary, Bob Hart, executive, Frank "Duke" Smith, Bob Ragsdale and "Lum" Carson. Manager of the team is Bobby Strachan and the coach "Cy" Barriage.

A number of merchants of the city have already made donations to the club, but there is need for more support. President Wilbur stated today that any of the above-named officials of the club are authorized to solicit and collect donations, and merchants are warned not to give any financial contributions to any one other than those mentioned. It has been brought to the attention of the club executive that donations have been solicited by a person or persons not connected in any way with the Midget Hockey Club, and merchants are requested to ascertain the identity and credentials of any one who endeavors to collect money from them for the Midget Club.

Tonight at Memorial Arena the first quarter-final series of the Belleville District Hockey Association gets under way with the RCAF Flyers meeting the Rockets Juniors and Trenton tangling with Madoc in the last half of a scheduled double-header. Much depends on the outcome of these jousts as they are sudden death affairs and the losers fade out of the playoff picture. Neither game will be a panty-waist affair and with the chips down, and more mazuma in the offing it is a safe bet all four teams will be out there doing their best. First game gets under way at 7.30 of the clock.

Boston Bruins today announced the trade of right winger Joe Carveth to Montreal Canadiens for Jimmy Peters, also a right winger, and the purchase of Johnny (Silver) Quilty from the same National League hockey club.

Peters, 25, is playing his third season of major league hockey. Quilty, 26, won the Calder trophy as outstanding rookie in 1940-41, before enlisting with the Canadian armed forces.

Carveth, who played his final game for the Bruins against the Rangers in New York last night was acquired early last season from Detroit. The Bruins traded Roy Conacher for him.

The deal will be effective Saturday night when the Bruins play Canadiens in Montreal.

The deal was announced by general manager Frank Selke at a luncheon held by the club for newspaper men and radio announcers.

Designed to strengthen last year's league champions, now wallowing in fifth place, the deal brings to Canadiens a player who has scored 17 points for the Bruins this season—eight goals and nine assists. The combined point total for Peters and Quilty is only 11.

Selke also announced that Floyd Curry and Bobby Fillon, forwards at present with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, will be brought up to Canadiens.

To make places for them, Murdo MacKay will go to Buffalo and Bobby Carse will be sent to Cleveland Barons of the A.H.L., from whom Canadiens acquired him at the beginning of the season.

Selke's announcement spiked reports that Gaye Stewart, former Toronto Maple Leaf traded earlier this season to Chicago, would be traded. It is understood that Canadiens were interested in Stewart ubt could not arrange satisfactory terms with the Hawks.

GOING TO HOLLYWOOD

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — James Mason, British film star, and his wife who arrived in Toronto Sunday met the press Tuesday night and said they don't know how long they will be staying on this continent. "We must go to Hollywood to see if it is as ghastly a place as some people say it is," remarked Mason. "It really couldn't be."

Oshawa Generals Score Shutout Over St. Mikes

(By The Canadian Press)

Last minute shopping and frantic player exchanges in the junior department came up for inspection last night after the Ontario Hockey Association's Monday deadline.

Leftwinger French Mayer with two goals paced the sixth-place Barrie Flyers as they shutout the fifth-place Galt Rockets 5-0 at Barrie. Mayer was recently exchanged by the second-place Oshawa Generals for Joe LaFrance, another left winger.

LaFrance was not on the Oshawa lineup when the Generals racked up their second straight shutout by downing the eighth-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors 4-0 at Oshawa.

The Galt squad dropped Whitey Malcho of Stratford and defenceman John Ashley of Preston and brought in two Sault Ste. Marie forwards, Art Gualazzi and Bob Galashoe, both previously playing with Sault senior clubs. They appeared on Galt's lineup last night.

Lineups were unchanged as the league-leading Windsor Spitfires dumped the third-place Stratford Kroehlers 5-2. The Stratford tilt was Windsors' 14th victory in 17 starts.

In the lone senior fixture the top-place Toronto Marlboros outfought the second-place Hamilton Tigers 2-1 in the mountain city, and extended their lead over Tigers to 10 points. Marlies have 29 points garnered in their 13 victories and one tie in 18 starts.

It was a rough-and-tumble affair with complaints of "easy" refereeing. Leo Curik and Dean McBride tallied Toronto counters while Tommy Smelie scored Hamilton's lone goal.

Windsor goes to Guelph tonight in the only slated junior game. There are no senior games scheduled.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Jack Fried, Philadelphia Bulletin fight expert, reports that it cost Jersey Joe Walcott $12 and some change to get into Madison Square Garden for last Friday's Ike Williams-Tony Pellone tussle if that's correct, then was when Jersey Joe really was robbed.

One minute Sports Page

Pirate scout Ted McGrew figures the Bucs have been improved 100 per cent by their winter deals. Ted claims that Vic Lombardi, who has a "little" screwball, needs only to perfect that pitch to become one of the National League's big winners...Look for pro hockey to boom in the midwest as soon as building restrictions for arenas are lifted.

They'll Manage Somehow

Joe Kuhel is the eighth former Senator player to manage the Washington ball club, and so far as the American League is concerned, he's the exception . of the others, only Lou Boudreau and Ted Lyons played for the club they manage, but seven of the National League pilots—all but Johnny Neun—came "home" to manage.

End of the Line

The professional Golfers' Association has put Freddie Corcoran in charge of an "educational" program which eventually will lead to instruction by qualified pros at virtually every college and secondary school in America.

Lamotta, Fox Allowed Purses By Commission

New York, Dec. 18. (AP) — Jake Lamotta and Billy Fox had their purses today for their Nov. 14 fight at Madison Square Garden that provoked two investigations, but Lamotta's suspension was not lifted.

Col. Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, who ordered the purses released when the Commission found no evidence of fraud, stated that Lamotta remains under indefinite suspension for having entered the fight without disclosing a spleen injury.

Sol Strauss, acting head of the 20th Century Sporting Club, said, "It'll be a long, long time before Lamotta fights in the Garden again.

"He has to prove to me he's a top notch Lamotta, not the second rate one who fought Fox."

The pay envelopes of the two fighters $23,910.22 each, were held up after Fox gave Lamotta a bad beating and forced the referee to stop the battle in the fourth round.

"Immediately after the Lamotta-Fox Boxing Contest the Commission advised you to hold up the payment of purses pending its investigation," Eagan wrote Strauss. "The results do not show any evidence that would indicate fraud in the arrangement for or conduct of this match. Such results do not preclude possible evidence developed in the further investigation by the office of the District Attorney who is also conducting an investigation in this matter. . .

"We have requested from the Attorney-General's office an opinion as to whether we have any specific authority permitting the further suspension of the payment of these purses to the participants. The Attorney-General has advised that we have no such further authority under the circumstances in this case."

Lamotta picked up his cheque as soon as he learned of Eagan's action. Fox was expected to do so today when the Philadelphia slugger is expected to sign for his return title bout March 5 with light-heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Dec. 18 —(CP)— Science is wonderful. This year it improved on last year's jet planes, pressure cookers and razor blades and even helped provide bigger and better babies — but its one-two punch has apparently missed in one "scientific" field.

It can't provide young boxing champions.

Wallace (Vancouver News-Herald) Kelk bemoans the fact that two aging gladiators, each verging on the 34-year-old mark, recently fought for the world's heavyweight championship.

He says "when champions and near champions are still going strong at 33 and 34 years of age it means science has signally failed in providing an adequate supply of replacements."

But this "sad situation" isn't restricted to heavyweights Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott. In most other divisions of fistiana the champions are getting no younger either.

Kelk believes that by the time a boxer is 30, "he should either have his block knocked off by some brash, up-and-coming youngster or have retired of his own volition because at that age nature ordains that a fighter is through."

Apparently the whole boxing world is suffering from a lack of promising hopefuls.

"In England one looks in vain for another Wilde, Welsh or Driscoll. In France one can't buy or find a Carpentier or Ledoux for love or money. Australia has no D'Arcy."

Locally, Vancouver is paddling haphazardly in the same canoe. There are no mittmen around unless hiding under rocks, to compare with former greats like Jimmy McLarnin, Hector McDonld, Billy Townsend, Sonny Jones and Gordon Wallace.

Remedy to the situation?

"Darned if we know," says Kelk.

Byron (Boss) Johnson, British Columbia's premier - designate, has a tough job ahead in the opinion of Pat (Vancouver Sun) Slattery.

One of his first chores will be to cut down on his 11 handicap to take fully over from retiring Premier John Hart, "the scourge of B.C. senior golfing circles." The white-haired shotsmith-politician plays consistenly in the high 70s.

Calgary Squad And Regina Caps Best in the West

Edmonton, Dec. 18. (CP)— Two teams—Calgary Stampeders and Regina Caps—still are battling it out for the leadership of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League in Alberta-Saskatchewan competition, but Edmonton Flyers" comeback after a disappointing start has brightened their chances.

Flyers' most notable achievement so far has been the 12-6 drubbing they handed Stamps in Edmonton, Dec. 13.

In Edmonton's City Junior League, E A C S., with six victories and two losses in eight starts, hold a slight edge over the Maple Leafs, who are followed by south side and Edmonton Canadians, respectively.

The powerful Lethbridge Native Sons have established a 10-point lead in Southern Alberta Junior 'A" competition, with Calgary's Buffaloes in second place. Medicine Hat Tigers are third. Last are Bellevue Lions, who have struggled against stiff opposition throughout the season.

Regina Pats lead the Southern Saskatchewan Junior Loop, in which Moose Jaw, Prince Albert Mintos, Saskatoon Quakers—namesake of the W.C.S.H.L. entry—and Notre Dame Hounds are competing.

Houston Huskies Out to Set Mark

(By The Associated Press)

With less than half of the United States Hockey League season completed, Houston Huskies gave indications today they are out to topple the season team scoring mark of 264 posted by Kansas City Pla-Mors last year.

The huskies have played only 27 games of 66-contest schedule, but already have scored 141 points.

The victory retained a seven-point lead in first place for the winners, although second-place Dallas downed St. Paul 2-1 at Dallas.

Dallas opened the scoring on Squee Allen's effort and the Saints matched the score on Lyn Bend's shot. Laurie Peterson's clincher late in the second period ended the scoring.

Minneapolis Millers continued in first place in the northern division with a 4-1 victory over Omaha at Minneapolis.

St. Paul invades Fort Worth tonight in the only game scheduled.

WORKING CHAPS LINE STREETS AS WILL FYFFE BORNE TO REST

Glasgow, Dec. 18 —(CP)— The "common old working chaps" of whom Will Fyffe sang in his most famous song hit, "Glasgow Belongs to Me," lined the streets in thousands yesterday as his funeral procession passed through the streets. Among the mourners as the pipes wailed the lament "Lochaber No More" was Sir Harry Lauder.

Buffalo Bisons Coming Strong Behind Hornets

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets today are still at the top of the American Hockey League's western section but Buffalo Bisons have served notice that they're strong contenders.

Last night at Buffalo, the Hornets were handed a 4-2 setback making it three games in a row for Wasps without tasting a win. The victory moved Bisons to within three points of the loop-leaders.

Providence increased their first place lead in the eastern section to four points by stopping Indianapolis Capitols 4-1. At Philadelphia, the Rockets continued their winning ways, dumping the second place Hershey Bears 4-1 and moving into third place.

In the other contest on tap last night, Cleveland Barons defeated Springfield Indians 6-2 for their third straight win.

Two players sent down by Montreal Canadiens, Murdo McKay and Doug Harvey, stood out for Bisons with McKay scoring a goal while Harvey played brilliantly on the backline and picked up two assists.

Providence scored in every period to stop the Caps. Pete Kaputsa, Carl Liscombe, Harry Gaylor and Johnny Chad accounted for Reds' scoring while Pat Lundy tallied the lone Indianapolis marker.

Rockets were never in trouble in handing Hershey their sixth set-back in seven outings. George Defelice, Johnny Mahaffy, Phil Hergesheimer and Alex Motter scored for Philadelphia while Hy Buller accounted for the lone Hershey tally.

Fred Thurier paced Cleveland to victory with a two-goal effort. Ab Demarco, Pete Leswick, Roy Kelly and Don Solinger each hit the mark once. Bill Summerhill and Eldy Kobussen scored for Springfield.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Ted Lindsay, Detroit, racked up two goals and an assist in Chicago last night to move into a second-place tie with Montreal's Elmer Lach in the National Hockey League scoring race. Lach, who was idle, and Lindsay are only one point back of leader Syl Apps of Toronto with 27. New York's Buddy O'Connor and Detroit's Jim McFadden moved into a two-way split for fourth place with 24 points.

BELIEVES IN FRIENDS

London, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP) — Jim Welsh, local farmer, believes in his friends. There have been three deaths in his family in the past year, his 10-year-old daughter was sent to hospital for an operation and then his barn burned down. His friends— 200 neighboring farmers led by Rev. Otis McGregor — turned out to help and built him the largest barn in the district.

pital investment purposes and achieve a degree of selectivity in our future expansion.

"The guiding principle in this selectivity must be our immediate urgent necessity to conserve United States dollars, and our long-run necessity to earn more United States dollars."

He said that as a first step imports of machinery and of structural steel will be allowed only by a special permit beginning next Feb. 1. The category of imports for which will be required will basically be that going into new and expanded construction and equipment.

To expand sales in U.S. dollars the government would give encouragement to the development of natural resources in mines, forests and fields which would find a market in the U.S., and to the expansion of manufacturing industries which would be able to compete in the U.S.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the bill meant that Mr. Howe could "brow-beat" and "intimidate" every business man in Canada and that individuals would be "inspected and suspected" with all the efficiency of a "police state."

Parliament he went on, had been "deliberately flouted" when the economic controls were instituted in mid-November and the government, by imposing excise taxes without the consent of Parliament, had "committed a crime against the constitution."

Mr. Fleming charged that the government had committed a "complete and outright breach of faith" with Parliament in launching the economic program under the Exchange Act. If the government wanted a general election on the issue, the Progressive Conservative party was ready for it.

The bill would make Mr. Howe "The Canadian Cripps" and the "Czar of the Canadian economy."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bitter comes in with the sweet. Elva Tyme knows exactly where everything goes in her home. But she always puts her bids in the wrong place when playing bridge.

SOUTH
♦K Q 9 5 4
♣A Q

♥8 7 5 3

South opened with a bid of two hearts. The first response that came from north was three clubs. South then bid three diamonds and north passed. You and I know the north bids were wrong.

North had once heard that clubs was the bust response to some kind of a bid. Forgetting where it applied, she used it as a reply to an opening of two in a suit. This was the wrong place for it.

North had once heard that you need not bid again after you have once kept open a forcing bid. Forgetting where it applied, she used it in the wrong place. The wrong place is after a game-force.

An opening of two in a suit signals that the pair should go to at least a game. In answer thereto, an immediate bid of two notrump denies a sure trick. Such a hand may or may not be a bust.

But bust or no bust, responder must help keep the bidding alive to at least a game. Nor does it matter how many bids it takes to get to game. It may take several bids by the bust hand.

In this case the first response by north should have been two notrump. Not because it is a bust hand. But because it has no sure trick. Since two no-trump is not game, the bidding continues.

When south then bids three diamonds it is not yet a game. So the north hand must keep the bid open. With no intervening bid, keeping it open must be done with something other than a pass.

With heart support, north should now bid three hearts. Having thus found a satisfactory trump suit, south goes to game in hearts.

Everything in its place.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 18 —(AP)— Oscar Wilde is getting renewed interest in Hollywood this season and 20th-Fox is planning to make his "Lady Windemere's Fan" an all-star attraction.

Otto Preminger is preparing the picture and he tells me the cast will feature Rex Harrison, Gene Tierney, Richard Greene and possibly Greer Garson. Latter casting hinges on whether M-G-M will lend her to 20th. Greer would be playing Greene's mother, and that also might influence her decision.

Preminger took over the direction of "This is the Moment" after the death of Ernst Lubitsch and it is no small task. Many of the "Lubitsch touches" were not written into the script, the late director believing he would remember them during the shooting.

Sound Reason

Abbott and Costello finished "The Noose Hangs High," their first independent film at Eagle-Lion, seven days under schedule. It makes a difference when you're working with your own money . . . . Pearl Bailey, the "tired" singer of "Variety Girl," returns to play the family maid in "Father's Day" at Paramount.

Odds and Ends

The Harry Jameses will have hefty entries at Santa Anita this season. He'll have seven horses running, she three. "Harry bought me out," Betty told me . . . Bob Hope, Susan Peters, Ralph Edwards, Tony Martin and Esther Williams will help Eddie Cantor distribute his "Gifts for Yanks" at Birmingham Hospital on Christmas Day . . .

Tyrone Power is full of stories about his recent globe-trotting tour. The only time he was in trouble during the trip was in a South African crowd. The mob swarmed around Ty's car and there were uneasy moments until police eased the crush. Ty said it was the second time in his life he was really scared, the other being in a London crowd scene some years ago.

Commons Likely To Hear Details Of New Contracts

Ottawa, Dec. 18 (CP)—The deadlock broken, the House of Commons likely will hear details today of new food contracts between Canada and the United Kingdom.

After nearly a month of discussion between British and Canadian experts here and an exchange of cables with London, a member of the British food mission said last night an announcement "almost certainly" will be made simultaneously in Ottawa and the British capital.

It was speculated that Prime Minister Mackenzie King will give details to the House of Commons at 8 p.m. tonight. Agriculture Minister Gardiner likely will follow with a supplementary statement.

Details of the agreements, covering bacon, beef, cheese and eggs have been kept secret. However, it was learned the contracts, covering agreements expiring Dec. 31, will include an average 10-per-cent price increase for reduced amounts.

It also was understood the contracts will be comparatively simple in form, but there may be some complicated arrangement under which Canada might be paid in goods and sterling funds as well as out of the $300,000,000 remaining of the $1,250,000,000 loan to Britain.

Finance Minister Abbott hinted at this possibility when he told the Commons that as a result of discussions with British government officials the government was confident that a pronounced increase could be expected in imports of goods, particularly cottons.

"Y" Hoop Girls Defeat Picton Kellies 38-16

The Y.M.C.A. Girls Basketball team handed out a 38-16 lacing to the Picton Kellies in an exhibition tilt at the "Y" gym last night. It was a fast-breaking, clean-checking game, and good basketball was played all the way through. The "Y" girls showed superior handling of the ball around the basket and outplayed the Kellies most of the game. Belleville was never headed, and led 20-10 at the half. Shirley Bunnett was the high scorer for the "Y" with 12 points, while Lovell got 8 for Picton.

Picton — McWilliams 4, Arkett 2, Inrig 2, Wrightmeyer, Lovell 8, Gentile, Andrews, Bridgman.

NO BEVERAGE ROOM

Maxville, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Establishment of a men's beverage room at the one hotel in this Glengarry county village was turned down by voters yesterday but the "wet" votes lacked only 38 of the 60 per cent necessary for the granting of a licence.

About 90 per cent of the village's eligible voters visited the polls, with 247 voting for sale of beer by the glass and 228 voting against.

MADE A FORTUNE

Cincinnati, Dec. 18 — (AP) — William F. Weisman, who drove a streetcar for nearly 50 years and lived a simple, quiet life, left an estate of $155,264, it was disclosed yesterday. From savings eked out of meagre earnings as a driver of horse-drawn cars, and later with improved wages when he took over an electric-powered carrier, he bought a house here and stock there and pyramided it all into his fortune.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and ma were waiting for the bus to go downtown, and ma said, Here it comes at last, and of course Sir Lee is driving it, oh dear, I might of known.

Who's! Sir Lee, ma? I said, and ma said, Sir Lee is the sourcastic name Mrs. Hews and I made up for that awful unspeekable crabby bus driver. Sir Lee is a sort of mocking way to indicate "surly" and it certainly fits him down to a tea. It's as much as your life is werth to even ask him for a transfer. But I'm going to get even with him today. Mrs. Hews and I planned it all out, and I just cant wait to tell her what happens ma said.

G. ma, what's you going to do? I said, and ma said, I'm going to delibritly hand him a 5 doller bill to change, and then I'm going to stand there and injoy his consternation.

And we got on the bus and ma opened her bag, and the driver said, No hurry, lady, I got all day, I'm only 14 minutes late already.

Being a bus driver with a big red face and little mad eyes, and ma said, Oh, here it is.

And she handed it to him, being the 5 doller bill, and the driver said, Say, lady, this is a bus, not a bank, and ma said, Now if you dont want to change it just give it back and I'll get off your unwelcome bus without even thanking —you for the 2 or 3 blocks you've taken me free of charge.

Aw okay, you win, the driver said, and he gave ma change and she put 2 dimes in the box, saying, I just cant wait till I see Mrs. Hews, oh dear he short changed me 20 cents. Well I'm not going to give him the satisfaction of telling me he's not responsible unless I count my change as soon as I get it. I'll have my say as we're getting off the bus, she said.

Which she did, saying to the driver, I'm afraid you gave me 20 cents too mutch change, but I'm not responsible unless you see me count it before your very eyes, good bye.

At least being something to tell Mrs. Hews.

CHAPTER 3

Vivian looked at her sharply and, noting it, she added, to Sayre, "I wish I could have been there with you!"

"The setting would have been just right," her husband observed. "I always thought you were half barbarian."

"I suppose I am," Jean said, and smiled. "That's why I like fencing."

"Fencing isn't a borbaric custom," Austin put in. "It's a very civilized; indeed, it's dandified."

"All fighting is barbaric," Anne Fraser declared, and Vivian reproved her,

"Fencing isn't fighting, Anne," he said. "It's a game, a recreation. We're not considering duels, but fencing is an art, and I call it one of the fine arts."

"It is," Sayre agreed. "And the barbarians have their own knowledge of fine arts in fighting, but it is not at all like our fencing."

"Tell us about it," Suzy begged, but Jean said no, it was time to go to the gymnasium or they would never get through all they had to do.

The Sargon Fencing Club was an old and exclusive organization. In winter it convened in New York City, but in the summertime, it's members were scattered, and meets were held at various country houses of the members.

Both Vivian and Jean Forrest were expert in the art, and they held high positions in the club. Vivian had taught Jean, and she had proved an art pupil. She possessed the peculiar traits necessary to the fencer, precision and quickness, rythm and co-ordination. And in addition to Vivian's instructions, she had been thoroughly and carefully drilled by the best masters.

Jean enjoyed fencing, though not to be the same degree as the Forrest brothers, but she really liked the occasions when a tournament or a practice party was held at their summer home.

She gathered up her feminine guests now, and soon the men joined them and all went to the gymnasium.

This was an enormous room in the front of the palatial Long Island house. It was on the ground floor, and was fitting up with every conceivable apparatus for exercise. From indian clubs to a trapeze, from a punching bag to a rowing machine had been omitted.

But special attention had been given to the fencing outfit. Collections, beautifull[illegible]ed on the walls, showed swords and rapiers, cutglasses and scimitars, as well as daggers, dirks and stillettos.

These things were [illegible] great interest to visitors, who thought them more attractive than the foils which claimed the attentions of the fencers.

There were easy chairs and occasional tables, humidors and cellarets, and the gym was frequented by idlers quite as much as by the club enthusiasts.

On this evening, Vivian insisted that the tournament be discussed and arranged for in all the important particulars. Details could be considered later, but the main points must be settled. All agreed to this, and a real business meeting followed.

Jean had little to say as to arrangements, but Anne Fraser expressed her views strongly and at length, until Peter Halsey remarked to Austin, in an aside, "Them wimmen spiles the ball!"

However, the Forrest brothers and John Elman had their way in most things, and Brandon Sayre's wide experiences in many fields made him a valued adviser.

The tournament was planned for one week from that day. It would be in effect a garden party, at Forrest Fell, and every one present might invite any number of guests. The tournament would take place out of doors should the weather be fine, in the gymnasium, otherwise.

The coming week would be given over to practice work in preparation for the championship.

It was deemed almost a foregone conclusion where the honors would fall, but Vivian's greater skill in no way deterred the others from their best efforts.

After the business was all transacted, there was some dancing, some flirting and some reviving drink, but the party broke up early, and all went their various ways.

Brandon Sayre went at once to Jean, and said, "Do come out on the terrace with me. I haven't seen you in so long."

"Yes, we will," said Vivian, gayly. "Come along, Suzy, and then we'll be four."

The last thing Sayre wanted was to be four, and he was inclined to be sulky. It never pleased him to be interfered with.

And did Jean Forrest mean to imply that he would not trust Jean alone with him?

The quartet on the terrace did not stay there long. The two men fell into discussion on a matter of fencing, which had no interest for the two girls.

Jean, indeed, tiring of talking to Suzy, led her into the house, and turned her over to the men there. And then she ran up to the nursery.

Little Florimel was asleep, of course, but the good-natured Rhoda turned on a light, and let the mother watch beside the little crib.

Interruption came in the shape of Vivian himself, who appeared in the doorway and said, rather loudly, "What are you doing here? You know I want you for our practice."

"Yes, I'm coming," she said. "Don't wake the baby."

"Jean he said, as they walked away, "I have told you not to run off to the nursery when I want you with me."

"Yes, I know. Well, here I am. I'll meet you in the gym in ten minutes."

"Ten minutes nothing! You'll come right along now."

"Oh, very well."

It was Vivian's habit to practice his fencing for at least fifteen minutes every day. He had been told by one of his best masters that if he followed that plan strictly, he would never slip back in his proficiency.

So, when he married, he made a rule that he and Jean should have a fifteen-minute practice period every night, and he had kept her to it. Though, after the baby, came, he found it difficult to depend on her, for the devoted mother felt always an invisible force drawing her to the nursery.

The house at Forrest Fell was large and was a rambling sort of structure. It had ells and wings, and some more recent additions like sun room and swimming pool, so that its original design was entirely lost. But the architecture had been well looked after, and though irregular, the result was an impressive pile.

The family rooms were on the east front, and had been made beautiful by Jean herself, who had not needed or wanted the services of a professional decorator.

Vivian's bedroom opened into another room which was called his study, though no student had ever been seen within its walls.

In fact, of late it had become more or an auxiliary gym and the nightly practice often took place there. The room was so unusual and so full of interesting things that it attracted guests, who tried to make a sitting room of it, and very nearly did.

Jean threw off her gown, but did not put on her fencing uniform, merely keeping on her slip.

Demanding her full attention, Vivian practiced with her a point of technique, which he hoped would help him win the championship.

He was exacting, he was dictatorial, and though no more so than usual, it seemed to Jean the quarter hour would never pass.

He criticized her positions, he told her she had no sense of strategy in her defence and he argued points on which he knew he was wrong, but was not willing to admit it.

The tiny smile that accompanied her gentle replies was easily read by Forrest, and he grew more irritable.

And then Jean knew.

Vivian was always nervous and fussy when he was about to tell her something she would not like, and she wondered what it was to be.

Jean's disposition was not entirely angelic, and as she had a vague notion as to what was on her husband's mind she watched for a further exhibition of temper on his guard, and met it by some adroit skirmishing without exposing herself.

Vivian [illegible] down his foil, saying pettishly. "We'll call it off for tonight, you're too tired to do your best. Now just a word before you leave me. I think we need a few more guests to make our [illegible] party worth while. You can ask a few, and I have invited one."

"Whose is yours?"

"Miss Fane. She's in New York just now, a charming girl—an addition to any party."

"Does she fence?"

"Fence? Oh, no. She's—"

"An actress? Stage or screen?"

"Clever girl! How'd you guess? Yes, screen. And the wonder of the season. Oh, but she's beautiful!"

"Blonde, I suppose."

"Blonde it is. She's like—oh, like a painting of Spring—"

"Or a statue of Venus. What's her name?"

"Esme — Esmeralda charming name?"

"Yes, it is. Do you think Miss Fraser will like her?"

"To hell with Miss Fraser! I don't ask her opinion of the guests I invite!"

"Nor mine, either."

"No, nor yours, either. Esme—Miss Fane—is cultered and distinguished, beside being beautiful and talented."

"She sounds a real paragon."

"And you'll treat her as such! No high and mighty airs toward her remember. See that she is first in every way. Don't put any other woman ahead of her in any way!"

"Except myself."

"No! Not excepting yourself! She is my guest of honor, and I propose to have her treated as such, And here's one instance. I shall have her placed at the head of the table, opposite me."

"Vivian! What are you talking about?"

His voice turned wheedlesome.

"DOGGIE CHRISTMAS"

What does a dog want for Christmas? Santa Claus, whose annual visit on December 25 is being eagerly awaited by thousands of children throughout Canada, seeks to find out as he paid a visit to the pet supplies section of a department store. Tiny, a pomeranian, was first in line to sit up and beg, using his best pre-Christmas manners, for fulfillment of his desires.

Sixty-two Colts Nominated For The King's Plate

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixty-two Canadian-bred three-year olds, largest number in years, have been nominated for the 89th renewal of the King's Plate at Woodbine race track in Toronto next May, the Ontario Hockey Club announced yesterday. The nominees represent 53 owners who paid the $15 nomination fee by the Monday, Dec. 1, deadline.

Most of the owners this year are from Ontario but eight are from Western Canada and three from Quebec.

Al Slater of Calgary, finishing strongly against, Buddy Loftus also of Calgary, earned a unanimous decision last night in Calgary to defend his Canadian Featherweight Boxing Championship. Both fighters weighed 126 pounds and there were no knockdowns.

Amid mounting stor mof protest from hockey followers, at least one member of the Halifax Forum Commission which banned radio broadcasts of hockey games in an attempt to increase attendance, feels that it "was all a mistake". Alderman J. E. Lloyd said yesterday he would ask for an immediate meeting of the Commission to reconsider the ban imposed Tuesday.

Cecil Poole, Labor member of the British Commons, announced in London yesterday he will protest in the Commons against heavyweight champion Joe Louis being paid in dollars for his exhibitions in Great Britain next year.

Eddie Stanky, the Brooklyn "Brat", set a National League fielding record for second baseman during the 1947 season, official averages revealed yesterday. The scrappy Dodger committed only 12 errors in 820 chances during the season for a .9853 percentage, erasing the mark of .9851 established by Lonnie Frey of Cincinnati in 1943.

MOVE INTO WRONG HOUSE

Indianapolis, Dec. 19 — (AP)— Yesterday was moving day for Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fulks. So was today.

Yesterday they moved, lock, stock and barrel, put in light bulbs and had a telephone installed in a newly-built south side home.

The house numbers weren't all up along the row of new houses. That was the rub.

They found they had moved into the wrong house. They belonged in the one next door.

Crude Table Manne With Slick Plan for

Berlin, Dec. 19 (Reuters) — The Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung described today how a Magdenburg commercial traveller in mothballs acquired more than 500,000 marks ($50,000) by collecting "gifts for the education of Hitler's son" — and then was betrayed because he ate peas with a knife.

Reprinted from the newspaper Frakenpost, published at the Russian American zonal boundary, the story was told in this way.

"Helmut Riegge of Magdenburg was a commercial traveler in mothballs.

"One day he found in a railway train a British magazine containing pictures of Hitler and Eva Braun. Eva had a bunch of flowers in one of the pictures and 'Hitler had a son' was printed underneath.

"Riegge had an idea. He borrowed a camera from his cousin experimented until Eva no longer held a bunch of flowers in her arms. In its place was a son, little Hitler. The fact that he had used a photograph of his cousin Anne's son for the experiments did not worry him much.

"When he started his tour he still carried mothballs in his pocket but they were only camouflage. He showed them to get into conversation with people

Tablets Bear Names of Fallen In Second War

Marmora (Special) — Recently two bronze memorial tablets have been placed beneath the two tablets commemorative of the local men fallen in World War 1 at the Marmora Memorial Hall. Under the caption World War II the following twelve names of deceased comrades are engraved: John O'Brien, Leo O'Connor, Ronald Regan, Mackenzie Reeves, Cruthers Wilson, Robert Wright, Stewart Bonter, Charles Brawley, Vincent Callery, James Linn, Thomas Maloney, James Nash.

Canada Obliged To Allow Use Of All Highways

Toronto, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Government representatives explained yesterday Canada was obliged under the Geneva trade agreements to permit use of Canadian highways to United States trucks delivering freight in bond from one United States point to another.

Answering a protest by some 2,000 rail employees of the Ontario Ship-by-Rail Association, Transport Minister Chevrier and Revenue Minister McCann telegraphed replies defining the government position. "In the circumstances, I doubt if the position can now be changed, but rest assured your representations have been noted and will be carefully considered." Mr. Chevrier said.

The ship-by-rail group had protested the livelihood of railwaymen was affecied if freight continued to move by truck over Canadian roads although both the terminal point and the destination were in the United States.

Objection was also voiced by John Magee, public relations director of the Canadian Automotive Transport Association, who noted Canadian trucks must be unloaded at border points for customs inspection despite the fact Canadian railroads were permitted to carry "in-bond" shipments without much inconvenience. Costs "of these extra unloading and loading operations" were hampering truck transport, Mr. Magee said.

Road Machinery Will be Scarce

Lindsay, Dec. 18 — (CP)—Richard Butler, warden of Victoria county, said last night municipal authorities had been told it was pointless to order new road machinery in 1948 as the Ontario government would not pay "the high subsidies to bring it in" from the United States, where most of it is made.

Mr. Butler said the information had been given by Highways Minister G. H. Doucette at a conference yesterday with the Road Board.

Mr. Doucett was quoted as saying provincial roads being built from Manilla to Woodville and through to Victoria Road, another from Kinmount to Haliburton and a third in the Wilberforce area would be completed next spring. The minister voiced approval of a bridge to be built across the dam and canal at Fenelon Falls at an estimated cost of $80,000.

King and Power Honored by House On Anniversaries

Ottawa, Dec. 18. (CP)—The Commons put aside its political differences for a brief hour yesterday to pay warmly-felt tributes to two of its members—Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Hon. C. G. (Chubby) Power (L—Quebec South).

Amid bursts of echoing applause, party leaders and private members offered congratulations to Mr. King, celebrating his 73rd birthday, and to Mr. Power, who is observing the 30th anniversary of his entry into the Chamber.

Mr. Power was elected to the Commons in 1917 and holds the record among members for unbroken service. Mr. King is still the Dean of the House with 31 years to his credit, but not continuous.

Before the desks of each sat great baskets of red roses—73 for Mr. King and 30 for Mr. Power—and at Mr. King's place was a red-ribboned scroll containing the names of the 126 Liberal members and a testament of their good wishes and congratulations.

Mr. King, before entering the Chamber to a heavy round of applause from both sides of the House, received a desk set from his Cabinet colleagues. Quebec Liberal members at the night session presented Mr. Power with a silver tray.

Senate Expresses Good Wishes

In the Senate, Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, expressed Liberal Senators' congratulations to the Prime Minister "and our satisfaction that he retains his good health and spirits".

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said that although "this side of the House" might not agree with all Mr. King's actions in the past, it felt he had given "his earnest attention" to the welfare of the Canadian people. He wished the Prime Minister "good luck, long life and happiness".

In the Commons Liberal members enthusiastically sang "Happy Birthday" as the Prime Minister, obviously moved by the reception expressed his thanks to government and opposition speakers.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said he wished to pay 'deserving tribute" to two men who had given a large portion of their lives to the service of their country.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C F. leader, said his group was "delighted" to be able to extend congratulations to Mr. King and Mr. Power.

RUSSIANS BAN PLAY BY THORNTON WILDER

Berlin, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The Russians have banned presentation of plays written by Thornton Wilder, American author, in their zone of Germany. The Russians told American authorities they objected to Wilder's glorification of the family in the play "Or Towns" and his "Theories about the inevitability of war" in another play "The Skin of Our Teeth."

50,000 CHRISTMAS TREES CUT ON ROOSEVELT ESTATE

Hyde Park, N.Y., Dec. 18—(AP) — More than 50,000 Christmas trees planted under the personal supervision of the late President Roosevelt on his Hyde Park estate will grace American homes this Christmas. The trees, white and Norway spruce averaging six feet in height, were cut from a property of 842 acres bought from the late president's estate by his widow and son, Elliott.

Rundown Woman Praises Syntona For Helping Her

Was Always Tired; Nerves on Edge. Had Poor Digestion, Frequent Headaches and Dizzy Spells. Feels Much Different Since Taking the Herbal Compound.

MRS. DORIS ANSLOW

"I am certaininy glad I began taking Syntona when I did, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to other sufferers," said Mrs. Doris Anslow, 2359 Taylor Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I was in a badly rundown condition and always felt tired and worn out. My nerves were so jumpy I could hardly stand the children coming home from school. Everything I ate would repeat on me giving me sour risings, indigestions, and heartburn. My head ached all the time. I would get dizzy spells and my sleep was restless. I had pains in my back, limbs and muscles.

"Reading in the paper about Syntona helping other people, I decided to try it and after taking only one bottle I found some relief. I kept right on taking it, and now I feel on top of the world. Syntona relieved all the trouble with my stomach, the headaches and dizziness cleared up. I am free of aches and pains and my strength returned Instead of feeling tired all the time, I now have my old energy and even my work is easier to do."

Syntona is made from the pure liquid extracts of twelve of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels—aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

'Wild Tigers,' Private Army, Led By Jap, Broken Up

Singapore, Dec. 19. (AP)—A high Indonesian official said today the Indonesian Republic police force had broken up the "Wild Tigers", a private army led by a Japanese which has been fighting both the Indonesians and Dutch forces in Sumatra for nearly two years.

The official, who reached Singapore after slipping through the Dutch blockade around Republican Sumatra, said 20 senior officers of the army were captured in raids two weeks ago.

The informant said an Indonesian military court had sentenced six officers to death. Fourteen others were given long prison sentences.

The Army's Commander, Capt. Inonye, a Japanese who went to Sumatra from Manchuria in 1945 to organize guerrilla resistance against an expected Allied invasion, is still sought, the official said.

TRUMAN ASKS CONGRESS FOR $17,000,000,000

Terms of New Food Contracts Still Unknown

Higher Domestic Prices On Cheese, Eggs, Beef, Bacon

Ottawa, Dec. 19. (CP)—Parliament had assurance today that collapse of British-Canadian Food Supply negotiations had been averted and agreements reached on new contracts, but it was given only an inkling of the agreements' terms.

Under a barrage of questions, government spokesmen yesterday could tell the Commons little more than that the food contracts were being renewed. And they said there would be price adjustments — presumably upwards —on all contract products except wheat and that the amounts will be different from the old contracts.

But there were immediate indications that for Canadians generally the new arrangement would result in higher domestic prices for bacon, beef, eggs and cheese —the non-cereal food items in the contracts.

A high government official said the law of supply and demand might be expected to boost domestic prices, though the extent of any increase would depend on the amounts shipped overseas.

With 2 1-2 years still to run, the wheat agreement will continue unchanged, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House.

The contract for the present crop year ending next July 31 calls for 160,000,000 bushels at $1.55 a bushel, basis Port Arthur-Fort William, Vancouver or Churchill, Man.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said that prices had been agreed to "in principle", but it was unlikely there could be any definite announcement in the figures at least until close to tonight's adjournment of parliament until late January.

Besides agreement on foods—wheat, bacon, cheese, eggs and beef—the contracts provide for continued supplies to Britain of raw materials for reconstruction, particularly timber and non-ferrous metals.

Another outcome of the negotiations, Mr. King disclosed, was expected to be an increase in Canadian imports from Britain and the sterling areas next year Again no details were given.

Financial terms of the new contracts—under negotiation here with a British Food Mission since Nov. 25—provide that Canada will extend an advance of only $45,000,000 out of Britain's $300,000,000 credit with this country for the first three months of 1948. The other $100,000,000 of the $145,000,000 expected to be spent by Britain in that time, must be paid in cash.

The credit arrangements extend only to March 31 and they will be reviewed. However, the other terms of contract—including prices—run through 1948, with a proviso that they may be lengthened to cover 1949.

Elliott Roosevelt, Wife Sell Christmas Trees

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Dec. 19 —(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, clad in heavy work clothes, and his wife, the former Faye Emerson, dressed in jodhpurs and a mink coat, stood at a roadside stand yesterday and personally sold Christmas trees planted by the late President. By the day's end, the couple had disposed of approximately 500 at $1 a tree. Elliott said he decided to sell his trees after a trip to New York where he saw 15-foot trees being sold for as much as $35 each. Roosevelt's wholesale price is 65 cents a tree in 100 lots.

DELIVERY BOY INJURED

Oshawa, Dec. 19 (CP) —Jimmie Nelson, 14, a drug store delivery boy knocked from his bicycle last night by a motorist who police said did not stop, today was reported in "fair" condition. A passing motorist, George Reid, told police he found the boy unconscious on the roadway near his smashed bicycle.

EVATT PROPOSES MEETING OF ALL ALLIED POWERS

Claims "Power Politics" Blocked Agreement on the German Problem

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 19 — (AP) — Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister of Foreign Affairs, proposed today that a meeting of all the Allied powers be called to write a peace for Germany.

Declaring that "power politics" had blocked agreement on the German problem at the recent Big Four parley in London, Evatt said he would like to see the treaty-making turned over to a conference of "all the countries that participated in the victory at such great sacrifices."

He urged that such a meeting should be held "without voting restrictions"— obviously a reference to the Big Four veto power in the United Nations Security Council, which he has frequently criticized.

Evatt said he believed there was safety in a "multitude of assembly" at International conferences because "the fewer people there are at a conference the more emphasis there is on power politics."

"I feel that the way toward peace will not be through the continuance of the present methods of the council of Foreign Ministers," he added emphatically.

Evatt criticized the "exclusiveness and narrowness" of the big Four discussions which, he said, followed the familiar pattern of charge and countercharge. He described the failure of the conference as a "serious but not irreparable setback.

Evatt, who spoke before a luncheon meeting of the United Nations Society here, said the big powers had not controlled the proceedings of the recent U.N. Assembly sessions in New York.

"If they have a strong case they win it," he said, "If not they lose it and accept the decision. The same thing must apply to the settlement of the peace in Germany, or there never will be a settlement in Germany."

MARGARET SIFTON DIES

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Margaret June Sifton, 22-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sifton of Toronto, died suddenly at Montreal Wednesday of a cerebral hemorrhage. An art student at Montreal Art Gallery and member of a well-known Canadian newspaper family, she suffered a seizure Tuesday night. Funeral will be held in Toronto Saturday.

Disgruntled Youngsters Rough Santa When Packages Found Empty

Glen Cove, N.Y., Dec. 19 (AP) —Santa's bag wasn't exactly empty when he paid a pre-Christmas visit here yesterday, but his "gift" packaged were — and it took seven husky policemen to get him safely away from more than 1,000 disgruntled youngsters.

The kids were all aglow when Santa arrived by train, with a 100-piece band on hand to greet him, but the affair began to take on the proportions of a riot soon afterwards.

Santa was transported to the business district on a fancy sleigh-float burdened with mountains of "gift" parcels fancily done by Chamber of Commerce workers, who sponsored the event.

However, it was necessary to move the float because of the peril to children from plate glass windows in the jammed area and Santa hopped down. The excited children bowled him over and trampled him. Rescued by police he smilingly passed out great loads of candy.

That wasn't enough. The kids thought they were to get the packages also. Santa demurred—because the empty boxes were fixed up only as decorations — and tried with a drooping smile to cover up with a vague reference to "presents for disabled veterans," drowned in the shouts and cries.

The youngsters snatched the boxes off the sleigh and feverishly tore them open. In great wrath they hurled them back at Santa upon finding them empty and gave him a mauling before police, led by the chief himself, spirited Kris Kringle to the safety of the police station.

BODIES OF TWO BOYS ARE FOUND, DIE OF EXPOSURE

Made Trip to Bush To Cut Christmas Tree

Hepworth, Ont., Dec. 19 —(CP) —Classmates on Christmas holidays will serve as pallbearers at the funeral Monday of Robert Cohen, 13, and his seven-year-old brother, Donald, whose frozen bodies were found early today under thin ice in a marsh three miles from their home in this Bruce county community about 10 miles west of Owen Sound.

Relatives and neighbors used a toboggan to bring the bodies back to the village from which the boys set out in a storm Wednesday afternoon after volunteering to cut a Christmas tree for a school concert. Originally scheduled for today, the concert has been cancelled.

Huddled Together

When searchers found the bodies amid the drifts, Donald was nestled close to the older brother he worshipped. Robert had taken off his gray overcoat to make a pillow as the boys sought shelter on the edge of the swamp. He hung their woollen mitts on the branches of a bush, apparently to attract the attention of anyone who might come searching for them through the storm.

In the dark hours that followed, the frost and icy blast of the snowstorm knifed through the clothing they wore. Little Donald was clad in ski pants and a gray coat. Robert was in blue pants, black sweater and an overcoat. Somewhere along the way to the swamp's rim they lost their dark blue ski caps.

The boys were a mile from the nearest farm when they lay down to rest.

Somewhere in the bush around the swamp are caves in which the boys played last summer. Their father, William Cohen, said today the storm apparently balked the boys' efforts to find shelter there.

Became Separated

Shadowy tracks in the drifted snow told searchers that for a time the boys separated. Little Donald waited at one point while Robert went ahead and picked out their resting place. Then Robert came back for his brother. The boys were members of a family with 12 children.

"The boys were trudging along side by side," said Robert Greig, one of the searchers who followed the faint double trail to the bodies in the marsh on the Greig farm. "At times the track would be lost. Then we would find it again. You could see they were trying to take advantage of the shelter of the hills and woods but all the time they were heading away from the village because as they wandered on they kept the wind at their back."

Discovery of the bodies came a few minutes after a search party from the neighboring village of Shallow Lake abandoned efforts to follow snow-drifted tracks across the marsh on the farm of Robert Greig.

12 in Family

With a neighbor, Clifford Mahon, Greig made a final effort to trace the children's trail through the darkened swamp which already had been combed by more than 45 men with flashlights who worked amid a drifting snowfall. Shortly after 1 a.m. today the two men found the bodies.

Two Toronto Women Narrowly Escape Death When Their Car Skids Onto Cemetery Crossing Tracks

Two young Toronto women, Joan M. Cracknell, St. Clair Ave. and Shirley Campbell, Austin Terrace, narrowly escaped death at the Cemetery Crossing west of the city when during the noon hour their late model coupe stalled on the tracks as a C.P.R. freight bore down upon them.

The two girls barely had time to jump clear of their car when the locomotive of the westbound freight struck the car and carried it a distance up the track. The side of the car was badly damaged.

Snow-covered highway which caused their car to skid onto the track as the driver applied the brakes to wait for the train to pass, is blamed for the accident. It was reported the girls saw the wig-wag swinging but the momentum of their car carried it onto the track as the wheels skidded on the slippery highway. The girls were eastbound with Miss Cracknell at the wheel.

The two girls possibly owe their lives to the fact that the freight was westbound with the locomotive laboring heavily on an upgrade, and as a result were given time to jump clear of their car before it was struck by the engine.

Canada's Liquor Bill Totalled $371 Millions Last Year

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP).—That long list of cold, black figures tabled in the House of Commons totalling $370,945,005—is another way of saying Canada had a pretty expensive alcoholic thirst in the fiscal year ended in 1946.

The $370,945,005 represents gross sales of spirits, beer and wines by provincial liquor control boards or their agents. It was a jump of $83,414,641 over the Dominion's drinking bill of $287,530,364 for the previous 12 months.

Prince Edward Island, where sale of alcoholic beverages is prohibited except for medicinal purposes, recorded a tidy sum of its own—1,188,855 in 1945-46, the last fiscal year for which statistics were available to the Dominion Government.

That was a hike of $475,782 above the previous year's gross sales of $713,073, And it works out to $12.65 per capita—for medicinal purposes only—compared to $7.75 per capita in 1944-45.

Sales per capita in the other eight provinces ranged in 1945-46 from $38.63 in British Columbia to $24.31 in Quebec. The Dominion's westernmost province had a $30.94 per capita figure in 1944-45, topping all provinces that year, too. Saskatchewan had the lowest —$16.12.

The Trade Department, tabling the figures at the request of A. M. Nicholson (CCF, Mackenzie), noted, however, that the per capita sales are not comparable figures of liquor consumption by residents of the various provinces.

"Sales to tourists are considerable and are heavier in some provinces than in others," it said. "There is considerable variation in the methods of sale as between provinces, and the methods of accounting are not uniform. In some provinces the figures represent sales to final consumers only. In others, they include sales to intermediaries as well."

Ontario's gross sales in both fiscal years topped those of any other provinces — $135,776,068 in 1945-46 and $102,885,847 in 1944-45.

Nova Scotia, $23,316,246 ($19,133,013); New Brunswick $16,628,760 ($10,920,973); Quebec, spirits and wines, $50,233,863 ($43,610,465), beer $38,024,809 ($32,135,402). Ontario, from liquor board stores, $64,116,,310 ($38,346,454), beer, from breweries and brewers retail stores, $66,879,190 ($61,034,601), Ontario wine from wineries and sales offices, $4,780,568 ($3,504,792), Manitoba, $20,267,473 ($15,298,548); Saskatchewan, $20,602.365 ($13,623.679); Alberta. $27,351,965 ($20,564,057); British Columbia $38,743,456 ($29,358,380).

Sales per capita in 1945-46 with 1944-45 figures in brackets: Nova Scotia, $38.10 ($30.81); New Brunswick, $34.64 ($23.34); Quebec, $24.31 ($21.27); Ontario, $33.11 ($25.70); Manitoba. $27.88 ($20.79); Saskatchewan, $24.73 ($16.12); Alberta, $34.06 ($24.90); British Columbia, $38.63 ($30.94).

Singapore, Dec. 19. (AP)—A high Indonesian official said today the Indonesian Republic police force had broken up the "Wild Tigers", a private army led by a Japanese which has been fighting both the Indonesians and Dutch forces in Sumatra for nearly two years.

The official, who reached Singapore after slipping through the Dutch blockade around Republican Sumatra, said 20 senior officers of the army were captured in raids two weeks ago.

The informant said an Indonesian military court had sentenced six officers to death. Fourteen others were given long prison sentences.

Italian Girl Comes To Wed Fiance, Learns of His Death

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Maria Formicola, 21, excitedly dressed in her finest yesterday as the liner Vulcania brought her to New York to meet her fiance, an American soldier she met in her native Italy.

For five hours she waited for James H. McIntosh, 19, of Guerrant, Ky., American export line officials finally broke the news to her that McIntosh had been killed in an automobile accident Dec. 6.

Line officials said that under the law the girl would be returned to Italy.

Change in Hours Of Liquor Sale

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— The Ontario Liquor Control Board yesterday said its stores will remain open Dec. 30 and 31 until 8 p.m. and not 10 p.m. as previously announced. On Dec. 22 and 23 the closing hour will be 10 p.m. These hours apply only in the larger centres. In smaller communities liquor stores will close at 8 p.m. on these four days. Selling hours on Dec. 24 will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Stores will be closed Christmas Day, Boxing Day, (Dec. 26) and New Year's Day.

MILLIONAIRE LIVED IN $10-A-WEEK ROOM FOR SEVEN YEARS

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 19 — (AP) — Oliver Cooper, who lived here quietly in a $10-a-week room for seven years before his death, was revealed yesterday as the possessor of an estate valued at nearly $2,000,000. Before appraisers went into Cooper's safe deposit box in a Greenwich bank, the probate court had listed his estate as "not exceeding $10,000" in value.

U.K. TO MAKE BIG WHEAT PURCHASE FROM AUSTRALIA

One-Year Contract Calls For 80,000,000 Bushels

London, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Food Minister Strachey announced in the Commons today a one-year contract to purchase 80,000,000 bushels of wheat from Australia. Approximately half would be for colonies and other areas for which Britain is responsible. ible.

The contract, along with one between Australia and India, was announced in Melbourne yesterday.

The price to Britain will be 27 shillings (Australian) (about $2.72) a bushel F. O. B. Australian ports, compared with the $1.55 Britain pays Canada under a long-term agreement.

"If Australia and the United Kingdom become parties to an international wheat agreement the price of any wheat not yet shipped at a date on which such an agreement comes into force will be adjusted to conform to the prices prescribed in the agreement," Strachey said.

Canada expects long-term advantages to compensate for the low price being charged at present for her wheat shipped to Britain. Next season Canada will get $2 a bushel from Britain even if the prevailing world price falls. At present American wheat, or Canadian wheat to other countries than Britain, sells for more than $3 a bushel.

If the Australia harvest for 1947-48 reaches 210,000,000 bushels, an additional 5,000,000 will be sold to the United Kingdom.

"Substantial quantities won't be available for shipment until the new year and cannot therefore arrive in this country until next March," Strachey said.

"Only a comparatively small proportion of the total purchase of 80,000,000 bushels will therefore be available in the United Kingdom in this crop year.

"Nevertheless if the wheat can be delivered to our ships in Australian ports in regular and substantial quantities it will ease those serious anxieties for our bread supply which we have each year experienced in the late spring."

MOVE INTO WRONG HOUSE

Indianapolis, Dec. 19 — (AP)— Yesterday was moving day for Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fulks. So was today.

Yesterday they moved, lock, stock and barrel, put in light bulbs and had a telephone installed in a newly-built south side home.

The house numbers weren't all up along the row of new houses. That was the rub.

They found they had moved into the wrong house. They belonged in the one next door.

Crude Table Manners Betray German With Slick Plan for Collecting Money

Berlin, Dec. 19 (Reuters) — The Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung described today how a Magdenburg commercial traveller in mothballs acquired more than 500,000 marks ($50,000) by collecting "gifts for the education of Hitler's son" — and then was betrayed because he ate peas with a knife.

Reprinted from the newspaper Frakenpost, published at the Russian American zonal boundary, the story was told in this way.

"Helmut Riegge of Magdenburg was a commercial traveler in mothballs.

"One day he found in a railway train a British magazine containing pictures of Hitler and Eva Braun. Eva had a bunch of flowers in one of the pictures and 'Hitler had a son' was printed underneath.

"Riegge had an idea. He borrowed a camera from his cousin experimented until Eva no longer held a bunch of flowers in her arms. In its place was a son, little Hitler. The fact that he had used a photograph of his cousin Anne's son for the experiments did not worry him much.

"When he started his tour he still carried mothballs in his pocket but they were only camouflage. He showed them to get into conversation with people whom he called.

"In the course of the conversation he would whisper 'special mission I am collecting for Hitler's son.'

"At the same time he showed his photograph — Eva and the boy with Hitler in the background.

"'It is important for national pride that the child who is at present being educated secretly at a castle in Saxony should be taken to the west,' he would say. 'The child must be taken out of the reach of the Russians.'

"Then he would submit his collecting list and take whatever was offered. Soon he owned a motorcycle provided with gasoline by interested parties. He began to visit the 'big people' and it was not long before he had collected 507,000 marks.

"An industrialist at Hanover, however, became suspicious. Riegge, on the strength of a story that he was an industrialist and estate owner, had been invited to lunch.

"But to the surprise of his host Riegge ate his peas wiht a knife. The industrialist informed the police, but Riegge was too quick. He disappeared and has not been seen since.

"His collection list and the picture of Eva Braun are in the hands of the police."

Will Use Money To Underwrite Europe's Recovery

Claims Expenditure Major Step for Lasting Peace

Washington Dec. 19. (AP)—President Truman asked the United States Congress today to authorize spending $17,000,000,000 to underwrite European recovery lest the people of Europe fall into despair and surrender to "totalitarian control".

The president said in recommending by far the largest expenditure ever asked of Congress in time of peace that Europe must be stabilized or the American way of life will be endangered.

Repeatedly he warned against totalitarianism and he named communism as the specific danger, saying the communists "unquestionably" would seek to block the aid program so as to promote chaos in Europe.

He asked that the billions be spent "in full confidence" of the wisdom of the program and "as a major step in our nation's quest for a just and lasting peace."

Besides sending his message for reading before the legislature, the President submitted the draft of legislation setting up an economic co-operation administration to administer the program under a $20,000-a-year administrator, a $17,500-a-year deputy administrator and a roving foreign representative with full rank of ambassador and a $25,000 salary.

The program calls for aid to 16 countries which endorsed the plan at Paris, but makes possible participation in the recovery program by any European country which can qualify under the standards originally laid down in the so-called "Marshall plan".

Wants Rapid Action

The President said he was submitting the program at the tail-end of the special session in order that Congress may proceed rapidly in the new January session to make the program effective by April 1.

The program calls for an appropriation of $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months—from April 1. 1948, to June 30, 1949. that can be made now indicate

Truman said the best estimates that appropriations of about $10,200,000,000 will be required for the last three years, carrying the program to June 30, 1952.

The President said that while many commodities needed for Europe will be obtained outside the United States, "some self-denial" will be required from the American people.

10 ARABS KILLED, FIVE INJURED BY BOMBS, GUNFIRE

Two Carloads of Jews Drive Into Village and Start Shooting

Jerusalem Dec. 19 (AP) —Ten Arabs, including five children, were reported killed and five others injured by bombs and gunfire last night in attack officially stated to have been launched by Jews on the village of Khisas, in upper Galilee.

An official report said two cars of Jews drove into the village in darkness, threw a number of bombs and opened fire. Two houses were destroyed.

A police patrol found seven bodies in the ruins of one of the houses and three in the other.

Two Syrians and two Lebanese Arabs were listed among the casualties.

Jewish sources said Hagana, the Jewish underground militia made the attack because the village was being used as a hideout for infiltrating volunteers of Fawzi Kaukji's Arab "save Palestine" army. Arab sources have said this army was moving 2,000 guerrilla fighters to join Palestine Arab forces near Nablus.

The total dead in Palestine since Nov. 26 when Jewish-Arab fighting broke out over the United Nations decision to partition Palestine reached 276 with last night's casualties, according to Associated Press figures.

Discuss Fuel Oil Conservation Measure

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Representatives of major oil companies will meet with government officials in Ottawa early next week to discuss ways and means of conserving fuel oil, a spokesman for an oil company said here yesterday.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Synopsis: Apart from local cloud patches skies are clear over Northern and Eastern Ontario with temperatures ranging between 10 and 20 below. Over the southwestern section of the province extensive cloudiness held temperatures to between 10 and 20 above during the night. A small disturbance over Central Saskatchewan is moving eastward and will spread snow into the northern White River and James Bay regions on Saturday. Elsewhere there will be little change in weather or the temperature range.

Fuel for Diesel Engines Short In North Hastings

Unless extensions are granted to fuel oil quotas in the northern sections of Hastings County, there is an imminent danger of several operating mines closing down in that vicinity. Especially affected will be the Tomahawk Iron Mines Ltd., located near Millbridge.

It was learned last week that fuel for diesel engines was exceptionally scarce with quotas absorbed by Ontario Hydro Commission equipment which has been working in the neighborhood of Coe Hill for some time.

It was also stated that fuel oil priorities have been given to domestic consumers, and efforts are now under way to divert some of the domestic fuel to industrial needs.

The Tomahawk mine is operated electrically and derives its power from generators driven by diesel engines. Present diesel fuel supplies in Coe Hill are rapidly dwindling and unless something is done to extend quotas, a layoff of mine employees may result. It was stated that other mines in the northern section will be similarly affected.

Collision Damages Cars, Another Car Strikes Tree

Considerable property damage resulted to two autos this morning as result of a collision at the corner of Bridge Street and Bleecker Ave.

Roy Tracey, R. R. 6 Cannifton, was proceeding south on Bleecker and had stopped for the "stop" street at Bridge. Entering Bridge Street he had started to make a left turn when his car was in collision with an eastbound car driven by Charles Gray of Demorestville. The entire left side of the Gray car was damaged while the front, fenders, headlights and grill of the Tracey car were damaged.

Eldred Heisler, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was driving west on West Dundas Street when his car skidded and slid into a tree causing fender damage. A passenger in the car, Alex Perry, also R.C.A.F., received a slight bump on the side of his head.

Three Months Term Given On Theft Charge

Pleading guilty to the theft of $57 from the Clarke and Miles butcher store on Front Street, John White, Everett Street, former employee of the store, was sentenced to three months in jail when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in police court this morning.

The court was told that White had hidden in the building and after the business was closed for the night had taken $57 from the till and had then let himself out the door.

Adams Case Enlarged

Jack Adams, formerly of Cannifton, pleaded guilty to passing a worthless cheque at the business place of a local merchant, and had his case enlarged until Tuesday for sentence. Face value of the cheque passed was $26.

At the time of his apprehension Adams was on suspended sentence following conviction on previous charges of false pretences. Today he faced an additional charge of breach of recognizance.

Stewart-Warner, American Optical To Hold Parties

Originally planned for the hall of the Loyal Orange Lodge which was severely damaged by fire last night, Christmas parties arranged for personnel and their children by the Stewart-Warner Company Ltd. and the American Optical Company, Canada, Ltd., will be held in Kiwanis Centre tomorrow afternoon.

The Stewart Warner Company will entertain upwards of 200 children. There will be a huge Christmas tree, a grab-bag, Santa Claus and gifts for all. Entertainment will be provided by Barbara Diment and associates and refreshments will be served to the kiddies and their parents.

The American Optical Company will be hosts to 180 employees and 100 children. It, too will feature a Christmas tree, Santa Claus, entertainment and refreshments. Gifts and candy will be distributed to the children.

The Stewart Warner party gets under way at 1.30 and the American Optical Company's entertainment will begin at the conclusion of the other company's fun.

Orange Hall Gutted by Fire, Damage Estimated at $5,000

Damage estimated at upwards of $5,000 resulted at the Orange Hall, Church Street, shortly after eight o'clock last evening when fire of undetermined origin starting near the furnace room in the basement swept through the structure badly gutting the interior.

Firemen fought the blaze in zero weather and saved the frame structure although floors and partitions, both in the basement and upstairs in the main auditorium were badly damaged by fire.

Preparing For Meeting

A number of members of the L.O.B.A. were in the building preparing for a meeting when the blaze was discovered in the basement shortly after eight o'clock. The alarm was quickly given and the 15 women in the building moved to safety. As the last of the women moved out of the building the lights failed.

One of the members of the party in the building preparing for the L.O.B.A. meeting, Mrs. A. W. Buck, Albert Street, stated that three women had been in the basement in the kitchen when the blaze was noticed near the furnace room.

"If the fire had not been discovered until possibly half an hour later, undoubtedly some would have lost their lives as all would have been upstairs and the fire would have cut off the stairs," stated Mrs. Buck. Members of the organization were meeting for installation of officers and their annual Christmas party.

Had Good Start

As it was the flames were already creeping up the stairs when firemen arrived on the scene following the alarm. "We were lucky that the blaze was discovered when it was or it might easily have gotten out of control," stated Fire Chief William Lynch.

During the course of the fire the flames broke out through the side walls in several places but they were brought under control by firemen. The roof of the building was saved. Beams supporting the floor above the basement as well as partitions in the building were badly damaged, it was stated.

Still not completely finished on the outside, the Orange Hall had been under construction for the past few years. The building was finished inside but insul brick on the exterior was still to be applied.

Children Enjoy Christmas Party By Y's Men's Club

A Christmas dinner party was the order of the day at the regular Y's Men's meeting on Thursday evening. Y's menettes and their children were guests, and a very pleasant evening was arranged by the social committee of Vic Lancaster, Morley Lovelace and Larry Buck.

President Don Williams presided, Vic Lancaster was Sgt.-at-Arms, Bill Navin was at the piano and Roy Wilcox song leader.

The dinner which opened with Grace by Don Amos, was served by Mrs. Joe Shortt and assistants, and included candy and ice cream for the children.

During the dinner, Oscar Wagar on behalf of the club presented Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Shortt, who leaves the first of the year for Sherbrooke, Que., with a beautiful table lamp and the best wishes of the club. Ed. replied briefly thanking the club for the gift.

The program, which was under the direction of Ed. Shortt, included novelty numbers by Bill Navin, a display of magic by Nick Nichols, who proved to all that the hand was quicker than the eye, moving pictures shown by Jack Wilson and a visit by Santa Claus.

A welcome to the club and a merry Christmas was extended to the guests by the President, following which Don Amos spoke particularly to the children, on the birth of Jesus.

Col. Hunt Addresses Cost Accountants

The regular monthly meeting and Christmas gathering of members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants was held at the Bar-B-Q restaurant this week. Col. A. B. Hunt, Belleville manager of the Northern Electric Company was the guest speaker.

Subject of Mr. Hunt's address was "Recent developments in radio communications" which proved of interest to members and guests. Following Mr. Hunt's address there was a brief question period during which the speaker answered many questions from the members.

The highlights in Mr. Hunt's talk were his remarks on the progress of communications, especially with reference to the vacuum tube in both wire and radio communication. As recently as 1923, he stated, difficulties were experienced in educating people to the use of public address systems in auditoriums — a communicating system in common use today.

Talking pictures followed with the same promotional difficulties, but finally moving picture producers were convinced and the technic was brought to Canada in 1928. Such terms as radar, pulse time, sonar, thermister and fastex camera were a few of the specific items briefly reviewed, revealing amazing possibilities in communication and other felds of endeavor.

John Godwin introduced the speaker with appreciation being expressed by Carl Casey. Bob Taylor read correspondence received since the last meeting, while Lou Pretsell's resignation from the Chapter was accepted. Mr. Pretsell has been transferred to Port Arthur and his enthusiasm and organizing ability will be missed from the local club.

Clem Ketcheson Elected President Crop Association

One of the outstanding seed men of the county, Clem H. Ketcheson, Sidney township, was elected president of the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association at their annual meeting last week.

George Sutherland, Stirling, was appointed vice president while A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling, will continue as secretary treasurer.

A short summary of the seed survey made in the county last season was given by Ken Fallis of the Crop, Seeds and Weeds Branch. Of the 41 samples selected by Junior Farmers and W. J. Tanner, county weeds inspector, 60 per cent graded No. 1; 2.5 per cent No. 2; 2.5 per cent No. 3 and 35 per cent was rejected.

This grading was done only for weed seeds with color of the grain due to such factors as weathering was not considered. The speaker stressed the hope that greater care would be taken in the future to sow grain that had been properly graded either through the farm fanning mill or seed cleaning plant.

Mr. Fallis said he could not see how farmers could expect to have clean farms when they were apparently sowing a very high rate of weeds in their grain drills.

Plans Completed For Seed Fair At Peterborough

John Rickard of Newcastle, was elected president of the Quinte District Seed Fair at their annual meeting held at Peterborough last week when plans were made to hold the annual seed fair at Peterborough next March. Fair dates will be March 18-19 and 20, the show to be held in the drill hall of the fair grounds.

Other officers returned were as follows: Oscar Parks, Bloomfield, honorary president; B. C. Jackson, Enterprise and Wilmott Croxall of Uxbridge, vice presidents and A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling, secretary treasurer. Fair secretary is Frank Peterson of Peterborough, and fair manager, Stewart Bowman of Peterborough.

The meeting was attended by representatives from the majority of the counties in the area and all phases of the fair were discussed. It was planned to have as many educational exhibits on hand as possible while it was felt that although past fairs had been a success from a financial standpoint, greater efforts should be taken to acquaint farmers with the fair and thus have a larger attendance.

Ken Fallis of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch reported on the seed survey which was conducted in the district during the past seeding season. Despite the fact there are a number of efficiently operated seed cleaning plants in the district, the seed being sown did not measure up to the standards as far as weed seeds were concerned. A very high percentage of the seed taken in the survey was rejected due only to the large number of weed seeds present.

A cattle run of some 5,900 head was added to 1,000 brought forward from last week's close. Included in the supply were 1,800 stockers of which several hundred were left unsold at the close.

Butcher heifers were $11 to $14 25 with a few at $14.50. Bulls brought $8.25 to $11.25 and fed yearlings $13.50 to $16.50. Butcher cows sold at $8 to $11 with tops at $11.50 while canners and cutters were mostly $5.50 to $7.75. Stockers moved slowly at $8.50 to $11.50 for plain to medium quality with better kinds bringing up to $13. Ordinary quality milkers and springers were $85 to $140. each.

Some 1,600 head of calves sold steady at $17 to $18 for choice vealers with plain to medium heavies at $11 to $16. Grassers for slaughter brought $9 to $10 cwt.

A light run of 2,800 head of hogs sold steady for most of the week and then advanced 25 cents, closing at $23.25 for Grade A and $22.85 for B1. Sows moved up to $15 50 dressed.

Sheep and lambs bought a small run of 2,300 head. Good ewe and wether lambs sold at $16.25 to $16.50 with choice Southdowns up to $19 cwt. Bucks were at the $1 discount and culls brought $10 to $13 cwt.

Sheep were stronger at $4 to $9 with some light ewes going for $9.50.

Fuelish Words

(A Tip To The Boss)

If such a thing should come to pass,
You find yourself plumb out of gas,
Don't rant and rave and curse or swear,
Or rip your clothes, or tear your hair,
Don't paw the ground like a maddened bull,
After all, who's to blame that the tank's not full,
Don't blame the car, nor the salesman lad
It's not his fault, that your memory's bad,
You think of the oil and the anti-freeze,
And the color and texture of last year's cheese,
You remember the tires, see they're right for air,
Occasionally look—yep—the heater's there,
The wiper's working—you see to that,
And you know that the spare in the trunk's not flat,
The motor is perfect, purrs like a kitten,
The upholstery's clean, that's on what you're sittin',
The tools are in order, you always know that,
And you don't forget to wear your hat,
But here's a reminder to memory keen,
Which apparently "ain't" what it's always been,
Whenever a gasoline station you pass,
Take a tip from a pal, and look at the gas.

New Patrol Boat Will be Built, Replace Nascopie

Ottawa, Dec. 19. (CP)—Plans for a new Arctic patrol boat to replace the R.M.S. Nascopie, lost on a reef off Baffin Island last Summer, were announced today by Transport Minister Chevrier.

A contract for the vessel, which will be owned and operated by the Federal Government, has been awarded to the Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Company Ltd., of Lauzon, Levis, Que. It will be ready for service in the 1949 Eastern Arctic Patrol.

Of streamlined design, with the latest navigational equipment, the new ship will be equipped to carry a helicopter to be used for scouting ice conditions ahead and for landing urgently-needed supplies. Its navigational gear will include radar, echo sounding and direction finder equipment as well as gyro compasses.

For many years the Nascopie, owned by the Hudson's Bay Company, carried government officials and government stores for the Eastern Arctic Patrol Service. The new ship will be built and operated by the Transport Department for Eastern Arctic Patrol Service in the summer and in servicing of departmental aids to navigation in the lower St. Lawrence and off the Atlantic Coast during the rest of the year.

Hamilton Man Missing 10 Days Located Here

Victim of amnesia and missing from his home in Hamilton since December 7th, 44-year-old Joseph Burdett of that city, remembered just long enough Thursday evening to seek assistance before his memory again failed. At complete loss to know who he was or where he had come from Burdett last night wandered into the office of Dr. G. Faulkner on Campbell Street and was later taken to hospital.

A police search of the man's person revealed papers disclosing his name and address but the amnesia victim could remember nothing about himself. Checking with the man's family in Hamilton revealed he had been missing from home for the past ten days.

The man will be kept under observation at Belleville hospital until Saturday when the family will have him moved to Hamilton hospital.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Confidence in continuing prosperity for Canadian business is indicated in a report from the nickel industry and announcement that the Garfield Weston interests have expanded further in the food industry by purchasing William Neilson Ltd., chocolate manufacturers.

"The encouraging outlook for nickel serves indicates a continuance of favorable showing made by the nickel industry in 1947," said Robert G. Stanley, President of the International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., in reporting that world deliveries of Canadian nickel were well above those of 1946 and approximately the same as the industry's greatest peacetime year of 1937.

Price paid by George Weston, Ltd., biscuit manufacturers, for the Neilson Company is reported at $4,500,000 and flolows other large recent acquisitions in the food industry.

Of importance to the Canadian liquor industry is the prediction by United States distillers that the Geneva tariff agreements will result in a "large increase" in whisky imports from Canada.

Rumors that renewal of contracts for sale of food to Britain would add 10 per cent to the price paid by Britain but that the quantity shipped would be decreased, disturbed sections of the Canadian food industry. In line with these rumors, bacon prices in Toronto moved up 25 cents a hundredweight in the first price change in several weeks.

Stock markets yesterday showed irregular price trends and selective trading. Food issues on the Toronto exchange eased as investors awaited clarification of the new situation, while Montreal trading was within a narrow price range. New York, however, enjoyed a rally in railroad shares.

Duncan C. Scott, Uncrowned Poet Laureate, Dies

Ottawa, Dec. 19 — (CP)—Duncan Campbell Scott, grand old man of Canadian literature, died at his home here today. He was 86 years of age.

One of the few Canadians ever to receive international recognition in the field of literature, Dr. Scott generally was regarded as the uncrowned poet laureate of Canada. He was actively engaged in writing almost up to the time of his death. His last book, 'The Circle of Affection', was published only this spring.

The son of a Methodist minister and lifelong resident of Ottawa, he was a former deputy superintendent-general of the Department of Indian Affairs. Early in life he was interested in music, but later turned to expression in poetry, and was perhaps best known for his verses about nature, and short stories of French Canada.

Dr. Scott was one of the founders of the Little Theatre in Ottawa, and a former president of the Ottawa Drama League. He also was a member of the Royal Society of Canada, president of the Canadian Authors' Association, Fellow of the Royal Society of Great Britain, and a life member of the National Book League of Great Britain.

In 1934 he was created a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Dr. Scott was married in 1894 to the former Belle Botsford of Boston, who predeceased him. Their only child died as a young girl. In 1931 he married the former Elise Aylen of Ottawa, who survives. Mrs. Scott also has won acclaim for her poetry.

KINNEAR BROADWORTH

Supervisor of Stores in the AO Belleville Plant

Smoothly flowing production in any industrial plant is partly dependent on the adequate stocking of materials consumed in the manufactured product. In the Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited that responsibility is the province of Kinnear Broadworth, our supervisor of stores, who is shown above checking supplies in the store room.

Painstakingly accurate, Kinnear records incoming stocks of raw glass and other production and maintenance materials. But that's only half his work. When stocks begin to run low, he immediately issues requisitions for replacements so that production is never delayed for lack of the necessary materials.

A member of the AO Service and Social Club, Kinnear also enjoys outdoor sports, particularly baseball and skating. The latter sport once provided a few minutes of intense excitement. Unknowingly he skated on a stretch of thin ice. The ice broke and Kinnear got an involuntary wintry bath. Fortunately he escaped and still likes skating .. but on thick ice.

Always pleasant and co-operative, Kinnear is typical of AO Belleville people who realize they have a stake in Canadian industry. He believes in the teamwork that has enabled AO to progress and to become one of Belleville's leading industries. By working together as a unit the AO Belleville force proves again the worth of our system of free industrial enterprise.

Carefulness on Roads

Motorists and pedestrians have been asked by Chief Constable Probert to exercise the greatest care owing to the slippery condition of the streets after the recent fall of snow and the cold weather, and to the increased number of persons walking and driving at this season of the year.

Accidents always cast a cloud especially in such a season when people's thoughts are concerned with the plans for the approaching joyful Christmas festival. One type of accident was referred to by the Chief Constable in his appeal — that which may occur when persons step out in front of traffic from behind parked cars, leaving little opportunity to the driver to stop his car when the road surface is covered by snow or patches of ice.

Pedestrians who give the drivers a chance are those who escape accidents. To move suddenly into the path of a car is a certain way of courting injury and possibly of causing a fatality.

More than ordinary caution on the part of both pedestrians and drivers at this season is commended for safety's sake

How Pedestrian Figures

Pedestrians are sticking their chins out when they cross the street in the middle of the block or take a diagonal short-cut across an intersection, or run to beat a car in any part of the street. And they may get more than their chins hurt! In fact, these practices account for a large percentage of fatal pedestrian accidents. Be 'careful, urges the Ontario Department of Highways, there's so little to gain, so much to lose.

Action of pedestrians is a factor of prominence in reports of accidents. For the first nine months of the year, crossing between intersections cost in Ontario the lives of 37 persons and crossing highways 39. Walking on the highways figured in 30 fatal accidents. 22 fatalities were caused as children were playing in streets.

Another classification of accidents places before the pedestrian the situation as it was proven from the first of this year to the end of September. Pedestrians as a class were hard hit in numbers. The totals show that 188 pedestrians who lost their lives in the nine months led all categories. Next were passengers of cars, totalling 141, and third drivers, 127 being killed. Bicyclists were in fourth place with 19 deaths, motorcycle drivers in fifth with 14 and motorcycle passengers next with five fatalities and persons in horsedraw vehicles and so forth in the last category with three deaths.

Further light on pedestrians, that relating to their condition, is conveyed in figures. of 185 pedestrians figuring in the fatal lists 157 were normal, nine were confused by traffic, eight had suffered from physical defects, seven had found obstructions in their view and four were intoxicated. The toll of injured shows that out of 2,076 injured, 1,692 were normal, 139 had their view obstructed, 115 were confused by traffic, 95 were intoxicated and 35 has physical defects.

Here can be found reason enough for insistence upon pedestrians exercising more care on streets and highways. The list of dead and injured in this class is so imposing as to print indelibly on the mind the risks this type of user of roads and highways runs and to which he contributes such a large list of victims.

More Saving of Power

Need for more saving of electric power is stressed by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. Voluntary conservation and application of restrictions have so far brought about a substantial reduction. But the fact remains that heavy cuts are still being made in delivery of power to industry. Lack of rainfall has emphasized the stringency of the situation and with winter now here there is little hope of improvement in the amount of water storage. According to the secretary of the Commission it is expected that system power resources will steadily deteriorate.

Accordingly a call is being made for further voluntary savings, for as a letter from the Commission's secretary published today says if this is not forthcoming the situation is such that the Commission may be forced to reduce the load from time to time by as much as 15 per cent or possibly more.

Savings Certificates

Canada during the Second World War sold a great number of War Savings Certificates to run for the period of seven and a half years. The seven and a half years are up already for the first of the certificates, those issued in May, 1940, maturing in November last. From now on as the middle of each month comes, certificates will continue to fall due. Those who took the opportunity to buy these have found them very profitable, for what cost four dollars has become worth five dollars in the seven and a half year period.

Last of the certificates will mature in March, 1954.

There has been suggestion that it would be better were it possible to cash these certificates at maturity on bringing them to the chartered banks. The War Savings Divisions at Ottawa however established the procedure back in 1940 which was that the owner should forward the certificate at maturity to Ottawa and receive therefrom a cheque to be cashed at any bank.

These certificates cease to pay interest at maturity and it is the part of wisdom to cash the certificates as they become due and make whatever interest may come from any new investment.

Christmas Seals

Persons who have not yet contributed to the Christmas Seal Fund by the purchase of seals should do so immediately. The cause is one of the worthiest and is freighted with immense consequences for the good of the health of the people. The Hastings Tuberculosis Association and the Shrine Club, which sponsors the sale of seals are doing a good work which can be measured in prevention and improvement of the health of individuals and of the people at large.

Keep Mouth Closed

There's no doubt about it, keeping your mouth shut pays. Samuel Orman, 41-year-old liquor dealer in Baltimore, has found out how much. After wrapping up a bottle of rye for a customer, he asked, "Anything else?" and the reply was "Yes, your money," and the customer made off with $150.

It isn't often that the cost of opening one's mouth at the wrong time can be computed so exactly, but there's no question about it, it pays to keep quiet. — Windsor Star.

Christmas Cracker

As in Canada, no Christmas party in Britain is complete without a box of "crackers."

Christmas crackers were first made in Britain about 70 years ago. It was a confectioner and maker of ornaments for wedding cakes with the typical English name of Tom Smith who brought back from a holiday on the Continent the idea which evolved into the cracker. He saw that a French confectioner made his sweetmeats more attractive by wrapping them in tissue paper.

A few weeks before Christmas he set his assistants wrapping sugared almonds in this way. The cracker came a little nearer when he thought of making the package more entertaining by placing a loving message inside.

This is a season to be merry. It is also the season to be wary! The Ontario Highways Department reminds motorists that in December, holiday driving and winter conditions combine to make this joyful month a very dangerous month. Drive with extra care — and have reason to be cheerful, not tearful.

HINTING

When they smooth my rumpled hair,
Gently brush my coat lapel,
Give to me the tenderest care,
Ask me if I'm feeling well,
When they smile to see me come,
Wish that longer would I stay,
Grandpa would be very dumb
Not to know the game they play.

Now it seems from day to day
I am told of things they've seen.
"There's a lovely robe," they say,
"In the softest shade of green."
There's a dress they wish they had
In a nearby little shop.
Grandpa's hearing would be bad
Not to catch the hints they drop.

There's a pretty necklace set
Most attractive to the eye
Which they've wanted long to get,
But cannot afford to buy.
Christmas coming, and if he
Failed to reach each eager mind,
Grandpa then would have to be
Surely deaf and dumb and blind.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Does the United States have diplomatic relations with the Vatican?

The United States has never had full diplomatic relations with the Vatican since the American legation at Rome was terminated in 1867.

In 1870 the troops of the new Kingdom of Italy occupied Rome, the Papal States by a plebisitary vote of 154,000 to 1,507 threw in their lot with Italy, the Pope became a voluntary prisoner and thereafter the Holy See sent only ecclesiastical representatives to foreign countries.

In the summer of 1902 Governor William Howard Taft of the Philippines had a personal interview with Pope Leo XIII and made an arrangement by which the United States paid $7,239,000 for certain church lands in the Philippine Islands.

The Lateran Treaty of 1929 established full diplomatic relations between the Italian government and the State of the Vatican City, recognized the Pope as a temporal ruler and acknowledged his right to maintain a diplomatic corps. By 1944 more than 40 countries exchanged accredited representatives with the Holy See. The Vatican sends nuncios and internuncios to foreign governments, while foreign governments send ambassadors and ministers to the Vatican.

"Nuncio" is derived through early Latin from Latin "nuncius" meaning "messenger." The Vatican sends Apostolic Delegates, with purely ecclesiastical functions, to countries with which it does not have diplomatic relations, but such representatives are not accredited to governments.

In 1939 President Roosevelt designated Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, to represent him at the coronation of Pope Pius XII. An Act of Congress was approved providing that, "Until the United States shall have consular officer resident in the State of the Vatican City," the American consul in Rome shall be authorized to act as the authenticating agent for documents of record in Vatican City so they may be used as evidence in United States courts.

In January, 1940, President Taylor, an Episcopalian of Quaker ancestry, to be his personal representative at the Vatican to work with the Catholic Church in "parallel endeavors for peace." Although Taylor was appointed by the President and given the rank of ambassador, he was not an official ambassador, received no salary for his services, was not confirmed by the Senate and was not authorized, like other ambassadors, to fix the State Department seal to documents.

Vatican authorities decided to regard Taylor's status as equivalent to that of other ambassadors accredited to the Holy See because he was appointed by Roosevelt as President and not as a private citizen. Taylor had to present credentials, was granted diplomatic privileges, immunities and protection and was treated as an ambassador to the Vatican. The Vatican, however, did not send a nuncio to the United States. The Apostolic Delegate at Washington continued to represent the Vatican in the United States in a purely ecclesiastical capacity without being accredited to the American government. On May 3, 1946, President Truman announced, that Taylor would represent him personally at the Vatican as he had represented President Roosevelt.

Woes of a Matron With Christmas Cards

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 19—(AP) — A local matron put her Christmas cards in an empty carton and gave them to an errand boy to mail.

The boy left the entire package at the post office mail window and the clerk, not nocticing it was not sealed and taking a quick glance at its red-and-white label, threw it in with a bin of Christmas mail.

The next day, a postman knocked at the matron's door and collected $16.75 for a C.O.D. package.

She had bought her Christmas cards back.

Acting postmaster Fred Lunsford, blaming it all on the Christmas rush, straightened things out.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

May I take this opportunity to draw to the attention of the citizens of Belleville, the recent car train accident at Eden, Ont., in which five in one family suffered.

Within the City of Belleville there are several very dangerous level railway crossings and in years gone by fatal accidents have occurred at some of these crossings. Before the war a crossing fund was established by the government to provide funds to eliminate, as far as possibile the most dangerous level crossings. Recommendations have been made to the city council to close some of these level crossings and before more fatal accidents occur some action should be taken.

Another point of interest. When are the railways going to provide a better passenger train service out of Belleville? A business man in order to spend a day in Toronto would have to get out of bed at three a.m. in the morning or go the night before and spend the night in Toronto.

Compare the City of London, Ontario, with cities of eastern Ontario. The City of London has nine trains a day going to Toronto, Kingston has four. The C.N.R. and C.P.R. each has a morning train leaving London for Toronto returning in the evening. These two trains are not milk trains either. The last morning train leaving Kingston for Toronto is at 3.05 a.m ; Belleville 4 22 a.m. The next one goes at 1.25 p.m., and 2.40 p.m.

The City of Belleville has some fine new industries located here within the last few years and is expanding rapidly. Could not some action be taken in asking the railway to provide a better passenger train service out of Belleville?

A Citizen of Belleville.

War Veteran Kills Armed Robber, Wounds Another

Detroit, Dec. 19 (AP)—While 16 frightened patrons hid under tables, a war veteran bartender killed an armed robber and critically wounded another in a wild gun fight last night.

Shooting with a gun in each hand, Leo Monteleone, 29, killed a man identified at Ellie C. Turner, 36, with a shot that pierced his heart.

The shooting began when Webb walked in the rear door of the tavern, aimed an automatic shotgun at the patrons and said:

"This is a stickup."

When Webb diverted his glance for an instant, Monteleone reacheb in a drawer and drew two revolvers.

Webb fired two blasts, just as Turner came in the front door with a drawn revolver. As Monteleone fired several times, Turner leaped over the bar to attack the bartender and was hit in the heart.

Then Monteleone fired several times at Webb, and he collapsed near the rear door, a bullet in his head. The bartender, unharmed, had fired seven shots in all.

Party Prepared For an Election Says Mr. Bracken

Ottawa, Dec. 19 — (CP)—John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said last night his party was prepared to contest a general election on the issue of the government's new economic program.

In a statement, Mr. Bracken criticized measures under the dollar-conservation policy as "dictatorial" and declared the Progressive Conservatives would "fight to the last ditch" against their parliamentary endorsation in their present form.

The party leader was commenting on an Ottawa story in the Toronto Telegram quoting him on an election issue.

He said:

"A reporter asked me today if we were prepared to have an election.

"I asked him if be meant on the government's economic program presently before parliament and if so the answer was 'yes'. And I added words to the effect that we are prepared to fight it in its present form in the House of Commons to the last ditch.

"Further that if the government persisted in hushing its dictatorial measures through parliament unchanged we would make a public issue of it from one side of this nation to the other."

DE GASPERI AND SOVIET GENERAL

DO HAVE MORE CALCIUM AND VITAMIN D

One thing we have learned since Hector was a pup is that the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element (Sherman's Chemistry of Food and Nutrition.)

This recognized authority states further that calcium (lime) constitutes a larger proportion of the body weight than does any other of the mineral elements—approximately 2 1-4 pounds of calcium and 1 1-2 pounds of phosphorus in the body of an adult weighing 150 pounds—and that over 99 per cent of the total amount of calcium in the body is in the bones and teeth. A food supply, says Sherman, may appear liberal and varied, and yet unless milk and green leaf vegetables are well represented it may be calcium-poor.

Just how much milk one should consume daily and how much fodder, ensilage, spinach, lettuce, greens, cole slaw, celery, carrot, turnip, broccoli, kale, dried beans, nuts, peanuts, plain wheat, dates and oranges, to insure adequate daily intake of calcium and maintain vite, functional efficiency, no nutrition authority specifies. But most authorities urge not less than 1 1-2 pints (three large glasses or cups) of fresh milk a day for the growing or development child or youth, and not less than a pint a day for mature or elderly persons.

The basic of model health diet (on which you pattern your own) given in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite includes four glasses of milk—a quart a day—yielding 640 calories. This is an optimal ration, designed to give better-than-average nutritional condition. For copy of the booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Not merely for the calcium content but for vitamin C, vitamin B complex, iron, phosphorus, vitamin A and other essential nutrition factors, everyone should eat a real salad with lunch, dinner or supper every day. A real salad is a dish of herbs, raw leaves, stems, roots. The salad should be served and eaten before the main course of the meal, not with or after it.

I talked myself into an argument recently by characterizing as half-baked a theory conceived by a research investigator, and given wide publicity, that retention of too much calcium in cells and tissues of the body might be a cause of either premature old age or cancer or both. I still say the theory is half-baked and that it should have been kept out of the public prints until at least some evidence is available that it applies to human subjects.

To readers who have inquired anxiously about it I say this: I regularly supplement my own diet by eating daily about as much calcium as one should get from a quart of raw fresh milk together with enough vitamin D to insure utilization and rentention of the calcium in the body.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Harelip

I am 24, married, have harelip, have put off having children for fear of heredity. An uncle on my father's side and an older sister afflicted with harelip. (D. F. J.)

Answer—Harelip is congenital, that is, present at berth, but not hereditary. It may occur in any family, regardless of whether there is any instance of it in earlier generations. It should always be operated on as soon as the child is thriving—at the age of two or three years preferably. The earlier the corrective plastic operation is done the better the ultimate cosmetic result will be.

Quinine

Drugstore clerk told me the bitter taste in grapefruit, especially in the rind, is due to quinine and that grapefruit, rind and all, boiled or steeped, makes a good substitute for quinine as a remedy for "Cri" etc. (W. C. G.)

Answer—No quinine in grapefruit or the rind.

Know Your Food

I have such a burning around my neck and it develops brown lumps or humps under the skin. Could it be acid? What foods should I eliminate? (Mrs. L. L.)

Answer—No. Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address for booklet "What to Eat and Why," which will teach you what you should know about your food, foods that leave acid ash, foods that leave alkaline ash, etc.

Minus Appendix and Gall-Bladder

Your booklet "So You Have Indigestion?" proved a Godsend to me. My physician never could find my trouble, so I went to a hospital for overhaul. Came back minus my appendix and gall-bladder, and have enjoyed fine health ever since. (W. D.)

Answer—For booklet "So You Have Indigestion?" send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

BOYS CHARGED WITH THEFT OF MONEY AND WATCH DOG

Ynkers, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP) — Two 16-year-old boys were charged with burglary yesterday in the recent theft of $2.50 in cash and a hound dog from Salvatore Cannova's meat market.

It wasn't so much the money, Cannova sighed, but the dog — he had bought it to guard the shop.

Four Men Rob Windsor Home

Windsor, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Four men, two of them armed with revolvers, robbed Earl Cousins' home in suburban Sandwich West last night of $5,000 in money, jewelry and other valuables.

Cousins is a former secretary to Joe Louis, world's heavyweight boxing champion, and now is a well-known Detroit sportsman and night club operator.

Cousins was not home at the time of the robbery and the caretaker, Chester Mitchell was alone when the holdup men knocked on the door and one of them asked if he could use the telephone.

Once inside, the bandit pulled a gun on Mitchell and called the other three inside. They tied and blindfolded the caretaker, and placed him on a bed.

Mitchell refused to tell them where Cousins kept his money, so one guarded him while the three others went into the kitchen where they had a few drinks from Cousins' liquor, while waiting for him to arrive home.

Cousins arrived about two hours later and was greeted by one of the robbers with a gun.

They forced Cousins to open the safe and they took about $350 in bills and then tied Cousins up with a shirt and left. He managed work himself loose about half an hour later.

Aussies Prepare to Celebrate A "Prosperity" Christmas

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 19 — (Reuters) — Australians are preparing to celebrate a "prosperity" Christmas despite the severe dollar problem which has resulted in some "austerity" regulations.

Bumper returns and prospects in the primary industries, resurgence of secondary industries on a peacetime basis and full employment are the main factors.

High wages are matched by soaring prices, but shops and stores have no difficulty in unloading stocks of goods imported from Britain and locally made.

The food situation is good with the only real shortages in imported delicacies affected by the exchange problem.

The only complaints heard here concern beer and cigarets. The shortage of beer is the more annoying because breweries claim to be producing more while sellers complain that they are getting less.

There is plenty of pipe tobacco, but cigaret smokers complain that the supply of Australian brands is insufficient for day-to-day needs, and there is a complete absence of those boxes of 50s and 100s which normally prove the solution of so many last minute gift problems. The market is flooded with English brands but Australian palates do not take kindly to them and they are absurdly expensive.

Holiday resorts throughout Australia are fully booked until mid-January. They are unable to take their full quota of guests because of staff shortages.

West Huntingdon

Mission Band Meeting

West Huntingdon (Special) — The Mission Band meeting was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of the leader, Mrs. Clifford Green with a fair attendance of members. The president, Gerald Cooke, was chairman for the Christmas program, which consisted of the call to worship and the singing of a number of Christmas carols. Jimmy Green read the Christmas story. The Misses Doris Donnan and Lois Cooke contributed a duet and all the members repeated the Mission Band Purpose. A number of choruses were also enjoyed. Mr. Arthur Wilson was present and gave the address. Miss Eleanor Wright contributed a piano solo and at the close Mrs. Green served delicious refreshments.

Those from here who attended the funeral on Tuesday of the late Samuel Rollins, of Tweed, were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke Mr. Garfield Runnals, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy, Mr. and Mrs. Barton Haggerty and Mr. Sam Fargey.

Mr. Clayton Burr, of Belleville, president of the Lay Association of the United Church of the Belleville Presbytery, had charge of the services on the West Huntingdon circuit on Sunday ,and was entertained at the home of Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and family for tea.

Friends here were sorry to hear of the sudden passing of Mrs. Ben Brough. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of a host of friends here.

Y.P.U. Meeting

The Young People's Union of the United Church held their December meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond on Friday evening. The president, Alex McCurdy, presided. Following the Worship period Mr. Geo. Post told the story of a Christmas carol "Away in a Manger". Helpful Christmas readings were given by Joyce Wallace, Joan McCurdy, and Don McCurdy. Miss Jean Haggerty read the Scripture lesson.

Mr. Arthur Wilson spoke briefly and conducted the election of officers for 1948, as follows: — Past president, Alex McCurdy; president, Miss Marjorie Wright; vice president, Mr. Lindsay Sills; secretary - treasurer, Mr. Melbourne Moorcroft; Pianist, Miss Jean Haggerty.

A preview of the past year's work showed finances in a good condition. It was voted to use some of the surplus money to help a young man studying for the ministry.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holden, of Minto, have invited the group to their home for a meeting and the invitation was accepted.

The program committee have already several interesting items planned for the next meeting. At the close Mrs. Hammond and Phyllis served delectable refreshments.

The Hastings County Road Committee are being congratulated upon the excellent way in which the corner of Station and Front St. has been improved. If any one gets caught on this corner, it will be his own fault.

Mrs. Howard Cooke spent a few days recently with Mrs. Raymond Baker, of Kingston.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of Lakefield, assisted with the funeral services of the late Mrs. Ben Brough and made a few calls in this community.

Friends are pleased that Mrs. John Hannah is somewhat improved in health.

Information On Power Conservation

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

620 UNIVERSITY AVENUE, TORONTO 2

December 15 1947

TO ALL MUNICIPALITIES IN SOUTHERN ONTARIO

Re: POWER CONSERVATION

Although there has been a substantial reduction in the demand for power, arising out of voluntary conservation and the application of restrictions, heavy cuts are still being made in the delivery of power to industry. Moreover, system power resources have recently been reduced owing to lack of rainfall causing poor water conditions.

Winter has now set in and little improvement can be expected in the replenishment of water storages, with the result that system power resources may be expected to progressively deteriorate throughout the remainder of the winter. In these circumstances, it is evident that unless additional voluntary savings can be obtained the Commission will be obliged to order Municipalities to reduce their load from time to time by as much as 15 percent or possibly more. The Commission's engineers are now drawing up such reduction schedules in order that any necessary reductions may be equitably distributed amongst the municipalities.

An active campaign should be undertaken immediately in your Municipality to acquaint all industrial. commercial and domestic consumers with the situation, pointing out to them that unless they are prepared to increase their savings of electricity on a voluntary basis their power may be cut off entirely at intervals throughout the day.

Your Commission should also draw up load reduction schedules for your consumers so that you will be in a position to put into effect, on short notice, any reductions to your total load which may be ordered by the Commission.

Yours truly,

Osborne Mitchell

Secretary.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Ontario Intelligencer will be pleased to receive news items regarding Belleville citizens who have guests or are visiting friends elsewhere. Kindly phone 99 or mail information to this office.

Friends of Mrs. R. Keenan, 272 John Street, are pleased to see her around again after a recent operation in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Neil McKinnon arrived in Belleville on Wednesday, after crossing on the "Norwegian" from Glasgow, Scotland. He is the son of Mr. Dan McKinnon, Station Street, father and son meeting for the first time in 35 years. Mr. Dan McKinnon Jr., met his brother at St. John's, N.B. Mr. Neil McKinnon expects to reside in Belleville.

Pt. Anne School Scene of Interesting Christmas Concert

Point Anne — The auditorium of Pt. Anne Public School was the setting for an interesting Christmas concert, recently, when the large and appreciative audience testified to the interest aroused in this annual event by the young players presenting the different numbers.

"The Fantasy of the Tree" was a playlet telling the story of a gaily decorated Christmas tree, occupying the centre of the stage with the following characters in costume:—Margaret Walkom as "Mother Nature;" Margaret MacLaurin as "Mother Earth;" Betty Pringle as "Moonbeam;" Norma Sedore as "Sunshine;" Keith Cummings as "Man-in-the-moon" Jacqueline Hull as "Night;" Winnie MacDonald as "Christmas Spirit;" Jimmie Horwood as "Spirit of the Tree;" and Phil Bennett as "Santa Claus." These children were supported by groups representing "Moon Pixies;" "Cloudlets," "Raindrops," "Squirrels," "Stars," "Bunnies" "Birds" "Snowflakes" and Christmas children.

Mr. H. E. Payne led in community singing of familiar carols, with Mr. "Bud" Doxtator at the piano.

Following a brief intermission a genuine Christmas message was presented in a dialogue, "Street of Hearts," with the following roles:—

Donna Loft, "The Little Rich Girl;" Donalda Walkom, "The Little Girl who is too proud;" Jacqueline Bennett, "The Very Clean Little Girl;" Beverly Jones "The Too Busy Lady;" Laurie Ablarde: "The Little Chinese Boy;" Roy Bennett "The Very Deaf Man;" Shirley DeRushe, "The Old Lady who is Afraid;" Karl Patrick, "The Little Boy who has Nothing but a Heart;" Carmen Lloyd and Maureen Bowler, "Joseph" and "Mary;" Harris Hull Robert Horwood, Donald Bennett "Three Wise Men."

"The Little Boy who had Nothing but his Heart" accepted "Joseph" and "Mary," and in return received gifts from Three Wise Men. First, a strong body and brain; second, a beautiful voice; third, an understanding heart.

With the dimming of the lights a Nativity Tableau was accompanied by a chorus, "What Can a Child Give to Jesus?"

Mr. H. Walkom, principal, who acted as chairman, thanked all who had assisted in making the entertainment a success. He also congratulated the School Board on the recent improvements made in the auditorium of the school, and expressed the appreciation of the teachers and students for the support of the parents and friends by their presence.

The National Anthem concluded a very enjoyable evening.

W.A. of Tweed Elects Officers

St. John's United Church W.A., of Tweed, held their Christmas meeting in the church parlors with a good attendance, with the President, Mrs. P. C. Barnett presiding.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Frank Bowers gave a financial report which was very satisfactory following the acceptance of secretarial reports.

A short, inspiring program was conducted by the members of the country group with Mrs. W. Woods reading the Scripture Lesson and offering prayer. The reading was interspersed with several carols, and Mrs. W. A. Beatty, leader of the group favored with a pleasing solo, with Mrs. J. O. Sager as accompanist.

Rev. A. L. Sisco installed the following officers for the year, 1948—

Hon. President Mrs. A. L. Sisco; President, Mrs. P. C. Barnett; 1st Vice President, Mrs. W. A. Beatty; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. W. Johnston; Treasurer, Mrs. Frank Bowers: Recording Secretary, Mrs. S. McCullough; Press Secretary, Mrs. J. D. Reeves; Pianist, Mrs. J. O. Sager; Assistant Pianist, Mrs. S. H. Connor.

Group Leaders—Group No. 1, Mrs. H. B. Austin; Group No. 2, Mrs. C. Ketcheson; Group No 3, Mrs. E. Jordon: Group No. 4, Miss Edith Graham.

Several other offices will be filled at a later date.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon. (Special) — Mrs. Frank Smith opened her home for the Christmas meeting of Mount Pleasant (Rawdon) Woman's Missionary Society on Wednesday, Dec. 10th, when eleven members and four visitors were present. The home was gayly decorated with Christmas colors and the worship centre consisted of an open Bible flanked by tall tapers.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs presided and Mrs. John Holmes was in charge of the Christmas music.

The worship period was based on "A Canadian Friendship Carol Service" with a candlelighting ceremony The candles were lighted by Mrs Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Edgar McKeown, Mrs. Blake Sharp, Mrs. Lindsay McKeown, Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Mrs. Ross Jeffs, and Mrs. Frank Smith. A vocal solo by Mrs. B. Sharp closed the devotional period.

During the business period mite-boxes were handed in and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, the secretary, reported $19.60 with some boxes not yet returned and Mrs Ross Jeffs accepted the offering. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Will Potts.

The president reported that she had received an official receipt from Coe Hill for two quilts sent for the tornado victims.

Rev. N. Cole conducted the election of the officers for 1948— as follows —President, Mrs. John Holmes; Honorary President, Mrs. Allan Bailey; Past President, Mrs. Bert Jeffs; Vice President, Mrs. Herb. Smith; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Frank Smith; Treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Will Potts; Secretary Mission Band, Mrs. Burton Sharp; Assistant, Mrs. Ross Jeffs; Secretary Baby Band, Mrs. Herb. Mrs. Arthur Phillips; Temperance and Christian Citizenship, Mrs. Bert Jeffs; Press, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; Auditor, Mrs. Ross Hoard; Mite-Box Secretary, Mrs. Arthur Phillips; Pianist, Mrs Ross Hoard; Assistant, Mrs. Burton Sharp.

The hostess served delectable refreshments and was thanked for her hospitality.

Holloway St. Clubs Join in Christmas Candlelight Service

The December meeting of the T. O. G. and Fellowship Clubs of Holloway St. United Church was held jointly in the church parlors. Each group conducted its business period, separately, after which a joint Christmas Candlelighting ceremony was conducted.

Quiet music opened the worship period with Mary White at the piano, and Lois Chapman gave the call to worship. The Christmas story as told in the 2nd chapter of St. Luke's Gospel was read in unison, followed by prayer. A Bethlehem scene, with an open Bible and colored candles, formed the worship centre.

Members of the T. O. G. Club participating in the service were Lois Chapman, Leona Morton, Dorothy Craighead, Noreen Frederick, Olive Hall and Mrs. C. Perkins, while the Fellowship Club was represented by Miss Moorcroft, Mrs. Fitzgibbon and Mrs. McFarland.

Carols were sung during the ceremony, and two appropriate solos were contributed by Marion Allen, and by Marjorie Dilts.

Miss Noreen Frederick closed this period with prayer.

Refreshments were served by the Fellowship group.

Women's Activities

Trinity Women's Club

Madoc— Trinity Women's Club held their December meeting in the schoolroom of the church on Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Hulin, in charge.

Following the opening hymn and prayer in unison, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Beatty. A most successful year's work was reported and a good balance left in the treasury. Mrs. Duffin reported for the visiting committee and the president reviewed the club's activities for the year. The nomination committee presented a report and the Rev. A. Poulter conducted the election of officers. Mrs. White and Mrs. Hubert Nickle who were in charge of the program presented a very interesting one on Christmas. A story "The First Christmas Roses" was given by Mrs. Nickle. "When the Wise Men Appeared" was read by Mrs. White. A poem "Inasmuch" was read by Miss Anna Smith. "Who are the Wise Men Now?" was given by Mrs. Hulin and Stories of how present day Christmas decorations came into use were given by Mrs. E. Moore and Mrs. G. Duffin. Miss Anne Nickle contributed two vocal solos and Christmas carols were used throughout the service. At the conclusion a social hour including a contest and refreshments was enjoyed by the members and visitors.

QUINTE W. I.

A Christmas spirit pervaded the December meeting of the Quinte W.I. at the home of Mrs. F. Parrott, Bridge Street, Belleville.

There was an exchange of Christmas gifts and Mrs. J. Parrott led in the singing of carols, with Mrs. C. Reid playing a guitar accompaniment.

The guest speaker, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, gave a splendid address dealing with the story of the Nativity.

Mrs. Sandercock held the meeting spellbound with a reading "How the LaRue Stakes Were Lost".

Mrs. M. Weese, program convener, gave an interesting talk on the origin and significance of Christmas cards.

A discussion of the motto "Tis the Spirit in which the gift is rich, as the gifts of the wise men were", brought out many interesting points about Christmas presents from both the giving and receiving viewpoint.

Members observed a two-minute silence in memory of the late Garnet Mitchell after the reading of prayers for those who mourn.

It was decided to have a sewing demonstration at a meeting held at the home of Mrs S. Geddes on the evening of January 13th. Refreshments were served by Mesdames F. Parrott, D. Atkins, E. Sandercock and C. Grass.

Get Rid of Forehead Lines

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN creaming your sacred complexion every night, don't give your forehead just a lick and a promise. You may not see a sign of a crease there, but that doesn't matter. You are being forehanded. Things can happen. Little lines, extending from temple to temple, can appear almost overnight. No woman can start too early to exercise preventive measures that will keep Time's meddlesome fingers away.

Though many women wear bangs, the majority of them are "high brows". The off-the-face hairdo continues in favor and, if the arrangement is without an undulation, forehead defects show up all too plainly. Watch out you don't get any.

A Heavy Cream

Apply a heavy cream to a clean skin surface, starting at the collar bones, working upward along the jaw line, up over the cheeks. After spreading the emollient over your noble brow, start doing rotary movements. Use the first and second fingers, do circles from temple to temple. Then, place the fingertips of both hands, each group facing the other, in the middle of the forehead. When one group slides upward, the other group goes down and, all the time, both groups are moving to the left or the right. This is one of the favorite movements of experienced facial operators.

Frown Lines

If you have reason to suspect that frown lines are forming place the thumb at the lower end, first finger above it. Keep the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb, forming a little fold in the flesh. This motion is like ironing a crease out of a fabric.

Of course, no woman should have frowns. They are of our own making, like many other beauty sorrows. They are caused by giving way to a state of irritation or by impaired eyesight, and both afflictions can be corrected.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Do not indulge in color fear

Every woman, no matter what her age may be, should have a few gay frocks to be put on when the day is grey and spirits are dull. Clothes have a psychological effect upon all of us, though some of us may not realize it. A red hat can chase away the blue devils. It puts ginger in lagging steps. It makes a woman of fifty believe that there is life in the old gal yet.

There are women who cannot wear black. They feel that they look old and faded, and they do. No make-up removes the curse of these funereal draperies. Other women put on a smart black frock, lay on the lip veneer, touch the cheeks with wild rose tints and look smart and youthful. Everything depends upon type, figure and complexion. One must get wise to these matters. They are important.

The selection of colors is an individual problem. One way to find out what color is favorable is to note how you feel when you wear it.

When out selecting a dress, notice the effect it has upon the hair, the eyes, the complexion and the figure. It is surprising what colors will do to the skin. One shade may extoll its texture and charm, while another may drain it of every bit of coloring; this latter effect is especially true of cold greys and some tones of green and brown.

From an aesthetic point of view, most men—and many women—are amazingly lacking in the art of color blending or in the choice of colors in relation to their fitness or becomingness. Some blondes seem to have a special yen for tan, cream and drab tones that resemble the hues and tints of their own persons. These same individuals often clothe themselves in garments that are pale and uninspiring in tone, instead of those that form a contrast.

True blondes wear black with flair; it brings out the gold of their hair, the delicacy of their complexions. Redheads, many of them seem to believe brown is their best bet. It isn't. They look best in black, white, navy or jade green.

Brunettes are inclined to overlook French blue, which is becoming to all of them. Gayly printed fabrics are enhancing to the dark-eyed lovelies. Cream tones are good, so is white, if the complexion carries a little natural coloring.

The cultivation of the color sense should begin early in life. Supplying the young and plastic mind with an appreciation of beautiful colors should form an important part of early education; it is as beneficial as the enjoyment of good books, fine pictures, appealing music. This training will help a young girl to develop an aptitude for self-expression in dress. We don't like the idea of every girl looking like the next one; it is fatal to individuality of appearance.

COMET'S TAIL 20,000,000 MILES LONG

Capetown, Dec. 19 (Reuters)—The bright comet first seen in South Africa Dec. 10 was at least 20,000,000 miles long, Dr. H. J. Jackson, Royal Astronomer, said last night. He said the comet might return to the solar system and might be seen from the earth again, but not in any predictable time.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Son's Opportunity

A rather unusual situation, described in a letter from an unhappy wife and mother, appears to put this woman in the position of having to choose between the peace and quiet of life without a disagreeable husband, and her son's love. In other words, if she leaves her husband, she thinks she would forfeit the affection of her son, who is against her taking such a step.

The marriage, which was never a happy one, has lasted for 21 years, and the son is 20 years old. Apparently, the chief cause of conflict has been financial. The husband was niggardly about giving his wife money for any purpose at all, even to buy the clothes she needed or to pay a doctor when she was sick. In fact, he didn't like her to be sick at all, and when she became so, it irked him to such an extent that he went away and let her get along as best she could. On the other hand, if it was his turn to be ill, he not only forgot that it cost money to have a doctor, and had one come in a hurry, but he insisted on nursing care from his wife.

In order to have a little something of her own with which to make occasional personal purchases, this wife at one time went to work. This didn't please the husband either. He didn't want his wife to work, but, if she insisted on doing so, he, in his turn, demanded that the money she earned be turned over to him.

Tired, tense, and nervous from the strain of living with such a man, she wants to leave him and make a better life for herself. But because the son doesn't want the home broken up, she is afraid he will turn against her if she makes a move of this kind.

Now it seems to me that any boy who has lived for 20 years in the sort of home this must be, would be on his mother's side. I should think, moreover, he were just about old enough to do something positive about making his mother's life a happier one. It would probably be impractical for him to speak to his father about the situation, but if he made a special point of always being loving and considerate and thoughtful toward his mother, it might well go a long way toward making his father conscious of the difference in their attitudes and shaming him into different behavior. He might even carry this to the point of handing over a little money to his mother himself. He could also make a special point of giving her loving attention when she was ill. Unless the father is so completely wrapped up in his selfishness and mean-spiritedness that he sees nothing outside his own restricted range, it should certainly jolt him to be shown up so unfavorably by his own son.

"I love my son dearly and want his love and respect," this woman says. "But it seems to me that if this 20-year-old is a young man of any insight and intelligence, he would respect his mother more if she stood on her own feet and refused to be victimized by her husband, than if she drifted along from year to year meekly accepting whatever sort of treatment the man felt like handing out to her.

Whether she leaves him or not, I hope this woman will make a stand in the matter of getting her hands on some money for her own needs and desires. If she cannot get it from her husband, and can go out and earn it for herself, as she has done in the past, she should do that. And if her son goes back on her because she has the gumption to stand up for herself, he will only prove himself to be as little of a man as his father.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Even Very Young Boys Prefer "Mr." to "Master" on Their Envelopes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
How should I address the Christmas cards that I am sending to some very young boys, several of them nephews of mine. . . with "Master" or "Mr." before their names, or with just the name without a title?

A. P.

All boys, no matter how young, like to have their letters and cards addressed to "Mr." Although "Master" is correct for very young boys, "Mr." is just as correct. Always write a title before a name on an envelope . . . .it is rude not to use a title before the name, even on an envelope to a very young girl or boy.

Table Manners . . . Questions About the Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to cut any kind of meat with your fork if the meat is tender enough?
2. When it takes both a spoon and a fork to serve a dish, in which hand do you hold the spoon?

J. P.

1. Yes.
2. You will always be correct if you hold the serving spoon in the right hand, and the serving fork, as an accessory utensil, in the left hand. You insert the spoon under the piece of meat or fish, or under the serving of vegetable, or under the something-on-toast, or whatever the food is, using the fork, held in the left hand (prongs down) as a balancing utensil.

A Gift to Her Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
My boy friend and I have been invited to Sunday midday dinner at the home of a very dear friend of his family. Of course he knows the hostess very well, while I have met her only on two occasions. What do you think about taking the hostess a gift, for example a box of candy? Do you think we should each pay half, and put both our names on the enclosed card? Or do you think I should buy it and present it to her? I'm afraid that if I suggest we give it together he will buy and pay for it, and give it as from both of us.

Daily Reader

Do take your hostess a gift, to show your gracious thoughtfulness. . .a box of candy, if you like, or a box of varied "sweets", perhaps a combination of after-dinner mints, other mints not chocolate-coated, salted nuts. Make this a gift from you only . . . . .don't suggest to your boy friend that it be a combination gift, for, as you say, undoubtedly he will then buy it, pay for it, and it really will be his gift, not yours or part yours. But if you wish to, tell him beforehand that you are going to take the gift.

Bride's Family Pay for the Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Will you please answer two questions concerning my plans for my wedding which is to take place in about three months? (1) Is there any definite rule as to who pays for the wedding reception? (2) Is it proper to have no bridesmaids when there are to be two ushers?

G. S.

(1) Yes, there is a most definite rule as to who pays for the wedding reception. . .it is paid for by the bride's family, the hosts of the occasion. (2) Yes, it is not necessary to have any bridesmaids, no matter how many ushers you may decide to have. Correctly, the ushers walk together, two by two; they walk first in the processional, and last in the recessional.

Request Fuel Oil Consumption Cut By 15 Per Cent

Washington, Dec. 19 — (AP)— The public, the government and the petroleum industry today were asked to join forces in a voluntary program to "stretch out" the critically short supplies of fuel oil in many parts of the United States.

A Senate sub-committee yesterday received a report from a special industry committee recommending that householders cut their fuel consumption by 15 per cent.

A separate report released by a Senate small business subcommittee also called for public conservation measures, but it sounded a different note in saying that:

"The continued concentration of control of the oil industry from reserves in the ground down through to the tank wagon or filling station sale to the consumer, in the hands of a few integrated companies present a real challenge to American ideas of free enterprise and the prevention of small business."

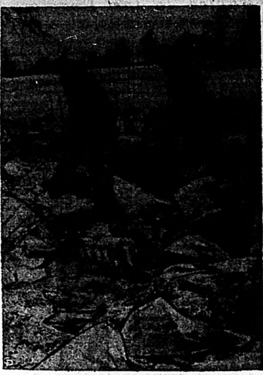
The small business group suggested avoidance of fuel waste and curtailment of "unnecessary driving" and recommended that: ...needed steel products be made available quantities to the domestic oil industry; all ocean-going tankers be placed in service "with the least possible delay"; tanker sales to foreign countries be held up until the needs of the domestic economy have been satisfied; better distribution and transportation methods."

The industry committee estimated there is a fuel oil deficit of 15 per cent in the New England and North Atlantic seaboard states and a 10-per-cent deficit in the midwest, southwest, gulf and southeastern states.

GIVEN LASH ON CHARGE

Sarnia, Dec. 19 (CP)—Elroy Dennis of nearby Point Edward was found guilty of incest and sentenced here yesterday to five years in penitentiary and 14 strokes of the strap. Dennis denied the offences. In passing sentence Judge E. A. Shaunessy considered the accused's conviction in 1941 on five offences.

WHERE FOUR PERISH IN BLAZE



Four persons died in the blazing farm home of Mrs. Steven Card, Hartington, Ont., this week. The dead are Mrs. Steven Card, 69; her son, Henry, 35; her daughter, Mrs. James Boomhour, 42, and grandson, Harry Boomhour, six months. Six other children of Mrs. Boomhour are in foster homes throughout the country. Looking for remains of the victims are H. J. Knight and Harvey Milligan.

WILL USE MONEY

Europe, he said, is an essential part of a world trading network in which the United States has a vital interest.

"Our deepest concern with European recovery, however," he declared, "is that it is essential to the maintenance of the civilization in which the American way of life is rooted.

"The economic plight in which Europe now finds itself has intensified a political struggle between those who wish to remain free men living under the rule of law and those who would use economic distress as a pretext of establishment of a totalitarian state."

iWthout mentioning Russia by name, Truman declared that "the next few years can determine whether the free countries of Europe will be able to preserve their heritage of freedom."

Bluntly, the president declared: "We must not be blind to the fact that the communists have announced determined opposition to any effort to help Europe get back on its feet,

May Try to Bring Chaos

"There will unquestionably be further incitements to strike, not for the purpose of redressing the legitimate grievances of particular groups but for the purpose of bringing chaos in the hope it will pave the way for totalitarian control."

Truman disclosed that he will make recommendations to Congress at its next session "for special needs and rehabilitation in China" and he said that concentrating on Western Europe would not lessen United States economic co-operation with neighbors of the Western Hemisphere who, he said, are further advanced along the road to economic stability.

He pointed out that the European recovery program will require supplies from many countries and said it would stimulate their production and business activity, thus spurring the world trade "upon which the prosperity of all of us depends."

The 16 European countries participating are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

Endorses Program

These countries, Truman said, endorsed a program designed to enable them, and Western Germany, to participate by pledging:

1. Strong production efforts.
2. Stabilizing their finances.
3. Maximum and continued cooperation among themselves.
4. Increasing foreign exports to balance their trade deficit with the American continents.

The president said it was basic to make genuine recovery possible "within a definite period of time and not merely to continue relief indefinitely.

"The United States will, of course," Truman assured Congress, "retain the right to determine whether aid to any country is to be continued if our previous assistance has not been used effectively."

The president said he thought aid should be extended partly in the form of grants and partly in the form of loans with no grants being made to countries able to pay cash for all imports or to repay loans.

Three of Five Ships Reported In Distress, Safe

Honolulu, Dec. 19 —(AP)— At least three of five ships reported in distress yesterday were safe or headed for a haven today as fresh storms brewed in the Pacific.

Uncertainty centred about the United States Army tanker El Caney and the steamship Middlesex Victory, the latter the latest to report trouble.

The 10,172 ton El Caney, with 42 aboard, reported from south of the Aleutians, where it lost a rudder in high seas earlier this week, that it was encountering winds of hurricane force, 70 to 75 miles an hour.

A message to the port of embarkation at Seattle said seas were running high but the United States Navy salvage ship Bolster and a standby vessel were "somewhere in the vicinity."

Westward, 300 miles off the Kuriles, the 7,606-ton Middlesex Victory reported it had 16 cracks in its deck plates from the week of storms and its forepeak was flooded. The number aboard was not reported.

Some 500 miles east of the wallowing El Caney, the 7,176-ton freighter Simon Benson was proceeding toward Honolulu with her captain reporting everything "under control."

Her plates split in a storm and water poured into her cargo of rice. There were 37 men aboard.

The 540-ton army cargo ship FX-245 reached Adak in the Aleutians after striking a rock which staved in her chain locker. An army tug took the ship, which had 20 men aboard, safely into the port.

The 425-ton Philippines ship Luzon was heading to port under tow after extinguishing a fire which broke out en route from Cebu to Manila.

WORK ON PIPE LINE

Cairo, Dec. 19 (AP) —Work on the western end of the proposed pipe line from American oil concessions in Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean has been suspended as the result of anti-American feeling and unrest over the projected partitioning of Palestine, a representative of companies interested in the line said today.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Toronto taxi driver Roy Stonley was robbed of $12 last night by two men in the same area that car driver Ralph Margeson was slain several weeks ago. They ordered Stonley out of his vehicle on a lonely West Toronto side-road, struck him in the mouth and eye, and then released him.

THIS asset is the Bank of Montreal family . . . 8,970 men and women who are working with the million and a half Canadians who bank at the B of M.

No amount in dollars can ever express the value of this asset. Yet, of its nearly two billion in resources, no asset of the Bank of Montreal is so productive as these people who daily serve their customers — just as B of M people before them have served on every business day since November 3rd, 1817.

Behind this asset is the accumulated experience of 130 years. Through five generations, the experience of the original staff of seven has multiplied as the B of M family has grown in strength and numbers.

Each member of this family is a distinct personality . . . together, nearly nine thousand of them make the B of M.

Tribute

"To the outstanding services of the men and women of our Staff, I would like once again to pay tribute," said B. C. Gardner in his general manager's report to B of M shareholders.

Pointing out that the volume of counter transactions handled by the Staff during the past year had surpassed all previous records and that the Bank's deposit accounts now exceeded more than 1,600,000, Mr. Gardner described the measures being taken to speed services to customers and to lighten the heavy burden on the Staff.

"We are," he said, "continuing to carry out further mechanization in connection with routine transactions and are adopting new and revised working methods to expedite business.

"We have a group of routine organization officers who visit branches periodically and assist Managers and Staff in improving routine methods.

"As an additional aid to staff training, we have recently established a school at Head Office and we hope to extend this form of instruction . . .

"The organization and arrangements relating to the development, the progress and the welfare of our Staff are under continuous and careful study, and I know of no feature of our business that has been given more care and consideration over the past year.

"...to my immediate associates...and to the entire Staff I wish to express my sincere thanks for their loyalty and devotion and for their efforts in maintaining and improving the services which we render to our customers and to the community at large."

C.W.L. MEETING

Marmora — The December meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. It took the form of a "Grandmothers' Night" and ten grandmothers were present. The meeting opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. J. Black in the chair. The president welcomed the grandmothers present and read a poem entitled "A Tribute to Grandmothers". Mrs. Black advised the members of the result of the bake sale held on Saturday. Several thank-you notes were read and also several letters from the Diocesan conveners. The treasurer's report was then given by Mrs. Charles Crawford. Mrs. E. D. O'Connor and Mrs. George Forestell reported twelve visits made in the past month to the sick and shutins. This duty for next month will be taken by Mrs. L. P. Hughes and Mrs. R. E. Maloney.

The president reported that a pound of used stamps had been forwarded to the Redemptorist Fathers, who had gratefully acknowledged receipt of same. Mrs. Hugh Brady read an interesting article from the League Magazine on "Used Stamps as an Aid to the Missions." Mrs. T. J. Reid suggested the purchasing by the League of a number of good books for reading by the members and it was decided to follow the suggestion. The president and members then discussed the Christmas Cheer baskets, which will be sent again this year. It was decided to give a donation to the Santa Claus parade.

Rev. H. J. Farrell then addressed the meeting on the spirit of Christmas, and gave a very interesting reading entitled "The Miracle of the Doves," after which he spoke at some length on the story.

Miss Florence Auger, gave a reading entitled "The Canonizing of a Saint". Mrs. W. Shannon followed with a reading "Let us go to Bethlehem." Mrs. Charles Brady gave a reading entitled, "St. Joseph and his Ladder," and Mrs. Hugh Brady read a poem entitled "When I am a Grandmother too."

Gifts were then presented to the following grandmothers:— Oldest grandmother, Mrs. H. Auger; youngest grandmother, Mrs. Dermont Bedore (38 years old); newest grandmother, Mrs. A. Sheridan; one with most grandchildren, Mrs. W. Forestell. A medal of "Our Lady of Fatima" was presented to each grandmother present. During the meeting several of the members completed the work of tying two quilts which are to be presented to a needy family. A few games were played and delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of group 7.

SMITHFIELD W.M.S.

Brighton and Murray District— The December meeting of Smithfield W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. Hendricks, York Road. The officers for the coming year were elected. Miss Elva Locklin, B. A., will be the new president, Mrs. F. Morgan, secretary, Mrs. Ireland, treasurer, Mrs. J. Alyea, pianist, Community Friendship Conveners, Mesdames C. and E. Bedal.

MT. CARMEL W. A.

Brighton and Murray District— The Mt. Carmel W. A. was entertained by Mrs. A. Humphries on Tuesday of last week. The officers for the coming year are:— Mrs. Allen Alyea, president; Mrs. Gordon Chapman, vice president; secretary, Mrs. A. Humphries; treas., Mrs. H. Alexander with Mrs. Haggarty, convener of supply and Mrs. E. Bedal, convener of program committee.

Schoharie

Schoharie — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walters were Wednesday night dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davison.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leavitt, Wooler, and Mr. and Mrs. William McGee were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davison spent Saturday with friends in Smiths Falls. Mr. Davison called on a former business associate who had been quite ill but is recovering.

Mrs. Campbell and pupils put on a splendid Christmas concert Wednesday night. In spite of the weather the school house was packed to capacity and a pleasant evening enjoyed. Santa arrived and made the children happy. Mr. Baxter intended to show films but due to the fact the hydro power went off these had to be postponed.

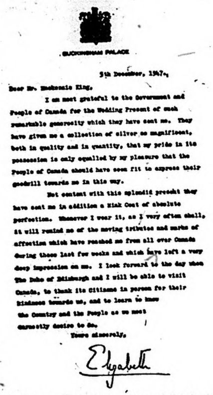
PRINCESS THANKS CANADIANS

Julie Anne Alloro, 4, holds wishbone of turkey she sent Princess Elizabeth as a wedding present and letter expressing the Princess' gratitude at her home in Brooklyn. Last month Julie, with $4.20 in her piggy bank, travelled to Manhattan alone to order a turkey for the Princess.



BUCKINGHAM PALACE

5th December, 1947.

Dear Mr. Mackenzie King,

I am most grateful to the Government and People of Canada for the Wedding Present of such remarkable generosity which they have sent me. They have given me a collection of silver so magnificent, both in quality and in quantity, that my pride in its possession is only equalled by my pleasure that the People of Canada should have seen fit to express their goodwill towards me in this way.

Not content with this splendid present they have sent me in addition a Mink Coat of absolute perfection. Whenever I wear it, as I very often shall, it will remind me of the moving tributes and marks of affection which have reached me from all over Canada during these last few weeks and which have left a very deep impression on me. I look forward to the day when The Duke of Edinburgh and I will be able to visit Canada, to thank its Citizens in person for their kindness towards us, and to learn to know the Country and the People as we most earnestly desire to do.

Yours sincerely,

Elizabeth

This is Princess Elizabeth's letter of thanks for her wedding present from the people of Canada. It was read to the House of Commons by Prime Minister King.

The Mixing Bowl

Hello homemakers! Enough time to prepare for the holiday table is the quandry of many homemakers today. Every year there seem to be more functions to attend, especially at this season, not only the women's organizations, but the children's concerts, father's office parties and the numerous Christmas endeavors.

It therefore behooves us to prepare something simple yet festive for our home gatherings. We believe that our basic recipes with variations may be the answer to your number one problem this week.

BUTTERMILK COOKIES

1 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 egg, well beaten, 1-2 cup buttermilk or sour milk, 2 1-2 cups sifted cake flour, 1-4 tsp. salt, 1-4 tsp. soda, 1-2 tsp. cinnamon.

Cream brown sugar and shortening, add beaten egg. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with buttermilk to creamed mixture. Drop from teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake in electric oven of 375 degrees about 12 mins.

Cocoanut Cookies: Add 3-4 cup shredded cocoanut and 1 tsp. grated orange rind and 1 tsp. lemon rind.

Decorated Cookies: Use basic recipe and after cookies are in pan, decorate in one of the following ways: Flatten with spatula and place on centre of each, blanched almond, raisin, piece of peel or sesame seeds.

BASIC BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups (all-purpose) flour, 1 tsp. salt, 7-8 cup milk, 4 tsps. baking powder, 2 tbsps. shortening.

Sift dry ingredinets twice. Cut in the shortening with pastry blender. Sprinkle in the milk and toss into a dough mixture with wooden spoon. (Use more milk if necessary.)

Place the dough on floured board, pat or roll lightly to about 1 inch thickness. Cut it with a biscut cutter, dipping the cutter into flour to keep it from sticking. Bake on a lightly floured pan in a hot electric oven at 450 degrees for 12 mins.

Cheese Biscuits: Cut 3-4 cup grated cheese into dough.

Cranberry Biscuits: Add 2 tbsps. sugar to dry ingredients. Cut 1-2 cup chopped raw cranberries into the dough.

Raisin Biscuits: Fold 1-2 cup raisins into mixture after shortening is cut in.

Nut Biscuits: Add 1-2 cup chopped nuts to mixture after shortening is cut in.

BASIC PASTRY RECIPE

1 -2 cups flour (pastry), 1-2 tsp. salt, 1-2 cup shortening, 4 tbsps. cold water.

Sift the flour with salt and work the shortening into it with pastry mixer. (When shortening is mixed evenly, the mix looks like coarse oatmeal.) Sprinkle in the cold water, tossing flour into dough. Pat lightly into a ball, wrap in wax paper and chill in refrigerator for 1-2 hour. Roll out lightly on a floured board to 1-3 inch thickness in a circular fashion. Fold in half and lift to pie plate. Press gently onto pie plate. Cut down around the edge. This makes one nine-inch double crust.

Nut Pastry: Add 1-4 cup finely chopped nuts to flour mixture.

Cheese Pastry: Add 1-3 cup finely grated cheese to flour mixture.

TAKE A TIP

1. If you use gumdrops for variation in cookies, cut and mix in the dough because these gelatin candies will harden in a moderate temperature oven.
2. If your cookie sheet has become black, place the pan of cookies on top of the jelly roll pan to deflect the heat and prevent the cookies burning on the bottom.
3. If you use pastry flour for baking powder biscuits, you may require 1 cup of milk to make a soft dough.
4. The basic pastry dough recipe may be used for making tart shells.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. T. Asks: Is it advisable to chill cookie dough in the refrigerator before rolling it out? How long will it keep in a cold place?

Answer: —The flavor and texture is much better if you chill cookie dough. You can store cookie dough in a covered container in the refrigerator for two or three weeks if necessary.

Mrs. S. W. asks: How to keep icebox cookies crisp and hermits soft.

Answer: Keep crisp cookies in a tin box or crock with a lid—do not store anything else in the container but the cookies after they have been allowed to cool. Hermits and other soft mixtures may be stored in a covered glass jar with a piece of apple. Replace the apple every few days.

Mrs. J. T. asks: Recipe for Short Bread.

Answer:

SHORT BREAD

1 cup butter, 1-3 cup fruit sugar, 2 cups flour (or more).

Cream butter well, add sugar gradually and cream well together. Add flour slowly. When dough is stiff, turn out on floured board, knead in flour until dough begins to crack. Roll out 1-4" thick, cut with cookie cutter. Place an baking sheet and bake until lightly browned at 300 degs.

LIVING COSTS ZOOM

Five Players Added to RCAF Olympic Squad

Ottawa, Dec. 19 — (CP)—Given a boost by the injection of a new, high-scoring forward line and one — perhaps two — new defencemen, R.C.A.F. Flyers went to Belleville today to take on Belleville Intermediates and again test their potency as Canada's 1948 Olympic hockey representative.

First shake-up of the club following two defeats which focussed attention on its weakness as Olympic material came last night. Air Force officials announced a defenceman and five forwards had been dropped and the first string line of Ottawa New Edinburgh's city league leaders had been added, along with another centreman and a defenceman.

The new line is composed of Reg. Schroeder, flanked by Ab Renaud at right wing and Ted Hibberd at left — a line that last week combined for 14 scoring points in one game. Also added is Pete Leichnitz, also of New Edinburghs, who will centre a second Flyer line. Flyers also took George Pumple, Ottawa St. Patrick's College defenceman, and probably will get another rearguard, Frank Dymster of New Edinburghs.

Officials said other additions would be made to the club shortly.

Dropped from the Flyers original lineup are defenceman Sgt. Stan Molinski of Winnipeg and forwards Lac. Len Beatch, Whitehorse, Y.T.; Lac. Tommy Moore, Montreal; Cpl. Louis Bergerson, Montreal; Sgt. Dick Thomas, Whitby, Ont., and AC1. George Wilson, Regina.

With the reorganization, plans to produce an all-R.C.A.F. club to represent Canada at St. Moritz, Switzerland, have been dropped. Of the new players from New Edinburghs, all but Renaud are members of the RCAF Reserve, but officials said Renaud was being retained to keep the high scoring line intact. It is expected other new replacements may come from other civilian or service teams.

Fort Worth Rangers Near Second Place

(By The Associated Press)

Fort Worth Rangers were left just a step out of second place in the southern division of the United States Hockey League last night after spilling St. Paul Saints 2-1 in a wild encounter on the Texas team's home ice.

The victory last night gave Fort Worth 26 points in the standings, one less than second-place Dallas.

Billy Warwick scored the first goal for Fort Worth in the last period and Len Mutcheson popped in the second, Lloyd Ailsby got St. Paul's goal.

Warwick figured in further action, however, tangling with Saint defenceman Bob Dill. The referees separated the pair and banished them to the penalty box, but the uproar started again when a fan punched Dill, rink policemen restored order.

No games are scheduled tonight. Houston is at Tulsa, Dallas at Minneapolis and St. Paul at Omaha Saturday night.

Ray Robinson To Meet Taylor

Detroit, Dec. 19 — (AP)—Vividly fresh memories of Joe Louis' recent near-upset has stirred Detroit's fight populace to high pitch for the Ray Robinson-Chuck Taylor welterweight title scrap here tonight.

Louis, Sugar Ray's hero, will be at ringside. He will be pulling for the 147-pound king to defend his crown with more aplomb than the heavyweight ruler had against Jersey Joe Walcott earlier this month.

The sole points of similarity in the two cases are that the champion is fighting a determined underdog and has had somewhat of a struggle keeping his weight down.

But there ends the parallel. Whereas Louis was rusty, Robinson has been active since he beat Tommy Bell for the title just a year ago.

In contrast, the challenger has fought only three times in more than a year, losing to Chuck Fusari and Tony Pellone and beating Frankie Abrams. He is considered in excellent condition, however.

Sugar Ray is 26 and his challenger 24.

Betting odds were reported variously up to 6 to 1 for Robinson.

No East-West Final for Junior Football Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Although there will be no East-West final for the Junior Dominion Football championship this year, Hamilton Wildcat Juniors, eliminated a week ago in the Ontario Rugby Union Junior playoffs, will travel to Vancouver for a two-game exhibition series against the western titleholders Jan. 1 and Jan. 3.

The idea of an official East-West final fizzled out after the mix-up in the Ontario official play-offs which resulted in the O.R.F.U. declining to name an official junior champion.

University of Michigan scored a 3-2 victory over University of Toronto Blues in an intercollegiate exhibition game at Chicago last night. The two teams meet again tomorrow night at Ann Arbor, Mich. Last night's game was the first intercollegiate hockey tussle in Chicago in six years and was witnessed by 4,000 fans.

Al Kemp scored three goals last night as McGill University Redmen got their intermediate intercollegiate Hockey League campaign off to a flying start, beating Carleton College 7-4 at Ottawa. In another league game, Ottawa St. Patrick's College defeated University of Ottawa, also by a 7-4 score.

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League have scheduled exhibition games with Ottawa Senators in Ottawa, Jan. 6 and with Toronto Marlboros in Kingston, Jan. 27. Proceeds of the Kingston game will be turned over to the International Hockey Hall of Fame's building fund.

Chairman Edward Eagan of the New York State Athletic Commission said yesterday no change is contemplated in the point system for scoring boxing bouts in the state. "We merely give the official the opportunity to mark down any decided superiority in a round by points," he said. "In New York State the number of rounds won usually decides the contest."

Johnny Ralph, South African heavyweight champion has accepted London Promoter Jack Solomons' offer to fight Bruce Woodcock in the spring for the British Empire heavyweight crown.

The 1948 Olympic games lost an entry yesterday but gained another, Paraguay, which had previously accepted, reported it would be unable to attend but Afghanistan accepted the invitation. Countries now entered total 52.

Philadelphia Phillies have announced the acquisition of two Class D Farm Clubs, bringing the club's total to 15 and placing it in third place behind St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers among the National League's leading landlords.

Billy Herman, well-known major league second baseman and manager last season of Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, yesterday announced his retirement from baseball. He said he had accepted an executive position with a paint company.

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Since dashing off the columnar drivel yesterday, it has been learned through the president of the CAHA that the RCAF hockeyists will carry the banner of the Dominion to the Olympic hockey wars next February.

The Flyers still the nucleus for a team which will represent Canada will be bolstered by forward stars from Ottawa New Edinburghs in the Bytown City League. Two defencemen as yet unchosen will also be with the Flyers team, as well as other players selected by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Appearing here in an "Olympic" uniform will be Ted Hibberd, Reg. Schroeder, and Ab. Renaud, first string line of the New Edinburgh team, which by the way is leading the Ottawa Senior City loop. Another centre player Pete Leachnitz from the same club will also be here.

It is understood that the Belleville Senior "B" management will also add star district players to the team's roster if they are available. The Reds will be without the service of their high scoring left-winger Walt Gerow, out with a shoulder injury, and his absence leaves a big hole in the scoring threat of the Veterans team.

Information from Ottawa yesterday afternoon revealed that no players have yet been dropped from the Flyers' roster. Practically all the puckists will be here for the Friday night tilt and the game with all its colorful atmosphere should attract the largest crowd of the season, if only through curiosity.

A couple of the boys were arguing the other evening anent the hockey record of the Philadelphia Rockets starry right winger Phil Hergesheimer. One was emphatic in his statement that the Philly Phantom who led the American League in scoring last year had no National Hockey League experience while t'other naturally averred that he had. To settle the question here is Hergy's record as compiled in the 1948 Hockey's Who's Who. He played for the Boston Cubs, from 1934-36 and with Minneapolis in 1937. He spent the next two years with Cleveland going thence to the Chicago Black Hawks with which team he played for two and one half seasons, finishing the third season with the Boston Bruins. In 1941-42 he played with the Hershey team and went back to the Black Hawks the next season. He rejoined the Cleveland team in 1943-44 and remained with that squad until 1946-47 when he joined the Rockets.

Max Kaminsky genial manager of the Philadelphia Rockets in the American Hockey League, and a former playing star in that circuit, might have had a brilliant baseball career as well. The well liked Kaminsky was offered a tryout with the Boston Red Sox as a catcher, by Umpire Bill Stewart, then connected with the Hub City team, but declined the opportunity for a rink career.

It has been brought to light

that the record for scoring the two fastest goals belongs to Ralph "Cooney" Weiland, former Boston Bruins star and not Jim McFadden of Detroit, who recently scored two goals in eight seconds.

Weiland fired two goals in seven seconds on December 14 1937, in Boston, in the first period of a game with Toronto which the Bruins won 3-1. He scored the first at 19.05 on assists by Leroy Goldsworthy and Eddie Shore, and notched the second unassisted direct from a face off at centre ice at 19.12.

Mebbe we'd better send these Rocket juniors to Switzerland in February of next year to represent Canada at the Olympic hockey games. For, five minutes after they had played the best hockey of their current season and sent the highly-fancied Trenton RCAF Flyers down to a 1-0 defeat, and also elimination from the District League playoffs, last night, the saucy young cockerels would have taken on the best Europe can produce.

A week or so ago they skated on the ice against Flyers with their sticks at ear-level, elbows slightly lower, so as not to disturb the large juicy chips they carried on their shoulders, mayhem in their eyes, and their hockey in the dressing-room. For two periods they indulged in a miniature Battle of the Bulge against their speedy opponents, and when they finally came down to earth, it was too late to undo the damage and they went down to a well-deserved 10-1 shellacking.

But last night was a different story. Coach "Smoky" Harris, got out the book and hurled it at the youngsters, accompanied by a chinfest that must have wilted their ears. He knew that the beardless buckaroos had some good hockey in their youthful systems, and he wanted them to get rid of it. They did — and in no uncertain manner. Gone was the belligerent attitude of last week. Missing was the high-sticking, charging and attempts to dislodge the Flyers' bridgework through the media of high sticks and elbows. The kids got down to serious business and showed the corporal's guard (Pardon, that is an overstatement, the corporal was missing) that they can play hockey if they want to.

The Rockets gave a finished display of speedy defensive hockey. They outskated the Flying Flyers going both ways, and each man glued himself to his check. Result, the Flyers organized attacks were thrown off the beam most of the time. The Rocket defence was the best seen here this season. Schreider teamed up with Hurst and Jack Milligan (the million-dollar goal getter) was up front in a pivot position. To the credit of the team, each boy gave the best he had and it's too bad some of the rinkside and armchair referees and experts, weren't there to see the performance.

But dat M'sieu Moreese LeFort, by gar, she is one dam good goalkeeper. The husky young French Canuck was one of the heroes of the piece and he backed his mates sterling efforts out front with a sensational display between the posts. He outguessed the Flyer forwards consistently especially in the last chukker when the desperate air laddies went all out for the tying and winning goals. ....

And by the same token, "Robby" Robertson in the Flyer hangar wasn't playing solitaire all evening. Robby kicked out rubber aplenty, especially in the first period when the Rockets buzzed around his net and on three or four occasions had the goal and its custodian at their mercy only to be beaten or miss the target. Rockets were good for at least three markers in that initial period.

The Rockets were full value for their win. They deserved to skate off the ice with the laurel wreath, and even the most biased air force fans admitted that. But Flyers were keenly disappointed although they took their defeat in good grace. Personally we had secretly picked the air crew to cop the league honors, and even now we think the Rockets have hurdled the toughest barrier in the league. They meet the fast travelling Madoc crew in the semi-finals of their section.

And that ladies and gentlemen, ends the District Hockey for this year. Other playoffs will not be scheduled until the New Year, due to the holidays and inability of some of the participating squads to ice teams. The next playoffs, the quarter finals of "A" section will be announced later when dates are decided.

There is a possibility, if negotiations are completed satisfactorily, of the Rockets meeting a Peterborough junior "B" team on or about the 29th of the current month. Nothing has been definitely decided as yet. Watch for announcements later.

Leafs Prepare For Detroit Wings

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs riding on a one-point lead over Detroit in the National Hockey League are sticking strictly to business as the teams prepare for the Christmas week grind.

Leafs worked out at Toronto yesterday with Howie Harvey, promising amateur, in the nets, and Harvey was busy as a one-armed paperhanger while the Leafs polished their plays with the assistance of two other Toronto Marlboro Seniors, Harry Psutka and Dean McBride.

Leafs have another practice today in preparation for the visit from Detroit Red Wings Saturday, which will settle the N.H.L. leadership.

The other Saturday night game has Boston Bruins at Montreal Canadiens, and both teams have to win that one—the injury-crippled Bruins and the sadly slumping Habitants.

On Sunday all teams are in atcion—Montreal at New York, Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at Boston.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York Dec. 19 (AP) — From what we hear it would seem that the all - American Conference club owners are tapping Branch Rickey here and there with rubber mallets, sounding him out to see if he is vulnerable to a franchise.

It would be the Brooklyn franchise, of course, and as Rickey and his associates own Ebbets Field he would seem to be the big fish most likely to a nibble at the bait. He's the guy with the football, in other worlds as the park is important.

We don't think he would be interested, as pro football in Brooklyn has been anything but a howling success. If he did decide to move in, however, the other clubs had better watch their step. He'd have the colleges organized into farms before they knew what was happening...

Johnny Wilson, high jumping and high scoring star of the Anderson Ind. College basketball team last season rang up 28 and 30 points in his first two games this year which is a fair start... the world championship weight lifting tournament this fall lost $20,000 for promoter Bob Hoffman but figures he didn't do too badly. It cost him $21,000 to take an American team to Paris last year...

In a startling reversal of form over their last appearance, which saw them flash an outstanding brand of defensive, hard-checking hockey, the Belleville Rocket Juniors provided a Belleville District Hockey Association upset when they not only defeated the Trenton Flyers, picked by many to win the loop, but eliminated them from the league playoffs in a closely-fought battle in Memorial Arena last night. The score was 1-0.

In the second half of the "B" section quarter-finals, Madoc raced to a win over the Trenton Hockey Club sending them into the playoff discard by a 6-2 score. Rockets will meet Madoc in the section finals at a date to be announced later.

Rockets 1, Trenton RCAF Flyers 0

It was a vastly different Rockets team that took the ice last night against Flyers, to that which carried cordsticks for chips on their shoulders a week ago and went down to a crushing 10-1 defeat at the hands of the airmen.

Rockets went out there with the idea in mind to win the game and they did just that thing by paying attention to orders, staying on the ice, taking advantage of any breaks that came their way, and dishing up one of the best defensive games seen here this season.

That goes for the entire junior squad with a special orchid to M'sieu Maureese LeFort, who was practically invincible in the Rocket rigging and who thoroughly deserved his first shutout here. LeFort played a sensational game in the nets turning back drive after drive of the desperate Flyers who ganged in heavy pressure attacks in an all-out effort to turn victory into defeat.

Cleanly Fought

The game was closely fought, clean and productive of some thrilling moments as driving first line attacking divisions of both squads raced in for the kill. Robertson in the Flyers' nets was a close second to LeFort. The Rockets took over in the first period and drove in consistently on the Flyer citadel. Three times they hit the post, and on another occasion missed a wide-open net by inches.

Flyers missed several chances when they drove in on Lefort's doorstep. On one occasion Mid Middleton Flyer defenceman had an open net yawning in front of him and he lifted the rubber two feet over the rigging.

The heavy hard checking and often clicking plays of the young Rockets had the Flyers disorganized at times. Their passes were going astray and almost every time a Flyer forward got the puck a Rocket was on his tail or in front of him. The kids played the puck and forgot the man although a few bumps were handed out and discovered that this brand of hockey pays dividends.

Flyers missed their rugged defenceman Bullock who was unable to play but even with him, it is doubtful if they could have pulled the game out of the fire. The Rockets were "on" and they skated miles for victory. They back-checked like fiends and although they did display a weakness around the nets at times they were full value for their win.

Milligan Scores Goal

The Million-Dollar goal came four minutes after the second period started. Flyers were driving in on the Rockets' goal and LeFort was having a busy time. Nolan back on the defence drove the rubber to the blue-line and Jack Milligan who played at centre ice last night in a team shake up raced down the left boards. He eluded a heavy body check, swept diagonally across the ice and drove in on Robertson's doorstep. There was a quick flip of the puck, a sidestep and the biscuit nestled in the twine behind Robertson for the only score of the game.

Soules drew a penalty midway through the period, but the speedy Rockets travelling at equal speed both ways "killed" the two minutes in handy fashion. Flyers put on heavy pressure but the fine checking of the kids held them off the score sheet. Wiggs of Flyers drew the wrath of the officials near the end of the period but no damage was done.

Speed Matched

The third period saw a desperate Flyer team go all out for the equalizing and winning goal. But their speed was matched stride for stride with the victory-hungry Rockets, and although the airmen held an edge in territorial play, they could not get their plays clicking against the rugged defensive play of the youngsters.

Hurst drew a penalty midway through the period and the play tempo increased. Rockets, hemmed behind their own blue line never forgot their checks, but despite this LeFort had to come to the rescue several times before the pressure was relieved. Rockets broke away on one or two occasions but Robby Robertson was equal to the effort and turned potential scorers aside. Flyers buzzed around the Rockets' net in the last two minutes but the kids' defensive tactics were too strong and the game ended with the Rockets ganging up on Lefort as he skated to the dressing room.

Madoc 6, Trenton 2.

Paced by Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams who were ably abetted by Bill Holway, the Madoc squad fresh from their victory over Cobourg the other night, raced through to a 6-2 victory over the shorthanded Trenton Hockey Club in the night-cap of the double-header.

The game was well played and cleanly fought with the Trenton squad battling until the last bell in an effort to avoid elimination.

But the Madoc squad was too strong especially in the attacking departments and Williams and Goyer, with their passing plays clicking to perfection raced through the Trenton team no less than four times to score as many goals.

And one of the best men on the ice was Anderson in the Trenton nets. He stopped plenty of rubber as the speedy Madoc front lines rushed in on him, and he deserves one of the three stars, if such things were given out.

Nip-and-Tuck Affair

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair in the first period and the only goal scored was that of Madoc's Goodchild who took Cousins pass from close in to beat Anderson.

Williams and Goyer teamed up in the second period on the very first play with the former denting the rigging on Goyer's pass. Three minutes later Cousins tossed the rubber over to Nickle and that worthy made no mistake, to make the score 3-1. Naylor of Madoc drew some sort of a penalty and Trenton broke the scoring ice when Watson hit the twine from a pass from Beale.

Williams and Goyer made it 4-1, 38 seconds after the third period opened but Watson got that one back for Trenton five minutes later from Johnson's pass. Goyer and Williams again took over for the fifth Madoc goal and repeated nine minutes later to end the scoring.

Goyer and Williams got two goals and two assists each with Cousins and Goodchild getting the remaining pair. Cousins played a standout game along with Holway, Goyer and Williams, while Hearnes in the Madoc net acquitted himself nobly on several occasions. Schmidt, Watson, C. Johnson and Twigg did a fine job for the losers, with Anderson in the nets standing out.

The teams:

Madoc: Goal, Hearnes; defence, Keller, McInroy; centre, Goyer; wings, Williams, Holway; subs, Cousins, Goodchild, Nickle, Baker, Naylor, Lewis, Baldwin.

Trenton: Goal, Anderson; defence, Schmidt, Ellis; centre, Beale; wings, Watson, C. Johnson; subs, LaMorre, Letourneau, Twigg, Couture, Barr.

Copper Cliff Jrs. Must Play With Guelph Biltmores

Toronto, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Sylvio Bettio and Ron Telford, former Copper Cliff juniors of the Nickel Belt Hockey League, suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for "jumping" clubs were offered reinstatement by the C. A. H. A. last night — under two stipulations.

Bettio and Telford, playing with Boston Olympics of the Eastern United States League, encountered difficulty when they were given transfers to the Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" circuit. They left that club, tried out with the Oshawa Generals, also of the O.H.A. junior A's and then went back to the Olympics.

The C.A.H.A. ordered they must repay certain monies advanced them by the Oshawa team and that if they play with a team under the C. A. H. A.'s jurisdiction, it must be with the Guelph Juniors.

Windsor Spitfires Turn on Power To Swamp Guelph

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey coaches are finding the Guelph Biltmores just a little too "hot" to handle. Bobby Bauer, Swat Mason and the latest, Bill Sherry, have a tough time trying to mold this ninth-place Junior Club into something resembling a potential playoff squad.

The idea started fading last night.

Biltmores were swamped 10-3 by the league-leading Windsor Spitfires at Galt in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" fixture for their 12th loss in 17 starts. It was Windsor's 15th victory in 18 starts.

There were no senior games scheduled.

After a strong first two periods Biltmores weakened in the final frame and Windsor rapped in five goals without a Guelph reply. Butch Houle, rugged Windsor rearguard was given a match penalty in the second frame for kicking Tatter McClellan while the Guelph player was lying on the ice.

Despite their loss Guelph outshot Windsor 38-31.

Johnny Wilson and Doug McKay led Windsor with three goals each. Cam Church with two, Jack Taylor and Bruce Giesebrecht were other Spitfire scorers. Lorne Ferguson led Guelph with two tallies and Ron Plumb sank Biltmores' other counters.

There are three Senior tilts tonight. The third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen visit the leading Toronto Marlboros' the second-place Hamilton Tigers tangle with the sixth-place Hamilton Patricias; and the fifth-place Owen Sound Mercury's visit the fourth-place Stratford Indians.

TERMS

Members, after fruitlessly attempting to obtain concrete details of the program, devoted practically the entire session to debating a government resolution for extension from Dec. 31 to next March 31, 1948, the Agricultural Products Act.

This enactment empowers the government to requisition foodstuffs to fulfill its commitments to the United Kingdom.

At the end of the night sitting, the Act was still under discussion The resolution must be passed today to permit recessing over Christmas on schedule.

Government agriculture policy came under fire from the opposition benches throughout the Agricultural Products debate. Higher costs of production resulting from the removal of ceilings on coarse grains was a particular target.

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin-Simcoe), delivered the day's major opposition attack against government agricultural policy, declaring the government had failed in its "state planning" for agriculture and should "hand farming back to the farmer".

Easterners Disappointed.. ....

T. B. Barrett (PC-Norfolk), said Eastern farmers were willing to see those from the west get all they could for their grains but easterners were disappointed at the timing of the removal of price ceilings on feeds, and the fact they did not get more for their own products.

He said he did not think the government should "mess around" with farm prices in socialistic fashion while it did not control farm costs.

In other business yesterday, the Commons gave first reading to two bills. One, sponsored by F. E. Jaenicke (SC-Kindersley), would abolish appeals to the Privy Council. The other, introduced by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), would protect railway workers against loss of their pension rights through a strike.

To Make Announcement .. ..

Mr. King announced he would make a statement today on Civil Service salaries, for which an increase has been under consideration for some time.

Another government announcement—by Trade Minister MacKinnon —was that the government would introduce, shortly after the post-Christmas resumption, legislation to provide for a substantially larger increase in initial payments to farmers for grain purchased by the Canadian Wheat Board. It was speculated that the payments will be boosted 20 cents to $1.35.

ELUSIVE FIRE

Some Australian aborigines find fire-making so difficult they make long journeys to neighboring tribes to borrow a light.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge experts take pride in the brilliant and intricate ways by which they reach contracts. Horse Sense gets there with only a few simple unchangeable rules. More accurately, too.

My boasting about this does not go unchallenged. Players have tried and tried to find deals to disprove my claim. Every so often someone slaps a pair of hands at me with a defy. Like these:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠6 5 3	♠K 9 7 4 2
♥A 6 5	♥Q J
♦A K Q 2	♦6 5 4
♣Q 8 5	♣A J 4

The letter states that normal rules will not reach a no-trump game; that it takes some imagination to get there. So, here are the bids in strict accordance with Horse Sense rules:

South	North
1 D	1 S
1 NT	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

Each high card is a no-trump trick. When forced, a no-trump bid does not show an additional high card.

An opening of one in a suit shows five suit tricks of which four must be high cards. Each additional high card entitles such a hand to one voluntary no-trump bid or raise.

A responding suit bid shows more than two tricks of which two must be high cards. Each additional high card entitles that hand to one voluntary no-trump bid or raise.

The one spade takeout was forcing. Being forced, the south bid of one no-trump does not show another high card. North was not forced again. His two no-trump bid showed his third high card.

South was not forced to bid again. However, he has a fifth high card with which he can make a voluntary raise to three no-trump.

No need to complicate this. It's a natural.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 19 (AP) — Sabu, who has spent a large part of his life alternating the making of pictures in England and the United States, is going to remain in Hollywood.

The elephant boy's decision stems from that well-known certainty — taxes. "They wanted me to pay both the English tax which is about 90 per cent, and the American tax, which is about 80 per cent," he told me. Even with the assurance of a refund, the wily Indian couldn't see it and so he's limiting his future film plans to the United States. He's an American citizen.

Sabu now is in "Man - Eater of Kumaon" and has three films lined up, the first being "Song of India." Costly epics don't interest him. "I'll stick to my jungle pictures," says he.

More Jolson!

Al Jolson approves of Gene Kelly to portray him in the MGM version of "The Jolson Story" with one reservation. He's not sure that Kelly's speaking voice is low enough. So voice tests of the dancer will be made before a final decision is reached. Kelly will be going out on a mighty slim limb to attempt to follow Larry Parks' near-perfect portrayal...

Orson Welles is reported to be directing his own scenes in "Cagliostro," now being filmed in Rome. That was part of his contract for the picture. Gregory Ratoff directs the rest of the film.... principals of "Conn. Yankee" are making a record album of the score for public sale. That includes those well-known vocalists Bill (Velvet Fog) Bendix and Sir Cedric (The Voice) Hardwicke...

10 Second Review

"Night Song" (RKO) is a neat job fashioning an entertaining picture from an inplausible plot. It's an unlikely story of double identity, but it is done with such taste and good humor that one overlooks its deficiences. Dana Andrews and Merle Oberon are fine, but Ethel Barrymore and Hoagy Carmichael swipe the film from under their noses.

Windsor Dec. 19 (CP) —Day by day in every way it looks more like the old timers are right. The game of ice hockey isn't the same.

But the changes wrought in the pastime aren't exactly what many of the fans from way back seem to think.

It's common knowledge that hockey has changed physically. But there's another change that's even more pronounced. Hockey has undergone a psychological face-lifting.

For one thing, the days when a blood-and-thunder coach would declare vigorously before game time that "we're going to beat the pants off em," and leave it at that, has gone.

Nowadays they use guarded diplomatic language designed to lull the opposition into a false sense of confidence that will leave them in the right psychological frame of mind to be caught off guard with three quick goals in the first 10 minutes.

"We're pretty weak," you'll hear the coach of 1947 say. We've got a couple of regulars out with injuries and I don't know how we'll be tomorrow night. Maybe with a bit of luck we'll get a tie."

Example

One of these coaches with the wily, plotting mind is Frank Boucher. He's well known for making pre-season predictions on where every team in the league will wind up. In several seasons past he's relegated his New York Rangers to a lowly position. That's exactly where they've wound up.

Then this year he suggested them for the fourth spot. Naturally everyone who has been conditioned to the idea of New York being down around the bottom, laughed.

Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughn relates how Boucher found himself laughed at, loud and long, by most of hockey's wise men. But says Vaughan, "the wise men aren't laughing any longer. It's Boucher's turn to chuckle now."

His team is currently the hottest in the league, presently sitting in that fourth place spot.

And, Vaughan adds, "if they continue to click for the rest of the season the way they have for the past month, there are going to be plenty of red faces around the hockey wheel."

It's clear what Boucher was trying to do. In past year's he predicted the Rangers would wind up around last place, all the time figuring they could cop the fourth plase spot.

This year's fourth place prediction means he expects them to wind up among the leaders by taking advantage of that sense of false security instilled into the five other N.H.L. coaches.

Commission Plans To File Detainer Against DePalma

Philadelphia, Dec. 19 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Securities Commission plans to file a detainer against Albert E. DePalma, Toronto mining stock distributor, arrested by United States authorities in New York Wednesday on charges of defrauding United States citizens of $3,000,000 in a mining stock fraud, J. Myron Honigman, a member of the commission, said yesterday.

Honigman said DePalma had been indicted in Lehigh County in April, 1946 on charges of violating the State Securities Act by doing business here without a brokerage licence.

Honigman said the detainer will be filed with John T. Callahan, special counsel for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, to bring DePalma to trial on the Lehigh indictment. DePalma is being held in New York in $50,000 bail for a further hearing.

AT THE CAPITOL — Lovely June Haver is starred in "Wake Up and Dream," the 20th. Century-Fox film version of Robert Nathans beloved best-seller, which is now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, the western "Driftin' River," with Eddie Dean.

CHAPTER 3

"Oh, Jean, she is such a dear little thing! And her wistful eyes, fairly shone as she said, 'How wonderful it would be to sit at the head of your dinner table!' and I said, 'By heaven, you shall!'"

"Opposite you?"

"Opposite me."

"And where do I sit?"

"At the side of course. It will mean no offense to your dignity; just a good-natured gesture to please the lovely child."

"How old is she?"

"I haven't the least idea. She has the loveliest nature. Oh, you can't help adoring her! They all will. And look here, this is an order. I want the two nursery rooms and bath fixed up for her use. You can put Rhoda and the child up on the third floor; they'll be better off there by themselves."

Jean stared at him.

"Do you mean that?" Change the furniture all around—"

"That's nothing. Give it over to Jansen; he'll do it all up perfectly. Tell him to begin tomorrow morning and have all in readiness by noon, or shortly after."

"At what time do you expect your friend?"

Vivian looked at her with a cold stare.

"Be good enough to change your attitude. I don't like your tone— I expect implicit obedience to the orders I have just given."

"You expect me to put little Florimel upstairs—"

"I do! And I want no refusals or objections. The child is a nuisance down on this floor, anyway. Always crying or being trundled through the halls."

"Vivian, I believe you have taken leave of your senses!"

"I have not, and I strongly advise you not to do so. Did you ever know me to be balked of what I will do?"

"But this is so absurb! So dreadful!"

"That is as you look at it. But you will carry out my orders. Good night."

Vivian turned on his heel, went into his bedroom and shut the door.

Like one in a daze, Jean walked out of the study and into her own apartment. There, too, one passed through a room before the bedroom. It was fitted up as a boudoir, and it had given Vivian much pleasure to select its beautiful furnishings for his bride. He had loved Jean then, and he loved her now, but he was innately fickle and lost his head over each new inamorata.

Jean paused in the boudior and flung herself into a big chair with a feeling of being stunned. What should she do? The house full of guests, she couldn't pick up the baby and run away. The baby! Banished from her nursery! Those lovely rooms, , so carefully arranged for heat and air, so exquisitely furnished for the darling occupant—no! She would not let Vivian put her up in a couple of ordinary guests rooms!

And yet—she knew her husband, but she had never before seen this phase. The guest rooms on that floor were pretty well filled, and she couldn't give Esmeralda— outrageous name! —two, with bath, unless she moved somebody. Suzy wouldn't mind, but Suzy had only one room, and —for the first time in her life, Jean was afraid of what Vivian might do!

Her first fury at Vivian's cruelty faded a little as she thought what might happen if she refused to obey.

She had no way of knowing, for never had a real crisis occurred before, and whenever they had differed, she had given in, if the matter seemed to her trifling, or she had coaxed him around to her way, if it was to her important.

And even now she would dare to brave him, if any other issue were at stake than the well-being of her child.

Vivian had so wanted a boy, and had been so disappointed at the advent of a little girl, that he had never shown the slightest interest in the child, and seeing him seldom, the little one was afraid of him and cried at his approach.

Supposing, Jean's growing fears said to her, he should do something dreadful to Florimel—banish her, or something—well, Jean would go, too—but, she had no money, and, what could she do with a nurse and baby and no funds?

Her heart grew sadder and more hopeless. Her common sense told her that she must not thwart Vivian, whatever happened. She had been able to twist him around her finger at first, but now it was different.

Though she was as charming and as beautiful as ever, his butterfly nature had tired of her, and he was showing her traits she never knew he possessed.

She thought over what it would mean if she obeyed him—if she allowed him to bring a screen actress into her home and place the stranger in a position of honor! Unthinkable! But was it not the only way to prevent some terrible scenes, some possible scandals and some hideous gossip? And, after all, might it not react against Vivian? Might not the crowd rally around her, vow that she was in the right, and turn against Vivian?

No she knew that would not happen. People are not like that, at least she could not be certain of such results.

Her meditations were deep and careful. And at last she saw clearly that the wise procedure for her was to accept the situation and do the best she could do with it. Her love for Vivian had received its death blow. For herself she would have reasoned otherwise, but for her child, she must obey the orders given her, and carry on with all the wisdom and tact she could summon to her aid.

Once having made up her mind, she would never falter, but go straight ahead, with courage if not hope.

The next morning she followed instructions. She called Jansen, their clever houseman, gave orders exactly, and knew they would be exactly carried out. She told Rhoda as much as she thought necessary of the matter, and Rhoda, understanding more than she seemed to, did her part in the moving of the nursery.

Florimel, eleven months old, was just beginning to walk and was so interested in keeping her balance that she made no objections to a change of scene and adapted herself to a third-story life without a murmur.

Rhoda on the contrary, was full of a smouldering wrath.

"It's that man!" she told herself. "For some fool reason he's put this on her! I wonder she stands for it, poor dear. But I'll do all in my power to help her."

But Rhoda could do nothing to quell the rising fires in the breast of Jean Forrest.

After overseeing the moving, she devoted herself to her guests, who were practicing with the foils or studying fencing positions before a long mirror.

"More people coming today, Jean?" asked Suzy, who ordered a crowd.

"Oh, yes. Vivian has some friends coming this afternoon, and I think I shall have a few more acceptances."

She had concluded to say nothing to any one of the unwelcome guest and she personally superintended the final touches that made the rooms charming for Esmeralda Fane.

And in the late afternoon Miss Fane arrived.

Most of the party were gathered in the living room, talking over the tournament as they awaited the cocktail hour.

Jean, in a white sports suit which was perfect in every detail, was looking her best, and seemed in a merry, almost mischievous mood.

But Vivian noted a small red spot on either cheek, which denoted to him that his wife was forcing herself to a calm demeanor by sheer will power.

"We are expecting a celebrity," she said as a car came up the drive and passed the window. I hope you will all enjoy knowing her."

The hope was expressed in a tone of sincerity that had no tinge of sarcasm or resentment.

Vivian looked at his wife with admiration, and almost wished he hadn't put this ordeal upon her, and then he smiled wickedly, wondering how the two women would meet.

It was not at all as he imagined it.

Rugg, the butler, ushered in what seemed to be a kaleidoscopic whirlwind.

A short, slender girl, with flying skirts and fluttering scarfs, ran across the room and threw herself on Forrest, her arms twining around his neck.

"Oh, Vivian, darling, I am so glad to see you! I have missed you so!"

She kissed him rapturously, and for once Jean Forrest saw her self-possessed husband lose his poise.

He turned very red, and he disentangled himself from the girl's embrace with a sharp, "Esme, behave yourself!"

Then, "Miss Fane," he said, by the way of general introduction and, as Jean stepped forward added, "This is my wife."

Esmeralda gave Jean a brief glance, and said a disinterested "How d' y' do" as she opened a vanity case and used it thoughtfully.

"There!" she said, as she threw it on the table. "Now I'm all pretty again."

She beamed on the crowd, and there could be no doubt of the truth she spoke. She was without doubt one of the prettiest girls in the world. A perfect flower face, expressive eyes of the most innocent blue, and a tangle of real golden curls that shook as she talked, and a mouth that would have been ideal for kisses if she hadn't overladen it with red paint

Then she scrutinized the party more carefully, darting her eyes from one face to another.

"A no-good crowd," she re mahkd, turning to Vivian. "Come on, boy, take me somewhere where we can be alone. And, oh, I say, could I have a drink?"

A tantalus stood on the table, but Forrest said, "Wait a bit, my dear; cocktails will be here in a minute."

"Don't want to wait, don't want a cocktail, give me some of that nice brown drink."

Forseeing ructions, Jean said, pleasantly, "Give Miss Fane a highball, Viv. She is tired from her journey."

"Good for you, lady, and thank you. Vivian, obey your misses."

As Vivian made no move, Austin said, "I'll fix it for you, Miss Fane. I'm Vivian's little brother, and I want you to like me."

"Mix me a drink and I'll love you."

Austin obeyed, and the girl stood waiting. Her frock was thin and frilly, her broad-brimmed hat was a picture, and as she smiled on her fellow guests, they held their breath at her unbelievable.

Vivian Forrest suddenly and quickly left the room.

Austin handed the glass to the girl, with a bow, and then he too left the room.

He found his brother in the bar, mixing himself a stiff drink.

Little Benny's Note Book

I dreemed somebody was shaking me out the frunt window to get the dust out of me like a rug, but it was only partly a dreem because when I woke up pop was still shaking me to get me up for school, saying, By gollis, I need a little more sleep myself after an ordeal like that, I'm exhawsted. I've been shaking you for 5 minutes, he said.

G, pop, 5 whole minutes? I said, and pop said, Well, we'll split the difference and call it 5 seconds.

Aw, I bet you've been shaking me longer than that, I said, Ma claims I'm the hardest person to wake up she ever saw, I said, and pop said, dont let it go to your head. Your mother hasn't had a very extensive acquaintance with hard sleepers. She never knew Portland Gillis, for instance. Now there was a really hard sleeper. Compared to Portland Gillis you're a piker, he said.

Why, how hard did he sleep? I said, and pop said, Well, just to give you an idea, his valley used to come into his room in the morning and lather his face and shave him, and even that didn't wake him till his valley terned him over on his stummick to shave the back of his neck, and his nose got berried in the pillow and cut off his breth, so he just had to wake up to stay alive. But speeking of hard sleepers, Bruno and Juno Slump must of been the werld's champs. They were just about your age, too, brother and sister, and one chilly November night they decided to see who could sleep the longest, and Bruno didn't wake up till the middle of the following February, and Juno stayed asleep a whole week longer, pop said.

Aw, you cant fool me, pop, they were bears hibernating for the winter, I said, and pop said, By gollies I believe you're right. Anyway, they didn't have as much to wake up for as you have. Mnn, I can smell them all the way up here, he said.

Meening hotcakes cooking, the result being I got up like lightning and got dressed like a fireman.

Toronto Mining Man Held in N.Y. On $50,000 Bail

New York, Dec. 19 (CP)—Albert DePalma, Toronto mining stock distributor, was held Thurs. in $50,000 bail following his arrest here on a fraud charge.

DePalma, 41-year-old former New York automobile salesman from Capetown, South Africa, as Edward Zuchor has been a Toronto resident since 1937.

He as arrested Wednesday shortly after he arrived from Canada on a federal indictment returned against him in Cleveland, charging use of the mails to defraud, violation of the Securities Act and conspiracy.

If convicted under the 14-count indictment he would face a possible 70-year prison sentence and fines aggregating $50,000.

When DePalma was arraigned before United States Commissioner, Garret Cotter, J. T. Callahan, special counsel to the Securities and Exchange Commission, said DePalma was one of the largest operators in mining stocks in Canada and estimated that since 1945 he had sold about $3,000,000 worth of securities.

Callahan said DePalma owns a private plane which cost $150,000 and is in the process of completing the building of a $250,000 residence in Toronto.

James B. Connelly, chief of the Fraud Bureau of the S.E.C., said at the arraignment that the Ontario Securities Commission in August, 1946, revoked DePalma's licence to sell securities, while John W. M. Ruttenburg, assistant State Attorney General, said the U. S. charges against DePalma refer to a conviction in Toronto in 1942 for giving a false name when he applied for registration under the Canadian National Registration Act.

"LONELIEST CHILDREN IN CANADA" COME CHRISTMAS

Mary Lou, seven, and Kenneth Howey, 11, of Eden, Ont., are spending the loneliest hours of their lives at their home. Seldom speaking except to each other, the youngsters were orphaned by the tragic deaths of their father and three brothers who were killed in a level crossing crash at Tilsonburg, Ont., a few days ago. Their mother, whose heart could not bear the grief and shock, died 24 hours later.

Soothing Music Aids as Anasthetic In 15 Operations

Baltimore, Dec. 19 — (AP) — Soothing music has been used as an anesthetic in 15 operations at the South Baltimore General Hospital within the last week.

Dr. Sylvan Shane, attending anaesthetist at the institution, told newspaper men he is convinced the new method of inducing deep sleep has a definite value in many types of operations.

Shane explained the patient is prepared by having him breath a mixture of 50 per cent oxygen and 50 per cent nitrous oxide (laughing gas). At this stage, the patient is conscious and able to converse rationally, but feels a tingling numbness in his body.

Then attendants put a set of earphones on him and start a recording of soft-dreamy music.

In no time, the patient is unconscious and the operation can proceed, Shane said.

In 30 seconds or so after the music stops, he wakes up, Shane said.

The doctor said much depends on the type of music.

Boogie-woogie is out. Stirring marches and, for some unexplained reason, spirituals and other religious music fail to put the patient to sleep.

Europe's Population Increases 140,000,000 in Last 10 Years

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 19 —(CP)— While Congress has been debating stop-gap aid to France, Italy and Austria, the hungry mouths in those three countries alone have increased by more than 65,000, latest figures of the population bureau show.

In the 16 countries to be aided by the long range Marshal plan the population is increasing at the rate of 170,000 a month.

Thus it appears that estimates of needs made last summer will have changed substantially before the European recovery plan is in full operation.

Basing its estimates on 1946 figuers, the bureau has shown that population in the three countries for which stop-gap aid is being debated is increasing at the rate of 780,000 a year.

Increase in the 16 "Marshall Plan" countries is at the rate of 2,035,300 based on 1946 and probably higher in 1947.

In spite of the wastage of war, the population of Europe increased 14,000,000 in the last 10 years and, although millions are on the verge of starvation, the increase now is at such a rate that it is expected to be 22,000,000 in the next 10 years.

At the moment the rate of increase is higher than before the Second World War and many European countries are giving bonuses for larger families.

In the United Kingdom the birth rate increased form 15 to 20 per 1,000 of population between 1939 and 1946.

To feed the infants born in the European recovery plan countries (and living one year or more), would require the wheat production at average yields of 920,916 United States acres, a tract about the size of New Jersey, the bureau estimates.

At the end of the Marshall Plan, now set for 1051, the crop of new population in the 16 countries will have so increased the need that it will take the product of 18,200,000 acres of American wheat land to feed the newcomers alone.

The point seems to have been reached, the report says, when the countries of the world must relate their populations to their ability to produce the necessities of comfortable existence.

Hard-earned Money of Bush Workers Often Disappears in Cities' Gay Spots

By BERT ALLEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Trout Depot, Que. Dec. 19 (CP) —Times in the tall timbers of Quebec have never been more lush than today.

Lumberjacks with high hopes of coming out of the bush with a bundle of bucks in the spring like to tell about one hardy woodsman who wound up with $1,800 clear for his winter's work at one of Canadian International Paper Company's camps in the vast limits in this area on the upper reaches of the Gatineau River.

The biggest hazard of building a big winter stake is the bright gleam of city lights. Not too many of the men who come to the bush can resist that gleam. They get lonesome for it. Or they can't stand the rigorous, and sometimes dull, life of the bush.

"So," said R. H. (Pat) Montgomery, C.I.P.'s superintendent of Maniwaki district operations, "you find a lot of the boys coming and going."

He estimated turnover in personnel right now at about 40 per cent.

You can see these men of the woods on the move every day on the routes of travel that lead in and out of this country. Mostly they're on their way "outside" to spend some money or, their resources badly bent, they are on their way into the bush to make some more.

A few jump camp every day and new ones usually turn up to take their places just as regularly, Montgomery said. Their average stay in the bush is probably about a month. Some only stay a week or two.

But to get back to that lumberjack who left the bush last spring with $1,800. The money is up here in the timber limits for the man who wants to make it. C.I.P. bushmen make anywhere from $4 to $15 a day, with the average about $8. They work piecework and get paid so much for every cubic foot of pulpwood they cut.

It's heavy going though, and Montgomery added: "The occasional master-worker who has made $20 a day has had to go at full speed all the time and for those fellows there's the danger they'll wind up all burned out and be old men at 35."

XB-47 Stratojet, World's Greatest Bomber, Gets Test

Moses Lake, Wash., Dec. 19. (AP)—The XB-47 Stratojet, described as potentially the world's most powerful plane, made its initial test hop Wednesday, on the 44th anniversary of the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk, N.C.

The 60-ton Boeing Bomber, powered by six jet engines, was flown from Seattle to Moses Lake.

Here are some of the claims made for the plane, one of five such jet-engine bombers now being tested or about ready for tests in the United States.

It should carry a 10-ton bomb load at 500 miles an hour, or faster. Because of its speed and ability to come back from missions fast, a crew of only three is needed.

It can travel so fast that refrigeration is provided around the crew compartment, to keep it cool from air friction and resulting heat at high speeds. The cabin is pressurized and temperature-controlled.

It is one of two such planes ordered by the air forces from Boeing and the concern has approximately $10,000,000 tied up in the work.

The plane, on its maiden flight, was throttled down and the highest speed was 280 miles an hour.

No announcement was made as to when further test flights will be made but the plane is expected to remain here some months. A clamp of secrecy was placed on the future tests.

YOUR WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

can be cashed!

The payoff on War Savings Certificates has begun. Right now all War Savings Certificates issued in May 1940 are being redeemed by the Canadian Government at their full face value.

On or after December 15th, you can redeem all War Savings Certificates issued in June 1940 . . . and so on, month by month, for the next few years.

If you are among the thrifty people who own War Savings Certificates, NOW is the time to look them over, sort them out by months and as they fall due, endorse them and mail to Ottawa as described on the back of each Certificate. A cheque for the full face value of each Certificate will be sent to you in due course.

But here is another suggestion...

Have The Royal Bank of Canada do all this "office work" and sorting for you. Save yourself the bother of searching out the right pieces of paper each month, endorsing them and mailing them off to Ottawa.

Here's what you do: Bring all your War Savings Certificates which you have at home or in your safe deposit box, to your nearest Royal Bank Branch. We will put them in our vaults for safekeeping.

As the Certificates fall due, we will cash them for you and deposit the full face value (which includes interest) in the savings account of the registered owner, automatically. If you have no account with us, we will open one for you for this purpose.

The cost of this service, including safekeeping until your Certificates mature, is low, as the following table shows.

SAFEKEEPING CHARGES FOR WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES, INCLUDING AUTOMATIC REDEMPTION WHEN DUE—

For each $5 Certificate .... 15¢

Truman's Proposals If Accepted Would Benefit Canada

Howe Says U.S. Buying Would Lift Export Ban

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Observers here are prophesying that if the proposals of President Truman for helping Europe are accepted by Congress, the effect on Canadian economy will be comparable with what happened when the Hyde Park agreement was signed shortly before the United States entered the war.

Prior to that agreement Canada's reserve of United States dollars was disappearing at an alarming rate as this country bent every effort in the prosecution of the war. The situation became so tight that the government was greatly alarmed that the war effort would have to be reduced because Canada could not pay for the imports she needed and no loan was possible.

Under the Roosevelt - Mackenzie King agreement at Hyde Park the United States was committed to make certain of her lease-lend purchases in Canada. Soon after Canada's reserve began to grow. At the end of the war it had reached $1,500,000,000.

Since then it has continually diminished and at the start of this year was $1,244,500,000. At last report it was down to $480,200,000 and continues to slip away with Canadians' heavy buying across the border.

If United States starts buying again on a big scale in Canada to save Europe from collapse the same trend may result as developed under the Hyde Park agreements.

Truman estimates that the United States would purchase under his proposals $2,615,000,000 from Canada and Latin American countries between April 1 next and June 30, 1949.

Reconstruction Minister Howe said in an interview that if Congress accepts Mr. Truman's proposals buying will start in this country on a scale that would make it possible in a matter of months to discontinue the bans and quotas which are in effect to stop the adverse trade. It also would mean speeding several lines of Canadian production to supply American demands.

Jerusalem, Dec. 20 (AP) —A "large party of Jews" in khaki battle dress attacked the village of Qazaza, near Rehovot, early today, an official announcement said, killing one Arab and wounding another in a three-hour assault.

An Arab boy was killed and several others injured when they set off a booby trap in an evacuated Jewish shop in Jerusalem's commercial centre. British engineers, fearing other traps, destroyed the building with dynamite.

Another flurry broke out in the no-man's-land between Arab Jaffa and all-Jewish Tel Aviv. A British soldier was killed when Jewish armed force men fired on it. One Hagana source said the men mistook it for a vehicle of the Arab Legion.

Two Arabs were killed by snipers in the same area.

The death toll of communal rioting in Palestine since the Nov. 29 decision to partition the Holy Land reached 285 with the Middle East toll standing at 406.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 20—(CP)—Synopsis: The current cold spell over Ontario is coming to an end. A weak disturbance is approaching Lake Superior and causing a southwesterly flow of milder air over Northwestern Ontario with occasional light snow. White River this morning reports 25 above as contrasted with a temperature of 28 below 24 hours previously. The disturbance will progress eastward and milder weather will reach Southern Ontario on Sunday.

COUNTRY-WIDE STRIKE IN ITALY'S FOOD INDUSTRIES

Violence Breaks Out Over a Christmas Dole to Naples' Jobless

Rome, Dec. 20 —(AP) — A country-wide strike over contract negotiations began in Italy's food industries broke out over a Christmas dole among Naples' jobless today, even as Pope Pius warned in a Holy Week message that class hatred threatened the very foundations of nations.

Indications were that the food strike, latest Leftist-led labor crisis to harass the newly reshuffled Christian Democratic Government of Premier de Gasperi, might be settled by nightfall.

But in Naples five persons, 3 of them policemen were wounded in rioting and gunfire touched off when an unemployment office handed out Christmas doles to a crowd of jobless. Some of the crowd argued they were being given less than they were promised. Both police and persons in the crowd used firearms. Reserves were called to restore order.

In Vatican City, the Pope issued a Christmas encyclical, "optatissima pax" (most desired peace), against a background of prolonged labor strife in Italy and France. It said:

"Those who, with a premeditated plan, thoughtlessly raise up the crowd, exciting it to tumult, to sedition and to offenses against the liberty of others, without a doubt do not operate to mitigate the poverty of the people but rather increase it and provoke extreme ruin, aggravating hatred and interrupting the course of the works of urban life."

The Pontiff urged Roman Catholics of the world to pray for peace.

Italy's food strike—its second stoppage in a country-wire industry in two months—was called after long efforts to reach a solution failed.

A union spokesman said "notable progress" in getting employers and workers together was made at night-long conferences in the office of Labor Minister Amintore Fanfari. An estimated 300,000 employees of food factories, stores and shops were affected by the strike. Bakeries, milk distributors and ice plants were exempted.

Talks will be resumed this afternoon.

The government, harried for the last five weeks by Leftist-led disorders which have claimed 23 lives, won a substantial vote of confidence last night from the constituent assembly.

In Rome last night a bomb was thrown at Communist party regional headquarters at the same time a confidence roll call was being taken in the constituent assembly. No injuries resulted from the blast.

HOUSE COMPLETES LITTLE BUSINESS IN SHORT SESSION

Gardiner's Policies Strongly Attacked

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—An anticlimactic December session of parliament was over today with little on the record except many words and nothing on the statutes that wasn't there before the lawmakers gathered Dec. 5.

Before the Commons recessed last night until Jan. 26, some laws had been made: A lot of speeches had been delivered. But when parliament rose it had not taken action, by legislation, on the chief issues on which it had been called into meeting.

It had extended some government powers from the end of this year to March 31—its chief accomplishment. But this action merely nullified what the session itself had created, for the powers normally would have run to March 31 anyway if parliament had not assembled before the end of the year.

Things were still in a state of suspended animation of the main items for which called—The Geneva trade agreements and the government's dollar-conservation measures, both of which were operative without parliamentary sanction. On both, there had been legislation introduced, some speeches, but no action.

The Throne Speech debate, too, a traditionally long and wordy parliamentary procedure, was uncompleted. Some of the major speeches in it had been delivered, though, and that would tend to cut down the length of the resumed session.

The two-day debate on agriculture that concluded shortly before the House recessed may have had the same effect, since it brought out most of the heavy artillery in attack and defence on Agriculture Minister Gardiner's policies.

A soldier-parliamentarian — Maj. G. R. Pearkes, V C , (PC — Nanaimo) — immediately denounced the proposals angrily as a "tragic and terrible letdown" as far as veterans were concerned.

Governor-General's Son's Illness Prevents Holidaying in Canada

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 20 — (CP)—All through the fall term at his school at Cothill, Berkshire, Shane Alexander, 12-year-old son of Canada's Governor-General, looked forward to the Christmas holidays at Ottawa with his parents, his sister and his brother.

Today a disappointed Shane was in bed with a cold at the London home of his grandparents, Earl and Lady Lucan. He had been unable to take the liner Queen Mary Friday as planned and Earl Lucan said he doubted if there would be time for him to go to Canada and return in time for school reopening.

"It's been a great disappointment to him," the earl said. "He looked forward to the ski-ing and other winter sports in Canada very much."

Christmas Fare, Gifts, Toys Plentiful On Continent but Prices Exorbitant

Paris, Dec. 20. (Reuters)—If last year's Christmas in Europe was a rich man's, this year's is a millionaire's.

Stores in many western European countries are presenting a galaxy of goods—toys, food, clothing, furs, jewels, perfume, nylon and silk stockings—but the prices are astronomical.

Fluctuations in exchange rates and the relation of prices to wages make it impossible to give any correct comparison in terms of dollars but food prices are about double in many countries compared to last year.

In France, strikes and social disorders cast a shadow over Christmas preparations with parents hard put to buy toys or other gifts to put in the shoes which French children place by the fireside.

For Christmas dinner, a turkey costs more than $10 and a small chicken about $5. And cooking gas pressure appears so weak that cooks will have to start work on their Christmas dinners the day before.

Italian food shops are crammed with apparently unlimited supplies of butter, cheese, meat, poultry, vegetables and fruit, but only the wealthy can buy. The same is true in Italy's gift shops.

In Belgium the toy display is the most lavish seen in the country since before the war with a high percentage of the goods imported from Britain and the United States—and all high-priced.

The food situation, however, is better than in most European countries with potatoes off the ration for the first time since the war. Fruit is plentiful and comparatively reasonable.

Practically all Europe finds a plentiful supply of wines and liquors, although the price pattern prevails here today.

Council to Expedite Utility Services For The Docter Property

City council will do all possible to expedite the provision of utility services to the Docter property east of MacDonald Ave., and will immediately apply for annexation proceedings to take the property inside the corporation.

This was decided at a special meeting of council held Friday evening at which William Storrie, of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers, Toronto outlined sewerage requirements for the area. The meeting was attended by members of Thurlow township council, by members-elect to the Belleville council and the public utilities commission.

Cost of sanitary sewers the subdivision in the Docter property where 320 lots have already been laid out would be $60,500 with another $35,600 to extend the sewer to the bay, or a total of $96,100. This would provide a 21-inch sewer along MacDonald Ave., which would have sufficient capacity for sever connections from lots along MacDonald.

Purpose Explained

Mayor Follwell stated the special meeting had been called at the request of Alderman Armstrong, chairman of the housing committee, in an effort to expedite the provision of services for the subdivision in the Docter property. Mr. Armstrong said Thurlow township had shown every cooperation and had agreed there would be no opposition to annexation proceedings.

In outlining the sewer requirements for the proposed sub-division Mr. Storrie made it plain that a complete new sewer with an outlet to the bay would be necessary as present sewers in the east end of the city were already loaded to capacity. He recommended that storm water in the sub-division be for the time being carried away by open ditches as it would prove too expensive at this time to construct storm sewers.

Alderman Hyde asked the engineer if he recommended annexation rather than permit Thurlow township provide the services for the area.

Not The Answer

The engineer replied that unfortunately this was not the answer to the problem. He stated it would cost approximately $250,000 to provide all services including sewers, watermains, sidewalks and roadways for the area.

If the property were annexed to the city, the city would pay for the street intersection and lot flankage and would also pay for the difference in the cost of the

Three American Ships in Peril From Fury of North Pacific Storm

High seas which had buckled deck plates, stove in hatches and jammed rudders further battered the 7,176-ton James F. Harrell, the 10,172-ton army tanker El Caney and the 130-ton army barge DSP-866.

In all, six ships have felt the fury of two storms this week but one is safe in an Aleutian harbor and two others are believed out of the path of this latest storm which has gusts up to 75 miles an hour.

The Harrell, latest to run into trouble, radioed the Coast Guard here it had three hatches stove in, a foot or more of water in the hold, and a wet and swelling cargo of maize.

The number aboard the Harrell was not given. Its position was about 429 miles southwest of Adak in the Aleutians.

The DSP-866, with possibly 10 or more aboard, ran into trouble about 250 miles west of Adak off Amchitka with port holes smashed, the galley flooded and the cargo shifted. Two tugs were en route to the scene.

South of these two troubled ships and about 800 miles from Midway, the Ed Caney with a crew of 42 was under tow and right on the rim of the storm.

The ship lost its rudder in another storm earlier this week. It was taken in tow about 550 miles southwest of Adak and was making way slowly toward Midway.

School Chums Will be Bearers Of Two Brothers

Hepworth, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP).—School chums of Donald and Robert Cohen will act as pallbearers when the two brothers, who died of exposure while seeking a Christmas tree for a school concert, are buried Monday afternoon.

Yesterday was to have seen the Christmas party at the two-room public school in this Bruce County hamlet of 300 persons. Instead, the school was closed as classmates mourned the deaths in a Wednesday night snow storm of Robert 13 and his brother, Donald, seven.

The bodies of the two boys who perished in a swamp were brought back home on a toboggan. When they were found, the older boy was without his coat; he had given it to his brother.

In the seven-room Cohen home, where four sisters and a younger brother mourned, the boys' mother, Mrs. Viola Cohen said she did not know if she could bear to see a tree in the house now, knowing her sons had died while trying to get one.

Father William Cohen said shopping for Christmas presents had not yet begun. A war veteran who had both feet broken when an ammunition container exploded in England, he joined the search for his boys but was forced to discontinue when he stumbled over a log and aggravated the injury. An inquest will be held.

THEFT CHARGE LAID

Cornwall, Dec. 20 (CP) — The culmination of a year's investigation by both city and township police, a charge of theft has been laid against Henry Sauve of Cornwall following the recovery of goods at his home valued at approximately $1,000.

Among the articles recovered were two outboard motors, several cameras, a shotgun, rifle, radios, clothing, luggage and dishes.

Eight Killed In Ammunition Dump Explosion

Geneva, Dec. 20. (Reuters)—Eight persons were killed in an ammunition dump explosion at Blausee-Mitholz Staiton on the Berne-Implan railroad at midnight, it was officially announced today.

Several persons were injured. Villagers, some of them in their nightclothes, fled in panic down the mountainside during the night through deep snow.

Exploded shells and bombs destroyed or damaged every house in the village.

The railroad station was destroyed and the station master killed.

Military forces have been concentrated in neighboring valleys and it is hoped to clear the railroad line of unexploded projectiles by early afternoon.

Cruelty to Animals Charge Dismissed

Port Perry, Ont., Dec. 20. — (CP)— Two horse dealers, one dismissed on a charge of cruelty to animals, the second a defence witness, told Magistrate Frank Ebbs of this Ontario county centre that "a horse could live and do well with two feet of snow on the ground" and "cold has never done a horse a particle of harm".

Harvey Elson, Uxbridge district horse dealer, admitted that 23 horses he purchased Nov. 15 were left in a field until ordered removed by Provincial Police December 10.

Elson said the horses were to be used as feed for fox and mink farms and they could have fed themselves even though snow blanketed the field. He said a horse could "paw his way through and get it."

William Hopkins of Washburn, the second dealer and defence witness, denied that cold could do a horse "a particle of harm".

Magistrate Ebbs dismissed the charge, saying: "I wouldn't want any horse of mine looked after in this manner."

SHARP ATTACKS FORECAST FOR MARSHALL PLAN

Taft Proposes Aid Be Limited to Year

Washington, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Sharp attacks from both Republican and Democratic ranks today forecast rough going for the four-year $17,000,000,000 Marshall plan when the United States Congress comes back to work Jan. 6.

Republican leaders — excluding Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan — apparently were lining up behind a proposal by Senator Robert Taft of Ohio that any formal pledge of European aid be limited to one year.

Taft wants Congress to review the program annually and decide whether it should be continued. This found favor with at least one Democrat, Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, who told a reporter:

"I am opposed to this Congress committing future Congresses. I doubt very much that we have enough surplus food supplies to permit us safely to export more than half of the amount the president requested during the next 15 months."

Asks Big Outlay

President Truman asked for a $6,800,000,000 outlay in the 15 months beginning April 1, when stop-gap relief for France, Italy and Austria will end.

Congress provided $522,000,000 to send food, fuel and fertilizer to those countries in legislation approved just before the end of the special session last night.

Approval of this measure, generally accepted as the forerunner of the Marshall plan, indicated that eventually the legislators will agree to furnish some form of economic aid to 16 western European countries.

But the amount and the methods remain in doubt.

Along with the stop-gap measure went a Republican-sponsored bill calling for voluntary measures by business and agriculture to combat cost-of-living increases at home while relieving want abroad.

Less Than Wanted

The stop-gap relief fund was $75,000,000 less than the administration wanted to buy food, fuel and fertilizer for the three European countries during the winter months.

It had fared far better during its trip through Congress, however, than the president's 10-point anti-inflation program featuring stand-by wage, price and rationing controls, which met with a Congressional thumbs down.

The appropriation bill carried, in addition to the European aid money, an $18,000,000 grant to China. The administration had made no such request but the Senate decided to toss it in as a sign of support for Chiang Kai-Shek's battle against the Chinese Communists.

In its final form the bill also provided $340,000,000 to meet occupation and relief costs for American forces, in Germany, Japan and Korea.

FATHER SUFFERS BURNS SAVING DAUGHTERS'

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — John McNice of nearby Vaughan township was burned about the face, hands and arm last night when he and his brother, Ross, rushed into flames to rescue his daughters, Helen, four and Jean, six, after fire broke out in the home. Nothing was saved from the two-storey frame structure.

Vatican City, Dec. 20 — (AP)—Pope Pius declared in a Christmas message to the world today that class hatred threatens "to undermine and overthrow the very foundations" of nations.

The pontiff's 1,100-word encyclical, entitled "Optatissima Pax" (most desired peace) urged Catholics the world over to pray for peace on their holy holiday.

Mankind, the pope said, views with sadness and trepidation the failure to secure the peace after the vicissitudes of war.

He added:

"In not a few nations — already devastated by the world conflict and the ruins and miseries that have been the dolorous consequence of it — the social classes, reciprocally agitated by bitter hatred, threaten with innumerable tumults and turbulences to undermine and overthrow the very foundation of the states."

The encyclical was issued in Italian, under the Latin title.

"Those who, with a premeditated plan, thoughtlessly raise up the crowd, exciting it to tumult, to sedition and to offences against the liberty of others, without a doubt do not operate to mitigate the poverty of the people, but rather increase it and provoke extreme ruin, aggravating hatred and interrupting the course of the works of urban life."

Even as the encyclical was made public, new Leftist-led labor trouble harassed the Italian government. A country-wide strike in the food industries began and a riot broke out in Naples over a Christmas unemployment dole.

The encyclical called for "pacification of spirits" and "mutual understanding" to make way for "those doctrines and directive forms which are consentient with Christian teachings and the conditions of the present hour."

State Secretary Says Soviet Tactics Bar Lasting Peace

Blames Molotov For Failure Of Big Four to Write Treaty

Washington, Dec. 20 —(AP)— State Secretary Marshall last night handed Americans the job of helping Western Europe reach the high level of economic recovery which he said is probably the only way to force a lasting peace cn Russia.

In a sober report on the failure of the London Foreign Ministers' Conference, Marshall said there is a direct relation between Russia's "frustration tactics" in London and her "frank declaration of hostility" to the $17,000,000,000 European aid plan bearing his name.

If the Marshall Plan succeeds, it will fill a "political vacuum" created by the war and result in "forms of government which guarantee true freedom, opportunity to the individual, and protection against the terror of governmental tyranny."

Communist leaders "openly predict that this restoration will not take place," the secretary said in his radio address, and added:

"Until the result of this struggle becomes clearly apparent, there will continue to be a very real difficulty to resolve even on paper agreed terms for a treaty of peace."

Only a few hours after his return from London, Marshall repeatedly blamed Foreign Minister Molotov for failure of Britain, France, the United States and Russia to reach agreement on the German and Austrian peace treaties.

Adds to Confusion

"The continuous (Russian) accusations against the good faith, the integrity and the purposes of the governments of the Western Powers, particularly the United States, necessarily added greatly to the confusion.

"This was, as a matter of fact, one of the purposes of these attacks."

In the Soviet zone of Germany, Russia has "seized vast holdings and formed them into a gigantic trust embracing a substantial part of the industry of that zone.

"This has resulted in a type of monopolistic strangle-hold over the economic and political life of Eastern Germany which makes that region very little more than a dependent province of the Soviet Union.

"A very strong reason, in my opinion, for our failure to agree at London was the Soviet determination not to relax in any way its hold on Eastern Germany."

Marshall said "no real ground was gained or lost at the meeting," but added:

"We cannot look forward to a unified Germany at this time. We must do the best we can in the area where our influence can be felt."

CORNWALL CANAL TONNAGE UP

Cornwall, Dec. 20 —(CP)— Freight tonnage on Cornwall Canal in the past season was the heaviest since 1940, it was disclosed in figures released today. Total freight tonnage was 6,566,543 tons, an increase of 1,547,313 tons over the 1946 figure. The 1940 figure was 6,628,029 tons.

Lockages during the season totalled 5,200, an average of one per hour for the eight-month period. Coal was the main cargo carried this year, grain second and oil third.

GOVT. ANNOUNCES SALARY INCREASES IN CIVIL SERVICE

Armed Forces, Disabled Vets and Pensioned Widows Also Affected

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—A large segment of Canada's vast civil service had the government's answer today to requests for salary increases to meet the rising cost of living—income boosts that also will affect the armed forces, disabled veterans and pensioned widows. But they won't get them until January.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the "Christmas present" in the Commons yesterday and said it would cost the Federal treasury $25,000,000 a year. The increases are retroactive to Oct. 1 but those affected won't get the boost until next month because December cheques already are prepared.

Generally the increases affect about 40,000 in the clerical grades of the civil service who will get from $30 to $40 a month more over 1939 salary rates depending on grade; some 33,000 in the armed forces who will get pay and subsistence allowance increases averaging 10 per cent; 160,000 disabled veterans and 20,000 pensioned widows who will get increases up to $10 a month.

The Civil Service Federation of Canada had urged a general 25-per-cent salary increase over 1939 civil service salary scales and it joined with the Civil Service Association of Ottawa and the War Veterans' Association of the civil service in expressing "disappointment" that increases had not been more substantial. But the Federation President, Fred Whitehouse, expressed pleasure that the government had acted.

250 Cars Turkeys Shipped From Prairie Provinces

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP).—The Prairie Provinces are shipping more turkeys than ever to the holiday dinner tables of other Canadian provinces and already this season have shipped more than in the entire season last year, an Agricultural Department official said today.

From the start of the season, about Dec. 1, to Dec. 17, a total of 250 cars of turkeys left the Prairie Provinces for British Columbia and Eastern Canada. This compared with 197 during the same period last year and 231 cars during the entire 1946 shipping season.

Actual number of turkeys in the shipments was not known here but the official said a poultry car has a capacity of between 30,000 and 35,000 pounds, with most of the turkeys ranging between 10 and 18 pounds in weight.

MISS SHARON LUCY HEARD OVER RADIO

A large number of shoppers, staff and residents were present at Zellers this Saturday morning for the fifteen-minute broadcast over station CJBQ of Christmas carols. The public heartily joined in the singing of these carols so welcome at Christmas time. Miss Sharon Lucy, 136 Victoria Avenue delighted with a solo "Ave Marie" and many favorable comments were heard on the beautiful tone and splendid range of her voice. Miss Lucy will sing again on Wednesday morning shortly before the opening of the store for regular business.

SMALL TOOL SHED DAMAGED BY FIRE

A small tool shed owned by the Gest Contracting Company doing excavation work on Pinnacle street, was slightly damaged by fire early this morning when a corner of the building caught fire, presumably from overheated stove pipes. The tool shed was used by the night watchman. Damage was only slight, it was reported by firemen.

Factory President For 25 Years Retires from Office

Marmora, Dec. 20.—The annual meeting of Silver Leaf Cheese Factory was held in Deloro Separate School on Monday evening, Dec. 15. The report of the season's operations showed the factory to have had another successful year.

After serving the factory as president for 25 years Mr. E. D. O'Connor retired from the office. He received the hearty thanks of the patrons for his services. Mr. Charles Lajoie was elected as his successor and will be president for 1948.

Mr. A. F. Fraser, manager of the Marmora branch of the Dominion Bank, was in attendance and gave an interesting talk dealing with various phases of the market and business outlook for the coming year.

Novel Contest Staged by Com.

Marmora — A novel contest was staged by the Publicity subcommittee of the Deloro Safety Committee on Wednesday. Two live turkeys of different sizes were placed in a crate and employees asked to judge the combined weight of the two birds. Mrs. S. Higginson received the larger of the two as her prize for the correct guess of 31 pounds 5 ounces. Sid Barnett and Smith Fraser were allotted the other turkey as the second prize for which they tied.

Body Recovered From Trent River

Drowned in the Trent River early Tuesday morning when the car in which he was riding skidded on Highway 33 and dropped into the river below No. 2 dam, the body of Louis Stojan, Jr., R.R. 3, Trenton, was recovered Friday. The body was found just under the ice only a short distance below where the car dropped into the water.

Dragging operations conducted Tuesday proved unsuccessful but Friday the ice was broken for a distance below where the car went into the river and the body was found floating just under the ice.

Born at Zlin, Czechoslovakia, the deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stojan, Trenton. For the past number of years he had been working at Batawa at the Bata Shoe Company plant.

Surviving besides the parents are three brothers, Charles J. Stojan and Jerry Stojan of Alberta and Frank Stojan of Kingston.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Abbott Sabotages Christmas Kisses

Montreal, Dec. 20 —(CP)— Canadian girls might not know it, but Finance Minister Abbott has sabotaged their Christmas kisses.

Yes, Cupid's most valuable ally, mistletoe, is one of the items that is banned under the latest embargo on importation of United States goods.

So it means more old maids and bare doorways, unless thrifty householders can dig up a dried old twig left over from last year.

Mistletoe, a semi-parasite growing on apple, oak and other trees from which it absorbs nourishment by means of suckers, used to be flown to Canada from Florida, Mexico, Texas and California, but now these sources are out.

It is also available in British Columbia, but this doesn't do Eastern Canada florists any good however, because supplies in B.C. are reported short, and the mistletoe has to be brought East by freight.

"This always takes about 10 days, and by the time they get here, the little berries would have fallen off," explained one Montreal florist. "We want the berries on them, for just the leaves alone are of no use."

EIGHT BURNED TO DEATH

Dekalb, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP) — Eight children, ranging in age from 13 to eight months, were burned to death last night when fire destroyed their three-room home while the parents were away. The parents were visiting relatives nearby and noticed the flames as they started to return home.

ALL-TIME RECORD SET

Oshawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—An all-time record was set yesterday in the volume of mail handled at the Oshawa post office, Postmaster Norman D. Moran announced today. He said that at midnight counting devices on cancelling machines showed that in the previous 24 hours 119,800 letters had been postmarked—4,000 more than on the peak day last year.

JEWISH UNDERGROUND IN ACTION AT ARAB JAFFA

Armed with a machine pistol, a member of Haganah ((Jewish underground army) watches through the shutter slats of a sandbagged window on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa border. Not far from the man's post is the "no man's-land" that divides the Jewish and Arab cities. A girl member of the Haganah (right), stands with a male comrade at a post on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa border. The window that is their post commands a border road. Some of the bloodiest fighting in the Holy Land since partition has taken place is in the "no man's-land" between the Jewish and Arab towns.

Fowl for the Christmas dinner table was plentiful on the local produce market Saturday as turkeys, geese and chicken was offered in quantity.

Most freely offered was turkey with prices ranging from 52 cents to 60 cents the pound. Turkey toms with feet still on were quoted at 52 cents with hens at 55 cents. Fully dressed birds were quoted at 60 cents the pound.

Geese sold at 55 cents the pound with ducks at 50 cents and chicken at from 40 to 45 cents the pound.

Zero weather kept many vendors away from the outside market although Christmas tree vendors were numerous. Trees of all sizes were available at prices ranging from 25 cents up to $3.50 for extra fine trees.

Several vendors offered apples with best grade McIntosh bringing $3.25 per hamper and down to $2.75, while Spies were quoted at from $3.25 down to $2.50. Greenings were $2.25 per hamper with McIntosh and Delicious fetching 65 cents the basket.

Very few vegetables were offered. Potatoes sold at $2.75 per bag with carrots and parsnips bringing 40 per half peck, onions 50 cents per half peck and turnips five to ten cents each.

Dressed pork was quoted at 30 cents for hinds and 28 cents for fronts.

Christmas wreaths were available at $1 each with centre pieces at 50 cents.

Railway Workers Denied Request For Wage Boost

Montreal, Dec. 20 (CP) —Canadian Railway workers yesterday were denied their request for a 35-cent-an-hour wage boost but union officials said there was no sign that the 140,000 members of 18 railway brotherhoods would strike.

Negotiations between the union and the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National lines were broken off yesterday with Frank Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee representing the unions, quoting railway officials as saying the lines were not in a position to grant any wage increase at present.

The railways made no statement immediately. Previously however, the railroads had estimated that such an increase as the brotherhoods demanded would raise expenditure $150,000,000.

Union officials said they felt that an amicable settlement still could be reached. Hall said he planned to meet with government conciliator soon.

The union demand came last Nov. 20 and asked for the increase to become effective Dec. 20.

Last October, the Brotherhoods except for the trainmen, telegraphers and commercial telegraphers, were granted vacations with pay on a sliding scale as recommended by the government.

At the negotiations broken off yesterday, two vice-president, William Manson, of the C.P.R., and N.B. Walton of the C.N.R., represented the railroads. Nineteen representatives of railway unions across Canada attended the conference.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

larger sewer along MacDonald. The property owner would pay for sidewalks, roadway and sewers, while if the present policy were continued the watermains would be laid by the public utility.

Ald. Armstrong pointed out that the first thing to be done was for the city to signify its intention of proceeding with annexation. Ald. Hyde wanted to know what the township was prepared to do without annexation. Reeve Harry Harrison replied the township was satisfied the area must be serviced regardless of whether it was the city or township which did the work.

Demanding Sewage Treatment

Here Mr. Storrie pointed out that the matter was a question either of annexation or the development of a metropolitan area for the control of utilities. This latter measure was developing more and more insofar as sewage was concerned because health authorities in many instances were demanding sewage treatment. It would not be a good thing for the township to dump sewage into the Moira River.

Mayor Follwell felt that the Municipal Board might approve of debentures for the township to proceed with the services sooner than annexation proceedings could be completed, but Mr. Storrie asked why involve the township when annexation was being considered.

Ald. Armstrong felt that if the city intended to bring in industry then it should provide the necessary land for housing development and where services could be provided at the least cost.

Rather Be Part of City

This also was the feeling of Ald. Allin who stated that the citizens desirous of building in the Docter sub-division would rather be part of the city.

Mr. Storrie here added that if the township were to provide the sewers then a sewer area must be set up. He pointed out that it was not legal for a municipality to spend money outside the corporation, therefore the city could not provide the sewers until annexation was completed.

Douglas Smith, representative of the Schofield Insurance Agency, Oshawa, cited a Peterborough example where provision of services to a sub-division outside the city had been done by agreement between the municipalities without annexation proceedings completed. He felt the same might apply in the case of Belleville as the housing was desperately needed and it was imperative that the contractors get a start by Jan. 15 if houses were to be provided for August occupancy.

Recommendation Passed

Council accordingly passed the following recommendations:

It is recommended that the Council of the City of Belleville support the housing project proposed for the area known as the Docter property and in this regard resolve that the following be provided:

A. That an agreement be drawn between the Township of Thurlow and the City of Belleville to provide adequate sewer service for the area as set out in the proposal submitted by Gore and Storrie.

B. That as the water agreement now in effect will provide water services to the township that this area be served under this agreement.

C. That if approved by both councils an agreement be instituted for annexation of certain portions of the Township of Thurlow of which the Docter property is part, such annexation proceedings to be taken immediately, so that debentures may be issued by the City of Belleville rather than the Township of Thurlow or as approved by the Municipal Board.

That a committee from the City of Belleville and the Township of Thurlow make arrangement to meet the Municipal Board for their recommendation on the proposed area for annexation and that Mr. Storrie of Gore and Storrie be asked to be in attendance.

Following the passing of the recommendation a committee composed of Harry Harrison and Seldon Homan of Thurlow; H. J. Armstrong, Charles Mott, Jack Allin and City Solicitor and the solicitor for the Township of Thurlow was named.

Father on the Farm

No One Could Tell Him What To Plant

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father was strictly a school-of-experience man and distrusted book farming.

"What does nature know of their five-year or any other year crop rotation plan" he would say, and quote Scriptures about reaping what was planted.

Years later someone thought of tracing down this quotation and found it didn't apply so much to plant husbandry as to sinning. Father, who was opposed to sin, would have been mortified.

He was a great one for nature and natural things until nature started to blow the shingles off the barn or flatten the oats over on the newly cleared slashing. But even under great stress he seldom railed at nature and never turned the pages of the many bulletins put out by the Department of Agriculture for advice.

Not a Book Farmer

"Show me a poor farmer," he would sometimes say, "and I will show you a book farmer."

Obviously this was unfair and untrue, but you couldn't sway father. On this one thing he was set. He couldn't, or at least wouldn't, understand the function of clovers and the legumes as nature's suppliers of nitrogen, and crop rotation therefore hadn't the least appeal for him.

No one could tell him what he was going to plant five years from now in the back 10 acres. He was right. No one could.

No book farmer down at the OAC in Guelph was going to tell him how to feed his hogs or build his hen pen. And no one did.

The soil on his farm was deep and his crops, except in abnormally bad weather years, were consistently good. He got as many selects out of his hogs as most farmers in the district and more than some, and the hens were the best layers in the immediate neighborhood.

"Experience," father would say, as if he had thought it up himself, "is the best teacher."

He never consulted the county agricultural representative about anything, and wouldn't have a schoolroom farmer telling him how to run his farm. But he was the first in the neighborhood to treat seed grain for smut. He must have read about it somewhere, but never admitted it.

Farmed by Main Strength

Mostly, to use one of his own phrases, he farmed "by main strength and awkwardness." And no one could accuse father of being a lazy man.

While he may not have been the first out in the morning — mother used to say no one with a clear conscience should get up before six except in seeding time— his lantern always burned the last at night.

Time after time mother would organize a posse, headed by herself, to see if father was all right, and he always was—oiling a bit of harness, "knocking the dust" out of some horses with a curry comb and brush, whistling to himself and being as cheery as a pig in a mudhole.

No one ever found out why it took him so long to do the chores for, while the stable was unhandy in many ways and the facilities for feeding grain and shop particularily were downright awkward, other people covering the same ground could easily halve father's time.

It seemed not so much a lack of planning as a liking for puttering around the stable. Mother used to say it was belittling for a man to prefer the company of his animals to that of his family, but father went on whistling to himself.

It made argument kind of unsatisfactory and while mother, often than not had the last word, it was always set to the tune of father's whistling. This didn't please her.

"You'd think you'd think enough of your own family to spend some time in the house besides when you're eating," mother would say.

Father would bang the curry comb against the stall to knock the dandruff out and try not to suck in till the dust settled. He wouldn't stop whistling, but he would cut the volume until he could get more and cleaner air. Then off he would go again and mother would stomp out with the second lantern and weave her way over the snow drifts to the house, fair talking to herself.

Barn Work Was Shared

Actually a great deal of the barn work was shared. Mother helped with the milking. Often she took a spell at turning the fanning mill. Father was a great one for fanning grain and for years fostered a legend that the hogs wouldn't eat chop from unfanned grain. The legend was destroyed one time he was laid up with a couple of broken ribs. Grain was taken to the mill unfanned and the hogs ate the chop and liked it.

"Experience," father was told, and thereafter the fanning mill was heard no more unless it was time to clean the seed grain.

Father used to worry about the weed seeds going out, fresh, undigested and virile, in the manure, but never seemed to fret about the seeds screened out by the fanning mill and thrown at the side of the barn dump to be scattered by birds and the elements.

But by and large the animals throve and, as often as not, father had a double threshing to clear the barn out—once during the harvest to make room for the balance of the crop and again in the late fall.

Mother, of course, took credit for the eggs. "If no one gave any better care of the hens than some around here," she told father, quite a number of times, "there wouldn't be many eggs."

She claimed hens had to be fussed over, but the fussing actually didn't go much beyond seeing to it that they were supplied with dry litter and clean water.

Father Fussed Over Horses

Father fussed, too, but usually over the horses and, if he could have had his way he would have had a couple of pots of grain boiling on the back of the stove from late fall to early spring. He did not of course, have his way.

There were a number of reasons and all of them were mother. In the first place, she did not like the smell of boiling grain. In the second, she claimed, and with sone reason, that father ruined her fire. All through the years they never reached an understanding about boiling grain for horses.

They fought it out the same way toime after time. Father would come in from the barn carrying a pail of grain and lead off with a bland expression, and "Where are the iron pots?"

Mother would counter with, ""What do you want them for?" as if she didn't know.

Father—"I thought I would boil a little grain."

Mother—"I'm not going to have my fire ruined this day."

Father, by this time, would have put his pail of grain down and have the stove door open with the idea of firing up some more. This flanking move seldom worked, because mother would be waiting for it. Her oven heat was just right and she wasn't going to have her baking ruined.

How Grain Was Boiled

This was always considered a shrewd thrust because father liked his food. Sometimes it was this and sometimes it was that and sometimes the grain would sit in the woodshed for days waiting for the right moment when mother let it on the stove. There are always two pots full, the little pot and the big pot, both of black iron that was polished on the inside as smooth as a marble monument stone. They would be placed in the two back stove holes shortly after dinner and an hour or so alter the water in them would gurgle and steam and still later the swollen grain would pile up in a mound above the level of the pots. The barley was good to eat and ven mother used to nibble, tossing the kernels from hand to hand until they cooled.

The centre of the pots would still be hot at chore time and it was impossible to carry them into the stable without the horses arising a great clatter, stamping and whinnying, because they liked boiled grain better than anything else.

Mother reasoned they didn't really like boiled grain. They only pretended to, to be aggravating to her. Father and the rest thought that was somewhat far-fetched because it credited the horses with being able to think.

Father's explanation for feeding boiled grain with bran to horses had a simple clarity that would have appealed to an advertising man—it helped keep htem open.

"At least that's my experience," he said.

ASK MORE SEVERE PENALTIES FOR ILLEGAL KILLING OF DEER

North Bay, Dec. 20 — (CP)—The North Bay Board of Trade Thursday night passed resolution urging the enactment of more severe penalties for persons convicted of illegally killing deer, moose, elk or caribou. The resolution said the present minimum penalty of $20 for killing the animals is too low.

B.C. Unions Seek International Boycott of Ship

Vancouver, Dec. 20 (CP)—Imposition of an "international boycott" of the steamship Colima destined for China with $1,200,000 worth of arms and ammunition Friday was sought by British Columbia Labor Unions in a petition to the World Federation of Trade Unions at Paris.

Loading of the Colima Thursday was halted temporarily while the vessel moved into drydock for engine repairs. Pickets protesting the shipment were withdrawn but later were reformed around the vessel as the Boilermakers' Union refused to undertake needed repairs.

Stewart Mackenzie, Vice-President of the Longshoremen's Union, predicted that in "all probability the ship will not be loaded in this port." He said he had wired union headquarters in the east to send the ship elsewhere than to Canadian coast ports.

Harold Pritchett, coast Federation labor chief, wired Louis Saillant, World Federation secretary, that the unions were protesting the loading of 650 tons of machine gun shells and 35 tons of aircraft flares on the vessel.

Officials of the Boilermakers' Union would make no statement other than that the union had banned members working on the vessel.

Meanwhile, loading of the vessel, scheduled for completion next Thursday, faced further delay of possibly four days with the ruling by Albert S. Kerr, Dominion safety engineer, that the Colima's gear was not in working order and therefore the vessel was "unsafe for carrying ammunition cargo."

Thomas Braidwood, Board of Trade President, charged "Communists" are trying to stop loading of the ship.

DELINQUENCY DOWN

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Juvenile delinquency has reached an all-time low, Hawley S. Mott reported to the Board of Governors of the Y.M.C.A. at their Christmas meeting. He said that there were 780 cases brought to court in the past year compared to 1,000 in 1939.

PERFECT ATTENDANCE

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Dec. 20—(CP)—A perfect four-year attendance record at the public school here has been praised by the Niagara Board. Violet Slingerland has not only been regular in attendance for four years but has not been late once.

Ship Purchase Deal Reported At Halifax

Halifax, Dec. 20. (CP)—The Halifax Daily Star said in a newspage story today that it had learned "the largest ship purchase deal in the history of Canada, involving some 60 'Fort' freighters and more than $25,000,000 has taken place."

The newspaper said the 60-odd government-owned ships involved in the sale "are said to be . . . operating under charter to the British Ministry of Transport and it is believed that they will not be delivered to the new owners until some time in 1950."

The paper said the deal was completed in either Montreal or Ottawa but that Halifax interests were also "involved".

Local ship owners declined to comment.

HAPPY AND CONTENTED AGAIN

Liskeard, Cornwall, England, Dec. 19 —(CP)— An aged couple who had never been separated in their 64 years of married life became heart-broken and could not sleep when they were accommodated in separate wards of a pensioners' institution.

"We were able to reunite them in a small maternity ward where they now are happy and contented," said an official of the institution.

He said the woman, who would be 87 on Christmas Day, had been admitted recently with her 88-year-old husband who was blind.

$17,000,000,000 Asked of U.S.

President Truman has asked the United States Congress for $17,000,000,000 to underwrite Europe's recovery and save peoples of that Continent from possible despair and lapse into the control of totalitarianism.

The world has never heard of so large an undertaking but the United States, the only country that can bear on its shoulders so great a world task is asked to do what he said will preserve peace and the American way of life.

His plan calls for aid to sixteen countries and any country that can qualify under the Marshall proposals.

Good Manners on Highways

Highways Minister George H. Doucett told the other day a story of Ontario highway and road fatalities which should shock the people of this Province into a realization of the terrible toll which has taken place over these roads so familiar to almost every reader. Here is the compilation — for a ten-year period —

10,000 persons killed
$31,000,000 property damage

Then add to these startling figures the agony, regret and broken hearts. It is the loss of the greatest possible wealth the nation possesses, 10,000 persons with all their possibilities and with their right to live a full life. Even then one fails to comprehend the full realization of the loss.

Mr. Doucett said, "We will make no real progress in traffic safety until the same good manners which we use at home and in company are used by all of us in traffic. Every possible safety device is being built into our highways, but in the last analysis safety is a personal responsibility. It is the human factor which makes accidents."

Why are some people less courteous behind the wheel of a car than they are in their homes or in the shops or in every other walk of life? What of the cut-in, the disregard of signals, the failure to dim lights to help another motorist?

Motorists must not be careless, must not be discourteous in their driving on the roads.

Fair play for everyone is a principle of our liberties. Yet some drive as if in utter disregard of that basic principle. It is not fair play so to drive as to endanger another's or one's own life or limb. It is fair play to use every precaution and care to prevent doing harm to another or to oneself on the roads and highways.

The driver who remembers his good manners does a great deal to keep down tragedy and injury. He helps to educate others to be fair. In time by education on this principle there should come a day when such records as the disasters of today will be looked upon with a shudder of horror and shame. In that day there will not be such tragedy. The roads are built with the thought in mind of doing everything scientifically possible to prevent accident. This will show results if good manners prevail.

Midwinter Holidays

Holidays have come again. The young are free from study. But they do not cease to learn. Their minds were never so keen as they are at Christmas holiday season which is packed with new experiences through the magic of gifts made by loving friends and by the good St. Nicholas or Santa Claus. No holidays are so filled with inspiration as the Christmas holidays. They are magical in their appeal.

They are days in which the young mind is keenest. Not so long as summer holidays, midwinter vacation really carries on a different phase of mental and spiritual growth for the children's development is stimulated in these epoch-making days surrounding the Christmas festival. They are big days and big nights, they bring surprises, they bring happy reunions in the family, and they offer winter sports as an appeal of the great outdoors and the bracing winter climate of Canada.

In this brief lull in education in school the child continues his mental and spiritual growth which aids him when he returns to his classroom.

Canadian boys and girls, as their parents, are blessed in living in a land of such a variety of climate and of such a stately march of the seasons as this Dominion provides. Christmas holidays are apart from other holidays for they bring the appeal of ice and snow, the attractions of skating, tobogganing, skiing and those games which children themselves contrive in this season of seasons.

Summer vacation has its appeal. Easter vacation brings the sense of the growth of a new year to the young and Christmas holidays are a time set apart by nature when children feel the glow of life as they exercise in the bracing air.

They return to school rested, their imaginations lifted by the Christmas festivities, and their bodies developed by wintertime's play. Each group of holidays has its appeal and winter's is not the least important.

Christmas Services

Unforgettable are the services in the churches at the Christmas season. The event which Christendom celebrates is expressed in many ways, the exaltation and devotion of spirit of the worshippers, the mighty music which the masters of all the ages have been inspired to create, the great story of the First Christmas in Bethlehem of Judaea read to the congregations, the eager expectant spirit which fills all hearts and expresses itself in the lessons and in the sermons. There is nothing else like this in the whole Christian year.

For the church and the home are the two places of interest at this time, be the church large or small and the home that of the great of the earth or the humble cottage. The celebration touches the life of the church and the life of the family and links them together as the chief centres of attraction to the human spirit.

Neither church nor home has neglected to enshrine the children in the celebration for childhood is the central theme of Christmas with all the joys which gather round.

Christmas and Others

The Christmas spirit is the expansive spirit. It does not become thin or diluted, it is spread over more and more millions of people than ever. Without that very quality of expansiveness what we call Christmas would not be Christmas.

At this time men and women, boys and girls feel the impelling power of the spirit of Christmas to find out misfortune and shed if they can the glow of Christmas in places which but for Christmas might be a bleak waste.

Christmas is the time of friendship. The Cleveland Plain Dealer asks "What could be more bitter than Christmas without friends? Would a child outgrow the scar of Christmas without toys?"

Fortunately men and women and young people understand that fact, they show it in their acts, their remembering of the children at a time when the anniversary festivities are enjoyed which have clustered around the Birth at Bethlehem nearly twenty centuries ago.

Today many organizations are at work throughout many lands planning for joyous celebrations in as many homes as possible. Who does not call to mind those tireless spirits who year after year carry on this good work of making Christmas that great centre of the year, radiating happiness into the greatest number of homes? It is the highwater mark of unselfish spirit of the entire year.

This fact has caused many to think and feel and say that the same spirit should prevail throughout the year. Perhaps all could not live on this high plane of endeavor. But many still do act the part faithfully by spreading glow and sunshine.

This Christmas spirit does not grow weary in well doing. The charitable groups plan that where there is the possibility of families with very thin fare, additional viands will be provided to bring Christmas into as many homes as possible. And individuals, too, play their part in this noble effort.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How is the surname Huger pronounced?

"Huger," the name of an old South Carolina family that has produced many distinguished soldiers and statesmen is generally pronounced "yew-JEE."

The founder of the family in America was Daniel Huger, a Huguenot merchant, who settled in South Carolina in 1685.

Among the notable members of this family were Isaac Huger (1743-1797) and his four brothers, all of whom distinguished themselves in the Revolution as soldiers and statesmen.

When Lafayette, Baron DeKalb and ten companions landed in America in 1777 they were guided by some of Benjamin Huger's slaves to their master's plantation on North Island, near Georgetown, South Carolina. At that time Francois Kinloch Huger (1773-1855) was a small boy but old enough to form a lasting attachment to the young French nobleman who had crossed the Atlantic to help America win her independence.

During the French Revolution Lafayette was declared a traitor and banished from France. Because he had helped start the French Revolution he was seized and imprisoned, first in Prussia and then in Austria.

Meanwhile Francis Kinloch Huger had grown up and studied medicine abroad. While visiting Vienna in 1794 he learned that Lafayette was in prison at Olmitz. He and Dr. Justus Eric Bollman formed a plot to liberate Lafayette while he was on his daily ride in the park around the castle.

This plot succeeded temporarily but the party was overtaken near the Austrian frontier. Lafayette was returned to prison, where he remained until liberated by Napoleon in 1799, and Huger and Bollman were incarcerated for eight months.

Francis Kinloch Huger became a physician and soldier and married Harriott Lucas Pinckney, a daughter of General Thomas Pinckney. His son, Benjamin Huger (1805-1877) was a general in the Confederate army.

HOUSE COMPLETES

Almost before Mr. King had concluded his announcement, Gen. Pearkes shouted his condemnation of it, and he was silenced only after a general hubbub or desk-thumping and cries of "order". The general, blazing mad, had to be hauled back into his seat by one of his colleagues.

Another government move was the introduction of a bill to assist gold-mining companies. Finance Minister Abbott, in bringing down the measure, which generally was in line with an earlier announcement on this subject, said that the costs of operation on which assistance would be allowed would include a certain amount of exploration costs and depreciation charges.

The Bill received first reading.

It came on a resolution—eventually adopted—to extend from Dec. 31 to March 31 the government's powers under the Agricultural Products Act to requisition foodstuffs to fill contracts for Britain.

Before that resolution passed, the House heard Prime Minister Mackenzie King announce income increases for Civil Servants, war veterans, war pensioners and servicemen, and it heard an attack from the opposition on scope of the raises.

The $25,000,000-a-year increases, retroactive to October 1, vary according to the salary or pension scale of those affected, with those in the lower brackets generally receiving greater benefit.

Supporting U.S.

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent told the House Canada was supporting the United States suggestion that the Japanese peace treaty be drawn up by the 11 countries most vitally interested in it. Canada also supported over Russian and Chinese objections, the U.S. proposal that the system of a two-thirds majority vote prevail in the drafting of the treaty.

In the Senate, passage was given the Agricultural Products Act resolution. The Senators recessed until Jan. 27, one day after the resumption of the Lower Chamber.

Chief jousting in the Commons yesterday and last night came between Agriculture Minister Gardiner and John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Gardiner defended the government from charges that prices in the food contracts with Britain were too low and that removal of ceilings and subsidies from feed grains had sent up disproportionately the costs of Canadian Livestock producers.

In reply to charges that prices under the British contracts were too low, Mr. Gardiner said he was sure Canadians would not want to charge "starving" people any price they could get for wheat.

Mr. Bracken charged the Agriculture Minister and his department had led Canada's farm economy into "chaos" and he declared this was particularly true of the British agreements. In these, he said, the government had contracted for commodities at prices lower than they could be produced.

Earl Drope (PC—Northumberland) said the government should have provided more information on the British food contracts.

"The farmers want to know about the prices, and they want to know now," he said in a short speech.

GOVT. ANNOUNCES

It was learned that the pension increases accounted for $7,500,000 of the increased annual outlay of $25,000,000, jumping the present annual pension liability for the two World Wars $79,500,000.

Indicated that more increases may be announced later, particularly for higher classes within the Civil Service not affected by the present boosts. These latter scales were still under consideration by the government.

1. Clerical grades of the Civil Service, totalling about 40,000 of Canada's total Civil Service of some 121,000 will get increases over 1939 rates ranging from $30 a month for Grade One Clerks to about $40 a month for higher grades up to and including chief clerk.

2. Some 33,000 service personnel in the navy, army and air force will get pay and subsistence allowance increases. An army private now making $50 a month with a $45 subsistence allowance for instance, will get an $8 pay boost and a $9 a month subsistence allowance increase.

3. For totally disabled veterans and pensioned widows, the government will introduce a bill increasing the pensions by $10 a month. For partially disabled veterans there will be a proportionate increase in pension.

4. The government also will introduce legislation to provide supplementary allowances to veterans receiving war veterans' allowances and to widows receiving widows' allowances. The supplementary allowance will be up to $10 a month in cases of need for veterans and widows who through age or infirmity are unable to maintain themselves.

CALORIES AND FIGURES

Three out of four persons who develop diabetes are overweight and have been overweight for ten years before the diabetes is discovered.

Healthy persons on the callow side of thirty-five may tote a fifteen pound handicap with impunity. In fact physicians in the past have regarded moderate overweight in persons under thirty-five as a sort of assurance against development of active tuberculosis, although I don't understand why it should be so. It seems that the old timers noticed that young persons with advanced tuberculosis ("consumption") were more or less emaciated and from that observation they inferred that young people who were "well nourished" did not have tuberculosis, so perhaps superfluous fat kept such young people well. The flaw in this reasoning is that emaciation or loss of weight is the result, not the cause of the disease. Moreover young persons in the early stage of tuberculosis of the lung usually weigh as much or more than the average weight of healthy young persons—but the old timers seldom diagnosed pulmonary tuberculosis in the early stage before "consumption" or wasting occurred.

Putting on excess weight after thirty-five as so many do in our way of life is bad from every point of view—anterior, posterior or profile. Life insurance examiners regard it unfavorably because experience has shown that overweight after thirty-five lowers expectation of life.

Diet lists telling how many calories in this and that food item and reducing diets used by Hollywood stars are a dime a dozen and hardly worth the price. If an overweight individual is serious about reducing, he or she had better face the facts, especially these fundamental facts:

1. Two pounds a month is the most weight one can lose by any method without impairing health, efficiency and good looks, if any.

2. As I have harped for years, most Americans, both poor and well-to-do, suffer from malnutrition, and of course, the obese or overstuffed do too, so it is almost inevitable that the individual who "goes on a diet" without adequately increasing his or her daily intake of the essential vitamins and minerals, will develop new or more serious manifestations of nutritional deficiency, whether there is any noticeable reduction or not.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Raisins

I eat raisins in large quantities, in fact that is all I take for lunch. Will this give me too much sugar? Are raisins harmful in any way? (L.W.)

Answer—No, they're good food.

Orange Juice

You said vitamin C in orange juice is lost if the juice stands over night. Editor of Magazine said, it has been shown that if covered and kept in refrigerator orange juice may stand 24 hours without vitamin loss. (A. C. E.)

Answer —I still say gradual oxidation and destruction of vitamin C begins as soon as the juice is expressed and continues while it stands, whether covered or not. I do not mean that all of the vitamin C would be lost over night, but some of it is, and the magazine editor will have to cite some extraordinary authorities to dispute that. Sooner the juice is taken after expression the more vitamin C one gets.

Deafness and Head Noises

Please give your opinion of the ozone machine described in the inclosed pamphlet I think it is a fake, but my father wants to try it for his deafness and head noises. (M. G.)

Answer—The machine may produce ozone, but there is no reason to imagine ozone can have any remedial value in deafness and head noises. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address for pamphlet on "Deafness and Head Noises".

Save Your Teeth

Have you any information on pyorrhea? (C. B. M.)

Answer— If you provide stamped self-addressed envelope and inclose twenty-five cents I will send you booklet "Save Your Teeth"—It contains chapter on pyorrhea.

AVOID THUMB-SUCKING

Irregular teeth, which ruin appearance, may be due to childhood neglect. Thumb-sucking, lip-biting or mouth-breathing due to a nasal obstruction, all contribute to deformed teeth.

Three crops from One sowing...

EVERY DOLLAR you invest in life insurance is like a seed sown in fertile ground. But, unlike ordinary seed, your life insurance dollar yields three crops!

1. It produces an immediate estate for the protection of your family.
2. It builds up a savings fund that provides cash or credit for emergencies.
3. Grown to maturity, your life insurance savings give you the independence that makes old age the pleasant time of life.

Ask your Crown Life counsellor how you can make your savings yield three ways— protection, security, retirement.

WEDDINGS

HAYMAN—WARD

Evergreens tied with red satin bows, white chrysanthemums and white candles formed the decorations for a charming Winter wedding at Memorial Chapel, Albert College, on Friday afternoon, December 19th, when Phyllis Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley C. Ward, was united in marriage to John Samuel Hayman, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hayman, of London, Ont. Rev. Dr. Bert Howard was the officiating clergyman. The wedding music was played by Mrs. John Deacon and Mr. John Deacon was soloist.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in blush satin, with inset lace yolk, bouffant skirt with bustle back extending in a slight train. The bride wore a full length veil of embroidered net which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stevia.

The bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Hayman, sister of the groom, and Miss Jean Diamond wore similar portrait gowns of moss green with matching gauntlets. Their crownless hats were made of shirred ribbon, finished with large satin bows at the back. They carried shower bouquets of red roses and white baby 'mums with red and white streamers.

The groomsman was Mr. Donald Huyck, London, and the ushers were Mr. George Ward, brother of the bride, and Mr. James Hayman, brother of the groom.

At the reception in Ackerman Hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a fuchsia gown, black accessories and a corsage of cream roses, assisted by the groom's mother who wore a gown of gunmetal grey lace with matching feather hat and a corsage of green orchids.

For the wedding trip to Muskoka, the bride wore a cyclamen pink wool dress, topped by brown fur coat with brown accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Picton, London, Montreal, Madoc and Detroit.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. J. Hayman will take up residence at Albert College, where the groom is a member of the faculty.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. M. C. Ward entertained in honor of her daughter, when Miss Ward received with her mother.

Mrs. Harold Woodley invited the guests to the tea room, where the table appointments were very attractively arranged on a cutwork linen cloth, centred with a silver bowl holding red and white carnations and silver candelabra holding tall white tapers.

Mrs. Arthur Bateman poured the beverage and the guests were served by Mrs. Charles Coleman, Miss Ruth Hayman and Miss Jean Diamond.

Charity Ball Promises to Be Festive Event

A delightful party is being planned by the Hospital Auxiliary for Boxing Day night at Albert College to which Belleville residents and their friends are invited.

Accommodation is limited to two hundred couples and close to that number have already made their reservations for this gala social function of the Christmas Season.

Patrons and patronesses for the Ball will be Dr. and Mrs. Bert Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Legate, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Engelstad, Miss Laura Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Stobie, Mrs. R. M. Flynn, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wray, Justice and Mrs. C. A. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Scott.

Music for the dancing will be provided by the Top Hatters, and tables will be available for bridge players. There will be programs, floor prizes, balloons and serpentine. A plate supper will be served about the midnight hour and dancing will continue until two. Dress will be optional.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. E. M. MacDonald, Mrs. J. R. Scott, Mrs. F. H. Deacon, Mrs. R. D. Boyce and Mrs. J. P. Howe.

Tweed

Rev. A. Thompson Delivers Stirring Address in United Ch.

Tweed (Special) — Rev. Andrew Thompson, M.A., B.D., D.D., missionary from China, was the special speaker at St. John's United Church last Sunday morning.

He told of his experiences in Honan, China, and said although he was treated courteously, he was obliged to leave after five months.

He discussed his work in the Orient and said that certain work which he thought impossible of achievement, was successfully carried out. Mr. Thompson delivered an exceptionally fine message which was enjoyed by a large congregation.

Mrs. Dorothy Sager Goldie of Peterborough was heard in two beautiful solos "Jesu Bambino" and "He Smiled On Me." Mrs. Goldie has never sung more effectively before a Tweed audience. She was accompanied at the organ by Fred Porter.

The choir under the direction of Mr. S. H. Connor rendered an anthem "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear" with Mrs. Sharpe singing the obligato. The junior choir sang "Bethlehem Lullaby."

Women's Activities

AIKENS' W.A.

3rd Sidney.—The Woman's Association of Aikens' United Church held its December meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stanley Spafford with the President, Mrs. Murney Jeffrey, in charge.

The singing of Christmas carols opened the meeting, with Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton as pianist.

The Scripture, read by Mrs Perry Hamilton, was taken from the 3rd Chapter of St. John's Gospel, beginning with verse 16: "For God so loved the world He gave His Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life" A reading on the Scripture: "Message of Love" was given by Mrs. Cyril McMullen.

During the business period several items of business were discussed and reports were given by the Treasurer, Mrs. S. Marshall, and by the Secretary, Mrs. Pearson.

Mrs. Fred Moon and Mrs. Selburn Westover reported on Red Cross work.

The officers who had been elected for the year 1948 at the November meeting were installed by Mrs. Neelands, closing this part of the service with the hymn "Take My Life and Let it Be".

Christmas readings were given by Miss Ruth Spafford, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Carmen Grills, and Mrs. Pearson.

Before the closing hymn and the benediction, a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Mrs. Jeffrey, who thanked the officers and members for their co-operation and assistance during the past year, and asked that the same loyalty be given the new President, Mrs. S. Spafford.

A social hour was enjoyed and Mrs. Spafford and her daughter, Miss Ruth Spafford, served delicious refreshments.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

Ladies of Aikens' W.M.S. held a very successful informal afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton, Wednesday, December 17.

Plans were made during the afternoon for a gift service for "Food For Britain": These parcels are to be brought to the church on Sunday. These will be packed and sent with gifts of Bridge Street Church, Belleville.

A special feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a Life Membership to the Retiring President, Mrs. Everett Hubble, who for three years has given of her time and talents as an efficient and capable leader of the auxiliary.

Mrs. K. Jones read an appropriate address to Mrs. Hubble and Mrs. C. McMullen presented the Life Membership certificate.

Mrs. Hubble replied, thanking the Auxiliary for the gift and for the help and co-operation of members during her term of office. She said she hoped she would always be able to help in W.M.S. work.

Each member brought a donation to be added to this year's allocation and the proceeds were very gratifying.

Mrs. Hamilton and her assistants served a delicious cup of tea and dainty refreshments.

JOHNSTON W.A.

The meeting of Johnstown W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. Glenn Stickle on December 10th, with 19 members and one guest in attendance. Mrs. Dickie was in charge and the meeting was opened with a Christmas carol and The Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Earl Stickle read the Scripture. Several readings were given by members. Election of officers was then held and the following elected for the coming year:—President, Mrs. M. Mallory; 1st Vice President, Mrs. B. Hamilton; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. A. Vandervoort; Treasurer, Mrs. C. Curtis; Secretary, Mrs. Roy Harry; Press Secretary, Mrs. G. McLean; Pianist, Mrs. G. Stickle; Assistant pianist, Mrs. B. Hamilton; Buying Committee, Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. E. Stickle. At the conclusion of business the meeting was closed with another Christmas hymn and the benediction.

Then came the highlight of the afternoon, the drawing and unwrapping of Christmas gifts by everyone present. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee.

GENEROUS TIPPERS

According to waitresses, best tippers are movie directors and race horse owners; the worst are baseball players, barbers and women.

V.O.N. NEWS

With the President, Mr. C. B. Morgan presiding, the regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held in the Y.M.C.A., on Thursday evening.

The revised by-laws were read by the chairman of the committee appointed for that purpose, Mr. K. L. Reid and met with the approval of the members.

Plans were made for the annual meeting which will be held in February.

Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer, and also from the chairmen of the different committees.

Nurse's Report

Miss McGeary reported that there were 35 new patients admitted to the nurses' care during the month—the total of patients admitted to date this year being 734.

Three hundred and fifty-seven visits were made—154 in the interests of the mother and baby—19 to cancer patients—25 to patients suffering from chronic illness and 89 to patients with medical or surgical conditions. There were 52 visits made in the interest of babies of over one month of age.

The total number of visits to date this year is 4,807.

Miss McGeary suggested that the general picture of nursing in the homes was changing due to the administration of the new drugs such as penicillin, sulphonamides, and streptomycin. With these drugs being used patients are recovering from serious illnesses such as pneumonia, in a very short time, where formerly the patient was in bed two and three weeks. This meant that if patient was in hospital, he usually was up and around before he was discharged, thus not requiring further nursing at home. However, there will always be the patients with the chronic illnesses of long duration, and those who require bedrest for cardiac conditions. Aside from this group there are the mothers coming home from hospital with their new born babies, requiring instruction in the giving of the baby bath, the preparation of the formula, and the eating, sleeping and crying habits of the new born babe.

Rawdon

MT. PLEASANT MISSION BAND

Rawdon.—Mount Pleasant Mission Band held its December meeting at the church with Ruth Linn in the chair. Shirley McKeown played quiet music.

Betty McConnell read the lesson and Eleanor Smith contributed a piano solo. Ray Sharp read a Christmas selection and George Scott gathered the offering. Mrs. Burton Sharp outlined another chapter in the Study Book.

The Service closed with the singing of Christmas carols.

Messrs. Claude Sharp, O. Sharp, George Watson, Jack Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp attended the funeral of their aunt, Miss Jessie Blackie at Embro.

Mrs. Thomas Andrews spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine of Salem.

Mrs. Frank Easton was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jeffs.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp and "Bert" spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hagerman.

Mr. Arthur Weaver had the misfortune to hurt his hand while working with the McFarlane Construction Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fanning and their guest, Mrs. Ernest Brown.

Eleanor Suzanne, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bailey, was recently baptized at Carmel United Church by Rev. R. W. Barber.

Miss M. Hall spent the weekend with her parents in Lakefield.

Christmas Party By Oddfellows And Rebekahs

The Oddfellows and Quintena Rebekah Lodge held a joint Christmas Party in the Hall on Tuesday night. About two hundred attended including around seventy-five children.

A large Christmas tree was lighted from top to bottom and took the children's eye as they entered the hall.

Mr. Clarence Bird was master of ceremonies and welcomed them all to the party.

Miss Barbara Diment and her troupe of eight, put on a lovely entertainment which was enjoyed by all. Following are those who took part, Diana Mansfield, Sheila Fisher, Marian and Allan Tom, Sandra Randall, Brenda Archer, Garry and Gael Tremaine.

Jolly Old St. Nicholas was ably represented by Pete Belnap in costume assisted by George Macdonald and Mrs. George Ellsworth who handed each child a gift and bag of candy with orange and nuts. Presents were also exchanged for the older ones after which ice cream in dixie cups was passed to one and all

Noble Grand of the Oddfellows, Howard Akey, spoke a few words of welcome and thanked the Rebekahs for their assistance. Noble Grand of the Rebekahs, Dorothy Harwood, also expressed her appreciation of the wonderful turn out and thanked all those who in any way helped, including the Four Square Club and the Oddfellows who were on the committee.

Thanks also go to Mr. J. Harwood and special credit goes to Mrs. Doris Ellsworth, president of the Four Square Club and George Macdonald, Vice Grand of the Oddfellows for their efforts in making the party such a wonderful success.

IF IT'S BLADDER TROUBLE
Here is a medicine made specially for it!
What are you doing about your bladder trouble? If you are hoping that the burning, scalding and irritation will correct themselves naturally, you are taking serious risks with your health. Those painful symptoms may mean that impurities are in the bladder. Look to your kidneys—they may be the source of your suffering. These all-important organs have the vital task of helping to rid the system of waste products. If they become sluggish the pain-causing impurities accumulate and give rise to discomfort and distress. There is a way of helping to stimulate those kidneys to function naturally with a medicine made for the very purpose. For over half a century De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have been relieving bladder troubles by helping to cleanse and tone up the kidneys. Our files of world-wide testimony could convince you that this remedy can be relied upon for kidney and bladder troubles. De Witt's Pills are sold at drug stores everywhere.
Prices 60 cents (40 pills).

Team, Augmented by Line From New Edinburghs Of Ottawa, Played Fair Hockey

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Augmented by the high-scoring line of the Ottawa New Edinburghs, the Royal Canadian Air Force team, selected as Canada's representatives to the Olympic hockey games next year, defeated the Belleville Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Senior "B" team here last night by an 8-4 count.

The score did not indicate the difference between the teams. Previously the Flyers had bowed to an Ottawa Army team and to McGill University.

Last night the Olympic squad was definitely on the spot. They met a team in the Belleville squad that so far is untried and untested in their ability.

Packing lots of speed, the Olympic team was met by a stubborn defence on the part of the Red crew and time after time their speeding attacking divisions were repulsed by clever defensive work.

New Front Line

The definite highlight of the Olympic squad was the front line trio of the New Edinburgh team, which incidentally is leading the Ottawa City League. Ab Renaud, Hibbard and Schroeder of the "Burghs" and George Plumple of the Ottawa St. Pats.

However several faces were missing from the "Olympic" candidates" that battled the Trenton Flyers here some time ago.

But to get back to the game.

The Olympics packed lots of speed. Their plays, especially those of the "Burghs" clicked nicely. But the Reds came through with a neat defensive effort that deprived the "Olympics" of more goals than one.

The Red team, in fairness to them, missed Walt Gerow, Jr., laid up with a shoulder injury. Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams went out there and did a swell job, but the old one-two-three was missing.

At that we have seen the Reds team play better hockey. They perhaps might have been a bit stage-struck, but in that second period when they eventually got organized, but were out-lucked or beaten by the Ottawa goalie, they gave the Olympics something to think about.

A Speedy Gang

The Olympics as we saw them last night are a speedy gang of opportunists. Give the devil his due and you must admit that the "Burgh" line was the most potent scoring threat the Olympics had.

There is not much point in going into the scoring. Suffice it to say that, although the score was 8-4, these "sticks" lads from Belleville, as we said before, surprised the lads of the opposition with a grand display of checking.

Went All Out

The "Burgh" line of Renard, Schroeder and Leichnitz, did a swell job. Without this trio the Olympics would have something to think about.

On the other hand the Belleville crew went all out to cop the victory. They were amiss at times around the net, and their defence could have been better.

But they drove in for the kill on several occasions and they missed several chances.

As far as we could see, unsung thus far, the Red team that is, battled a potential representative team which will, it is presumed, represent Canada in the forthcoming Olympic hockey games.

From what we saw last night and the lads of the RCAF are doing their best, something else should be done if Canada is to take her rightful place among the hockey-minded nations of the world.

Don Barrett played a fine aggressive game. Timmy Williams and Leo Goyer did a fine job but they missed line-winger Walt Gerow. The scoring punch of the locals was definitely missing.

The teams:

Ray Robinson Still King Of Welterweights

By GLENN ENGLE

Detroit, Dec. 20 — (AP)—Welterweight king Ray Robinson's second challenger — chunky Chick Taylor — rested in hospital today, a sixth-round victim of Sugar Ray's still-lethal blows.

Robinson's technical knockout of the cocky aspirant before 16,975 fans here last night cleared away any fears that the champion might be slipping. From the outset the result seemed obvious but Taylor, always aggressive, cut short every Robinson rally through three rounds. In the 4th Sugar Ray connected with a barrage of rights and lefts to the head and body that left Taylor groggy. The fifth round was much the same but the plucky challenger weathered it.

Taylor came out fast for the sixth and was met with another flurry of left and right jabs and uppercuts. One looping left sent Taylor sprawling to the canvas. He got to his feet at the count of nine but he might as well have stayed down.

Robinson, lightning-fast and hitting hard, floored Taylor again a few seconds later. Taylor's manager, Jack Laken, threw in the towel as the count continued, and Referee Johnny Weber stopped the fight as the 10-count was sounded. Only 53 seconds remained in the round.

Taylor was taken to hospital, where a physician said he was suffering a possible contusion of the left kidney. He was ordered to spend the night there pending an x-ray examination.

Robinson's first challenger, Jimmy Doyle of Los Angeles, died after an eight-round technical knockout in Cleveland last June.

Detroit Wings Have Chance To Take First Place

(By The Canadian Press)

The National Hockey League teams just now are realizing that Santa Claus may have a lot of surprises for them.

With the heavy Christmas week schedule starting tonight, and only seven points separating the first five teams, it's obvious that great shuffles could come about.

It's too early yet however, to worry about the final placings and coaches of the teams can fiand the play-offs. The managers and coaches of the teams can figure that angle out.

What happens tonight is that Detroit Red Wings play at Toronto Maple Leafs, and if Wings beat the Leafs then the Detroiters are going to be in first place. Because they're only one point bhind Toronto right now.

The other game tonight has Boston Bruins playing at Montreal, and there's a case of both teams just having to win. Both Boston and Montreal are in a slump, and the Boston slump begins to approach the classic slump of the Canadiens which has seen the once-mighty Habitants sink down to fifth position.

Tonight's games of course will shuffle the standings somewhat but what intrigues Joe Fan is Sunday night's game at New York, where the rampaging Rangers entertain the Canadiens. Hottest team in the league right now, the Rangers have had the Indian sign on Canadiens all this season. The other Sunday games have Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at Boston.

With the standing showing such unusual aspects as Rangers in third place and Canadiens down in fifth, sports page gossip about the various player trades has taken on a minor tone. From now on its results that count.

YMCA Prepares Fine Holiday Sports Program

There are many highlights in the Y.M.C.A. Christmas program this year. One of the most outstanding of these is the finals of the basketball house league, which will see Ron Button's Dodgers and Al Galbraith's Rough Riders hook up in the best two out of three games for the "Y" championship. The first game of this series is scheduled for Tuesday night, the 23rd at 8.00 o'clock. As a preliminary fixture the girls of the "Y" swing into their play-off at seven sharp. This game brings together the Comets and the Yankees in a sudden-death final to give the winners a chance to meet the Flashes in the play-off, which will be a two game, total point affair. After Tuesday the next basketball night will be Monday the 29th., at the same time as previous. The ladies first and then the boys in the nightcap. The girls wind up on Jan. 2nd., when a winner will be declared at that time. If a third game is necessary for the Senior League, it will be played after the lassies are finished.

Also of note in this Yuletide program is the midget, juvenile and junior practice periods, on Monday next beginning at 7.00 p.m. The girls chocolate basketball tournament to be held December 30th., looks very inviting with a box of chocolates to be earned by each girl on the winning team.

The stellar attraction will be the invitation volleyball tournament which is being thrown open to any bhsiness man in Belleville on Saturday, Dec. 27, at 3.30 in the afternoon. There will be a nominal fee for each one of the contestants, and a good turnout is hoped for. Seems as though this might be a good beginning for some men around town to start trimming down that spare tire which sometimes pops up around the middle of the torso. Further information may be had by contacting the physical office at the "Y".

A few excellent films will delight the younger people of the "Y" during the earlier part of next week. On top of all this, floor hockey tournaments will also have their place in the program for the benefit of the Prep and Junior boys. Bowling tournaments will be run too, for the boys after Christmas. The smaller girls are not forgotten either for there is plenty of activity for them.

All in all it looks as though everyone is going to be taken care of during the next two weeks of festivities, at least around the Y.M.C.A. Visitors wil lbe especially welcome during this time and a membership into the Y.M.C.A. would be the ideal gift for young and old alike.

The following is the schedule:

Dec. 22—
2.00 p.m.—Preps and Juniors—Movies—Bring your towel and enjoy a swim after the movies.
7.00 p.m. — Midget Basketball practice.
8.00 p.m.—Juvenile Basketball practice.

Toronto Marlies Too Powerful For Flying Dutchmen

(By The Canadian Press)

A turbulent eight weeks behind them, some junior and senior squads last night left indications of their probable final scortions of their probable final mooring spots in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" and Senior "A" races.

Toronto's league-leading Marlboros edged the third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 2-1 at Maple Leaf Gardens and the second-place Hamilton Tigers downed the sixth-place Hamilton Patricias 6-3 in overtime at the Mountain City in senior fixtures last night.

In the other senior game at Stratford the Stratford Indians moved into lone third place with their 6-4 victory over the fifth place Owen Sound Mercurys.

Barrie Flyers took over fifth-place in the Junior loop, one point ahead of Galt when they smashed the eighth place Toronto St. Michael's 9-3 at Barrie. The seventh-place St. Catharines Teepees swamped the cellar-dwelling Toronto Young Rangers 8-1 at St. Catharines in the second junior tilt.

The Flying Dutchmen would have won at Toronto except for Marlboros' netminder Howie Harvey—again. Kitchener pressed the attack and revealed a surprisingly solvent Toronto rearguard. It was Toronto's 15th victory in 19 starts, with 12 penalties handed out.

Harry Psutka and Bobby Hassard, the latter just up from Marboros Juniors, tallied Toronto's counters in the first frame. Johnny Blute scored the Dutchmen's only goal in the second frame.

Three-Goal Splurge

With a three-goal overtime splurge Hamilton Tigers notched their 10th victory in 17 starts. Clarence Shillington and Ab Conick led Tigers' marksmen with two counters each. Johnny Conick and Tommy Smelle tallied once each for the Bengals. Patricia's' goals came from Hugh Barlow, Doug Runions and Killer Kilpatrick.

Stratford's victory over Owen Sound was their ninth in 17 starts. Mickey Roth led Stratford scorers with two counters, other Indian tallies coming from Johnny Messmer, Bill Walsh, Pete Long and Joe Fitzpatrick. Owen Sound marksmen were led by Doug Gillespie with two goals. Pat McCreavy and Miller tagged Mercurys' other tallies.

Ed Wildey's Young Rangers never give up. Last night they chalked their 15th loss in 17 starts as St. Catharines marked their eighth victory in 18 starts.

Jim Maxwell and Wayne Service led Teepees' attack with 2 goals each. Other St. Catharines' scorers were Fred Hildebrand, Fiery Goegan, Topper Toppazzini and Stocker. Rangers' lone goal came from Red Stephen.

Barrie notched their 10th victory in 15 starts over last season's Memorial Cup champions. Paul Meger led Flyers with three counters and Doug Ashbee tallied two. Frenchy Mayer, Bill Barrett, Jerry Reid and Sid McNabey scored Barries' other goals St. Michael's counters came from Wally Clune, Brian McAllister and Ray Barry.

Hamilton Tigers visit Brantford in tonight's lone scheduled senior game. Barrie Flyers meet St. Michael's Majors and St. Catharines Teepees meet Toronto Young Rangers in an afternoon junior twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens. Guelph at Oshawa, Toronto Marlboros at Galt and Stratford at Windsor are the 3 other junior games slated for today.

Hamilton Tigers Will be Team To Travel West

(By The Canadian Press)

Unless something else is injected to change the already-muddled picture, Hamilton Tigers will travel to Vancouver for the "Evergreen Bowl" series with the Blue Bombers, western junior football champions, under a guarantee of $3,500.

Earlier it was announced that Hamilton Wildcats would make the trip but when Vancouver officials found they had four overage players and the series would not be considered of championship calibre, but merely a non-title "exhibition" affair they "switched" the invitation. Now the winner of the series will be declared Dominion junior champions.

Bill Dickey, once New York Yankees' star catcher, has been offered the post of manager of Denver Bears in the class A Western League, it was announced in Denver yesterday.

Twelve members of the 15-man squad of the American Hockey Association team that will represent the United States in the winter Olympic Games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, have been selected. It was announced in Boston yesterday.

University of Michigan came from behind twice last night to register a 4-4 tie against University of Toronto in the second tilt of their two-game exhibition series. Michigan won the first game at Chicago Thursday night 3-2. The Toronto goal scorers last night were Warren Winslow, Cecil Turcott of Schumacher, Ont., Bob Henry and Ed Kryzanowski. Michigan scorers were Al Renfrew, Wally Gacek, Ted Greer and Gordon McMillan.

McGill University had little trouble in walloping Harvard University 9-4 in an exhibition hockey game at Montreal last night. Reggie, Dave Hackett, Mike Fischer, Jack Millar, Murray Hayes, Ward Pitfield, Phil Henry, Tom Hale and Cy Beigler scored for McGill. The Harvard goals were by Tom Moseley, who scored twice, Miles Huntington and Dave Abbott.

Cleveland's boxing commission has wired a request to Abe Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, that Gus Lesnevich's light heavyweight championship be declared vacated. The Commission noted that Lesnevich had refused a $50,000 offer to defend his championship against Ezzard Charles, rated by the N. B. A. as the No. 1 challenger and instead had signed for a bout with Billy Fox, who Lesnevich knocked out last February.

The Halifax Forum Commission decided yesterday to postpone final decision on banning broadcasts of Maritime Senior Hockey League games until Monday when Mayor John E. Ahern, commission chairman, returns to the city.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP).—In true Olympic tradition, the amateur-oath bogey finds Canada's hockey officials in a last-minute dither amid the full hue and cry of the pack that they ice a team worthy of the Dominion's hockey reputation or none at all.

It's a problem as old as the $-sign in sport—one highlighted specifically by Canada's own excellence in populating competitor countries with puck stars—and there's no dearth of late-day suggestions for solutions.

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller notes that the R.C.A.F. team, which Olympic officials now have decided must be bolstered from outside, would be "creditable representatives so far as deportment and sportsmanship are concerned." But he adds:

"It seems slightly ridiculous that Canada should send any team for Olympic competition that is sure to have its ears batted down. It would be much better to pass up the competition altogether."

Both Jack (London Free Press) Park and Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman campaigned for an intercollegiate team to be selected before the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association charged R.C.A.F. with selecting a squad of simon-pures. Recent events caused them to reiterate the stand.

Even with the R.C.A.F. team slated to sail Jan. 9, Coleman says it isn't too late to make a change.

"One of the university teams could be flown across the Atlantic to compete in the Olympic tournament—which after all requires only a week for its completion," he suggests. "The time lost from their studies by the studentts would be negligible."

To relieve the airmen's natural disappointment, "Why shouldn't the R.C.A.F. ferry the team to Switzerland and take along the Air Force hockeyists for the ride?"

Cause and Effect

Canada lost out in the last Olympics in 1936 to a British hockey team composed largely of native Canadians. The strongest 1948 competition will again come mainly from expatriate Canadians, none of whom travelled to far-off fields to play for fun.

So, as Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle points out, other teams will use "professionals garbed as amateurs and okayed by their country's top officials as simon pure" while Canadian officials are compelled to by-pass such teams as the Dominion champion Montreal Royals.

"Canada is obviously being played in the role of the only Olympian goat," he concludes.

Use of Solunar Tables in Bird Study

By JOHN ALDIN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

From time to time in these weekly news stories I have told you and re-told you that birds—all sorts of birds, from the tiniest of songbirds to the largest predators — live their daily lives in direct correlation with the Solunar Tables. That's another way of saying that birds are active and feeding during the Solunar Periods and are comparatively quiet during the intervening hours.

Gradually people are getting over the disturbing habit they once had of calling me a nature faker, a crook, a swindler, and so on and are coming around to my way of thinking. When I tell them something about the Solunar Tables, they no longer scream harsh names. Instead, they accept my rather surprising statements, no doubt with a grain of salt, for future consideration and, possibly, experimentation. As you read this, please have my assurance that there are literally thousands of men and women, scattered all over the United States and Canada, who make almost daily use of the Solunar Tables for one purpose or another.

But there is one group which, collectively, makes a pretty hard nut to crack — the professional scientists. The Solunar Theory not being a proven theory, so that it can be reduced to the status of two-plus-two-equals-four (which, of course, would remove it from the "theory" classification right now) these people who make their living from the sciences in which they specialize take a rather dim view of the Solunar Theory. Mostly they regard the Solunar Tables with closed minds and paternalistic, patronizing, pat-on-the-head attitudes and let it go at that. Here and there, however, I find individualists — The Forteans of their respective groups — who have found that the Solunar Tables actually do help them in their daily jobs.

There is one man (whose name is not mentioned here because he has not given me the authority to do do) whose job it is to safeguard threatened species of birds in our southern states, notable the egrets. He is a trained biologist and an able scientists and he is doing and has done important work with birds. Each year this man secures from me an adequate supply of Solunar Tables. In his daily work with birds, he finds it a great advantage to know, in advance, when to find them active and when to expect them to be at rest. The Solunar Tables tell him exactly that and have done so for a good many years.

In Washington, D. C., lives another practical scientists who works with birds twelve months out of each year. Knowing that this man made extensive use of the Solunar Tables (already he has had published several papers on the subject) I wrote to him—somewhat timidly, I fear — and asked him if he would give me a statement to that effect which could be published. To my great delight, he complied with my request. Instead of telling you what he said, let me give you the statement intact. This is exactly what he wrote:

To Whom it May Concern:

I have used the Solunar Tables in studies of the following organisms: Screech Owl, Barred Owl, Nighthawk, Starling, Tawny Frogmouth, Dogfish or Bowfin, Mexican Jumping Bean, English Sparrow.

I have found them very useful in predicting their periods of activity.

There have been numerous extended studies which tried to correlate activity to light, temperature and other common factors, but without success. I have found that their data, where published in sufficient detail, correlated with what the Solunar Tables would predict.

Consideration of the Solunar Theory had led me into the study of wildlife from the biophysical aspect, resulting in more satisfaction and discovery than had been realized through a previous twenty years of following the usual life history and taxonomic lines.

Leon Kelso.

You will note that not only nave his own observations been helped by the Solunar Tables; also, the works of others, where published in sufficient detail, show a definite correlation with the Solunar schedule. In addition, the use of the Solunar Tables has led him into new and useful types of research which may or may not have come about if he had not been acquainted with the workings of the Solunar Theory.

But you don't have to be a scientist to put the Solunar Tables to good use. All living things respond, to a greater or lesser degree, to the Solunar Periods. This winter, when you happen to have some spare time on your hands, why don't you see how your observations of wildlife, birds in particular, check with the results of these two men? I'll guarantee that you will learn many surprising things if you do. The reaction of wild creatures to the Solunar Periods makes an absorbing study.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert prides himself on having so few bridge faults. Trouble is that he makes the most of them. As a result, he is his own and his partner's worst enemy.

He has a habit of picking up a trick with one hand while leading with the other. During the process he overlooks many an easy play that he should have considered first.

Picture him in south as declarer at three no-trump in this deal.

West starts out with the opening lead of a heart. Dummy plays the jack and east covers with the king. This is a place where it is advisable to take a look into the future.

But Akoolap is already toying with a spade lead as his ticker ace scoops in the first trick. His first spade lead is taken by west and a heart shoots back. This forces the dummy queen.

East soon gets in with a spade and has a heart to return. This gives west enough of the red majors to kill the contract. And such a fate could have been avoided.

When east covers the dummy red jack in the first trick, the south hand should duck. Lest east keep this trick. Declarer still has two tricks in that suit with his ace and dummy queen.

A heart return is then taken with dummy queen. The hearts are still protected by the south ace. Declarer can go to work on the spades with just as many heart tricks to gain.

Declarer will now have stoppers enough to give up three spade tricks. The danger of west getting in with a heart on the third round of that suit is avoided.

In safety there will be two spades, two hearts, two clubs, and three diamonds. These are his needed nine tricks for the contract.

To the study of dangers some players are strangers.

Pictured above is the beautiful and lovely songstress, MISS ARLENE THOMPSON, who will delight the many patrons planning to attend the New Year's Eve Party at Club Commodore. Supper is being served, novelties, hats and horns will be plentiful and photographers from Alicia Photos will be available throughout the evening. The New Year will be rung in with a broadcast over CJBQ so as to give those at home a taste of the fun that will be had at this gala event.

Tickets are on sale at Club Commodore — Bill Cook's Cigar Store — and United Cigar Store.

MEASURE' CONTROLLING BUTTER PRICES

Quebec, Dec. 20 — (CP) — The Quebec city council last night adopted a resolution requesting the Federal government to impose an "emergency measure" controlling butter prices.

Alderman Damase Blais who sponsored the motion, charged that "speculators are responzible for the upward trend in butter prices by accumulating large stocks of the commodity in their warehouses."

Some retailers in the Quebec region yesterday raised the price of butter to 71 cents a pound.

Joe Louis Sure Of His Dollars On British Tour

London, Dec. 20. (Reuters)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis can be sure of his dollars when he comes to Britain.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was asked in the Commons Friday if he would prevent payment in dollars of £20,000 ($80,000) plus expenses to Louis for appearances in this country next Spring.

Said Sir Stafford:

"If Mr. Louis earns this prodigious sum here, he is entitled, like any other visiting American, to the dollar equivalent after meeting his expenses and tax liabilities."

Steve Belloise Decisions Bell

New York, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Steve Belloise sent Tommy Bell back to the welterweights last night.

Slow afoot but still packing a powerful right-hand punch, Belloise, 29-year-old New York middleweight, dropped the 24-year-old Youngstown, O., welterweight contender three times and won an unanimous 10-round decision in Madison Square Garden.

Outweighed 148½ to 159½, Bell couldn't keep off the Bronx belter. The Ohio Negro went down twice from rights in the second round for no-count and one-count, and was dropped again in the ninth for no-count.

30 ROUNDED UP

Baghdad, Iraq, Dec. 20 —(CP)—A police official said yesterday more than 30 persons had been rounded up in recent days and charged with "chaotic activities and Communist tendencies." Those held also were accused of intending to disturb order during the recent; demonstrations protesting the projected partitioning of Palestine.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 20 (CP)—Uproarious fun and gentle spoofing are wrapped into an agreeable package of entertainment in "Angel in the Wings," a revue which has just bowed in at the Coronet theatre.

Paul and Grace Hartman, who have often entertained night club patrons with their antic dancing, head a cast of enjoyable people who also give the impression of enjoying themselves.

The Hartmans appear in a variety of happily-contrived skits. One of them ridicules the current vogue of breakfast radio programs and another pokes mild fun at the singing technique of that vivacious entertainer, Hildegarde.

Hank Ladd paces the stars with some amusing material, conveyed in an engagingly casual, intimate manner. Elaine Stritch sings a riotously-funny version of the popular song "Civilization," of which more is liable to be heard, and there are some good exhibitions of straight dancing by Nadine Gae, Peter Hamilton and others.

Stage Shorts

Henry Fonda is returning to Broadway next February, after 10 years in Hollywood, to appear in "Mister Roberts," a new play by Thomas Heggen and Joshua Logan based on the book by the former David Wayne, the beguiling Leprechaun of "Finian's Rainbow," is leaving that production to join the cast of "Mister Roberts."..."Voice of the Turtle," John Van Drutens romantic comedy, now is into its fifth year on Broadway, making its run the fourth longest for a straight play on the local boards ..It ranks behind "Life With Father," "Tobacco Road" and "Abie's Irish Rose."

Arrivals and Departures

The Rodney Ackland dramatization of "Crime and Punishment," starring John Gielgud, which opens here Monday, will be the first Broadway production of the Dostoyevsky classic since 1935. Lillian Gish also is in the cast of 41. Co-producers are Montreal-born Robert Whitehead and Oliver Rea. Marc Blitzstein's "The Cradle Will Rock," a play with music will be revived for a limited engagement starting at the Mansfield theatre Dec. 26..."Caribbean Carnival" folded up last Saturday after only 11 performances. Other departures were "The First Mrs. Fraser" and "The Gentleman From Athens."

R.C.M.P. SEIZES STILL

Montreal, Dec. 20 —(CP)—R.C.M.P. officers yesterday seized a still located on north-end Taschereau Boulevard, capable of producing 100 gallons of bootleg liquor daily. According to reports, the still was under construction when seized, and no alcohol was found on the premises. Two persons were arrested.

FOUR ARRESTED

Nice, Dec. 20 —(Reuters)—Police have arrested four persons in connection with a forged pound note racket, it was announced last night. Forged sterling pound notes have already been found in a search of the suspects lodgings, it was added. The traffic is believed to involve about £5,000 ($20,000.)

CHAPTER 4

"What's the big idea?" Austin asked, with an accusing air.

"Never you mind," Vivian returned, "You keep out. It's all right: Jan quite understands."

"But I don't."

"You don't have to. Am I in the habit of explaining myself?"

"Do I ever ask you to? But I will ask you to remember the honor of the name. A Forrest doesn't do some things."

"Don't be melodratic. I am the head of the house, and my way is the law. If you want things different, go some place where you can find them."

"Oh hell, Viv. Be a good fellow; tell me your game. I just want my cue, that's all."

"I've no cue for you, except, to tell you that you are not to make up to Esmeralda, and that goes!"

"Whew! As bad as that?" and Austin went back to the living room.

Vivian followed him closely, went to Esmeralda and said, "Now, come out with me and have a look at the fountains while there's daylight."

"No; you said there were cocktails coming. I want one."

"I'll bring you back in time for that. Come along."

She smiled, tucked her arm though his and they went off.

"Now, listen to me," he said, sternly, as they went along the turf walk, "Unless you behave better, I will take you straight back to New York. You mustn't be so—so—rampant!"

"Dunno what that means, but I won't do anything you don't want me to do. What was wrong with the show I put on?"

"Everything! Oh, my dear, my sweetheart, how can I tell you, when you look at me like that?"

For the great eyes were pathetic in their penitence, and the too red lips drooped at the corners like those of a reprimanded child.

"I thought I was nice! Didn't I look all right?"

"You looked like a fairy queen! But you acted like an impudent hoyden. It won't do, you know. You can't take the people here by storm, even if you are as lovely as a Greuze head. Now, it's just possible that you can make good, if you go back and show a different attitude, but if you don't, you've got to go!"

"Now, I know you're just teasing me! You knew I wouldn't fit in here, you told me so. But you said I should carry things with a high hand and make my own place."

"I know I did, but—I think now, I made a mistake."

"Well, forget it, Vivian," Esmeralda said. "Here I am and here I stay, for a time, anyway, and if you want to welsh on your word, I don't really mind, for there are at least three men here I could put up with. That Peter person is a dear. I didn't get to speak to him, you hustled me so, but I know we'll click. And your brother is even nicer than you are. And that big, strong, silent man, Sayre, I think it is, is a wonder! I'd like to bring him to heel! Oh yes, I'll stay, and you can take me or leave me, as—I am told—is your habit."

They were now in a grove of conifers, and, unable to resist her impudent little face, Vivian Forrest drew her into his arms and kissed away all the lipstick from her lovely lips.

"Oh, if you could see yourself!" she cried, shaking with laughter. "Wait, I'll fix you!"

A bit of cotton and a bottle of perfume soon cleared Forrest's own lips of the red stain, and she said, saucily, "If I'd been as bad as you think I am, I'd have let you go back to the house looking like a circus clown! Now be yourself, and say you're glad I'm here."

"I won't say that, but I'll tell you if you flirt with those three men you counted off so glibly, you won't be here. You're only on approval, and something hints that you may not be entirely approved."

"Pooh! you're talking rubbish! Now, let's get back, and we'll see what's going to happen next, And, Vivian—"

"What?" he went down before the soft glance of those blue, blue eyes. "What, my darling, my love?"

"You said—you said, you would get a divorce from Jean and marry me—"

"Oh no, I didn't say that."

"You said, you'd try it—didn't you? Didn't you, dear? Didn't you say you'd try it? Didn't you?—"

Stop that parroting! Never mind what I said or didn't say. Come on back to the house. And don't you take more than one cocktail! You've got to get through the evening decently. Remember you"re among proper people."

"If I had known how proper they are, I wouldn't have come. But you're not proper, I know that! And I don't believe Austin is. Or Peter Haskell. That Sayre man is—but we'll see about him."

"Stop it, Esme! You know it stirs me to hear you talk about other men. Now, here we are, and talk to the women, not the men! See?"

"Oh, yeah! If I don't, it isn't your fault."

They had reached the porch, and Esme danced up the steps ahead of him and went into the living room with a quiet, demure air and a little smile.

She wanted to sit down by Suzy, but in order to impress Vivian with her intention of doing as he asked her, she went over to the sofa where Anne was and sat down by her.

Unabashed at the expression on Anne's face, which held no hint of welcome, Esme smiled sweetly and said, "Miss Fraser, what I want most here, is to see you fence. I am told you're the best women fencer in the club, and I've never seen a really good woman fencer."

Anne Fraser would have taken this speech for stupid flattery had it not been for the sincere gaze of the wonderful blue eyes and the pretty little air of deference that Esme showed so clearly.

Anne fell, as Esme had hoped, and the older woman fairly beamed as the girl listened earnestly to all the details of the great successes in meets and tournaments in which Miss Fraser's name led all the rest.

Austin overhearing a few words, turned aside to hide his amusement and wondered afresh what the little girl was after after all.

Peter Haskell, unwilling to wait longer, came to them with a pair of cocktails on a tray. Anne refused, saying she had had one. Esme took one, downed it quickly, and took the other.

"Good for you, Miss Fane," Haskell said. "You need reviving after having 'Fencing Taught in One Lesson'! Not that you could find a better teacher. Anne is our star, and if you can learn at all, you can learn from her."

"I know a lot already," and Esme smiled once more at her teacher. "Now, Mr. Haskell, take me to my hostess. I haven't really met her yet."

"Come along," Peter said, albeit a little fearsomely, for he didn't know exactly how things were going.

Jean saw the advance and was conscious of a wild panic of fear, an impulse to run out of the house and never come back.

But she conquered it quickly and greeted her new guest with a smile.

"Sit here by me," she said to Esme, "and tell me about your work. I have never known a real film star before."

"I can hardly say I am a film star. just make good in the parts that are suited to me. And Viv is such a dear, isn't he? He sort of belongs to us both, doesn't he? And will you show me the baby, someday? I adore babies, except when they cry."

Jean Forrest came nearer to losing her temper than she ever had before in her life. She wanted to hit the girl. Astrange, primitive rage came over her, but she controlled it and said, carelessly, "Someday," and then rose and walked away. If she had stayed, she couldn't answer for what she might have done. She crossed the room as if on an errand.

And Sayre followed her.

Outside, in the hall, he laid his hand gently on hers, saying, "Can't I help?"

"I don't see how," she said, and smiled at him.

And then dinner was announced and they all went to the dining room.

Jean seated the guests by verbal directions. Touching the chair at the head of the table, she said to Esme, "Sit here, please," and smiled as she went herself to a seat at the side."

"Just a whim of mine," she murmured, by way of explanation.

She had put Haskell and Austin on either side of Esmeralda, and Brandon Sayre was seated next herself.

But the way the situation was put over did not please Esme.

Instead of taking Jean's place by right of conquest, she had been put there as a pawn in a make-believe game for a spoiled child.

And so a little rattled, she tried to carry it off with a high hand.

"Now I'm Queen Esmeralda," she said, smiling round the table.

All eyes dwelt on her as the loveliest thing they had ever seen, but there was no spoken response, until Vivian said, "You are indeed." And he watched Jean. She nodded perfunctorily at Esme, and then turned back to Sayre in absorbed conversation.

But Esme was well looked after. Austin and Haskell vied for her attention, and on the whole she behaved pretty well, while her beauty made up for any lapses of decorum. It was a case of "Look in her face and you'll forget them all."

Later, they gathered in the gymnasium. The tournament would be next Saturday and today was Sunday. There were some final plans to be made, but more important was intensive practice on some point of position or techique.

Esme, uninterested in the fencing talk, and showing it plainly, devoted herself to entertaining one man after another, and Vivian watched her with growing wrath.

Finally, he went to her, and took her away from a small love seat where she was sitting tete-a-tete with Austin.

He led her outside and across the lawn to the rose pergola.

"Emeralda," "You know I forgot I forbid you to flirt with those men! Now, don't say—"

"Oh, no! I won't say anything. When you call me Esmeralda, I know you don't love me anymore."

Enough moonlight flittered through the rose vines to let him see her lovely, troubled face, and he grasped her in a mad embrace.

DOGS BREAK LOOSE, SPREAD ALL OVER HARBOR TOWN

Gig Harbor, Wash., Dec. 20—(AP) — Joe Chandler, 88-year-old retired fisherman, had for many years gathered up and cared for the town's stray dogs.

Last week he left 12 canines behind when he was brought to a Tacoma hospital after being taken ill. The dogs broke loose and spread all over this harbor town.

City Marshal Robert Mitchell went out after the yelping, howling, food-foraging pack. Today he's in the hospital, too — from overwork in chasing the dogs. Attending physicians say he'll be there several weeks.

STILL IN PRISON

London, Dec. 20 (Reuters) — Reports that Hjalmar Schacht, one-time Nazi financial wizard, is working on a financial plan for western Germany were officially denied here today.

Officials said Schacht is still in the German detention camp at Ludwigsberg, in the United States zone, where he is serving an eight-year sentence by a German denatizification court which he received after his acquittal by the International Military Tribunal at Neurnberg.

Trenton

Quinte District Police Assoc. Holds Banquet

Trenton — The Quinte District Police Association held its December meeting in the Provincial Police office, Shire Hall, Picton, on Sunday last followed by a banquet at the Royal Hotel in the evening.

President of the association, J. Clair Hayes, Inspector of Belleville police, presided at the afternoon meeting. Secretary Don Cooper, C.P.R. Constable, Trenton read the minutes and correspondence and gave the treasurer's report.

Discussion took place regarding pensions and Secretary Cooper said that police associations are striving for national equalized pensions.

Plans for a joint dance sponsored by the association and Picton Kinsmen Club to be held at Picton Armouries, March 17th were discussed. Provincial Constable Harry Caldwell, County Constable Jim Lovelace and Picton policeman George Pitt were appointed a committee to work in conjunction with the Kinsmen Club in arranging the dance, with all power to act.

Arrangements were also made to hold the annual police dance in Belleville, with Belleville district policemen in charge of the event.

Aims and objectives of the association were presented in detail by the secretary. These include:

1. Standard wages and working conditions for all policemen. (This was interpreted as representing payment of a fair wage which will amply provide for the well being of each policeman and his family).
2. Pensions.
3. Vacation with pay.
4. Standard uniforms to be provided by the municipality
5. Police schools.

Number of Guests

The Banquet was attended by police members of the association and their wives, and a number of guests, including Judge Lane and Mrs. Lane, Mayor Nethery and Mrs. Nethery, Justice of the Peace Clarence Rutter and Mrs. Rutter, Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley, William G. McLean and Pat Hodgson, representing the local press, Picton.

A toast to the ladies was sponsored by C.P.R. Constable Don Cooper, Trenton, and responded to by Mrs. Charles Moore, Belleville, President of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Picton Mayor, Lancelot Nethery, thanked the police for their hospitality, paid tribute to the ladies, and described in detail a court action in England which emphasized his theme that the basic thing a police officer should remember is that our society is founded on securing the rights of the individual. Our laws are made for the purpose of protecting the rights of the private individual. "It must be a temptation to take short cuts in your position," the mayor remarked to the policemen. "It must be difficult and frustrating that due to some technicality you are unable to accomplish the task you have undertaken. But you should remember an efficient police force is not an end to itself—you are upholding the fundamental principles on which our society is founded" the mayor said in conclusion.

Judge Wilfrid Lane commended the police from the standpoint of the Bench. We feel we must depend greatly on the police, he said, adding that the police should have no desire for conviction or acquittal, but to give the facts as they see them; not to color them.

"With one or two exceptions, I have found the police in this district thoroughly honest," he said, adding that he hoped this situation would continue, as great confidence is placed in all police officers until that confidence is displaced.

"Society recognizes laws which sometimes appear on the surface to be ridiculous," the judge continued. "The reason the courts do not admit statements given to the police is not because the statement discloses the truth. Under certain circumstances the person questioned may be given the "third degree" and is liable not to tell the truth. It matters greatly if he tells the truth. It is easy to get rid of a question by telling any kind of a story. We must remember that laws are passed, not for an individual, but for the benefit of the most people," the Judge pointed out.

Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley, K.C., Clarence Rutter, W. G. McLean and Pat Hodgson spoke briefly.

Provincial Constable Harry Caldwell introduced Judge Lane and Mr. Walmsley and Constable George Pitt introduced Mayor Nethery.

Confer Degree

The officers and degree staff of Quinte Queen Rebekah Lodge No. 135 spent a most enjoyable evening in Cobourg on Tuesday, December 16th.

While there they conferred the Rebekah degree on two candidates in the presence of Sister Isabel Carr, Assembly Warden who was paying her official visit to Duke of Kent Lodge No. 326.

The degree team and soloist Sister Lucy Phinney were also received and welcomed. At the conclusion of the degree, Sisters Phinney, B. Dunfield and E. Cowdy sang "Silent Night, Holy Night" which was very ably rendered.

At the end of the meeting, which closed in the usual manner, all partook of very tasty refreshments.

Driver Pinned In Cab of Truck, Two Ribs Broken

Picton—Pinned in the cab of the truck he was driving when it overturned in a deep ditch, Muir Van Vlack was admitted to hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from two broken ribs and internal injuries. His condition is not regarded as serious.

Mr. Van Vlack was driving from his farm at Cressy to Kingston with a load of apples. The rim on the wheel of a truck broke and the tire blew out. The truck careened a distance on the slippery road before it turned over in a deep ditch east of Waupoos village. Mr. Van Vlack was unable to get out of the cab. He pressed on the horn until it attracted attention of school children. They reported the accident to Keith Rose who called neighboring farmers to the scene. With a tow truck they succeeded in getting the truck back on the road and releasing Van Vlack who was rushed to hospital in an ambulance. He is reported as resting comfortably.

New Organization Of Picton Growers

Picton, Dec. 20 (Special).—Picton grocers have formed an organization for the purpose of dealing with problems which confront them, and to purchase some items collectively in large quantities to secure discounts. Each grocer will act as president for one month. Vernon Lockwood is secretary and Fred Stafford, treasurer. The group plans to have retail experts address their meetings.

William Slaven of Goose Bay, Labrador, is with his father, Mr. Harry Slaven, for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Teddy Rose, Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rose, Belleville, will spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rose who are celebrating their golden wedding.

Mrs. Glen Mowbray sailed yesterday from St. John, N.B., on the Empress of Canada for a three months' visit in England with relatives.

Russell Leavitt, Kingston; will spend Christmas with his mother, Mrs. Roy Leavitt.

Miss Eileen McCalpin, teacher at Gananoque, is spending the school holidays with her father, Mr. Fred McCalpin.

Miss Horace Knapman has resumed her training at Kingston General Hospital after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Knapman.

Miss Betty Cox returned yesterday from a visit with her brother, William, and Mrs. Cox, at Mitchell, Ont.

Mrs. D. N. Morden is spending a month with her son, Dr. E. Morden, Brantford.

At the closing of the collegiate for the holidays on Friday, Miss Evelyn Boyd will go to Niagara Falls; Glenn Clarke to Napanee; Miss Clare Carew to Lindsay; Miss Beryl Campbell to Toronto; Miss Elizabeth Wright to Bath; Miss Jean Williamson to Haileybury; Miss Kathleen Jordan to Georgetown, Ont

Capital Closeups:

13 Members in Parliament With 21 or More Years Service

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, dean of the House of Commons' "old timers," thanking parliament for its good wishes as he marked his 73rd birthday anniversary last Wednesday, surprised a lot of people by noting the Commons has 13 members with 21 or more years' service.

The 13 have been in parliament for a total of 306 years — an average of more than 23.

Mr. King, with 31 years, heads the list. Hon. C. G. Power (L-Quebec South), former air minister who resigned the cabinet during the 1944 conscription crisis, holds the record for unbroken service in the Commons—30 years.

Last Wednesday's recognition of service was two-fold. On the Prime Minister's desk as he entered the House were 73 roses—and on Mr. Power's there were 30.

Mr. King listed these other members, who first were elected in the early 1920s:

J. H. Harris (PC-Toronto Danforth) 26 years' service, Mark Senn (PC-Haldimand) 26 years, Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind L-Temiscauata) 23 years, A. C. Casselman (PC-Grenville-Dundas) 22 years, Maxime Raymond(BP-Beauharnois-LaPrairie) 22 years, Hon. Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin-Simcoe) 21 years, T. L. Church (PC-Toronto - Broadview) 21 years, J. A. Bradette (L-Cochrane) 21 years, Rt. Hon. J. L. Ilsley (L-Digby-Annapolis-Kings) 21 years, and R. H. McGregor (PC-York East) 21 years.

"May I say to these old-timers," Mr. King continued, "these old friends, how deeply I have appreciated the association we have had together through the years, and how warmly I wish for them all that is best in the future."

The Prime Minister, as dean of the "old-timers," said that "in many ways I could wish the figures might be reversed, and that it might be (my) 37th anniversary."

Mr. Power, in accepting congratulations said that he, like others who have served in public life, would like to write a book about "this Commons House of Canada."

"I would tell of the long and painful progress down five rows of seats to the front benches, and I would tell also of the short and rapid transition from a private car to an upper berth. I would perhaps dedicate it to the overambitious youth who inhabit the back benches and also to the over-pretentious elderly ones who inhabit the front benches. . . ."

ROWBOAT CATCHES ON ROCK

Boston, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Charles Dunbar, 56, watchman who makes his rounds in a rowboat, went aground Thursday and wound up in a hospital suffering from exposure. Dunbar, who works for a dredging and contracting company, told police his boat caught on a rock while he was patrolling off Charlestown, where his firm is constructing the foundation for a new tunnel dock.

Year's Probation Given Mrs. Curry For Abduction

Toronto, Dec. 20. (CP) — Mrs. Doreen Curry, 21, of Havelock, Ont., who last Oct. 9 abducted one-month-old Susan Hughes because she thought she could not have a baby of her own, Friday was placed on a year's probation.

She also was told that recent medical reports showed that there was no reason why she could not have a child of her own.

The 21-year-old woman took the baby from a baby carriage outside a downtown Toronto department store and took it with her to her home at Havelock, police said.

Mrs. Curry pleaded guilty to a charge of abducting the child.

After an intensive search for the child by police, acquaintances recognized the baby which the childless mother said was her own as the one for which the search was being conducted and notified police.

From the time of her arrest, Mrs. Curry said she had taken the child because neighbors had "teased" her because of her childlessness.

Married at 17, Mrs. Curry suffered a back injury after her marriage which made her believe she was physically incapable of having children. Revelation that there was notihng to prevent her having children came as a result of medical examinations she was given at psychiatric hospital to which she was committed for observation following her arrest.

When arrested, she told police she had come to Toronto seeking to adopt a baby but had been refused and that when she saw Susan Hughes, delicate special formula baby, outside the department store, she first picked the child up to admire it and then walked off with it.

Mr. Curry told the court that in addition to moving away from Havelock, so that his wife would not be chided, he also had given up his railroad job and taken work in another field so that he could be with her more.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

CHRISTMAS DINNER

Each year around this date bird watchers in or on the outskirts of our cities and towns identify an average of two dozen species of birds enduring our chilly climate. Whether or not the weather happens to be stormy the day the parties go out to take the census determines to a great extent the numbers found. Of course they know many more are hiding from view. What are all these birds having for their Christmas dinner?

Seed eaters are in the majority. Some have been with us all along and are staying on indefinitely, as our English Sparrows; a few are tarrying a while longer, as the Slate-coloured Juncos; a number have come from the north to spend their winter holidays with us, as the Redpolls and Snow Buntings. We all know the House Sparrows will eat almost anything in the way of refuse or waste grain. The others prefer weed seeds, and congregate in spots where these show above the snowy ground.

Left over, useless fruit encourages Bohemian Waxwings to wander our way, and keeps some Cedar Waxwings from leaving us. Purple Finches and Robins too may delay their going if they are able to secure some wild fruits or berries. The same fare will suit the Starlings, but they seem to be able to subsist on garbage. Crows sometimes, stay with us quite a while longer, for they are apparently used to eating a great variety of food, including wild fruits, seeds, grain and rubbish Blue Jays like fruit and grain, but at this season acorns are preferred.

Winter holds no fears for the Hairy and Downy Woodpeckers. Their favorite insects may be found on the bark of trees at any season. The same may be said for the Downy's friends and travelling companions, the Chickadees and Nuthatches, and also for the little Brown Creepers.

As long as there is some open winter the Herring Gulls, Mergansers, and Golden-eye Ducks can be supplied with fish. The Great Horned Owls enjoy nothing better than squirrels and chipmunks, although they eat almost any kind of bird or small animal up to the size of a crow or a rabbit. Grouse are perfectly content if they can feed on the evergreen buds. But the Goshawks are quite satisfied if they are able to discover either small birds or animals for their Christmas dinner.

Sabbath Disorders Add 10 More to Toll Of Fatalities

Large Scale Arab-Jewish Fighting Breaks Out at Yazur

Jerusalem, Dec. 22. (AP)—Reliable private sources said today that "large scale" Arab-Jewish fighting had broken out this morning at Yazur in Southern Palestine—scene of clashes yesterday which brought to 300 the unofficial count of deaths since the United Nations decided to partition the Holy Land.

The sources said the fighting today broke out when sizeable Jewish forces—presumably units of Hagana—attacked Arab bands in reprisal for recent Arab attacks on Jewish truck convoys. Yzur is on the main highway between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

There were no immediate reports on casualties at Yazur, but a checkup of scattered disorders throughout the Holy Land yesterday showed that ten more persons had been added to the toll of dead.

The wounded yesterday included a British lieutenant and a sergeant major, who were shot down in the centre of Jerusalem by four unidentified youths. A British army wireless operator also was wounded when an Arab band attacked two armored cars with machine-guns near Tulkurm.

The sharpest clash between Jews and Arabs was reported in the town of Safad in Upper Galilee, where one Arab was killed and three Arabs and two Jews wounded in the third straight day of fighting.

The town, which has a mixed population of Arabs and Jews, was placed under a curfew until further notice.

In Southern Palestine two Jews were stabbed to death near the village of Yazur when the oil truck in which they were riding was stopped and set afire by a number of Arabs.

Northwest of Jerusalem three occupants of an Arab bus were slain when 15 or 20 men wearing the uniforms of Palestine police force constables riddled the machine with gunfire.

Jewish sources said the fighting Safad broke out when Arab snipers fired on a Jewish observation post near the town hospital. An Arab band fought a pitched battle with a Jewish truck convoy in the same area Saturday night after Jewish fighters had attacked the border village of Khisas the previous day, killing ten Arabs.

Attached to the Notorious Oscwiecim Extermination Camp

Krakow, Poland, Dec. 22 (AP)—Krakow's Supreme National Tribunal today sentenced 23 top-ranking German S.S. (Elite Guard) officers to die for crimes against humanity committed while they were attached to the notorious Auschwitz (Oscwiecim) extermination camp.

Five other defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment, six were given 15 year terms, two were sentenced to 10 years and three to five years. On defendant — Dr. Hans Munch of Munich — was acquitted.

Heading the list of those sentenced to death was Artur Leib-Henschel, 46 who succeeded Rudolf Hoess, one-time commandant of the camp who was executed last April.

Death sentences also were given to Max Grabner, 42, assistant camp commandant, Hans Aumeier, 41; Johan Kremer, 64; and Maria Mandel, 35. Kremer was convicted of putting thousands of war captives to death by psuedo-medical experiments.

Poles and foreign observers listened to a nine-judge Supreme Tribunal describe the defendants as mass murderers.

The prosecution had estimated that 4,500,000 people died from starvation, torturing, hanging and in the gas chambers at Auschwitz 50 miles west of Krakow, during the war.

Four shabbily-dressed women were among the defendants. The Mandel woman was separated from the others. Chief assistants in the killings at the camp, Clarissa Brandel, 36, and Hildegard Lechert, 27, were sentenced to life imprisonment. The other woman, Alice Orlowski, got 15 years.

Japs With Odd Names Sentenced

Ottawa, Dec. 22. (CP)—Fish Face drew 30 years; Whirling Dervish and Harold Lloyd 18 apiece; Jack Dempsey 15 and Three-Fingers six years, in the latest batch of Japanese war criminals sentenced for crimes against Allied soldiers including Canadians.

Violet Eyes, apparently a relatively tender character, got off with three years.

These, according to word received here today, were some of the nommes-de-guerre of Jap officials in the Nagoya area prison camp where Canadians were among those ill-treated. They have just been convicted and sentenced.

Fish Face was the Canadians' name for Tokuichi Tanaka, a particularly brutal civilian stationed at the camp. He got the longest sentence—30 years at hard labor.

A former camp commandant, Yiroshi Tanka, was convicted of abusing prisoners and sentenced to 16 years at hard labor. In all, 21 were found guilty of war crimes in the latest batch and the sentences ranged from one to 30 years.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 22 — (CP)—Synopsis: A polar air mass over Hudson Bay is pushing slowly southward, maintaining cold weather over the northern White River and James Bay regions. Meanwhile the lower lakes regions are becoming relatively milder under the influence of a southerly drift of air from the central states. There will be increasing cloudiness over Southern Ontario tonight followed by strengthening northeasterly winds and probably some occasional snow on Tuesday. As the storm progresses eastward the colder air over the northern sections of the province will be drawn over the southern sections and this will cause falling temperatures Tuesday evening. ....

BRITISH LABOR IN DRIVE AGAINST COMMUNISM

Secretary Asks Unions To Take Offensive

London, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Britain's ruling labor party today launched a campaign against Communist "infiltration and intrigue" within the organization and the Communists immediately branded the drive a United States-inspired plot to link this country with France and Italy in an attempt to split the trade unions.

Warning that the Communists were out to "sabotage" the government, Labor party secretary Morgan Phillips dispatched a letter to all labor groups — including the trade unions — in which he urged that they take the offensive against Communist influence within the party.

The Communist Daily Worker at once retaliated by declaring:

"This attack follows month of preparatory work by the United States state department, acting partly through its embassies and partly through paid agents of the American Federation of Labor.

"Their aim is to split the unions of Franch, Italy and Britain. Phillips' letter obediently parallels the tactics used by the reactionaries in France.'

This obviously was a reference to developments last Friday in Paris, where the anti-Communist minority wing of the Communist Confederation Generale Du Travail (C. G. T.) voted to secede and form its own national trade group.

In his letter Phillips said that the British Communist party had joined the Cominform's "cold war" against the western brand of Socialism and against the Marshall aid plan for European recovery.

"We can expect Communist-inspired attempts to foment discontent in factories and workshops, which may result in slowing down and hampering the production drive," he said.

50,000 in Britain

According to best estimates, based on recent election returns, there are only about 50,000 communists in Britain, but they hold a number of key trade union posts — especially among groups vital to Britain's recovery program as the miners, engineers and transport workers.

Even as Phillips letter was being distributed the Moscow radio launched a new blast against the Marshall plan, declaring its "essence" was "war."

The Moscow broadcast said:

"When the United States announced a four-year program of expenditure to revive Germany's heavy industry, her war potential, one recalls another four - year program for the development of German economy — the notorious plan of Goering and Hitler.

"This plan was adopted in 1936, to prepare the German war machine for the Second World War . . ."

From conversations with both western and eastern representatives attending the recent Foreign Ministers Conference here, observers foresaw the following possibilities early in 1948:

1. The eastern and western

CHARGED WITH GROSS INDECENCY

London, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Dr. Charles R. Walsh, 66, former medical practitioner here, was released on $4,000 bail Saturday when he appeared in court on a charge of gross indecency. Police said the charge involved three London boys. A further charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors will be heard in juvenile court Jan. 9.

Hitler Warned of Defeat Six Weeks After Allies Landed on June 6, 1944

London, Dec. 22 (AP) —German commanders warned Adolf Hitler of defeat in the west within six weeks after the Allied armies landed on June 6, 1944, Germany army documents made public last night by the war office disclosed.

On July 22 Field Marshal Guenther Von Kluge, who had taken over command of German troops on the invasion front from Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, reported to Hitler:

"The moment has drawn near when this front— already so heavily strained — already so once the enemy is in open country an orderly command will hardly be practicable with the insufficient mobility of our troops.

"There is no way by which, in the face of the enemy air force's complete command, we can find a strategy which will counterbalance its actually annihilating effect without giving up the field of battle.

"I came here with the fixed determination of making effective your order to stand fast at any price. But when one has to see by experience that this price must be paid by the slow but sure annihiliation of the force... Anxiety about the immediate future of this front is only well justified."

Von Kluge enclosed with his report a gloomy one from Rommel dated July 15, just two days before Rommel—according to German accounts — was critically injured when Allied planes attacked his automobile.

Rommel reported: "The position in Normandy is becoming more difficult daily and is approaching a serious crisis. Owing to the intensity of the fighting the exceptionally strong supplies of material of our foes, especially in artillery and armored vehicles, effect of their air force which commands the battlefields unchecked, our own losses are so high that the fighting has shown even the bravest unit is shattered bit by bit through the supplies of material possessed by the enemy."

Rommel concluded: "The unequal combat is nearing its end. It is in my opinion necessary to draw the appropriate conclusions from this situation. I feel it my duty as commander of the army group to express this clearly."

On July 24 the headquarters staff of German Army group B reported that German losses from June 6 to July 23 totalled 116,863 men, including 10 generals, eight general staff officers and 158 commanders.

Bevin Expresses Hope U.S. Will Not Cut Assistance

London, Dec. 22 — (CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin said today he hopes the United States Congress will not reduce appropriations for the European recovery program because another war would cost "a thousand times over."

Addressing the Association of American correspondents in London, he said no one must be allowed to prevent countries willing to co-operate from making the Marshall plan a success.

Bevin said "the curtain has rung down on the first act," interim aid, and President Truman's recent declaration signalled the start of the second act.

He welcomed State Secretary Marshall's idea that Europe should help herself.

"This action produced a magnificent response." France is making a supreme effort . . . what is true of France is true of Italy and indeed all the 16 countries which assembled in Paris."

Bevin denied that Britain is not doing all possible help herself.

"History will be our witness as to the recovery made after the terrible devastation of war.

"It is true that the financial problems that arose due to a variety of causes, made us divert and change the course of things to some extent, but the total effort of Great Britain is working out as we planned and as we expected it to when we began demobilizing the forces and munition workers.

"I say to our American friends and the American people, you need have no fears about Great Britain or the British Commonwealth or any of the 16 nations which came together in the conference . . ."

"Thirst Was Terrible" Says Man Who Spent 8 Days in Locked Car

Fort Smith, Ark., Dec. 22 (AP)—A man who spent eight days and nights without food or water while locked in a box car said "I feel like I can never get enough water."

At a hospital where he is recovering from effects of his experience, Earl Harrison 24, told newspapermen "I never did feel particularly hungry but the thirst was terrible."

Harrison, suffering from malnutrition and frostbite, was found in the lumber-loaded car when it was opened here Friday.

He said he climbed into the car at Well, Nev., Dec. 11, thinking it was going to Ogden, Utah. He had planned to return to Saginaw Mich., after quitting his job with the Southern Pacific Railroad on the Ogden-Wells division.

"I climbed upon top of the lumber and must have gone to sleep at once," Harrison related.

"When I woke up, the car was standing still and I found the door was locked.

"I pounded and hollered but I did not get panicky. I knew there was no use losing my head.

"I knew the first night that my feet were frozen. The lumber was piled high in the car, and I didn't have room to move around to keep my circulation up."

Harrison declared that he didn't lose consciousness throughout the harrowing trip and was conscious when discovered Friday.

"I tried to think of everything pleasant I could so I wouldn't go nuts, but I took it for granted after I hadn't had any luck making myself heard that I didn't have much chance to come out alive," he said.

"One of the worst things was hearing car knockers and oilers working outside, knowing they were so close and not being able to make them hear me."

Hospital attendants said he had shown "remarkable improvement" since being admitted. Feeling has returned to his hands and partly to his legs, Harrison said.

300,000 Food Workers Decide To Return to Jobs

Rome Dec. 22 (AP)—The Italian Labor Ministry announced today that 300,000 food workers who staged a countrywide strike 48 hours ago had agreed to return to work at midnight tonight on a promise of increases in wages and severance pay.

The announcement removed the threat of Christmastide food shortages confronting Italy and temporarily relieved pressure on Premier De Gasperi's government, embarrassed by a multitude of Lefist - inspired strikes and labor disorders.

Some observers, however, expressed the fear that Leftist-led labor's continuing demands for greater benefits would wreck the anti-inflation budget of vice-premier Luigi Einaudi.

The office of Labor Minister Amintore Fanfani said the agreement ending the food workers' strike over contract negotiations had been reached at a conference attended by Fanfani employers and representative of the Communist - dominated general confederation of labor.

The Communists, having demonstrated their control over industrial workers, held a series of meetings yesterday to show their Agrarian strength.

The largest was held at Bologna, ostensibly for the purpose of working out a national program for agricultural reform.

Royal Family Leaves London For Sandringham

London Dec. 22. (Reuters)—The King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family today went to their country residence, Sandringham, Norfolk, for the Christmas holiday.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, travelled with the party.

Pre-Christmas Strike of Western Union Averted

Washington, Dec. 22 — (AP)—A pre-Christmas strike of Western Union workers was averted today by shifting major differences between the company and three American Federation of Labor unions to a fact-finding board for decision in 50 days.

The action delays the threat of a country-wide telegraph tie-up at least until after Feb. 9—about the time telephone workers plan to begin wage talks with the Bell Telephone Companies across the United States.

The two groups of communications workers were poised to strike simultaneously last spring, but the telegraph workers settled for a five-cent hourly pay increase on the eve of the scheduled tie-up. The telephone strike lasted five weeks.

The renewed Western Union dispute arose over union demands for a 15 - cents - and - hour wage boost. The walkout first was set to begin at 6 a.m. tomorrow, but the unions threatened to call the telegraphers out on shorter notice.

However, day-long conferences with Federal conciliation director Cyris C. Ching finally resulted in an agreement late last night to cancel the strike call.

A three-man fact-finding panel will make a binding decision on two major differences between the company and union but will make no recommendation concerning the basic wage dispute which will be left to later negotiation. The union has claimed its members' pay averages 96.7 cents an hour. The company said the figure was $1.23.

Unions involved are the Commercial Telegraphers Union, the Telegraph Employers Union of Atlanta and the Telegraph Workers Union of Dallas.

DAUGHTER SAVES PARENTS

Baltimore, Dec. 22 (AP) —Mr and Mrs. James Ross, or Baltimore were saved from asphyxiation last night by the presence of mind of their six-year-old daughter, Joanne. Joanne awoke during the night and detected the odor of gas. When she was unable to arouse her parents, she picked upthe telephone and was connected by the operator with the police. Officers said that pot had boiled over, extinguishing the flame.

LORD INVERCHAPEL SAYS CRITICISM "ILL-INFORMED"

To Keep Britain Alive Controls Still Needed

Detroit, Dec. 22 —(AP)— Lord Inverchapel, Britain's Ambassador to the United States, declared today that criticism of Britain's control system is "ill-informed."

Noting suggestions that the United States Congress should make the abolition of controls in Europe a condition of American assistance under the Marshall Plan, Inverchapel said there have been contentions that the controls are due to experiments in Socialism.

"It is true that here and there some of them are," the ambassador asserted in an address to the Detroit's Economic Club. "But the main controls which we have to impose in Britain today have nothing at all to do with Socialism.

"Can anyone seriously suggest that we should do away with the rationing of food and clothing?" he asked .

"Our import controls, our exchange controls, our controls of raw materials are all imposed upon up because we have to restrict our imports to the minimum of food to keep us alive, and to the essential raw materials for our industry. If we did not discipline ourselves we should quickly go bankrupt.

"This would mean first that our industry would slow down for lack of raw materials. Secondly, we should go hungry because we cannot grow enough food in our islands. Thirdly, all hope of European, or indeed world recovery would fade, leaving you a spectacle of chaos and ruin across the ocean, such as has not been seen for 16 centuries."

Snow Covers Trail of Four Missing Men

Liverpool, N.S., Dec. 22. (CP)—R.C.M.P. said today a heavy snowstorm had obliterated the trail of four men missing in the nearby Port Mouton woods since Thursday but "high hopes" were held they would be found today.

Veteran woodsmen and trappers renewed their search at dawn. Working in conjunction with a loudspeaker-equipped plane yesterday, they discovered a trail believed to have been made by the missing men but were forced to give up the search when darkness fell.

Searchers said the trail at one point came almost within sight of Liverpool but then veered off into the forest again.

The four men disappeared after leaving here on a rabbit hunting trip five days ago. They are Burton Westhaver, 29, Jimmy Woodsworth, 17, William Oickle, 18, and Jimmy Rogers, 19.

Food in France Almost Unobtainable Excepting Through the Black Market

Paris, Dec. 22 (CP)—Sympathy for the low-paid worker has never been stronger in France than now, where the middle classes find themselves in the same boat, trying to make one franc do the work of 10.

Only persons of substantial wealth are able to eat well seven days a week. The black market feeds them. It is open to those of lesser means but their recourse to it is strictly limited by their finances.

To say a food is rationed in France is almost to say it is unobtainable—outside the black market. Parisians have had no butter for two months, unless they patronize hotels and restaurants with expensive menus.

"The children in our district in Montmartre had no fresh milk for six weeks," said one working man. "Toward the end of the month some Canadian dried milk appeared in the stores but— because we had to wait for payday on the first of the following month—we could not afford to buy it.

"My breakkfast is a piece of bread. The same for lunch, and if I'm lucky a chunk of sausage. For supper, maybe a bowl of soup and once a week, a cheap cut of meat, I can't even afford the cheapest wine at 45 francs a bottle."

The wife of a fairly well-paid civil servant said: "I try to give my family one really good meal a week. For the rest, our dation are slim.

"Every morning I weigh out the ration of bread for each member of the family—200 grams each. They can eat it whenever they want. The children used to gobble theirs all for breakfast; now they save a piece for lunch and supper.

"We rarely deal in the black market, but we are lucky — my mother lives in the country and when she can she sends in a little butter or a few fresh eggs."

A Canadian who has lived in France since September said he dealt exclusively in the black market.

"It wasn't worth the time and trouble, trying to pick up my rations," he said. "Sometimes the stores were shut, or if they were open they couldn't honor my tickets.

"I made three calls before I got my first cheese ration — a miserable, dried-out little cube not worth eating. My foreign currency gives me lots of francs and I can get all the cheese I want by paying a little extra."

U.S. Congress Going to Draft Own Marshall Plan

Amount Not as Large As President Requested

Washington, Dec. 22 —(AP)—The United States government is going to draft its own "Marshall Plan" for European recovery. And all signs today point to a program nowhere near as big as the administration's $17,000,000,000 four year project.

Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.) gave the tip-off on what will happen when Congress tackles the long-range foreign aid program in the regular session starting Jan. 6 Before heading home for the holidays, Martin told reporters:

"There is sentiment for a Republican program and there is strong support for the Herter Proposal."

The "Herter Proposal" is a bill drafted as the result of a tour of Europe last fall by a special House of Representatives committee headed by Rep. Christian Herter (Rep.-Mass.). It leaves the amount of aid blank. Republican leaders are nearly unanimous in saying the blank will be filled in for far less than the $17,000,000,000 President Truman asked.

In a message to Congress Friday, Truman asked that the spending of that sum be authorized for 4¼ years beginning April 1st.

He asked for $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months, up to the middle of 1949.

While Senator Wallace of Maine, the Republican floor leader, has said he thinks Congress will agree finally, if reluctantly, on just about what Mr. Truman asked, few of his party colleagues share his views.

In both the Senate and the House most Republican reaction to the Marshall Plan indicates that Congress is almost sure to handle it on a year-to-year basis instead of authorizing $17,000,000,000 or any other amount for four years all at one time.

Even some Democrats fliched at the total.

The one point on which most lawmakers of both parties agree is that something must be done for Europe to keep that continent from being engulfed by Communism.

Robber Steals Kiss, Then Slugs, Robs Girl

Philadelphia, Dec. 22. (AP)—A young robber stole a kiss from Juanita Griffin, 16, pretty candy store attendant, and then escaped with $35 after slugging her over the head with his revolver, police reported.

Detectives said Juanita told them the robber kissed her suddenly after entering the candy store last night, then hit her over the head with the butt end of his gun and ran from the store with the money.

Juanita, who was treated for a head cut, said the young robber appeared flustered as he fled, dropping some of the money he had taken from a cash register.

MICMAC CAPTAIN BLAMED FOR LOSS IN HARBOR CRASH

Court Finds Destroyer Entered Fog at Too High Rate of Speed

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—Aftermath of a tragic crash in the fog off Halifax harbor last July 16 came last night with the report or an investigating commission which placed the blame for the accident on the shoulders of Cmdr. J. C. Littler of Victoria, the commanding officer of the vessel.

"Damage, loss of life and injury to personnel was caused by the default of the commanding officer of the Micmac and not by the default of the master of the Yarmouth County," said a press release on the report.

The accident occurred when the Micmac, 2,000-ton destroyer of the Royal Canadian navy, bashed port-bow-to-port-bow into the 10,000-ton freighter. The Micmac's damage has never been estimated but she still lies in port at Halifax harbor awaiting repairs, her bow crumpled almost to the bridge.

The report was signed by the commissioner, Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll, judge in admiralty for the Exchequer Court for the district of Nova Scotia and by the assessors, Commodore G. M. Hibbard and Capt. Robert A. Goudey.

After the collision, the freighter, just out of drydock where she had undergone repairs, was steaming in ballast and was high out of the water. When she crashed into the Micmac, only her forward plates were damages and she put back to port for repairs.

The court found the cause of the collision was that the Micmac was "not sounding its siren and entered the fog at too high a rate of speed and placed herself in a position from which she could not extricate herself. The fault attributed to the Yarmouth County of not proceeding at a moderate speed did not in our judgment contribute to the collision."

However, the report added:

"The commanding officer of the Micmac probably was lulled into a sense of security by reason of the fact that he had the right to believe that radar was a very reliable aid to navigation."

The Micmac had radar while the freighter did not.

Havana Court Sentences Woman

Havana, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt was sentenced today to 15 years in prison and payment of $5,000 indemnity for the yacht slaying of her lover, John Lester Mee of Chicago.

The three judges of the Audiencia court reached their decision in a weekend of study, after closing the trial Friday.

A public prosecutor had demanded a 26-year term for manslaughter and a private prosecutor hired by Mee's father, Dr. Lester E. Mee of Wilmette, Ill., had sought a 30-year sentence for murder.

The defence had contended that the 22-year-old girl had shot Mee in terror and by accident last April and that rough handling, rather than the bullet would itself, caused the fatality.

Earlier, the former night club dancer from Toledo, O., billed professionally as "Satira" was reported to have sent word to her father that she was ready to accept a prison sentence, which she was said to have believed inevitable.

Mr. Alec Gordon, organist of the church will be at the console during the ringing of the bells.

SERGEANTS' MESS HOLDS YULE PARTY

Several members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Sergeants' Mess went home on Saturday evening with free Christmas dinners dangling from their hands. The "dinners" were handsome turkeys which were given to members during an enjoyable pre-Christmas party. Singing of Christmas carols and special entertainment featured the get-together with the "turkey" draw proving one of the main attractions.

K. OF C. ENTERTAINS CHILDREN OF MEMBERS AT CHRISTMAS PARTY

Jolly Old Saint Nick arrived in the city yesterday afternoon to be joyously greeted by upwards of one hundred kiddies who had gathered with their parents at the Knights of Columbus club rooms for this special occasion. Mr. Frank Domenico, Grand Knight, welcomed those present most warmly and Mr. George Lee, Lecturer, started the program rolling by introducing Mr. Len Fozzard, who completely mystified everyone with his magician's tricks, followed by Master Burke who sang, accompanied by Mrs. W. Grant at the piano. Santa Claus' arrival at this point was the signal for great excitement and toys, candy, oranges, nuts and ice cream sandwiches were distributed to each child. Mr. George Lee Mr. Henry Hatfield, Mr. Claude Finnigan and Mr. Ted Royle the committee in charge merit hearty congratulations for the success of the afternoon.

Short Change Artists Active in City

Short change artists were busy in the city on the weekend, it was reported to police by several merchants, one of whom was victimized to the extent of $8. Two men approximately five feet nine inches in height with dark wavy hair, dark complexions and wearing dark overcoats but with no hats, were reported to have short-changed the clerk of a local drug store by eight dollars, while the same two men had tried a similar game at a Bridge Street grocery.

Alfred J. Davis Assumes Duties As 'Y' Secretary

Alfred J. Davis has officially assumed the duties of general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association here, following the recent meeting of the Board of Directors. The resignation of Joseph E. Shortt, secretary for the past twenty years, was accepted with great regret. Tribute was paid Mr. Shortt for his years of untiring service, suitable recognition of which will be made at a later date.

The new secretary has been in Belleville since the first of the month and has already made the acquaintance of several of the service clubs and other city organizations. For the past five years he has been recreational director and program secretary of the Central Y.M.C.A. branch, Montreal, the oldest association in America and the largest association in the British Empire.

Three Years in Chicago

For three years Mr. Davis was assistant program director at the Hotel Branch of the Y.M.C.A. in Chicago. His duties included responsibility for the sports and recreational program of members of the United States Army Air Corps in the Central Chicago area, maintained at a normal strength of 800 officers and men. Prior to this assignment he was director of boys' work and physical education at the noted Fourth Presbyterian Church on Chicago's near north side.

Alfred J. Davis

A graduate of George Williams College, Chicago, he did postgraduate work in the Department of Education, University of Chicago, majoring in counselling and guidance and receiviing his Master's degree. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa fraternity, elected for proficiency in graduate education studies.

Like Mr. Shortt, his predecessor, Mr. Davis entered Y.M.C.A. work after a career in journalism. It is a coincidence that both of these men were on the staff of Toronto Saturday Night. Mr. Davis was a member of the Toronto West End Y.M.C.A., at which association Mr. Shortt obtained his first experience in Y.M.C.A. work.

A staunch believer in community organization, Mr. Davis was a member of the Board of Governors of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies and is a past president of the Group Work section of the Council. He is an advocate of Adult Education as a means towards international goodwill and understanding and has been a member of the Association for Adult Education and the Canadian Club of Montreal for some years. He is also a member of the American Association of Group Workers and the American Conference on Social Work. Under his direction the informal and the adult education program in the Montreal Central Association was recognized as one of the most effective in Canada and the United States. He was secretary of the English section of the Quebec Committee of the Canadian Youth Commission.

Native of Toronto

A native of Toronto where he received his early education, Al, as he is more popularly known, is not entirely new to Central Ontario, having spent two years as a playground director in Peterborough and one season as a camp director at Haliburton.

As a player and coach of noted Ontario football, basketball and baseball teams, as well as a player in individual sports, Mr. Davis has gained an understanding of principles fitting him as a specialist in various branches of recreation and informal education. He has also been a director of camps in Michigan and Ontario.

Mr. Davis commenced his work in the Y.M.C.A. in Ottawa as membership secretary. He has been twice a member of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. He is one of the Canadian members of the Program Committee of the Association of Secretaries and is Canadian chairman of the Promotion Committee for the Conference of Secretaries to be held in Grand Rapids, Michigan, in May 1948. The last conference was held in Cleveland in 1942.

His wife, also a native of Toronto, distinguished herself in athletics in the days when girls competitive sports were at their peak. She also has been prominent in women's church organizations and the nursery and progressive school movements. While in Chicago she was secretary to the director of Social Service of the University of Chicago Clinics.

Member of the United Church, Mr. Davis was on the Session of Erskine and American Church, Montreal. They have one daughter, Margaret Elizabeth, aged four. Their Belleville home has been established on Foster Avenue.

It is unlikely that the status of retirement will indicate inactivity for the former secretary, Mr. Shortt, whose civic interests such as the community service campaign, Rotary and Y's Men's Clubs, will continue. He will find it possible to devote more time to his favorite pastimes of hunting and fishing.

Pedestrian Suffers Fractured Skull When Hit by Car

Ronald Stoneburg, 51 Frank St., is in hospital suffering from a possible fractured skull following being knocked to the pavement Saturday midnight when he was crossing Front Street near the McCarthy Theatre. Driver of the car which struck Mr. Stoneburg was Ralph Tanner, 18, R. R. 4, Stirling.

Stoneburg was reported to have been crossing the street from the west to east side when he walked in front of the Tanner car. Passengers in the Tanner driven vehicle stated the horn had been sounded when the driver observed the man starting to walk across the street, but the man had paid no attention. The injured man was rushed to hospital in an ambulance.

Three other motor accidents were reported in the city during the weekend. No persons were injured, however, the collisions resulting only in property damage.

F.G. Marsh Presented With Purse of Money

Electrician with the Canadian National Railways at Belleville since 1919, Frederick George Marsh, 37 Benjamin Street, was officially retired from the service on Friday. Mr. Marsh was tendered a presentation of a purse of money, the presentation being made by W. Taylor, shop representative with the good wishes of the company being expressed by Albert Jones, locomotive foreman.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Marsh learned his trade as an electrician with Canada Car and later entered the employ of Northern Electric and before coming to Belleville was with Canada Steel Company. At the Belleville C.N.R. shops he was electrician in charge of headlight maintenance and other electrical equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh expect to make their home in Belleville for the time being.

OBITUARY

JAMES W. SULLIVAN

James W. Sullivan, 20 East Moira Street, well-known barber in this city, died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure Sunday evening.

Born in Roslin the late Mr. Sullivan was in his 56th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan. For some time he lived at Corbyville and for the past twenty-six years he resided in this city. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and fraternally he was a member of Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge No. 274. To many friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Hazel Winter; his stepmother, Mrs. Margaret Sullivan; two daughters, Miss Doris Sullivan, and Miss Mildred Sullivan, both at home; three sons, Carman, Ronald and Frank, all at home; two sisters, Mrs. Carl Harry and Mrs. Earl Pearsall, both of Belleville; one brother, Clayton Sullivan, Corbyville.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Monday evening, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in his edition.

Callous Owner Abandons His Dog on Highway

"It shouldn't happen, not even to a dog."

That is the feeling of city dog catcher Thomas Thorne who reports a lovely female Dane dog being abandoned near Shannonville over the weekend by some callous-minded persons.

A Montreal motorist was following some distance behind another car when the auto stopped, the door was opened and a dog was kicked out onto the highway. The door then slammed and the car drove away. Taking compassion on the abandoned dog the Montreal motorist brought it to the local police station where it was turned over to Mr. Thorne.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Sarah J. Mason, wish to thank Dr. Gibson, Dr. Peterkin, the nurses and staff of the hospital and the staff of the Martin Funeral Home for their care of our mother during her recent illness and death. Also the many friends and organizations for flowers and expressions of sympathy, and for the use of cars. D22

I wish to thank my friends and neighbors for the lovely cards and letters and flowers I received while in hospital, also Dr. Cronk and the nurses for their kindness to me. Mrs. B. L. Redner. D22

Mrs. McKechnie and daughter, Mrs. E. R. Nelson, wish to thank Dr. Potter, Martin Funeral Home, friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and floral tributes during their recent bereavement in the loss of a loving husband and father, Angus McKechnie. D22

Tornado Relief Committee Expresses Gratitude for Generous Response to Appeal for Funds

The members of the Wollaston Township Tornado Relief Committee and all those who have been helped through the fund administered by this Committee wish to express publicly their deep appreciation to all who so generously responded to their appeal for assistance. It was not always possible to acknowledge gifts to the fund for in many cases the donor's name or address was unknown. Yet it is hoped none who helped will feel that there has been any sense of ingratitude because of failure to thus personaly acknowledge their gift.

The victims of the disastrous tornado have now been re-established. The Committee has endeavored to administer the funds entrusted to it to the best of its ability and without prejudice or undue expense. The fund is now closed and the Committee disbanded, but its work would be incomplete without this public acknowledgment of its heartfelt gratitude for the splendid support it received from so many individuals and organizations.

Members of Newly Arrived English Family Overcome by Warm Kindness Shown at Christmas Tree Party

There was fun and merriment at the Christmas party given by the American Optical Company, Canada, Ltd., on Saturday afternoon.

Employees of the company and their children laughing, excited, milled about the spacious rooms of the Kiwanis Centre. There was a big Christmas tree. Gifts, in colorful wrappings, were piled high beneath the heavily laden illuminated boughs.

The kiddies, faces flushed with excitement, entered the spirit of the affair. Parents, too, shining-eyed, viewed the happy scene in holiday happiness.

But in a corner, her three children with her, stood a pretty young matron. Two young daughters and a son were at her side. Nearby, viewing the strange scene stood her stalwart husband.

The man was Mr. George Parker, former R.A.F. veteran, who has been an employee of the American Optical Company, Canada, Ltd., branch here for the past three months.

Arrived Last Week

The young matron was his wife and the wide-eyed attractive youngsters, his three children. Mrs. Parker and her family had arrived in Canada but two days previous and in Belleville the day before. They had left their native England by trans-Atlantic airliner, arriving in Toronto on Wednesday of last week.

They gazed at the wonderland of lights, gifts, people, and general Christmas atmosphere with something akin to amazement. It had been many years since Mr. and Mrs. Parker had seen such a plenitude of food, gifts, and holiday happiness such as this. True, there had been Christmas parties during the dark days of war in their native Wiltshire, but the bugbear of rationing, economic regulations and other things which Britons had to face, were always present.

The children with their ruddy English complexions looked in wonderment at the colorful scene. It was something brand new to the little new Canadians, and they stood almost speechless at the changing panorama of Christmas fun as it moved about them.

And their cup of enjoyment was filled to overflowing when a jovial Santa Claus took them in his arms, spoke to them, kissed them and filled their arms with bulky Christmas packages, the gifts of the company.

Unbounded Happiness

There was a suspicion of moisture in Mrs. Parker's eyes, as she watched the unfeigned happiness of her children. Mr. Parker, too, had a strange huskiness in his voice as he thanked the donors for their gifts. Smiles of happiness lighted up the faces of the children and even one-year-old Marilyn gurgled her appreciation. The other children are Terrence 6, and Amanda, 3.

It was their first Christmas party on a large scale and definitely their first in Canada. Mrs. Parker could hardly express her thanks for the kindness and generosity of the company, the friendliness of her husband's fellow workers and the general welcome extended to her and the family by all.

"We shall never forget this," she said. "Canada really looks good to me."

Mr. Parker served for six years with the Royal Air Force and was stationed in many theatres of war. He spent some time in Canada in training at Picton and Medicine Hat, Alberta. He arrived in Canada three months ago, and as soon as he secured housing accommodation, brought his family here.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. MAUD E. PHILLIPS
(Hungerford Township)

Thomasburg (Special) — The death of Mrs. Maud Elizabeth Phillips, widow of Wm. Phillips occurred at her home in Hungerford township on Tuesday evening December 16th following a short illness. She was a daughter of the late James and Isabelle Emerson, being born in Hungerford township sixty-nine years ago. Her husband predeceased her in April 1933, also one daughter Miss Jessie Phillips passed away in 1936.

The late Mrs. Phillips lived in this vicinity all her life and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Remaining are two sons and two daughters, namely Mrs. Lottie Pearson of Hamilton; Mrs. Walter Naylor of Peterborough; Cecil of Thomasburg and Raymond at home. There are also seven grandchildren and two brothers Robert Emerson and Thomas Emerson both of Belleville.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from her late residence to Thomasburg United Church for service. Interment took place in Thomasburg cemetery, Rev. A. L. Sisco pastor of Tweed United Church conducted the services. Mr. Frank Foster sang a solo "The Old Rugged Cross."

Many friends and relatives were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect to one who had held their esteem during her lifetime.

Freighter Engineer Visitor in City After Busy Season

Engineering "nursemaid" as he puts it, to a pair of mechanical giants which provide the motive power for a large Lake Erie coal freighter, Bob Jones, naval war veteran formerly of this city and now of Erieau, Ont, arrived in the city with Mrs. Jones and family, over the weekend to spend two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. George Lancaster, of the Bridge Street Armouries.

Assistant second engineer on the freighter, Jones has participated on over one hundred trips to and from Lake Erie American ports to Canada. He says that his ship has transported over 500,000 tons of coal from these ports to Canada during the 1947 season.

A veteran of the Great Lakes prior to joining the Royal Canadian Navy at the outbreak of war, Jones went back to his first love on discharge, and secured his second engineer's certificate. He served nearly six years with the navy, and prior to that had several years experience on Great Lake steamships.

Thief Drops Radio After Warning Shots by Officer

City police today are looking for a would-be-thief who early this morning entered the Canadian Department Store and almost made a clean get-away with a table model radio.

Shortly before three o'clock Police Constable Lockwood was patrolling his beat at the rear of the C.D.S. store when he saw a man run around the corner of the building. He ran to the corner and ordered the man to stop and when the man failed to do so fired two shots into the air. The man dropped the radio and managed to make good his escape up the Kresge gangway and onto Front Street.

Later investigation showed the man had entered the store by the west door on the footbridge gangway, police believing the door had not been securely fastened when the place of business was closed for the night. Manager of the store was contacted and stated that only the radio had been taken. This was recovered by police.

Mrs. Jack Baxter Honored by Friends

A miscellaneous shower was held recently at the home of Miss Margaret Hillis, William St., in honor of Mrs. Jack Baxter, prior to her marriage last Saturday, when Miss Hillis and Miss Roslyn Robertson were co-hostesses to approximately twenty girl friends.

Entertainment was provided by the dressing of clothes-pin "brides," and the making of a bride's book.

Later, the gifts were presented by the hostesses in a child's sleigh decorated in the traditional Christmas colors and with bells attached.

The guest of honor thanked her friends for their many useful and beautiful gifts, and refreshments were served to bring a pleasant evening to a close.

Dynamite Cap Exploded, Youth May Lose Eye

Injured by the explosion of a dynamite cap which had been found by a quarry north of the city, Gerald Moore, aged 19, son of Mrs. Alice Moore, 46 St. Charles Street, will lose the sight of one eye, it was reported today by his physician, Dr. J. Russell Scott. A brother, Robert Moore, aged 13, was injured about the arms and legs when the cap exploded.

On Sunday the two young boys had been north of the city at the Bamford farm on North Park St. when near the quarry they found the dynamite cap. They brought it home and connected it with a dry cell battery with result that the cap detonated injuring the two lads. Gerald was admitted to hospital where it is reported he will lose the sight of his eye. Robert suffered cuts on his arms and legs.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Industrials were actively accumulated on a rising price trend on the stock exchange to lead a general recovery today. Gains of fractions to more —than a point were numerous for industrial stocks while favorites in the mining lists edged upward. Western oils —continued their advance.

Volume for the first three hours was 443,000 shares, about 330,000 less than Friday's similar period.

Newsprints were popular issues in the upward move of industrials while utilities, steels, liquors and oils showed good form. Abitibi, Great Lakes, Moore Corp., St. Lawrence Common, Powell River, Minnesota and Ontario, International, Donnacona, Consolidated and the Brown issues posted gains for papers. Bell and Brazilian were gainers in utilities; Steel of Canada, Atlas advanced in the steels; Walkers, Canadian Breweries in liquors, Imperial Oil and International Petroleum in oils.

Golds were quiet and mixed with producers trading both ways, but base metals were firm.

Rowbothams Will Welcome Nephew From England

Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rowbotham, 66 Emily Street, will be observed on December 25th as is customary, but it will not be the real Christmas for the Rowbotham family.

The real Christmas for the Rowbothams will be some time after December 28th, when their nephew 12-year-old David Rowbotham of London, England, is expected to arrive in Canada to make his new home here after a wait of more than 2 years. David sailed on December 20th on the Ascania and is expected to arrive in Halifax on Friday. The Rowbotham will journey to Halifax to meet their nephew.

Son of a brother of Mr. Rowbotham, the young English lad was left an orphan early in the war, the Belleville family then losing track of their kin in England. However when Alf. Rowbotham, son of the local family, was overseas, he looked up his young cousin and arrangements were made to bring him to Canada as soon as possible.

But it has been a long wait for the young English lad. With the end of the war it was thought that arrangements could soon be made but such was not the case. Only in recent weeks have final arrangements been made and transportation secured.

And so it is that young David who lived through the London blitz will now take up his new life in Canada. But first there is that belated Christmas party scheduled for the Rowbotham home when young David arrives following the expected docking of his ship at Halifax on Friday.

Shortest Day Passes

The shortest day of the year has come, From now on the sun will begin its ascent of the heavens until six months hence when it reaches farthest north and starts to decline to the south.

But it will be days before the change in length of day is noticeable. And passing of the 21st (or 22nd as it was this year) does not mean that what is nominally called the winter is half over. In fact it is actually the beginning of winter that is being marked. Winter however has effects which precede the season and outlast winter, for weather before Christmas and after the 21st of March has much of the characteristics of winter. At least late autumn and early spring have weather tinged with the marks of winter, such as cold and snow.

But the passing of the shortest day in the year causes the forward glance over the rest of the snow season until spring comes. The sun begins to climb.

Christmas Week

Christmas week has been ushered in with that wealth of appeal which has gathered about the Nativity in more than nineteen centuries. Man's achievements in the arts have been in the expression in every form in which the Nativity appears to man, in the heights of music and poetry, in the glory of painting and sculpture and, greatest of all, in the richness of experience in the lives of men and women of all ages of the Christian era. Christmas is to the world the festival of the anniversary of the Birth of Christ, the greatest figure that ever walked this earth and influencing it as no other human being has done. To the Christian world it is a sacred festival in honor of the Divine Master, about whom the whole creation moves and from whom the Christian world takes its leadership.

In the churches on Sunday the many-sided significance of the coming of Christ into the world found expression in the study of the Life, which was lived in Galilee for about thirty years, changing the course of history, not as so many men have tried to change its course but changing it by the very fact that He spoke with divine authority. In the words read at the services from the ancient prophets and in the Gospels which tell in incomparable language the Life of Christ as He lived among men, in the rich imagery of music, clothing and intensifying the thought and in the expression of the lives of His followers as recorded in the Bible and in records of history down the ages, in the beauty of the great shrines of Christendom and in the humble church or meeting place, was found something of what Christmas means to the world. Worshippers feel the peculiar charm and appeal of Christmas as of no other season, for it gives the assurance and is the reality to them of the meaning of life.

In the Christmas service on the Sunday before Christmas and on Christmas Day all the wealth of all the ages is enshrined. The message which Christmas brings of "good will to all mankind" is the message that the world needs, especially at this time when after the second of two great wars, there is lack of harmony causing intense disappointment to a great part of the world. This Christmas message is a message so much in contrast to the lack of cohesion so far seen among the nations. It is the message which the democratic peoples believe is the message which will at least bring assurance of lasting peace. Just as in war days Christmas softened the hearts of combatants with its appeal, so Christmas in the post-war era still stresses good will among men, because in democratic peoples the spirit of good will is seen as the world's only hope.

At this time the Christian world celebrates the coming of the Prince of Peace, whose Life has been the means of exerting the profoundest influence upon man's relations to God and to his fellowmen.

Bitter Tragedy

A home at Hepworth is in the deepest mourning, for two of its sons lost their lives last week in a snowstorm as they were on their way to cut an evergreen tree for the school Christmas festival. It was characteristic of these boys, aged thirteen and seven, to go on such a quest. It satisfied their sense of being able to add to the Christmas scene at the schoolhouse which they attended. The story of their losing their way, of the giving by the elder brother to the younger a coat to keep him warm, and of their death by exposure is one of the most touching ever told. It writes indelibly on the memory the adventurous and manly spirit of childhood, caught in a tragic circumstance.

To the stricken family goes the profoundest sympathy to everyone in the tragedy which has taken two of their number. To the schoolmates of the brothers has come an experience of stark tragedy which has claimed two young lives which no doubt would have been a blessing to their community. Young lives are so full of enthusiasm and the joy of doing that they will find it difficult to realize why their two schoolmates should be so snatched away when planning pleasure and happiness for others. Fate must seem strange to the playmates of these two lads, as it does to adults.

The Scientific Yule

Should Santa adopt the helicopter as official transport, modern progress will have toppled one of the oldest, most changeless traditions — the sleigh and the reindeers. We hope that technical advances, swifter travel, will always ensure wider, more intercontinental distribution of the charity and brotherly spirit of Yuletide. Yet, why tamper with Santa's procedure? His problems are tough enough any year to risk the specialization of a new job —and there are too many people in red throughout the world now, who want to take over other people's jobs.

We don't worry about Santa. He'll probably seize the opportunity to laugh at man's pretentious reach for speed for making simple pleasures like Christmas run a quicker course. Can you imagine La Guardia Airport on Christmas Eve, weather socked in, Santa and his helicopter fleet approaching, the prim query by Approach Control for their instrument flight clearance? We would be astonished to hear that familiar, ho-ho-ing voice boom back a call-in all his own:

Now, Bell Now Sikorsky, Now, Piasecki and Hoppi-copter!
On, Kaman! On, Kellett! On, Cierva
Helicopters!
Up on the pitch! Beware of the stall!
Now, whirl away! whirl away! whirl away all!

—New York Times.

Treasure-Hunt

Excavations now being made among the ruins of the twelfth-century abbey of St. Dogmaels, at the mouth of the River Teifi, may prove a more, than archaeological treasure-hunt. There is a theory that in the days of Cromwell (or of Henry VIII) a golden chalice was hidden in the wall. A peculiar mark on a stone in the transept is believed to mark the spot.

Tradition has it that a tunnel runs under the Teifi connecting the abbey to the old castle at Cardigan two miles away, and that there is a continuation of Cilgerran. Certain architectural features which are common to excavations in the three places suggest that there is some substance in the theory. The present investigations may prove it, says Manchester Guardian.

Some wonder if relations between the United States and Russia would have been more harmonious had Roosevelt lived through these days of post-war crisis. It is doubtful. FDR, it has been revealed, recognized the dangers of the situation, and when he died was under no delusions about the future. — Ottawa Journal.

Christmas weather, isn't it? That little touch of snow makes all the difference to the season.

LETTER XVII

Beloved, I've sprung the old joke,
With a shake of my head as of old.
I've said to the children: "I'm broke!"
And never was truer word told.
But I'm sure that your laugh I could hear,
And I'm sure that your smile I could see,
And I fancied you said: "Every year
At Christmas he said that to me."

'Tis strange how the memories cling;
How the throat in a moment will choke
Over joys that have long taken wing.
When I said to the children: "I'm broke!"
You were back in your favorite chair,
With that smile that I used to adore,
Saying: "Children, of father take care.
He is off to the poorhouse once more!"

Beloved, I've said it again,
Though laughter I knew 'twould provoke.
It's part of my Christmas refrain:
"You children, remember I'm broke!"
And somehow I felt you were near
(And, oh, how I wished it could be!)
Reminding them both: "Every year
At Christmas he said that to me."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What was the Pony Express?

The Pony Express was a transcontinental horse-post established in 1860 by Alexander Majors and William Hepburn Russell, who had been engaged in the business of transporting passengers, mail and freight by means of wagons and stagecoaches.

Until then most of the mail between the East and the Far West was carried by way of Panama and required 22 days or more. It took at least 25 days to send mail from the East to the Pacific Coast by regular stage.

The Pony Express route lay between St. Joseph, Missouri, western terminus of the telegraph, and Sacramento, a distance of 1,980 miles. The first letter by Pony Express left a point on the Missouri River opposite St. Joe April 3, 1860, and contained a message from President Buchanan to the Governor of California.

Eventually the equipment of the Pony Express, which operated under contract with the Federal Government, consisted of 200 stations, 500 horses, 80 riders and 400 station keepers and assistants. Stations were about 10 miles apart and each rider rode five relays of horses or a total of 50 miles. Full-sized horses selected for speed rather than endurance were used. On the western part of the route mustangs and on the eastern route thoroughbred cavalry horses prevailed, Forty riders going west and forty going east were in motion night and day.

The riders, who dressed like jockeys, were required to weigh under 125 pounds and to be more than 20 years of age. Their pay ranged from $100 to $125 a month. They carried the mail in locked cases attached to strips of leather thrown over light racing saddles. A rider was allowed two minutes at a relay station to dismount, toss the mail pouch onto another horse, remount and be on his way. To save weight the riders carried no guns, but were provided with Bibles and instructions to act like gentlemen and to be kind to their horses. "Buffalo Bill" (William F. Cody) was one of the most famous of all the Pony Express riders.

Mail was carried between St. Joe and Sacramento by way of Denver on a regular schedule of from eight to ten days. The best time ever made was when Lincoln's first inaugural was carried over the route in seven days and 17 hours. In addition to regular U. S. postage, the charge was at first $5 for half an ounce or less, but this was reduced later to $2.50 and finally to $1.

This fantastic, daring and romantic service, which was expected to operate, regardless of weather, through roadless mountains, over trackless deserts, across fordless rivers and among hostile Indians, was doomed to financial failure. On June 16, 1860, a little over two months after the Pony Express was started, Congress resolved "to facilitate communications between the Atlantic and the Pacific States by electric telegraph," and on October 14, 1861, the transcontinental telegraph line was completed. In the same month the Pony Express suspended operations. Ben Holladay, another western freighter, bought the assets of the company at public auction for $100,000 and Majors and Russell lost a fortune. During the 18 months the Pony Express was in operation the riders made 379 crossings, carried 30,000 pieces of mail and travelled a total of 616,000 miles.

HOW ARE YOUR CORONNARY ARTERIES?

The foreman of the typographical department fairly chortled as he brought out his collection of alleged typographical errors, some of which must have been as painful to the writer as they were to editor and readers. I have become callous about it, from long suffering, so I got only a belly laught out of the exhibit some on sent me the other day—by article was credited to a chap by the name of Wilson and his (I believe he is known as the saloon editor) was credited to me. A mild and innocuous instance was among the foreman's collection—my article purported to be about hip disease, incomplete development of and dislocation of the hip in the new born, so I titled it Congenital Hip Disease. The young lady proof-reader spotted that, realized at once that I had put the t in there by mistake, and changed it to Congenial Hip Disease.

Coronary arteries have nothing to do with the corner except that both terms are derived from the Latin corona (crown. Coronary arteries branch off from the great artery (aorta) to carry fresh blood directly to the tissues of the heart itself.

Physicians commonly speak of the heart muscle. The heart is chiefly composed of muscle, involuntary muscle, just as is the stomach and the intestine, although both the heart and the stomach and intestine have both covering and lining membranes too. But when a doctor refers to heart muscle he means the heart itself, not any voluntary muscle of the chest wall in the region of the heart.

The heart muscle works a twelve hour day every day of your life, rests and takes nourishment the other twelve hours every day. It does more work than any other muscle or group of muscles in the body, voluntary or involuntary, and upon the efficiency of the heart depends every other function of the body.

In order to do its work the heart requires a constant supply of oxygen, which is delivered by the fresh blood throughout the coronary arteries.

In some instances the coronary arteries seem to be among the first in the body to lose elasticity and become hardened in arteriosclerosis. Their calibre or inside diameter becomes smaller and so the amount of blood delivered through them is less than the heart demands. This is one kind of coronary disease. The narrowing of the calibre and the slowing of circulation favor clotting of blood in the coronary artery or a branch of it, and this shuts off all oxygen supply to the portion of the heart the branch supplies, and this is called coronary occlusion. The portion of heart muscle involved undergoes more or less degeneration, the muscle cells being replaced by fibrous tissue which does not function, depending on the amount of oxygen the affected portion may still get, through other branch or branches not shut off and through the besian channels (little veins opening directly from muscle of heart wall into heart cavity).

Please don't imagine I know as well as your own family doctor knows what is good for your case. If we keep our talks on that plane, no harm will be done and, if you have enough sense to clear it with your own family doctor before you act on it, maybe you will get some good out of these little lessons on anoxia. After all, that's the key to the pathology, the diagnosis and the treatment of cardiavascular degeneration, heart and artery wearing-out, the question of delivering enough oxygen per second to the functioning cell to keep it functioning.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Quackery

A certain doctor is dosing a patient who has active tuberculosis with purgatives and whiskey, all the whiskey the patient wants. (J. E. A.)

Answer—It seems deliberately hastening the end. Can't you obtain the help of a reputable physician or perhaps the health department?

Too Much Water

Have heard of persons dying from drinking too much water. Recently some one told of a patient dying because his inner organs actually floated from too much water. (Miss M. H.)

Answer— It doesn't happen. Nor does a person rise and float away from breathing too much air.

Cokes and Jumpy. Nerves

Are four cokes a day right along harmful? I generally have four between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. What causes my nerves to be jumpy? I seem to be startled when some one calls me unexpectedly. (Miss E. M. P.)

Answer—Perhaps the cokes. As much caffeine or similar stimulant in each coke as in a small cup of weak coffee. Better switch to fresh fruit juice drink or milk beverage of some kind for refreshment.

Christmas Tree Lighting
RESTRICTIONS OF USE

While the Commission wishes to interfere as little as possible with the celebration of the Christmas Season, it is necessary to save electricity in all possible ways. The following restrictions apply to the use of electricity for Christmas lighting.

EXTERIOR LIGHTING

All the outside decorative lighting, including Christmas trees, is prohibited.

INTERIOR LIGHTING

Business premises, public buildings, etc.—The use of electricity for Christmas tree and Christmas decorative lighting in stores, business premises and public places is prohibited.

Homes and domestic establishments—Children need not be deprived of lighted Christmas trees inside the home, since such interior domestic lighting is permitted.

Churches, schools, etc.—Reasonable use of Christmas tree lighting is allowed for churches, schools, religious, charitable and other similar institutions, including electric candles for candle-light services.

Please use Christmas decorative lighting as sparingly as possible. Your co-operation is requested in seeing that these measures are carried out, and in endeavouring to save electricity in every possible way that you can.

Please do your part.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

Govt. Intends to Help Poland Recover Her Art Treasures

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, Dec. 22. (CP)— The government this week will likely announce measures it intends to take to help Poland recover the Polish treasures which vanished from places of safe-keeping in Ontario and Quebec more than a year ago.

The Polish government, through its legation here, has made several representations to the Canadian government to assist it in retrieving the treasures, brought to the Dominion early in the war when the German armies over-ran Poland.

It is understood the Canadians have rejected a Polish request to turn the Royal Canadian Mounted Police loose on the treasure hunt.

But the External Affairs experts have found several ways in which the Polies can be helped and the announcement is believed to be imminent.

The main basis of the Poles' efforts to recover the treasures will be by legal means. But before they can take action in the Canadian Courts they must know where the treasures are located and who is responsible for their disappearance. It is on these two points where the government may lend its assistance.

The Poles responsible for removing the treasures from Ontario and Quebec churches and hiding them in some other spot are Poles who are opposed to the present Warsaw regime.

Security Council

Another announcement that may be made this week is the appointment of the head of the Canadian permanent delegation to the United Nations

This has been so long-delayed that the person selected will only have a few days to brief himself on complicated Security Council issues before Canada takes her seat on the Council Jan. 1.

The selection likely will be Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canada's representative on the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission. But the representation will be elastic enough for Cabinet Ministers or High External Affairs Department officials to go to New York on special questions.

Geologists

Geologists from all parts of Canada and the United States will meet here Dec. 29-31 as guests of the Geological Survey of Canada on its 105th anniversary.

Six organizations will hold annual meetings during the period —The Geological Society of America (60th), Paleontological Society (39th), Mineralogical Society of America (28th), Society of Economic Geologists (28th), Society of Vertebrate Paleontologists (7th), and Geological Association of Canada (1st).

I was suppose to go downtown with ma, and she was still sitting at her desk and I said, Hay, ma, G, when are we going to start?

When I finish this letter, ma said. Now would you mind making a special effort and trying to sit still for 5 minutes like a stationerry human bean?, she said, and I said, Do you mean the whole 5 minutes in the same chair?

Certainly for land sakes, ma said, and I said, Which chair, ma

Now what's the difference which chair? ma said, and I said, Some are harder.

Which I did, sitting in it for about a minute and a half and then saying, Hay ma, aint I suppose to change chairs even once?

You're suppose to remain seated for 5 minutes, ma said. Now how can you possibly do that if you change chairs? she said, and I said, Easy, ma. I'll bump down to the floor in a sitting position and bump along the carpit the same way and pull myself up on another chair with my legs underneeth me, so I'll be sitting down the whole time, I said.

Oh dear, if I ever get this letter done, I hope it makes sense, ma said.

Meening for me to keep still and keep quiet.

Which I did for about another minute, and then I said, Well hay, ma, suppose I get a cramp from keeping so stationerry so long?

Oh, get out of the room, get out of the house, ma said. Wait for me outside, she said.

Which I did in a standing position on one leg at a time.

PASENGERS ESCAPE

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—Twenty-one passengers escaped uninjured Sat., when a bus, Ottawa-bound from Almonte, was forced from the highway and went into the ditch at Britannia Heights, about six miles west of here.

Truman Asked To Reduce Fuel Oil Exports

Boston, Dec. 22 (AP)—Governor Robert F. Bradford Fri., night appealed to President Truman to reduce winter oil exports until "emergency" requirements are met in New England.

"Supplies of fuel oil in Massachusetts rapidly dwindling and situation becoming acute. Urge immediate exercise of your powers to control exports in order to reduce all oil exports to absolute minimum during winter and until emergency needs are met in New England."

J. Leonard Johnson, chairman of the Governors Emergency Fuel Committee, reported earlier the ful oil scarcity was "rapidly growing worse." He planned to confer with oil distributors in an effort to expedite deliveries.

The governor called upon oil consumers to conserve by lowering home thermostats to 68 degrees during the day and to 60 at night.

In Washington Friday further restrictions or complete suspension of fuel oil exports was recommended by the Inter-State and Foreign Commerce Committee. Canada was not specifically mentioned but it was made clear the committee feels restrictions should apply to the Dominion as well as other countries.

Steady Progress Now Being Made By Expedition

By EDWIN SHANKE

Nuernberg, Dec. 22 (AP) — Twenty-one former German diplomats and high ranking officials in the Nazi government pleaded innocent Sat., to charges that they committed crimes against peace and humanity.

The defendants, arraigned bfore an American military tribunal were accused of marshalling Germany financial, economic, political, psychological and propaganda support behind Adolf Hitler's efforts to wage aggressive war.

The chief defendant is Baron Ernst Von Weizsoecker, former secretary of state in the German foreign office and German Ambassador to the Vatican at the end of the war.

The trial, which may be the last of the big war crimes cases prosecuted by United States officials here, was set down to begin Jan. 6.

Among the more prominent defendants, in addition to Weizsaecker, are:

Lutz Schwerin Von Krosigk, former finance minister.

Walter Schellenberg, close associate of Heinrich Himmler, who relayed the Himmler peace offer just before the German collapse.

Tableau, Operetta Feature Christmas Concert Program

Mountain View.— A successful Christmas entertainment, put on by Miss Mary Huff and pupils of Mountain View School, was held on Thursday evening in the Sunday School room of Mountain View Church.

Miss Mary Smith, music supervisor, assisted Miss Huff with the program.

Mr. J. Keeble capably acted as chairman for the following numbers:

Recitation, "Welcome to our Program", by Adrianne Swenarchuk was followed by a Ukrainian Song, "Carol of the Bells".

A humorous Negro dialogue, "Detective Snoop and Dr. Doop", was put on by Hugh Joyce and Roger Sprague, followed by a duet "Santa Claus Express" by Douglas Trumble and Nellie Sprague. Grace Lee recited, "Of Christmas".

The Rhythm Band sang and played "Christmas Cavalcade". Douglas Trumble accompanied Grace Lee, Yvonne Poste and Nellie Sprague with his guitar in the songs 'White Christmas" and "Silent Night" in three parts.

Roger Sprague gave a reading 'I'm Waiting for the 26th".

The Tableau "Christmas Symbols" was very pretty with the colored lights showing the Christmas Star, candles, wreaths and Bells. Douglas Trumble read the story and the Intermediates rendered a song about each symbol. Christmas carols were then sung by the audience.

The main features of the evening was an operetta, "Star of Peace", was presented in an excellent manner.

A solo "O Holy Night" by Miss Mary Smith, was very much enjoyed by all.

An address was read to Miss Huff by Nellie Sprague and she was presented with a number of gifts on behalf of the school pupils.

The chairman moved a vote of thanks to Miss Huff, the pupils and Miss Smith for the evening's entertainment.

Santa Claus arrived in due time and helped to unload the gaily trimmed Christmas tree. The proceeds amounted to $22.75. The Day School donated $10.00 of this to the Sunday School for the treats.

Carillonic Bells in Memory Of F.S. Deacon Accepted And Dedicated at Special Service

The memory of Fred S. Deacon, former recording steward of Bridge Street United Church, will live long in the minds of members of the congregation and of Belleville citizens.

For in memory of this energetic worker for the Church and for the city of Belleville a set of carillonic bells were dedicated on Sunday and were heard by members of the congregation and by local citizens as Christmas carols were rung out both before and after the special dedication service. The carillonic bells are a gift to Bridge Street Church by Mrs. Fred S. Deacon.

"In the name of Mrs. F. S. Deacon, it affords me great pleasure to make the presentation of these carillonic bells to Bridge Street Church," stated Rev. D.C. Amos minister, as he made the presentation of the bells to Mr. Harry Ackerman who received them on behalf of the Church. "It is one of my choicest experiences in connection with the congregation. The bells will add much to the worship of our Church."

Accepted for Church

Mr. Ackerman deemed it a privilege and an honor to accept the bells on behalf of the Church. "The gift of the bells was thoughtful indeed on the part of Mrs. Deacon, and it is a gift which Fred Deacon would have approved."

"When we listen to the bells may we be reminded of the prominent part which Mr. Deacon took in the religious and moral life of our church. On behalf of the church officials and of the citizens of Belleville, may I say thanks. May the bells ring out all that is false or evil and ring in that which is good in our lives."

Inscribed on the memorial plaque accompanying the bells are the words "Carillonic Bells in this Church dedicated to the Glory of God and in loving memory of Fred Sierichs Deacon by his wife, Louise Deacon, Christmas 1947."

Following the presentation and dedication of the bells, the Doxology was played on the bells by organist S. Alec Gordon, following which was sung the hymn of dedication "The Church's One Foundation."

Played from Organ Console

Carillonic bells such as are installed at Bridge Street United Church are the result of modern electronic engineering which has been carried forward so successfully in recent years. Miniature bells with a range of two full octaves are installed in the church and are played from the organ console. Amplifiers pick up the sound which is then broadcast from the church tower by a speaker system.

A special speaker placed behind the organ pipes enables the congregation to hear the bells, while a special microphone enables the sound of the organ and choir to be picked up also and broadcast through the tower.

Santa Claus Thrills Children At Special Christmas Parties

AMERICAN OPTICAL

One of the most elaborate and enjoyable Christmas parties held over the weekend was that at which officials of the American Optical Company, Canada, Ltd, were hosts to upwards of 100 children at Kiwanis Centre on Saturday afternoon. The kiddies, eyes shining and faces flushed with excitement at the Christmas grandeur prepared for them, were accompanied by their parents, and it is difficult to say which had the better time.

Mr. Gilbert Scott, manager of the Belleville branch of the company proved a delightful host, and assisted by members of his staff, staged a party that will not soon be forgotten by either the children or their personnel parents.

Mr. Bill Colclough was the genial master-of-ceremonies and kept the sequence of events moving at an enjoyable tempo. There was a huge Christmas tree, beautifully illuminated and loaded with gifts for the youngsters.

At the appropriate time a genial Santa Claus, red-appareled and round rosy face wreathed in smiles, made his appearance to the vociferous welcome of the little guests of honor. Then came the big moment as Santa paraded through the crowd, smiling, talking and kissing his young friends who crowded around him in wonderment and excitement. Later Santa dispensed lovely gifts to all. No one was forgotten and the kiddies went home well laden with not only toys but ice cream, cake and other edibles.

A delectable lunch was served to all prior to the giving of the presents on the second floor of the Kiwanis building. Sandwiches, cake, ice cream, tea and coffee were served. During the first part of the program, Mr. Colclough conducted a community sing-song which featured all the familiar Christmas carols and other holiday songs and hymns.

Mr. Scott in a brief pre-party address cordially welcomed his little guests and their parents conveying the wishes of the company to all for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Mr. Scott also expressed his appreciation of the generous gesture of the Belleville Kiwanis Club for their gift of the use of the Centre for the party on such short notice.

STEWART-WARNER-ALEMITE

One of the busiest old gentlemen in the world this week "Santa Claus" took time out from his many activities on Saturday afternoon to drop in on the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas Street, where the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Company Ltd., held its first kiddies Christmas party in years.

Radiant faces of children and the beaming happy countenances of parents, upwards of two hundred and fifty all told, evidenced the success of the function.

The party, held in the Centre on short notice, due to the ravaging by fire of the Orange Hall here on Friday, and not suffer through the sudden change of plans.

Tree Centre of Attraction

A brilliantly-lighted Christmas tree, heavily laden with gifts for the kiddies, proved the cynosure of childish eyes long before the advent of Santa Claus and the distribution of the many beautiful gifts.

Victor White, popular master-of-ceremonies, was in charge of the party and kept the small guests of honor and their parents in holiday mood until the big moment of Santa Claus' arrival, and the distribution of gifts took place.

Adding to the general fun and entertainment was the clever dancing troupe under the direction of Miss Barbara Diment. The troupe composed of the Misses Barbara Thrasher, Sheila Fisher, Elaine Gill, Marion Thoms and Ellen Thoms, delighted the guests with an outstanding display of dancing. The young guests accorded the dancers a fine ovation at the end of the performance. Miss Diment accompanied her troupe with appropriate piano music.

Movies Shown

In addition there were three movie shorts shown to the holiday guests. Two of the films were animated Christmas Carols during which the children joined with the singing, and the other a Canadian sports short for children. The films were obtained through the medium of the Belleville Film Council with Joe Kolver acting as operator.

Then came the big moment. A jovial red-faced Santa Claus exuding good cheer entered the Centre and when the noise of welcome had subsided, and his tour of the guests ended, distributed handsome gifts to the kiddies.

The party was held under the direct sponsorship of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Company Employees' Guild.

Friederich Flick Given Seven Years For Exploitation

Nuernberg, Dec. 22 —(AP)— Friederich Flick, 64-year-old head of Germany's largest privately-owned coal, iron and steel empire, was sentenced to seven years imprisonment by an American military tribunal today for exploiting slave labor and looting German-occupied countries.

The 2½ years which Flick already has spent in confinement will be deducted from his sentence.

Otto Steinbrinck, Flick's principal associate, was sentenced to five years in prison and Flick's nephew, Bernard Weiss, was sentenced to serve 2½ years.

Three other Flick associates who were defendants in the six-months trial were acquitted on all counts.

Arrests Aided By New Two-way Radio Network

Lindsay, Dec. 22 —(CP)— A Highway chase at high speed north of Toronto, resulting in the arrests of two men suspected in a Lindsay store hold-up Saturday, was said by Provincial Police officers to have been greatly aided by the new Ontario Provincial Police two-way radio network.

The Byrnell grocery store here was entered Saturday by a bandit who escaped with $70 in a motorcar in which an accomplice was waiting outside the store. Hours later, police cars closed in from several directions on the suspect car and after police fired warning shots the car was stopped and its two occupants arrested.

The suspects, George Shullman, 18, and Reginald Floody, 19, were brought to Lindsay yesterday to face charges in connection with the hold-up. Both youths said they were from Oshawa.

After word of the hold-up and a description of the bandits' car had been given to Provincial Police a car was sighted near Richmond Hill, 15 miles north of Toronto, and police cars converged on the scene from several directions. The pursued car sideswiped another machine just north of Toronto but at the city's outskirts the two youths jumped from the car and were rounded up in a brief search on foot. Police said that each youth carried revolvers and ammunition, plus a realistic toy pistol.

Hornets and Reds Out in Front In Their Divisions

(By The Canadian Press)

With Christmas only a few days hence, it looks as though Santa Claus will have to step into the picture if rival teams hope to dislodge the American Hockey League pace-setters, Pittsburgh Hornets and Providence Reds.

Today Reds are leading the loop's eastern division by a full seven points while the Wasps are out in front by five points in the west.

Pittsburgh came up with a double triumph over the weekend, edging Providence 4-3 on Saturday and whipping the hapless St. Louis Flyers 9-4 on Sunday. Providence came back from their beating Saturday to down Washington Lions 7-3 last night.

Cleveland's red-hot Barons also hit the double victory column, spanking Lions 8-2 on Saturday and downing Indianapolis 4-2 on Sunday. However, Caps announced that they are filing a protest, claiming the first Cleveland goal shouldn't have been allowed.

Philadelphia Rockets were whipped twice losing to New Haven 10-3 on Saturday and Buffalo 4-3 last night.

New Haven downed Hershey 4-3 on Sunday to move into sole possession of third place in the eastern circuit. Bears tied Springfield 5-5 to round out the weekend schedule.

Jackie Hamilton was the hero in the Pittsburgh win over Providence, scoring the winning goal with less than six minutes to play. Peanuts O'Flaherty, Pete Backor, and Syd Smith also scored for Hornets while Carl Liscombe, Harry Taylor and Whitey Prokop found the mark for Reds.

O'Flaherty paced Hornets on Sunday with a two-goal effort while one each went to Hamilton, Backor, Tod Sloan, Smith, Bob Dawes and Armand Lemieux. Bill McComb led the St. Louis attack with a brace of tallies with Harry Backor and Don Grosso scoring one each.

Protested Game

In the Providence - Washington game Pete Kapussa and Chuck Scherea each scored twice and Johnny Chad, Liscombe and Maurice Arcand once each. Don Porteus, Carr-Harris, and Ciuman tallied for Washington.

Bobby Carse and Jack Lavoc potted two goals each to lead Cleveland in their triumph over Washington. Ab Demarco, Pete Leswick, Bob Solinger and Roger Gagne also counted for Barons. Hugh Mair and Frank Porteus tallied for Washington.

In the protested game on Sunday, Johnny Holota, Solinger, Lavoie and Pete Kelly were the Cleveland scorers. Gerry Couture and Barry Sullivan bagged the Indianapolis goals.

Winston Juckes and Eddie Slowinski each turned in a three-goal performance for New Haven on Saturday as the Ramblers defeated Philadelphia 10-3 in the Quaker city. Virgil Johnson, Ken Davies, Dunch Fisher and Ian MacKintosh scored one each for New Haven. Wendell Jamieson, Eddie Bush and Walt Stefaniew snared one each for Rockets.

In the Buffalo, Philadelphia game, Doug Lewis, Jerry Brown, Les Haldeson and Les Douglas scored for the second-place Bisons. Steve Wochy paced the Rockets with two goals with the other one being picked up by Mike Narduzzi.

Juckes came through with another three-goal effort—claimed to be a new record by Ramblers' officials — as New Haven edged Hershey 4-3 Sunday. Heller tallied the other New Haven goal while Johnny Pierson scored two for Bears and Gordie Bruce one.

In the other weekend contest, Gordie Bruce with two goals led Hershey as they tied Springfield. Pierson, Clarence Marquess and Jack McGill scored twice for Indians with one each going to Bill Gooden, Alan Kuntz and Leo Lamoreux.

Maple Leafs Keep Slim Lead Over Detroit Wings in National Hockey Loop Weekend Games

(By The Canadian Press)

That's a ding-dong struggle between Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings for the National Hockey League leadership. The Leafs today were still riding on a one-point margin.

The entire standing in fact looked much like it did before the weekend's five games, except that Boston Bruins have jumped ahead of New York into third place, and the luckless Chicago Black Hawks in the cellar now are a full six games behind Canadiens. Rumors over the weekend that Hawk coach Johnny Gottselig would be replaced by Charlie Conacher, former Toronto Maple Leaf star, still lacked confirmation. Manager Bill Tobin of Chicago said a deal was brewing.

The leaders set the keynote on Saturday night in Toronto, with the Leafs gaining a 4-4 draw against Detroit on a goal scored by a six-man attack with only 7 seconds of play remaining. In the other Saturday night game Boston walloped the Canadians 4-2.

Pile up 3-0 Lead

On Sunday Leafs went to Chicago and won 3-1 after piling up a 3-0 lead, Detroit edged the Boston Bruins 6-5, and Montreal Canadiens finally snapped the Ranger jinx, beating the New Yorkers 4-3. The Ranger win resulted from a 50-foot third period drive by Bobby Fillion being accidentally deflected into the New York net by defenceman Frankie Eddolls.

Detroit were ahead all the way against Toronto Saturday night, leading 3-1 after the first period and 3-2 after the second. They held a 4-3 lead from the ninth minute of the last period right until there was only seven seconds to play.

Ted Lindsay, Gordon Howe, Syd Abel and Rod Morrison were the Detroit goal-getters. Don Metz, Max Bentley, Ted Kennedy and Vic Lynn scored for Toronto. It was Lynn's goal on a pass from Kennedy and Thomson, with Toronto playing six men up and goalie Turk Broda out of the net, that brought the tie.

At Montreal, Frankie Brimsek in the Bruins net starred in the Boston win over Canadiens, who were still minus Maurice Richard. Joe Carveth, traded from Boston, set up Ken Reardon for the first Canadien goal but Bruins came back with four before the second period was over, with Ed Harrison, Porky Dumart, Quilty and Ken Smith doing the honors. Canadiens' second goal was the only one of the last period, scored by Bobby Fillon.

A Tainted Goal

The Canadiens and Rangers were tied 3-2 until the last frame was more than half gone. Buddy O'Connor's first period goal for New York was matched by old Toe Blake. Fillon and Billy Reay scored for Montreal in the second, Cal Gardner and Don Raleigh for New York. Then came Fillon's tainted goal.

At Chicago Leafs were ahead all the way, with a 3-0 lead on Harry Watson's two goals and Max Bentley's tally in the first two periods. Gaye Stewart spoiled Broda's shut-out halfway thru the last period.

Detroit kept pace with the Leafs by winning at Boston ahead all the way. Rookies Jim McFadden and Rod Morrison each scored twice, Doug McCaig and big Jack Stewart getting the others. Don Gallinger, with two and Jack Crawford, Jimmy Peters and Pete Babando were the Boston scorers.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Rocket Juniors will test their strength against a Peterborough junior "B" team in Memorial Arena here on December 29th, secretary Dick Beare announced over the weekend. The strength of the Petes' kids is an unknown quantity at the present time but if past history is any criterion, any club coming out of Perdneville will be no pushover. Fresh from their startling victory over the Trenton Flyers in the District Loop quarter final playoffs, the Rockets are hotter than the rear end of their namesakes at the present time, and Coach 'Smoky' Harris feels that the kids have now hit their stride and will give the best of the junior squads hereabouts a run for their money.

Rockets have been grouped with three Kingston teams in their "B" section while the Petes kids have been entered in a grouping in their own district. In any event the tilt here Dec. 29 should be a typical Peterborough - Belleville brawl and that means hockey fireworks.

Squadron Leader F. Watkins, master-mind of the RCAF Olympic team in a brief inter-period interview the other night here, stated that a good Canadian intermediate hockey squad should take the Olympic honors. He had been overseas in 1946, he said, and had watched European teams perform. They are fast and cagy, in his opinion but a hard-hitting heavy - checking team should be able to take their measure.

Be that as it may. Those European teams had no difficulty in sending a Boston squad home recently with a bunch of defeats tacked on their belts, and the Yanks were supposed to be one of the best squads on the Eastern seaboard. Squadron Leader Watkins may be carrying the torch for his Olympic squad in view of their recent defeats at the hands of mine-run intermediate teams in Canada, and their totally unimpressive showing against the Belleville senior "B" squad, a team as yet untested and untried against squads of their own rating in this district.

Personally we would feel a lot better, if we were of the betting type and laid a pile of lettuce on Canada's representatives, if the squad wearing the Maple Leaf was of the ilk of the Montreal Royals, Toronto Marlboros, and at the time of writing the Montreal Canadiens. There'll be tough opposition over 'ome when the whistles toot the "Charge" in the hockey fiestas and in our opinion from what we saw on Friday night, it will take a whole lot better team than that which defeated our Senior "B's", to cop the Olympic hockey laurel wreath.

Along the boxing rialto there have been many arguments anent the respective abilities of Joe Louis, and former world's heavyweight boxing champions. A lot of the oldtimers figure that such former champs like Dempsey, Tunney et al would knock the Brown Bomber into a cock-eyed loop, while other younger alleged fistic experts think the Sepia Slugger is the best heavyweight to wear the bauble of supremacy in that division.

But "Dumb" Dan Morgan, one of the better known pebbles on the Jacobs boxing beach in N'Yawk, not only figures Dempsey would beat Louis but tells how he would do it. Dumb Dan has been studying fighters for the past thirty years and few know that the only knockout of Louis by Max Schmeling was plotted in a New York office by Morgan.

"You can lick him, I tell you, if you listen to me," Morgan told the beetle-browed German. "Now, remember, he's one of the greatest jabbers I've ever seen. He will stick his left fist in your face all through the early rounds. He will probably cut you up plenty. Except that, too."

You won't be able to cross a punch over that left arm right away," Morgan advised Schmelling." He has long arms. But boy, wait... wait ... wait. He'll pull that left back, shorten his arm and try to hook you at the side of the head. That will be your chance. You'll have to take a licking for a while, to wait for that opening. When it comes let go with your right, don't miss—and you've got him."

About a month later on June 30, 1936, the majority of over 36,000 fans who jammed Yankee Stadium leaped to their feet in amazement and some of Broadway's top bookmakers felt a sudden pang in their pocketbooks as Max Schmelling floored the hitherto invincible Joe Louis with right hand punch to the jaw in the fourth round.

They continued to stare in mixed incredulity and horror as the icily-cool German, an 8-1 underdog, went on to hammer the unbeaten Negro sensation into a helpless hulk, knocking him out in the twelfth round of a scheduled fifteen round bout.

Morgan visits the camps of the fighters, looks them over and gives his opinion. He has picked practically all the winners in the last thirty big bouts. He watched Billy Conn train, turned away in disgust and called the round almost to the minute, Louis would administer the sleeping powder.

Louis Remini, Mami Mauriello's manager, was giving out to the press boys in the Twentieth Century Sporting Club in N'Yawk the other day, and noting Morgan's arrival, decided to rib him. Remini waxed enthusiastic over runners and jumpers records and then turning suddenly to Morgan, thrust his cigar under the old gent's nose and shouted "And aint Joe Louis the greatest who ever lived?"

The old warhorse breathed fire from closing nostrils. His mouth drew taut in a grim line. "Listen, you", he almost shouted while the press boys grinned and grabbed for notebooks. "The answer is 'No', and I'll tell you why. Between 45 and 50 years ago a man named ack Blackburn, who weighed only 138 pounds used to knock out heavyweights regularly. And every move he made, Joe Louis makes today. Where's your improvement in modern boxing. Joe is doing the same things 50 years later. Blackburn taught Louis everything he knows."

Then one of the press lads quietly broached the question if any of the oldtimers could have licked Louis. Morgan again exuded fire and came back with, "I'll give you five. Jim Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons, Sam Langford, Jack Johnson and Jack Dempsey."

"Jeffries weighed 215, was a great boxer and knocked out the greatest slugger, Fitzsimmons twice. He also knocked out the father of American boxing, Jim Corbett. Fitz was a shifty powerful hitter, a short arm puncher. He would paralyse Joe's body, shift to the head, and knock him out."

"Johnson would block Louis, counterpunch him, talk to him and confuse him, and would stop him in five or six rounds. Langford who was a scientific knocker-outer would crowd Louis, either lead to him or counter-punch and take whatever Joe could dish out. I think Sam would finish Joe in six or seven rounds," Morgan said.

And then Morgan made this statement that amazed some of the press-boys and hangers on. "Dempsey," he said, "would have knocked Louis out in a single round. And here's how. When the bell rang, Louis would move to mid-ring and wait for Dempsey's first move. He'd be straight up, ready to counter any punch thrown at him. Dempsey is a bundle of nerves. Jack stands with his back to Louis until the bell sounds ,then is across the ring like a flash, down low and weaving. Joe can't jab, counter or hit him with an uppercut because Dempsey's head is bobbing from side to side.

"Dempsey would drive right and left-hand smashes at the body. If Joe attempts to block these Dempsey would paralyze his arm. For the first two minutes, Dempsey has the lead and is throwing knockout punches at Louis' stomach. Joe is finally hurt and backs away and in the final minute of hte first round Dempsey shifts from the body to the head. A left hook, a short straight right and Louis is down for the full count. I don't think Louis would hit Dempsey more than two or three solid shots in the entire fight. Dempsey's style would completely baffle Joe."

Morgan's idea of the fighter who will eventually beat Louis, unless he retires undefeated, "will be a Jahnny-come-lately with the persistence of a bill-collector."

Montreal, Dec. 22. (CP)—About the time of year sport columnists begin recalling outstanding performances of the last 12 months and here, bright and early, we have Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara with pithy and pointed comment on the 1947 parade.

Baz singles out "our greatest triumph", with its world-wide acclaim, that of Barbara Ann Scott in winning the world figure-skating championship. The famous car incident caused her victory to be "smirched officially by the intrusive busy bodies of Olympiana. . . .but it did not in any way dim the lustre of her achievements."

Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup and Montreal Canadiens won the National Hockey League title, yet Baz finds the big news of the waning year in hockey "the manner in which Rangers are forging rapidly to the front, while the distressing news is the manner in which the Olympic hockey team has been made a football, placing Canada in a very unfavorable light because of the sudden desire of the Olympic overlords to take control away from the hockey governing bodies."

Montreal Royals won the Allan Cup and let no one forget it for a long while, "at least till five of their players essayed the task of making the Canadiens, in which they have as yet not been notably successful."

Toronto St. Mike's in winning the Memorial Cup "may have produced the greatest junior team of all time; in any event, none won in such decisive style."

Toronto Argos again won the Grey Cup in football, but it was Winnipeg Blue Bombers and neither Argos nor the great University of Western Ontario team that was talked about as the season wound up, "Despite errors of omission, blundering strategy and fatal miscues (Bombers) almost pulled the greatest upset since the old Hamilton Alerts defeated Argos away back in 1922."

The Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club won honors at Bermuda; Canada lost at tennis to the Australians, but "there was some improvement noted in the quality of the game put up by the Canadian Davis Cup team."

In skiing, "the Murtele twins were outstanding so far as Canada is concerned." The United States appears to dominate in track and field, but Canada's "Bob and Don McFarlane, along with Jack Parry, loom as possible point winners in the Olympic games."

After reveiwing the International sport field, Baz picks as among the greatest Canadian individual accomplishments the playing of Maurice Richard and Max Bentley in hockey and "the exceptional ability of Joe Krol to rise to great occasions in football.

SHARE YOUR JOY THIS CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a festive, friendly season. Beneath all its gaiety and warmth, its greetings and sparkling decorations, Christmas means the joy of sharing. To most of us it is a wonderful season, but for those who are less fortunate Christmas can be a real heartache. An invitation to dinner to someone who is lonesome, a toy for some needy youngster, food and clothing for a family that has met misfortune—such little things as these give life to the Christmas spirit . . . and to the spirit of "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contributd to Good Citizenship.

Boston Red Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians Lavish Spenders for Players

New York, Dec. 22 (AP)—It will cost baseball fans at big league ball parks from 10 cents to two bits to buy a score card to know the players in 1948, but it cost major league owners approximately $1,300,000 to get some of them.

Of this sum, $735,000 was spent to gain title to players from other big league clubs, $272,500 was spent on the annual draft, around $$200,000 was paid for outstanding minor league stars and more than $100,000 was handed to various free agents.

The most lavish spenders undoubtedly were Boston Red Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians. The Red Sox enriched the St. Louis treasury woht a reported $375,000 for several of the Browns' stars. The Bucs forked over $100,000 for a couple of Brooklyn players, in addition to $150,000 for three minor league stars. The Indians spent approximately $130,000 for a trio of big league performers.

Highest-priced minor leaguers were pitcher Bob Chesnes, sold by San Francisco to the Pirates for a reported $75,000 and several players. The Bucs also paid around $35,000 besides giving up catcher Ed Fitzgerald of Sacramento and $40,000 for second baseman Romannus Basgall of Montreal.

In the majors, 17 player swaps provided plenty of hot stove league fuel for the fans since the world series. The most startling were consummated by the Red Sox and Browns. Nov. 17, the Browns rocked the baseball world by unloading ace shortstop Vernon Stephens and pitcher Jack Kramer to the Red Sox for a reported $310,000 and seven players.

Traded Two More

The Browns then shipped pitcher, Ellis Kinder and infielder Billy Hitchcock to Boston for cash estimated at $65,000 and third baseman Sam Dente, pitcher Clem Dreisewerd and an unnamed player to be delivered later.

Players obtained by the Browns in the Stephens-Kramer deal included catcher Roy Partee, infielder Ed Pellagriini, outfielder Pete Layden, pitchers Jim Wilson and Al Widmar and two players to be delivered at a later date.

Only 48 hours after their deals with the Red Sox, the Browns traded pitcher Bob Muncrief and outfielder-first baseman Wally Judnich to the Indians for approximately $50,000, pitcher Bryan Stephens, outfielder Joe Frazier and an unnamed player for later delivery.

The Browns later bartered second baseman Johnny Berardino to the Indians for $60,000 and outfielder George Metkovich and sold outfielder Jeff Heath to Boston Braves for a reported $35,000. The Browns then spent $25,000 to obtain second baseman Jerry Priddy from Washington Senators.

Cleveland purchased first baseman Eible Fletcher from Pirates for $20,000 and Les Fleming. The Pirates could afford to part with Fletcher since only a fortnight before they handed over $100,000 to Brooklyn for first baseman Ed Stevens and shortstop Stan Rojek.

Philadelphia Phils paid Detroit in the neighborhood of $20,000 for first baseman-outfielder Roy Cullenbine. Cincinnati obtained outfielder Marv Rickert from the Chicago Cubs for the $10,000 waiver price.

There is a general feeling that other deals, known to be brewing, may be consummated before the curtain is lifted from the '48 campaign. Practically every club is seeking additional strength.

Amateur Boxing Under Control Of Sylvanus Apps

(By The Canadian Press)

A new deal for amateur boxing in Ontario was seen in an announcement by Sylvanus Apps, Ontario's Athletic Commissioner, that the sport will come under control of a committee headed by him.

"After Jan. 1 all boxers must have amateur cards before they can compete in boxing shows," Apps said in Toronto Saturday. He said boxing then will come under control of the office of the Athletic Commissioner but will be conducted in co-operation with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and with the Ontario Boxing Commission, a body headed by Jack (Deacon) Allen of Toronto.

"Rules and obligations of the A.A.U. will be lived up to, Apps said. Licences must be obtained for all boxing shows in Ontario in the future and boxers will be allowed to accept cash up to $30 their efforts, plus travelling expenses.

President George Paterson of the Brantford O.H.A. Senior Club, still endeavored to strengthen his team, yesterday, reported the arrival of Lloyd Mohns, former Pembroke lumber king defense star from Berkley, California. Mohns will be in the lineup tonight when the Brants play the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

The Brants are angling for more help and expect to sign George Cruickshanks of Toronto.

The National Hockey League announced last night that the league governors on a suggestion by the Rules Committee have decided to discard the new offside rules adopted this season and revert to those in effect during the 1946-47 campaign.

The old argument over which is the faster, basketball or hockey, was complicated with a new twist at Lakewood, N.J., Saturday. They played a game of basketball on ice, and called it ice skate ball. The game combined the fastest and most dangerous features of both sports and the players wore football helmets and padded jerseys as well as hockey knee protectors.

Louise Brough of Beverley Hills, Calif., was ranked No. 1 among the women tennis players of the United States for 1947 by the nominating committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Halifax Wanderers Amateur Athletic Club has issued a challenge to the R.C.A.F. Flyers' team for the "right to represent Canada" at the Olympics, it was learned yesterday.

Optical Bowlers Lead Major League Keglers

Showing fine, consistent form throughout the session, the American Optical Co. Canada Ltd. bowling team led a field of eight teams to a four-point lead in the first half of the Major A Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome according to statistics just released by league officials.

Optical finished with 39 points, four points ahead of the fast-travelling C.N.R. lads. Two points behind the railway bowlers is the Belleville Golf team, last year's titlists. The next four teams are closely bunched with Northern Electric trailing in last place with a score of 15 points.

Members of the Optical team are Messrs D. Adams, J. Wardhaugh, J. Callaghan, Bill Rawson, W. (Mickey) Moreau, and Jimmy Semark, captain. The team, composed of young, enthusiastic bowlers displayed fine form throughout and are considered a serious threat for the league title.

The league itself is enjoying one of the best seasons in years, with competition being very close and enthusiasm at a high pitch. Recently the boys held a "Turkey Roll", a new innovation to the league, and the lucky keglers who got a "free" Christmas dinner included Art Stewart, Joe Legault, Jim Semark, Orlo Smith, Pat Devine, Art Cruji, Bill Fraser and Jim White.

Players who bowled 220 or better during the "half" just concluded are: W. Moore 222; A Stewart 229; W. Dingman 238; L. Lennox 225; H. Ridley 223; D. Adams 228; P. Drumm 225; E. Greenfield 227; A. High average for the first half of the schedule was won by W. Dingman with a score of 238. High 3-string went to Wilf. McLaughlin with 887 while the same player copped the best high single with 386.

Oshawa Generals Score Third Straight Shutout

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's Junior hockeyists may not be the best in the loop, but during the week-end they were the most consistent. Three teams tried—three teams lost.

The three Junior A hockey squads naming Toronto their hometown on the Ontario Hockey Association's slate, garnered only three goals among them while their opposition averaged five counters.

Galt Rockets took the biggest slice and regained fifth position when they swamped Marlboros 11-2 at Galt. Barrie Flyers blanked the eighth place St. Michael's Majors 2-0 in the opener of Saturday afternoon's twin-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens, and moved into a third-place tie with Stratford. The seventh-place St. Catharines Teepees capped the bill with a 2-1 victory over the Young Rangers. The hapless Rangers made it 16 losses in 18 tries and retained the league's cellar position.

Oshawa Generals chalked up their third straight shutout with their 5-0 win over the ninth-place Guelph Biltmores at Oshawa to hold second position in the junior race.

In the one senior tilt the second-place Hamilton Tigers came up with a 7-5 victory over the revived Brantford Redmen.

It was Tigers' 11th win in 18 starts, at Brantford, and Indians' 16th loss in 18. Brantford remains in the league cellar.

In Toronto's curtain raiser Topper Toppazzini put St. Catharines in the lead at the five-minute mark. St. Kitt's held an edge on play which at times was threatened by individual Ranger stars.

Scoreless Second Frame

Following a scoreless second frame, Doug Chapman of Rangers slapped in the tying goal, but the knot was broken by Teepees' fiery Googan.

In the Barrie-St. Mike's encounter, Flyers followed up an evenly-placed, scoreless opening frame by lashing in a pair of tallies in the second frame, Gil St. Pierre and Bill Barrett their marksmen.

The Junior Marlboros dropped down to sixth place after the Galt affair. There were 13 penalties handed out, seven to Toronto. It was Galt's ninth victory in 18 starts.

Harry Pidherny led Rockets with three counters, Harry Marchand and Pete Tkachuk tallied twice. Other Galt goals came from Harry Hopper, Sam Mulholland, Al Singleton and Sault Ste. Marie's Bob Gallashoo. Ray Timgren and Grant Speers scored Toronto tallies.

Joe Lafrance, Barrie transfer, broke into the Oshawa scoring sheet with two counters. It was Oshawa's 14th win in 18 starts.

Ross Lowe with two goals and George Scholes with the other scored the remaining Oshawa counters.

Manager Honored

Biltmores presented their manager Roy Mason with a pen and pencil set for Christmas, prior to the game, and though they couldn't give him the win wanted, they did serve up a vastly superior brand of hockey than their league standing indicated.

Gerry Scott, Oshawa centre, was taken to hospital following a painful but undetermined chest injury in the second period.

The league-leading Spitfires notched their 16th win in 19 starts at Windsor. Bert Giesebrecht, Doug McKay, Cam Church and Jack Taylor tallied Windsor counters. Stratford's goals came in the final frame from Ken Candler, Frank McCardle and Dinny Flanagan.

A change-over was noted at Brantford as Tigers did everything to hold their own against the surprisingly-strong Redmen. Brantford will be strengthened further with the arrival by Lloyd Mohns, Pembroke Lumber Kings player from Berkley, Calif., who will be on tonight's line-up. The Brants expect to sign also a Toronto boy, George Cruikshanks

Clarence Shillington and C. Smelle led Hamilton with two counters each. Johnny Corick, Frank Liscombe and Tommy Tindal accounted for the others. Scotty Linn, Wally Zuko, Pidgeon, Hoyle and Hutchinson were Brantford marksmen.

Stratford Indians visit Hamilton Patricias and Kitchener Waterloo goes to Brantford in tonight's slated Senior fixtures. St. Catharines visits Barrie in the one junior game scheduled.

New York, Dec. 22. (AP)—Yankee outfielder Charlie Keller will begin testing his lame back early in January as a member of the "Faculty" of George Stirnweiss' Barton, Fla, baseball school. . . . Couldn't that be developed into a dodge to beat the March 1 Spring training deadline in the case of doubtful players. . . .Zach Taylor predicts hopefully that the Browns will be "better" if a couple of young pitchers come through. Some of the Brownie youngsters—Fred Sanford, for example, didn't get the chance to work often enough last Summer.

End of the Line

The Syracuse U. Ski School has 45 instructors and 885 students enrolled in the course. So far no one has counted the bruises. . . . it isn't original, but Detroit Tigers' Eddie Mayo says there are just two kinds of pitchers who give him trouble—right handers and left handers. . . E. Roland Harriman, founder of the United States Trotting Association, recently severed all connection with that body without giving any reason. Wonder if he was annoyed at the emphasis given to betting on the trotters—a subject he always wanted to play down?

The N.Y. football Giant's Christmas card this year bears a picture of a large Santa Claus emptying his pack and 11 football players coming out of it. . . When Joan Claassen, whose pop is a sport writer, saw that she remarked: "I'm glad the Giants finally got out of that sack. They were in it all season."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No use getting wrinkles wondering what to do with every problem bridge hand. Better take the attitude: What the heck; all I can do is right even if it turns out wrong.

Occasionally you get a hand that has two right bids. What to do then? Select the bid that will get from partner the information you are most anxious to hear.

Pick up a cluster of pasteboards like the hand you see here:

♠ A K 3 2
♥ A K 9
♣ K 7 3

If this does not worry you a little, your nerves could stand a good re-charging job. Almost anything you do may be something you are likely to regret. Even if you follow rule.

Such a hand has the makings of a game. Not, however, if partner has a bust hand. Therefore, it should not start with a game force of two in a suit. Do not force partner to bid with nothing.

Would you open with a club as a stepping stone? Some partner may give a cheap response with less than his needed three tricks. Your club suit is not biddable. Both bids would be wrong.

You have enough for an opening of one spade. But with less than three tricks, partner will pass. And your hand may not need the help of as many as three tricks to make a game.

An opening of two no-trump shows eight high cards; or seven if four of them are sure tricks. You have this. Such an opening does not force partner to bid unless he has one high card or better.

If partner has one high card or better, you have a good chance to make a no-trump game. Thus, two no-trump is your best opening. It is most likely to get the information you seek.

Such help may not be enough to make game easily. Clever playing may be needed. Did you think every contract is wrapped up in pink ribbon for you? Be your age.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 22. (AP)—Despite the pre-Christmas lull of production, Hollywood's famous names still manage to make some news:

Nelson Eddy is getting back into production again and his new picture will be "The Hollywood Story". It's a behind-the-movies yarn and he may be able to make it before he starts his concert tour in March. . .

Glenn Ford was seen dining with a top man of a major studio. It's no secret that Glenn has been having difficulties with his lot, Columbia, which won't permit him to do any outside films on his own. The actor's contract has only two years to go and it's possible he may align with another studio after that. . .

Gene Tierney is apparently at peace with 20th-Fox now that her suspension is over. After "The Iron Curtain" she plans to go right into a comedy, as yet unnamed.

Bitter Battle

Charles Vidor's long and bitter battle to get away from Columbia has come to at least a temporary halt. The director told me his next film after "The Loves of Carmen" will be on the Columbia lot ."I'm stuck," he shrugged.

Claude Rains joins Errol Flynn in "The Turquoise", from the Anya Seton novel. Rains will play a Scotsman transplanted to Santa Fe, N.M.

Errol Flynn reports he is buying a diving bell to be operated from his yacht. After he finished "Don Juan", he says he'll head for Jamaican waters where he'll attempt some underwater research in association with the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, a part of the University of California.

Travel Talk

Paulette Goddard finished "Hazard" and flew to New York for holidays with Burgess Meredith. They'll go to Paris Jan. 8 and Paulette plans to visit occupation troops in Germany while her husband finishes his film for the British government. Paulette still wants to make "Night Watch" in Palestine and she may get a chance next year.

Gene Kelly is walking on his broken right ankle without a cane and reported for wardrobe fittings for "Three Musketeers" . . . Expectant Eleanor Parker has been ordered to stay in bed during the holidays. . .

Rita Hayworth tells me she is giving daughter Rebacca a doll house for Christmas. Also another pearl. By the time Rebecca is of age, she'll have a necklace. . . Ben Blue will play Dennis Morgan's pal in "One Sunday afternoon', his same capacity in "My Wild Irish Rose".

BOILED FOR THE SAKE OF SCIENCE

Using themselves as guinea pigs, six scientists at the university of California at Los Angeles have cooped themselves up in a sealed room considerably hotter than boiling water, to prove that pilots would be able to stand the intense heat generated by friction when airplanes hit 1,000 miles per hour. They proved that the human body can stand temperatures up to 250 degrees Fahrenheit, which is 38 degrees above the boiling point of water. For periods of 14 and a half minutes the scientists, headed by Dr. Craig Taylor, took turns in the chamber. One of the student volunteers, Si Friedlander, is pictured being removed from the heat chamber after he was subjected to the test.

Teen-agers Want Community Centre To Continue

Renfrew, Dec. 22. (CP)— The battle waging around an old church building in this small Central Ontario town may turn into a test case for the success or failure of community centers across Canada.

It's an all-out tussle between the teen-agers and tax-payers; who at the last municipal elections rejected a money by-law which would have allowed a $6,000 yearly grant to the Renfrew Recreation Association.

"They turned it down by 17 votes, and the sad part of it is the grant would have cost the average person only $1.72 a year," said Doug Van Alstine of St. Catharines, director of the R.R.A.

It all began a year ago when one of Renfrew's old-time residents, Mrs. D. K. Stewart, handed the former Methodist Church over the town "so the youngsters would have a place to play instead of on the streets".

Soon the old church was echoing with the shouts of youngsters playing ping pong, badminton and basketball.

"Handicraft groups and 'teenage dances are just two of the many other activities the R.R.A. has been handling," said Mr. Van Alstine. "And in the time the centre has been operating Renfrew has had only one case of juvenile delinquency, which the police chief says is a record figure."

Public subscription kept the church open for a year, but it was felt a yearly grant from the town would assure the life of Renfrew's community centre, he concluded.

Following announcement of the by-law's defeat the teen-agers paraded Renfrew's Main Street, waving protest placards, and stopping passersby to find out how they had voted.

Despite the failure of the by-law, the centre is by no means "broken up". Already youth-conscious Renfrew residents have put their heads together and plans are under way to raise the much-needed $6,000 once more by public subscription.

"The kids have determined they're going to work to keep their recreation centre," said Mr. Van Alstine.

DEVIL'S WORK

By Carolyn Wells

CHAPTER 5.

"You wouldn't do a thing like that. I know you too well. You'd fight fair and above board."

"In most things, yes. But this is different." He dropped his voice, "Don't turn now—Esme is right behind you."

"And, speaking louder, "You must admit, Jean, that in fencing, subtlety will succeed where knowledge of the rules and complete observance of them may fail. This is where individuality counts and your charcter shows out in the play."

"Yes, I know subtlety makes brilliant effect, but the use of it may distract you for a second, and allow you to overlook a fleeting motion of your opponent, which you must never do."

"What awful wise talk!" exclaimed Esmeralda, coming nearer. "I say, Jean, you mad at me?"

"Nonsense, of rourse not. Only weak-minded people go mad."

"I think you're weak-minded. If you weren't, you wouldn't allow me to stay here."

Jean gave a little ringing laugh.

How ridiculous you are, Esme," she said. "Do you suppose for a moment that if I didn't want you here, you would be here? Indeed, you would not! But I am absolutely indifferent as to whether you go or stay. I am not obliged to be with you."

"I notice you talk to me quite a bit," Esme preened herself.

"That if you care to know, is because I have never seen your sort before, and I am curious to look at a new specimen."

Sayre looked at Jean, both surprised and amused.

He had never seen this side of her before, and he was glad to know that she could score off the rude girl.

And Jean's voice and the expression on her face even more than her words made Esme seem a veritable insect, viewed with scientific interest.

Esmeralda could meet Jean in verbal fencing. She said, carelessly. "How do you like my new frock? Vivian bought it for me."

It was a little French confection of silk gingham, and it suited Esme perfectly.

"Vivian bought it?" and Sayre looked incredulous.

"Yes he often—oh, you meant how could he know the size and all that. But Vivian knows all my sizes—he could buy me anything."

"And will!" said their host. Joining the group. "What do you

"I don't waht her to spend all

"Oh, bless your heart! I made a list of things." Esme dug into her little handbag. "I thought you had gone and I'd missed a chance."

"I did start, but I came back to attend to some matters here."

"I have to run in to town this afternoon," Jean said. Which car shall I take, Viv?"

"Do you want to drive or have Timmins?"

"Oh, I'll have Timmins. It's just a few errands."

"Very well, I'll tell him. And I've asked the Wetherbees for dinner tonight."

"That's good. Now I am going to confab with Mrs. Moore."

"What's the cook doing—up in the nursery?" asked Vivian, looking innocent.

"Silly boy!" Jean smiled, and went off to the house.

"Don't you want her to go to the nursery?" Sayre asked, just because he felt angry.

She sat at Vivian's right hand, all her time there," Forrest retorted, and then he and Esme walked off.

It was dinner time before they all met again.

Jean sat at the head of the table; Esme had no desire for the place. There were two or three new house guests and some neighbors, and the talk was all of the tournament.

Suzy laughed a bit quiet, but Esme was in riotous spirits and made them laugh with her chatter.

She sat Vivian's right hand, all unconscious or careless of Mrs. Wetherbee's irrate glances.

After dinner all, minds and tongues were busy with fencing matters.

"I can't stand it another minute!!" Esme said to Vivian. "If I hear the word riposte once more, I'll scream! Come out on the veranda for a few minutes."

But Vivian was standing by Jean, holding her arm tightly.

She was very white and her beautiful face seemed drawn as if by sudden stroke or shock.

"Come with me," he said, in a low voice, and led her from the room.

He took her upstairs and into his study and closed the door.

"Now, let's have it out," he said, an ugly note in his voice. "You are upset—I suppose by the new arrangement I have made."

"Yes. I am told that when I was away this afternoon, you had all the nursery furniture moved from the house down to the white guest cottage."

"I did. Jansen made a good job of it. You see, the child's crying at night disturbs Esme. The rooms were right above hers. So I have put the little one down in that pleasant cottage. There is lots of room for Rhoda and it will really ze better for the child than being cooped up in two rooms in the house."

"But it is away down the garden path. You have put my child far away from me. You must bring her back."

With the last words, Jean assumed an air of direction, of command, but it made no impression on her husband.

"Oh you can go down there when you like," he said, coldly. "But—see that you do not go when I am likely to want you. Always be here for our nightly practice. I don't want to omit that. Come downstairs, after you have touched up your face; it needs it."

Forrest went downstairs, whistling softly, and his wife began to touch up her face.

Life went on gaily at Forrest Fell. Its master was enjoying himself exceedingly. He liked to be host to a large party, to sit at the end of a long table, host to worthwhile guests who would be welcomed to any home in America. He liked to know that his young people were marvels of beauty and charm, and to show proudly his paragon of a wife who was in such perfect harmony with it all.

Through the coming tournament was foremost in the minds of the members of the Sargon Club, many of the younger set were bored with it and preferred the fun they could make for themselves.

One exciting entertainment followed another, but through it all ran the thread of the tournament.

It was Wednesday morning, and the event would be held on Saturday.

The best fencers seemed to be doing the most practicing, and rubber mats were spread on the dawn for those who liked outdoor play.

"I'm sick and tired of it all!" Esme complained to Vivian. "I want to go home."

"You do? Then you shall. I'll help you get off. I know how the practice bores you. Do you mean to go today?"

Now Esme hadn't meant to go at all, and Vivian well knew it, but he loved to tease her.

They were in the honeysuckle arbor, a favorite tryst with them, and Esme was looking very sweet and lovely, though discontented.

"I don't want to go—unless you want me to—"

"Well—now you speak of it—maybe I do want to go." But he took her in his arms and covered the piquant face with kisses.

They sat on a rustic sette, and he told her a plan that made her eyes dance with glee and her face dimple with laughter.

"Oh, Vivian," she cried, "you do love me, don't you!"

"Have I ever given you reason to doubt it?"

"No you never before gave me such a reason to believe it! What will Jean say when you ask her?"

"I shan't ask her, I shall tell her. It doesn't matter what she says. My word is law in this house."

"And you love me better than you do her!"

"I do not! Make no mistake, my girl. You are a caprice, a temporary. I love Jean ten thousand times more than I love you, but just now you are my whimsy. And I think the plan I suggested will be a lot of fun."

Esme gazed at him, an odd look in her eyes. Then she smiled, and said, "Yes, it will be. When will you tell her?"

"When it suits my convenience. And you're not to say a word about it, until I say you may. Indeed, if you tell anybody, I will change the plan."

"Oh, I won't tell. You don't seem to care much about your child, do you?"

"I had hoped for a boy. No, I don't want any share in the little girl."

If you did, you could get it only over Jean's dead body. And we don't want any murders around here. I say, Viv, can I have a wedding ring?"

"You can have a diamond half-hoop, if you want it, but it would look rather silly, because it wouldn't mean anything."

"How cruel you are to me! If Jean should die, would you marry me?"

"I would not! Here's Haskell coming. You string along with him for a while. I have a practice date."

"Oh, my darling Peter! Come to my rescue, do! This man is as cruel as a Toltec, or whatever I mean! Take me away, Peter, and pet me up."

Haskell had not bashed in the sunshine of Esme's smiles as much as he wanted to, and he took her off willingly.

Forrest went back to the house to interview his new valet. In a fit of ill temper he had discharged his long-suffering and faithful Parsons, and now Molton reigned in his stead.

Workers Presumed Lost in Bush Safe At Apsley Cabin

Peterborough, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Tired, hungry and a bit bewildered about the fuss, Roger Lavine of Ottawa, and H. J. Herbert of Perth, Ont., and Toronto, today were "taking it easy" at Apsley, 45 miles north of here, more embarrassed than worried about the anxiety they caused Provincial Police and rugged woodsmen since Friday night.

Both experienced bushmen and members of Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission construction crews, they had been reported missing in the district's snowbound bushland after not arriving on schedule at Apsley Friday night.

Fellow-employees waited for several hours and then decided that they must have wandered off a trail blazed last summer and running along a Hydro right-of-way between Nepheline Mines and Apsley.

To make matters look blacker, temperatures were hovering around the 20-below mark and heavier snow could be expected.

Search parties laden with first aid equipment, food, blankets, and wearing snowshoes rushed to reach the trail early Saturday morning — 24 hours after the men had been unreported for 24 hours.

While searchers were scouring the bleak area, Lavine and Herbert were fairly comfortable in an empty cabin near Apsley — and downing hots swigs of steaming coffee, conveniently left behind by its unknown owner.

The two men said that at no time had they lost their way and that both were quite familiar with the area.

"It was just a case of not making as fast time as we had expected," said Herbert.

They are members of a crew pushing a power-line north from Havelock to Halliburton. A truck driver Friday drove them to one point of the line and was instructed to meet them again about 8:45 a.m. Because the men were unable to meet the truck it was assumed they had become lost.

WILD TURKEYS

Turkeys are related to pheasants and, in three species, were found wild from Maine to South America.

Kansas City Pla-Mors Too Smart for Millers

(By The Associated Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors proved again they have the Indian sign on Minneapolis Millers by giving them their worst defeat of the United States Hockey League season last night 7-2.

The Millers, leading the league have lost only eight games—four of them to Kansas city which is next to the bottom in points.

In other weekend games Fort Worth regained second place in the southern division by defeating Houston 7-3 the fifth time in seven starts, while Dallas dropped into third place on losses to Minneapolis 8-3, and to St. Paul 6-2.

Coach Clint Smith juggled his Tulsa line-up and the Oilers knocked off Houston Huskies 6-2, after losing five straight to the Huskies.

St. Paul downed Omaha 3-1, with Russ Schwartz scoring two of the winning goals.

No games are scheduled tonight. Tomorrow Fort Worth will play at Houston, and Dallas at Tulsa.

EARLY FUR FARMING

Modern fur farming in Canada originated when early fur traders kept alive foxes caught out of season until the fur was prime.

"CHINA'S SORROW"

The Yellow River in China is dubbed "China's Sorrow" because of the many floods it has loosed on adjacent rich farmlands.

Residents of Many European Countries Will Find Christmas Better Than for Many Long Years

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

London, Dec. 22. (AP)—Santa Claus will skip a lot of people in Europe this Christmas, but for the inhabitants of a few lucky lands it will be fairly merry.

A fraction of the continent's millions will have roast goose and a cheerful bit of holly to brighten the day. But for other millions Christmas will be another day of worry over rations and coal for the kitchen stove.

A "Santa Claus" survey of the Christmas prospects of 20 countries indicated that in a material way, it will be somewhat better Christmas than last year. Except in a corner of Greece and a few drought-stricken regions of Eastern Europe there is a little more food for the holiday than there was a year ago.

There are some toys for the children and times have been quiet enough to enable men to revive some of the colorful observances of the traditional Christmas season. There were indications everywhere the midnight masses will be attended by great throngs.

Prices Still High

One complaint was universal—prices are high and going higher. A doll which doesn't look like much costs around the equivalent of $10 in Italy. Forty dollars is not unusual for a small boy's tricycle in France. A $23 turkey in Switzerland is not an impressive bird and a Christmas tree in Portugal costs up to $12.

Nowhere has income kept pace with rising prices. The traditional carp was a luxury in Czechoslovakia and rice porridge, which belongs to Christmas eve in Denmark, was outside the range of many a family's budget.

For most Italians Christmas will be better than at any time since the war—but the well-stocked restaurants and shops in Italian cities give a misleading impression. Prices of even articles which would make modest gifts are beyond the reach of average Italians.

Germany, too, will have a slightly better Christmas. There are even a few Christmas trees—rationed—with priority being given to families with children. There is little enough to eat, and many houses will be cold. There are some toys, expensive and not up to pre-war quality.

In Russian, British and American occupation zones there will be small, extra distributions of flour and sugar.

Austrians, said a message from Vienna, will be thinking about calories, and if all goes well there will be the usual 1,700 a day for the average consumer. There still is no margin to permit the tradition soup and whitefish.

Goose $1.50 Per Pound

In France, high prices dampen the Christmas spirit. Goose, well-regarded as a Christmas dish, costs about $1.50 a pound, so most Frenchmen will have something else.

Scandinavian lands, covered this winter by a thick blanket of snow, will be about as merry as anyone in Europe.

There will be no pinching shortage of the essential goose in Norway, Denmark or Sweden, but all miss rice and the usual complaints over high prices are heard.

Poland looked forward to some good eating on Christmas Eve. Vegetable and fruit crops were good and livestock is sufficient for the population. So Poles will resume the traditions, which in the countryside includes the custom of giving the farm animals a token bit of every Christmas dish.

Nature was less bountiful a short distance to the south.

Czechoslovakia, after the most severe drought in many years, has been obliged to cut its food ration sharply.

Romania will have a prosperous Christmas season. Many traditions are being revived, including the singing of carols and the produtcion of nativity plays There are shortages, a curious one being a lack of candles.

Rains last summer passed by Bulgaria and consequently, this will be the country's leanest Christmas season since the war.

Greece always observes Christmas as a religious holiday, and will do so this year.

Switzerland Well Supplied

In Middle Europe, prosperous Switzerland is set to observe a Merry Christmas. Butter, bread, milk and sugar are still rationed, but the country has large quantities of meat, fruit, poultry, eggs and other products which a hard currency can buy.

Reports from Spain said the Christmas eve dinner will be less abundant than a year ago, and again the reason is high prices. Dispatches from Portugal indicate everyone will eat well.

Belgium and Holland will observe the holiday decorously and traditionally, emphasizing the religious aspects of the day. Belgium, especially will eat well.

Austere Britain hoped for a Christmas a little more bountiful than that of last year, but the supply situation is spotty. Good supplies of fowl especially turkeys, are arriving from many lands. There will be some extra grapefruit, oranges and tangerines, and a little more coal for the fireplace. On the darker side, potatoes are becoming scarce.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma left me downtown at pop's office while she kept on with her Chrissmas shopping, and pop was taking me home and we went passed a Salvation Army Santa Claws ringing his bell for people to drop money in his wooden chiminey.

Being a thin Santa Claws with long falts whiskers and a flat naturel stummick, and I said, G, pop, did you see that Santa Claws, how sad he looked?

Yes, I noticed, pop said. He probably feels depressed at the site of so many well dressed, well fed people passing him by without a contribution, he said, and I said, Then lets go back and drop something in his chiminey and see if he smiles.

It's an idea, and we'll act on it, pop said.

Which we did, walking back and pop putting a half a doller in his chiminey and saying, There, old timer, that awt to bring good cheer to somebody.

I hope so, the Santa Claws saic. Saying it sad and not smiling, and pop said, My dear chap, do you realize you're standing here with every reason to be bright and cheery Do you realize you're standing here the living simbol of volintary charity and the spirrit of helpthy naybor he said.

Mister, I realize I'm standing here with my feet just killing me, and that's all I seem to have room to realize, the Santa Claws said.

Sounding like somebody feeling werse instead of better, and pop said, This is my lucky day, I've just been itching for a chance to try out my new foot plaster.

And he took out a doller bill and reeched down and stuck it in the Santa Claws's shoe, and we kept on going and I looked back and the Santa Claws was smiling in his falts whiskers like somebody feeling better instead of werse, and I said, G, pop, Merry Chrissmass, and pop said, The same to everybody.

WELL, LOOK WHO'S HERE! — All season long Tim Daly, that fat man with a shuffle, ministers to the wants of Lockey players as Maple Leaf trainer. So, it seemed only natural that ol' Tim should don Santa Claus robes and play host to the children of leaf players. Here, jolly St. Nick, having passed out a few small gifts, poses with his young admirers before a Christmas tree setting at the Gardens. Left to right, the children are Bonnie Broda, Skippy Stanowski, Betty Broda, Barry Watson, Barbara Broda and Ashley Boesch. Wonder what Santa promised?

Appeal Welcomed By British Papers

London, Dec. 22 (Reuters) — The appeal to British Socialists by party secretary Morgan Phillips to check Communist infiltration was welcomed by almost all British papers today as answering the challenge of what they called Communist attempts to wreck the Marshall Plan and hinder western recovery.

Several papers warned that the British Communists, though numerically weak, obtained results in the trade union movement by strict discipline which contrasted with the political apathy of the average union member.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian said the unions had every cause for vigilance against Communists who "are not a genuine British party, but the subservient agents of a foreign power."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph described last night's attack on Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin by Harry Pollitt, secretary of the British Communist party as proof that he had "fully digested the cominform doctrine."

The Times, Independent, said that after some protracted heart-searching and with "due confession of past errors," British Communists now had decided to tie the line laid down in Belgrade and declare a war of their own against the Marshall Plan and the Labor Government. The very ineptitude of the Communists in politics enlarged their nuisance value in industry.

50,000 Workers May Seek Another Hourly Pay Boost

Flint, Mich, Dec. 22. (CP)—Leaders of more than 50,000 members of the United Auto Workers (CIO) in this area Saturday revealed plans to call on U.A.W .officials to press demands on General Motors Corporation for a 25-cent hourly pay boost.

The preliminary demands will be submitted to the U.A.W. General Motors Council before they are presented to the Corporation by the U A.W.S. National G.M. Bargaining Committee.

President Walter P. Reuther and other top U.A.W. officials have maintained silence regarding the demands they will make on G M. early in March when the U.A.W. begins its contract negotiations with the big auto firm.

Reuther has indicated that the U.A.W. will press for its third post-war wage increase because of high costs of living and other factors which the union claims has hurt the workers' purchasing power.

G. M. Spokesmen said its present average hourly pay covering more than 200,000 production workers is $1.54.

Autopsy Shows Man Died From Natural Causes

Toronto, Dec. 22. (CP)—Dr. J. P. Wyatt declared last night after autopsy that 65-year-old George Staples died from natural causes.

Miss Olga Ruthowsky, 24, who had been living with Staples, was charged with manslaughter in the death Saturday following a brawl late Friday night. She was released on $500 bail and put in charge of the Salvation Army.

Crown Counsel J. W. McFadden told Magistrate Frederick Cullen: "I happen to know the details of the case your worship and suggest that she be given her own bail. This man (Staples), who is 65, apparently beat her, then dropped dead."

Mrs. Laird Johnson, Staples' landlady, told the court she had called for police in the midst of a violent fight between Staples and the woman during which "Olga had him by the hair on the floor in the hall."

The fight arose from an argument over the rent money, Mrs. Johnson said.

Wurtele Twins Look Forward To Fast Runs

Valcartier, Que., Dec. 22—(CP)—Montreal's fearless skiing twins, Rhoda and Rhona Wurtele, on the eve of their departure for the winter Olympic games, today looked forward to downhill runs in the Swiss Alps at break-neck speeds of possibly 70 miles an hour. If they had to do 90 miles an hour to gain points for Canada they'd do it.

"We're looking forward to it," said Rhoda, Dominion slalom champion and United States downhill and combined titleholder. A fraction of a second was the difference between the 25-year-old sisters for the Dominion downhill and combined, won by Rhona.

"If there are wide-open runs over a fairly good distance, maximum speeds attainable might range between 50 and 70 miles," said Rhoda. She added she thought they had travelled at least 50 miles an hour in trials prior to the U. S. Nationals at Sun Valley last year when the runs were icy.

Both team manager Louis Cochand and coach Emile Allais, former world champion who knows the stiff type of competition the French and Swiss women can offer, are high on the twins' chances of success at St. Moritz.

Identical, the twins could have a lot of fun between themselves switching roles. But regarded as even more of a phenomena is the fact that there seldom, is any more than a fraction of a second in their times in downhill or slalom competitions.

Typically representatives of the Canadian outdoor girl, their faces wind-tanned and their light brown hair worn loosely, the twins are inseparable and even think alike. They started skiing at five, and first entered the competitive field in 1941.

Fatalities Few During Weekend In East Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Only five weekend fatalities were recorded in Eastern Canada by The Canadian Press today, an unusually light toll to mark the opening of Christmas week.

One traffic death occurred, one man was killed in a mine accident, a baby was asphyxiated accidentally in a motorcar and two others met death under unexplained circumstances.

The body of Mrs. Alphonse Raymond, 66-year-old widow, was discovered in a pool of blood in Quebec Saturday. Wounds in the woman's throat were apparently inflicted by a hunting knife found nearby, police said. Discovery of the body in a room of the house used as a summer kitchen was made by a daughter.

In Montreal, the half-burned body of a new-born baby was found in the incinerator of an east-end apartment house Saturday by the janitor, A. Pilon. Medico-legal experts said the baby was not still born and police are investigating.

A Saturday night drive in Toronto turned into tragedy when carbon monoxide gas leaping through a hole in the floor boards asphyxiated the 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Harris. Death of the child was not discovered until the couple returned home.

Fell Down Manway

Ernest Porter, 32-year-old assistant electrician, was killed Sunday night when he hurtled down a 300-foot manway at the Kerr-Addison mines, 18 miles east of Kirkland Lake, Rescue workers found him dead at the base of the manway and it was presumed that he lost his footing on a slippery ladder. There were no eye-witnesses to the accident.

In the traffic fatality, Joseph Martin, 31-year-old transport driver of Bradford, Ont., died at Newmarket Saturday as the result of injuries suffered in a collision on No. 11 highway some 40 miles north of Toronto Friday night. The collision between the victim's transport and an auto tore the side out of the lighter vehicle, but its driver, John Martin, escaped unhurt. An inquest will be held.

Moscow Radio Says Essence Of Plan is "War"

London, Dec. 22. (AP)—The Moscow radio, making its first comment on President Truman's message to Congress, Friday, said "the essence" of the Marshall plan is "war".

Considering its commentary on the presidential message with a discussion of State Secretary Marshall's address the same day on the failure of the London Conference of Foreign Ministers, the Moscow broadcast said:

"When the United States announces a four-year program of expenditure to revive Germany's heavy industry, her war potential, one recalls another four-year program for the development of German economy; the notorious plan of Goering and Hitler.

"The plan was adopted in 1936 to prepare the German war machine for the Second World War and (Halmar) Schacht was the financial head behind that plan, too. Now we see another four-year plan for so-called aid to Europe and again the sinister figure of Schacht. The essence of the two plans is the same—war.

"To map monetary reform for Western Germany, American authorities have called in Schacht, the German Imperialist and militarist who with his financial manipulations helped Hitler to spend thousands of millions of dollars of the arming of Germany."

"Schacht served as president of the Reichsbanw and Minister of Economics under Adolf Hitler, but fell into disfavor before the war began. He was acquitted in the first of the Nuernberg war crime trials, which ended in October, 1946, but last May was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment by a German denazification court.

DISEASE 80 P. C. FATAL

Sarnia, Dec. 22 — (CP) — Dog owners here are worried over paralyzing disease — diagnosed as a yellow atrophy of liver — which so far has been fatal to 80 per cent of dogs it has struck. Veterinarians and dog owners report the dogs affected had been fed on the same brand of dog food.

Let it be Christmas in our hearts

Amid children's bubbling laughter, lighted trees spread their boughs over many gifts.
Our tables are heavy with good things to eat.
And church bells tell their song of joy in peaceful heavens.
It's a good Christmas, a happy Christmas,
in Canadian homes again this year.

Let it be Christmas in our hearts, too.
Let us be thankful we live in a land of plenty... glad we can share our many blessings with peoples in countries less fortunate than ours.

Giving, born of the heart, is the true spirit of Christmas.
Giving is the one way to
"Peace on Earth, Good-will to Men".

SATIRA GETS 15 YEAR SENTENCE

Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, Toledo, O., dancer accused of the slaying of John Lester Mee, Chicago lawyer, aboard his yacht in Havana harbor last April, sits beside her attorney, Dr. Rene Castellanos, and has a light breakfast in the patio of the Havana courthouse where she was tried. She was sentenced to 15 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Her trial has been the most sensational of the year in the U. S.

37 ARE KILLED AS TWO EXPRESS TRAINS COLLIDE

Holiday Passengers Crowd Compartments and Corridors; 300 Injured

Frankfurt, Dec. 23 —(AP)— Thirty-seven persons perished and more than 300 were injured last night when two express trains jammed with holiday passengers collided head-on at Fahr-Irlich in the French occupation zone.

Officials of the Cologne railroad said 98 of the most seriously injured were taken to nearby Neuwied hospitals. German police expressed fear that more dead and injured might be found in the tangled wreckage.

Fahr-Irlich lies midway between Cologne and Frankfurt and all rail traffic on that line was halted by the disaster, worst rail accident in Germany since the war. Both trains in the collision were reported to have been so crowded that many passengers were standing in corridors and compartments.

Rescuers said they believed two cars had fallen into the Rhine which parallels the track, a possibility which might boost the death toll considerably.

Some authorities said it was possible the victims might include persons other than Germans since one of the trains was en route from Basle, Switzerland, to Cologne.

Despite Coaxing Woman Finally Takes Own Life

Chicago, Dec. 23 — (AP)—Two policemen and a Chicago Times photographer sped to the apartment of Mrs. Patricia Brody yesterday after she had telephoned the Times and said she was going to commit suicide.

While police were en route to the home of the 36-year-old divorcee, a reporter at the Times talked to Mrs. Brody for 20 minutes pleading with her not to kill herself. He talked of Christmas of new hope that might come with the new year, of God's mercy, of the 11-year-old adopted daughter she had mentioned.

Several times during the telephone conversation she threatened to break the connection and jump from her third-floor window. Each time the reporter coaxed her out of it.

"I have troubles . . . there's nothing to live for," she told him.

She hung up when the police and photographer John Arabinko arrived. She told the officers: "Go away, I don't want any policeman."

They left and Arabinko stayed. When she double-locked the door Arabinko began to unlock it. He told Mrs. Brody the policeman would send a police matron to help her.

SIX FORCED OUT

Kingston, Dec. 23 (CP) —Six people were forced to flee last night when fire, started when a furnace exploded, swept through a two story residence here last night. Almost all furniture and personal belongings were lost.

It took firemen two hours to quell the flames. The ground floor and cellar were seriously damaged by smoke and water and the upper floor was gutted.

Bulletin

FOUR HUNTERS FOUND

Liverpool, N.S., Dec. 23 —(CP) —The four young hunters from Liverpool missing in the Port Mouton woods near this south shore Nova Scotia town were found today. The quartet had been missing since Thursday when they went rabbit hunting.

The four young men were found at Sable River, 15 miles from the point where they entered the woods Thursday on their hunt.

No immediate details were available regarding their condition.

Earlier Raymond Frausel, a veteran guide, said the only hope that the quartet was alive was if they had matches.

GRAVEL TRUCK 'BEATS UP' TWO CARS AT LEAMINGTON

Leamington Ont., Dec. 23 — (CP) —Police here figure it shouldn't be difficult to locate the vehicle that beat up two cars in a spree of reckless driving last night. It was a grevel truck which struck a car driven by Ralph Moran, 18, and ripped off the whole left rear panel. Earlier it had sideswiped a parked car owned by Clarence Pettypiece in Cottam.

TO WITHDRAW CHARGE

Toronto, Dec. 23. (CP) —A senior police official said today that a manslaughter charge against Olga Ruthowsky, 24, arrested in connection with the death, Friday night of 65-year-old George Staples, will be withdrawn before Christmas.

He said an autopsy showed Staples died of a heart attack after a scuffle over rent money with the girl, who said she came her ten months ago from Manitoba.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP).—Skies are clouded this morning over Southern Ontario and eastern sections of Northern Ontario. A weak disturbance over Georgian Bay and another over the Ohio valley are causing the cloudiness and some light snow. Over the remainder of Ontario the weather is clear and cold. The cold air is pushing southward and will cover all of the province by evening. Wednesday is expected to be mostly clear and cold over Southern Ontario and a little milder in northern sections of the province.

CANAL DEFENCE BASE LEASES TO U.S. TURNED DOWN

Crowds Cheer Wildly As Announcement Made

Panama, Dec. 23 (AP) — Panama's National Assembly unanimously refused last night to ratify a signed agreement giving the United States the right to lease and man 14 military and airfield sites as defence bases for Panama Canal.

The assembly's action took the form of a flat rejection on the pact and seemed to close the door to future negotiation. Informed sources here expressed belief the issue might wind up in the lap of the United Nations or some international arbitration tribunal.

The rejection, voted 51 to 0, touched of a wild celebration in the capital. Thousands of persons marched through the streets shouting gleefully: "It did not pass." In the midst of the demonstrators was former Foreign Minister Ricardo J. Alfaro, who resigned Dec. 9 because of opposition to the pact.

Alfaro's successor, Florencio Arosemena, quit yesterday, a few hours before the assembly voted, because of his party's opposition to the agreement.

The situation now apparently reverts to the status of Sept. 1, 1946, when Panama notified the United States that a 1942 agreement authorizing the leasing of Panama Canal wartime defence sites had expired.

The United States argued then that the 1942 agreement was effective until a year after the peace treaty with Japan had been signed. Panama contended the "one year after" clause meant a year after Gen. MacArthur's signing of the Japanese surrender.

Some leading Panama political figures expressed resentment against what they termed an infringement on Panama's sovereignty.

The rejection was voted in spite of President Enrique Jiminez, who urged approval in a radio message last Wednesday night "because a clash for supremacy between democracy and Communism is imminent."

The State Department in Washington declined comment on the Panama assembly's action and officials said no decision would be taken on future steps until Washington receives formal notice of the rejection.

The United States owns the Panama Canal zone, which splits the Republic of Panama in two. The defence sites in question are all on Panama soil.

Switch in Crops Cuts Honey Output

Toronto, Dec. 23 —(CP)— Ontario bees are busy raising buzzing broods but are neglecting production of honey — all because farmers have switched from alsike and sweet to red clover crops, beekeepers told Department of Agriculture officials.

W. A. Munroe, president of the Ontario Beekeepers Association, argued that the honey crop has declined 50 per cent in two years and the red clover diet is to blame. Although it looks pretty and smells nice, bees can't extract honey from the red variety and what is needed is a type with short flower — so the honey workers can reach the nectar.

Urges Youth be 'Laughing Challenge To Weary Willies, Prophets of Evil

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 23 —(CP) —If youth meets life with a shrug and with a "couldn't care less" attitude it will be fatal both to the church and to the country, Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, warned in his January Diocesan Gazette issued today.

The Archbishop made a plea for a "league of youth aflame for the kingdom of God and full of laughing challenge to the weary willies and prophets of evil."

"Youth is naturally optimistic and idealistic and we must see that it is given reasonable grounds for enthusiasm and hopefulness. With all its self-assertiveness and independence, youth, nevertheless finds it very hard to stand alone and requires the help and companionship of others."

This fact was quickly discovered and acted upon by the totalitarian states "when they enrolled youth in leagues and movements and inspired them with passionate loyalty to the state."

The Archbishop suggested that the church could help solve present-day difficulties by forming in every town and village groups of men and women who "know the real purpose of life."

"It is far more important that the church should teach an attitude to life rather than that it should commit itself to specific plans for social reform," he added.

Recently returned from a visit to Europe, Dr. Garbett said he was "greatly impressed" by the confidence of Communists party members who "have faith in a classless society free from social injustice, poverty and ignorance and are pressing forward their plans for it."

"They will fail, for they ignore the facts of sin and man's inability to reach perfection by his own power," he said.

Nation of Teetotallers Not Possible Says Shaw In Answer to Query

London, Deec. 23 (Reuters) — George Bernard Shaw, world-famous teetotal and vegetarian playwright, believes there can be no such thing as a nation of teetotallers.

Asked by the publisher of the Irish Licensing World whether he thought Ireland would enhance her place among the countries of the world by becoming entirely teetotal, the 91-year-old author said:

"Which nations? In the south of Europe where wine is a matter of course on the table, as water is with us, we should be regarded as lunatics.

"In Scandinavia we should be classed as a religious order.

"That the question is idle, the fate of prohibition in the United States has shown. It proved that no such thing as a nation of teetotallers is possible."

Asked "would Irish writers obtain greater creative thought if they abstained from alcoholic stimulants?" Shaw replied:

"Some of them would be unable to do without them. Ibsen was a hoaker, Beethoven was a soaker, Sheridan was certainly not A.T.T., nor was Moore.

"I forbear to cite modern prime ministers who were (and are) heavy drinkers, on the other hand, some great thinkers, poets, and saints have been abstainers.

"I myself —am a vegetarian and A.T.T., but I cannot prove that I should not do better if I lived on brandy. . . ."

Search Continues In Dense Bush For Missing Men

Liverpool, N.S., Dec. 23 — (CP)— The only hope for survival of four young Liverpool hunters missing in the densely-forested country since Thursday depended on whether they had matches, Raymond Frausel, veteran guide, said today as searchers continued to comb the woods nine miles west of this south shore town.

Frausel, who with members of the Liverpool R.C.M.P. detachment has been leading the search, said that with some means of lighting fires the missing men might be able to survive the bitter cold of the winter nights.

Today two R.C.A.F. Dakotas and a helicopter patrolled the area. A gasoline truck was on the scene, enabling the helicopter to refuel on the spot instead of returning to base at Greenwood. Arrangements have also been made for an R.C.A.F. Canso to circle the area during the night on the lookout for possible distress fires.

The embers of a camp fire believed lighted by the four, William Oickle, 18, Burton Westhave, 29, Jimmy Woodsworth, 17 and Jimmy Rogers, 19, were found by one guide Sunday. But six inches of snow which fell Sunday night wiped out the tracks searchers were following.

With plenty of game in the treacherous swampland it was believed the four, armed with small-calibre rifles, would find enough to eat if they could keep warm.

Search leaders said last night that "no tenderfeet" would be allowed to join the hunt today and only experienced guides went out into the country where a man could sink waist deep in the snow.

Two search parties remained in the woods throughout the night and reported it hard going through the heavy snow which fell after the youths disappeared on a rabbit-hunting expedition.

Late last week aircraft were used in the search but yesterday the R.C.A.F. used a helicopter to hover over the woods.

The last person to see the four before they disappeared was Vincent Dunlay, a railway section hand who saw them walking along the tracks near Port Mouton, eight miles from here, Thursday morning.

Dancing Girl May Ask Pardon From President

Havana, Dec. 23—(AP)—Dancing girl Patricia (Satira) Schmidt's lawyer said today she may ask President Ramon Grau San Martin of Cuba to pardon her and remit a 15-year prison sentence imposed yesterday for killing her lover, John Lester Mee, on his yacht in Havana harbor last April.

The lawyer, Rene Castellanos, said he asked her last night about her wishes concerning an appeal and that she felt it might be better to apply for a presidential pardon than to appeal to the Supreme Court, which under Cuban law has the right to increase, as well as decrease, sentences.

Castellapos said the 22-year-old dancer from Toledo, O., was "crying all the time" and was "all broken up." Warden Carmelina Guanche of the Guanabacoa prison, where the court said she was to serve her term, said Miss Schmidt was taken to the prison hospital last night in a state of collapse.

The warden said Patricia "broke down" when informed of her sentence, which included a fine of $5,000 to be paid to the heirs of Mee, a Chicago lawyer and poet.

The three-judge Cuban court, which conducted her trial from Sept. 17 to Dec. 19, described Miss Schmidt in its judgment as a "nymph" who was accustomed to walk the deck of Mee's yacht, also named Satira, and to swim in the nude as though she "considered Havana Bay a private swimming pool."

Mee was shot in the throat April 8 and died five days later. Miss Schmidt testified she fired the shot during a quarrel which ensued when she learned Mee was married. She said he had promised to marry her and that she had lived on the yacht for several weeks.

Gunman Takes Family, Officer On Wild Ride

Andover, Mass., Dec. 23 —(AP) —A wild-eyed gunman, who took a policeman and a young family of three on a terrorizing, 40-mile automobile ride, was sought throughout New England today.

Described by his victims as "vicious" and a "madman," the slender gunman beat Frank Wholey, a motorist who gave him a lift early yesterday, with a gun butt, and then kidnapped Patrolman William Stewart who approached the car after Wholey threw himself to the highway.

When Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sarkissan and their four-year-old daughter, Terry, drove by, the gunman levelled his own and Stewart's revolver at Sarkissian and pushed Stewart into the car ahead of him.

While the kidnapper muttered constant threats, Sarkissian drove through northern and central Massachusetts until the car reached West Boylston. There are policeman, the woman and child were let out.

Sarkissian drove as far as Worcester before the gunman took over the wheel and let him out.

"Liquor Store" Trucker Doing Thriving Trade

Goderich, Dec. 23 (CP).—The unofficial "liquor store" of this Lake Huron resort town continued to do a land office pre-Christmas business today.

Trade was so brisk in the oasis established by Joe Allaire in the heart of "dry" Goderich that extra men and trucks were pressed into service to accommodate customers.

Hundreds of people flock into Joe's pint-sized office at his home to hand over their Ontario Government liquor permits and sign purchase slips for their share of the last load Joe trucks into Goderich from Stratford before the arrival of Santa Claus.

Stocky, 39-year-old Joe is Goderich's semi-official beer and liquor buyer, a post he created for himself after publication of the Canada Temperance Act to Huron County 1½ years ago. With liquor stores, beer outlets and beverage rooms banned in Huron, Allaire developed a year-around business, acting as "middleman" between thirsty residents here and Stratford liquor vendors. He has a letter from the Ontario Liquor Control Board to prove his business is within the law.

TWO GIVEN SEVEN YEAR TERM FOR ARMED ROBBERY

Bank Manager Claims One Man Pulled Gun

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP).—Allen Waites, 24, of suburban Mimico and Richard Kimble, 21, of Hamilton, today were each sentenced to seven years for the $1,968 armed robbery last Sept. 3 of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in nearby Etibicoke.

Both youths had pleaded guilty.

Waites is the son of Mayor Amos Waites of Mimico.

Lionel H. Dunston, the bank manager, testifying at the trial earlier this month, said Waites pulled a gun on him and the teller, W. E. Norton, pushed a cardboard carton at them "and ordered me to put all the money in".

The robbers, one of whom wore dark glasses, the other a taxi driver's cap pulled down over his eyes, escaped in a stolen automobile which later was found abandoned in west-end Toronto.

Waites and Kimble were arrested two days later. Most of the stolen $1,968 was recovered.

Once Paper Boy Acts Santa Role To News Carrier

Vancouver, Dec. 23 — (CP) —Doug Cutforth, 13-year-old newspaper carrier, found a Santa Claus.

Doug was doing his Christmas shopping for mom, dad, six brothers and a sister, but he did not have much money.

A glittering showcase of watches in a jewelry store window attracted him.

"Tell the truth now son, which watch do you like best." said a man who stood beside him.

"That one," he replied, pointing to a $50 model. Gently, he was steered into the crowded store, and the jeweler told: "The boy wants the watch with the gold strap."

"I can't take it, mister," Doug objected. "I just . . ."

"Look, son," the man interrupted. "Some years ago I used to be a paper boy. I didn't have much money. I stood outside this very store . . . and a man came up and bought me a watch.

"I'm not married I have no little boys or girls. I'd like to buy you this watch."

The purchase was made and as Doug left the store with his Santa Claus he was told:

"Now get on about your business, son. Be sure and have a merry Christmas."

Life in Paris Today Like Trying To Cross River on Vanishing Ice Floes

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 23 (CP)—Living in Paris today is something like trying to get across a river on ice floes that vanish under every step.

Nothing can be arranged with any sense of permanency. Despite new legislation aimed at saboteurs and intimidators, the Frenchman is free to strike anytime he feels like it, and is not slow to do so.

Government spokesmen say they are convinced the paralyzing strikes of November and December won't be prolonged indefinitely but Parisians seem to expect all sorts of inconveniences due to quickie strikes and occasional sabotage.

They're not alone in this fear, and hotels all over the city gloomily tell of reservations cancelled by business men because conditions are too uncertain.

Once famed as a city of light, Paris now blacks out its lamps early to conserve fuel. Electricity is off for all but essential purposes two days a week—sometimes more often—and business is conducted by the light of hissing lamps.

Stores are still full of exquisite trifles—glittering jewelry, fetching hats, polished leather goods—but at prices that scare off the average purchaser. Like hotelkeepers, the proprietors wail of the hard times that have come upon them.

The wide display of these luxury goods, invisible in austere England, gives an initial impression of plenty which is soon dispelled by the pinched faces of people queuing for hours outside bakeries for their meagre sticks of coarse bread.

More than ever it is the sustaining factor in the Frenchman's diet; he needs those 200 grams a day to make up for other foods he can't afford to buy.

The meat situation has improved to the extent that butcher stores are open three days a week and appear to have copious supplies. But with the minimum wage $58 a month, not many workmen are going to buy beef at $1.50 or more a pound.

"To maintain even a simple diet, I have to spend five-sevenths of my salary on food," said a clerk. "We are lucky that our rent is cheap and enables us to do that. And not one sou of that money is spent in the black market."

Most Frenchmen, however, deal in the black market to the extent their purses will permit, visiting the butcher on his "closed" days and loudly ordering "candles" or some other articles, then picking up a parcel an hour or two later, usually at the shop next door.

French women do wonders with their old clothes, although more of them are shabby than chic. The long skirt is such a rarity that it draws stares, and many teenage girls are facing the winter with slacks tucked into high-boots.

The male fashion note is the "Canadienne"—a double-breasted waterproof jacket, fleece-lined, with a fur collar. They're seen everywhere, though no one's exactly sure of the origin of their name.

Suspect Shot, 2 Escape During Chase in Toronto

Suspected Safecrackers Sought to Evade Constable

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP)—One of three suspected safecrackers was wounded in the left leg last night as Constable John Thompson sought to apprehend the trio for questioning in connection with an automobile theft.

Kenneth Kelly, 22, the wounded man, was charged with car theft, breaking and entering and being in possession of burglar tools. The two other men escaped.

Thompson fired two warning shots in the air as he chased the trio along midtown streets. When the warnings were not obeyed, he fired a third shot at Kelly's legs. The youth collapsed to the pavement, shouting, "I surrender!"

The three men fled from the stolen car less than an hour after it was used to cart away a safe containing $200 from an east-end candy shot, police said.

Thompson kept watch over the car — parked on a side street— until three men walked up and got into it.

"I approached the car, gun in hand," said the constable. "I told them to put up their hands but they didn't pay any attention to my gun, just scattered."

Detectives said that in the car they found two "jimmies" used earlier to break into the candy store. They said they believe the stolen safe is cached near the spot where the car was found.

MickeyMacdonald Believed Seen Near Nakina, Ont.

Nakina, Ont., Dec. 23 —(CP)— Mickey MacDonald and Ulysses Lauzon, objects of a nationwide search since their escape last August from Kingston Penitentiary, were believed seen here recently, according to information given police by a large number of residents.

Nakina is 150 miles northeast of Port Arthur, on the Canadian Pacific Railway main line.

Photographs of MacDonald were identified by a Mrs. Kristolovitch, hotel proprietress of the Nakina Hotel, and a waitress employed there as being one of two men who had spent a night in the railroad yards here before heading west. Employees said the pair carried a black satchel, and while one slept the other stayed awake.

Police were unable to trace the pair. The entire community was alerted but residents took no action, fearing the satchel contained a machine gun.

CANADIAN FUEL OIL CONSUMERS HIT BY RULING

Industry and Govt. Agree to Cut of Up to 50 P. C. in Imports

Ottawa, Dec. 23 —(CP)— Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today arrangements are being made to reduce fuel oil importations "substantially" in early 1948, though no formal government restrictions will be imposed.

While the minister's announcement came just a day after Canadian fuel-oil industry spokesmen had agreed to reduce their imports from the United States up to 50 per cent, Mr. Howe mentioned no specific figure and indicated the amount would be largely dependent on voluntary conservation.

Ottawa, Dec. 23 —(CP)— Representatives of the Canadian fuel oil industry, meeting with government officials yesterday, agreed to a cutback of up to 50 per cent in imports from the United States and if the step is carried out it will mean that Canadian fuel oil consumers will have to "go easy" this winter.

Reconstruction Minister Howe said last night following the meeting with oil industry representatives that he could give no immediate details of the proposals but said he probably would issue a statement today.

Another source explained that although the recommendation, if carried out, would become a part of Canada's dollar-saving program, it stemmed mainly from concern in Washington over U. S. domestic fuel oil supplies. A House of Representatives committee has raised the question of the effect on Canadian imports on U. S. domestic supply.

It was recalled that most Canadian fuel oil companies warned their customers last spring and summer that they should check with a reliable supplier before installing oil-burning equipment since it might not be possible to supply other than regular customers during the coming winter.

Seamen Refuse To Man Ships Carrying Arms

Halifax, Dec. 23 —(CP)— A Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) decision not to man munitions ships and a grievance on the part of a group of officers today combined to keep the winches of the freighter Islandside idle while a 600-ton cargo of combat planes and ammunition destined for China remained on the dockside.

H. C. Meade, C.S.U. Atlantic vice-president, said last night that 20 of the 30-odd seamen aboard the Atlantic Shipping Company freighter had joined with 130 other seamen to pass a resolution opposing shipment of Canadian war material to China.

He said that to prevent the shipment of arms, sold to China by the Federal Government, the sailors had resolved to "take such action as may be possible, such as refusing employment on ships carrying cargoes of this type."

"That means they're not going to take the ship out with munitions in her," the union leader explained later.

Before the seamen's decision was taken a group of officers had shut off the steam to the Islandside's winches, leaving only a standby crew in the boiler room.

CAROLS AND HYMNS EMANATE FROM ORGAN

A novel Christmas innovation which made its initial appearance last Christmas is the miniature chapel now placed on the snow-covered lawn of the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street.

Complete in every detail the little edifice is equipped with lighting facilities and a small radio speaker. At night from the tiny doors of the chapel, pour forth the well-known Christmas carols and hymns which emanate from the organ inside the funeral home.

The well-known strains of the familiar Christmas melodies are attracting many people who pause in the holiday rush to listen to the Yuletide musical messages.

SLIPPERY PAVEMENTS CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

Slippery streets were given as the cause of two motor accidents in the city on Monday as icy conditions failed to give traction when brakes were applied.

A Rawson bus driven by Clifford Carmichael, Front Street, proceeding south on Cedar Street, bumped into an eastbound vehicle on Catharine Street driven by Johnston Oram, Catharine St. Damage amounting to approximately $100 resulted to the Oram car as it was pushed across the street to knock over a stop sign, while the bus was damaged to the extent of $40.

An R.C.A.F. panel truck proceeding east on Station Street bumped into a Diamond Taxi as the latter vehicle was stopped to permit a passenger to alight. The taxi was quite extensively damaged but no personal injuries resulted.

WELLINGTON COUPLE CLEAN-UP AT BINGO

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Osterhout (nee Jeane Baitley) bride and groom of three weeks, residing in Wellington, bashed in the smiles of Lady Luck, and Santa Claus the other night at a turkey bingo given by members of the Wellington branch of the Canadian Legion.

One of the feature prizes was a 22 1-2 pound turkey. Elmer, won that bird. Half an hour later a 19-pound goose was offered, and Elmer's bride came through with the winning ticket.

Near the end of the party a six-pound —capon was played for.

Yep—you guessed it—Elmer won that, too.

OVERHEATED ELECTRIC CORD CAUSES BLAZE

When the electric cord leading to a hot plate overheated and caught fire this morning, the local fire department was called to 77 Station Street to extinguish the blaze when the wall caught fire. Only slight damage resulted it was reported.

Two other alarms were answered by the department, on the New Service Lunch on Front Street where a garbage pail was reported afire, and one to Campbell St. where there was a rubbish pile burning.

ACCUSED GIVEN FIVE MONTHS IN JAIL

Appearing for sentence on a charge of uttering a forged document and on a charge of false pretences, Jack Adams, formerly of Cannifton today was sentenced to five months in the county jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court.

Adams pleaded guilty to the both charges when he appeared in court last week but sentences were deferred until it was known by the court whether restitution would be made.

MOTORIST SUFFERS HEAD INJURIES WHEN CAR TURNS OVER

Suffering head injuries and shock when his car turned over several times after it went out of control when it struck the snowy shoulder of the highway east of the city, William Fortis, proprietor of the Esquire Grill is in Belleville Hospital.

Shortly before midnight Monday, Mr. Fortis was driving west toward Belleville when opposite Weymark's Cabins his car struck the road shoulder and went out of control. The auto bounded over to the north side of the road. and narrowly missed a concrete culvert and came to rest in Bell's Creek. The car is almost a complete wreck.

Provincial Police officer Samuel Ervine investigated the accident.

Public and H.S. Teachers Given Flat Increase of $200 Per Year at Board Meeting

Salary increases for teachers of both the elementary and secondary school staffs and for other employees of the local Board of Education to take effect as of January 1st, 1948, have been granted by members of the Belleville Board of Education. The salary increases were ratified at the regular meeting of the board held Friday evening.

Under the new schedule of salary increases for the teaching staff the maximum for all teachers will be raised $300 per annum. A straight increase of $200 per annum was given to all teaching personnel on schedule, this to be considered as a cost-of-living bonus.

Employees on salary schedule other than teachers will be given an increase with a maximum of $240 at the rate of $20 per month effective the first of the new year. Caretakers and maintenance employees will also come in for the $20 per month pay boost.

Mr. Alf Cooper was granted an increase from $1,000 to $1,200 per year with the understanding that he is to assist with the program of vocal music in the secondary school if called upon to do so by the principal. A $100 per annum car allowance was provided for the attendance officer.

851 Pupils at B.C.I.

Enrolment at the Collegiate for the month of November was given at 501 with 350 students attending at the Vocational school, or a total composite enrolment of 851.

Total enrolment in the evening classes was given as 407 with an additional 37 students taking the collegiate evening course in algebra.

Special physical inspections in the Kindergarten morning and evening classes have been completed according to the school nurse's report submitted by Mrs. J. C. Watt, public health nurse. Also all grade 8 pupils have been inspected. Class room inspections have been started with two children at a time coming for inspection.

Dental work has been almost completed at King George school while the list for Queen Victoria School has been completed with work to be commenced by Dr. Clarke following the Christmas vacation. Thirty five children have had dental work done at King George School and all children up to Grade VII in all schools have had teeth examined since September.

New Deductible Clause

Following notification from the accident insurance company that as result of a marked increase in the number of claims there would have to be a change in the contract, members voted to adopt a $10 deductible clause for all students at the Collegiate and Vocational School. Liability of the company will still be $50 per pupil for any one accident, making a total liability of $60 with the first ten dollars to be paid by the parents.

The resignation of David Martin as a member of the Advisory committee was accepted. Mr. Martin has been a member of the advisory committee for four years, one term of which he served as chairman.

All school buildings will be closed from Wednesday Dec. 24th until December 29th in order that school employees may be given a holiday.

Friday evening was the last general meeting of the year for the Board of Education with Chairman George Wishart expressing appreciation to the members for their regular attendance at meetings and for the spirit of co-operation shown during the past year.

Volume of Christmas Mail Heaviest In Years Says Postmaster Waddell

While no statistics of the volume of mail, which passed through the Belleville Post Office during the Christmas season, will be available until monthly reports are made out, Postmaster J. C. Waddell stated today that it was the heaviest in years.

The peak of volume came over the last weekend, the postmaster said, but with the good behavior of the weather man and the fine co-operation of all phases of the office and outside staff, the heavy mail was handled without a hitch.

With today's deliveries off their hands, he added, the letter carriers will be "caught up" with the majority of the Christmas rush.

The letter-carrier staff was augmented by twenty-five assistants while the inside staff was aided by fifty-three additional helpers.

With good weather prevailing, the rural mail carriers had a much better delivery experience than usual. Country roads in the main were good and deliveries were made daily. Carriers were delayed somewhat due to heavy volume of mail, but all got through even though a half-hour late.

No small credit for the excellent handling of the holiday mail here must go to the staff of the post office, both regular and seasonal, the postmaster stated. "Everything has gone along splendidly and every one co-operated one hundred per cent. They were a very fine bunch of men," he said.

Mayor Follwell, Three Aldermen Bid Farewell at Final Council Meeting

Mayor Frank S. Follwell and three of this year's council bade farewell to council proceedings at the final council meeting of the year held Monday evening when the Mayor expressed his appreciation for the co-operation received during his threee-year term of office.

"It has, indeed, been a pleasure to serve the city, both in the capacity as mayor and during my four years as a councillor," stated the Mayor.

Points Out Progress

The mayor pointed to the progress made by the city during the past five years and paid tribute to members of council and city officials, who, he said, had served nobly through strenuous times during the war —but nevertheless had carried on efficiently.

He referred to the home building program in the city and mentioned the Ottawa report that the building of homes in Belleville on a per capita basis was the greatest in Canada. Another Ottawa report had indicateed that Belleville's industrial expansion during the past year had also been the greatest in Canada when considered on a per capita basis.

Predicts Bright Future

That Belleville would continue to grow was predicted by the Mayor. Direction of the city would need experience and good judgment and councillors were urged to co-operate to the fullest extent with Mayor-elect D. L. Storey.

Motions of appreciation for the past service of Mayor Follwell and for Aldermen Ormonde Butler, Fred Chamberlain and William Harvey, were passed by council. Alderman Butler this year is resigning from council after ten years consecutive service. He was elected first in 1938 and since has served the city as councillor. He did not offer himself for re-election at the recent municipal elections.

Alderman Harvey expressed his appreciation for the co-operation shown him by the public works department, while Alderman Chamberlain declared it had been a pleasure to serve his native city of Belleville.

PET MONKEY BITES WOMAN; 150 STITCHES REQUIRED

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 23 — (AU)— A six-pound female pet monkey known as "woman hater" turned on Mrs. Myrtle Webster, 52, Sunday and bit her so severely that 150 stitches were required to close the wounds. A son-in-law killed the animal with a shotgun. Mrs. Webster was reported in fair condition at a hospital after physicians spent three hours sewing up multiple wounds.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM BEATTY
(Fleming, Saskatchewan)

Native of Melrose, Ontario, but resident of the Canadian West since 1911, William Beatty died suddenly at Fleming, Sask., on December 16th.

Born 57 years ago, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty, the deceased received his education at Melrose but early in life moved to the West with his parents and older brother. He worked as a well driller in the Moosomin district. He was a member of Fleming United Church and of the Fleming L.O.L.

Surviving are his wife and ten children. Three sisters, Mrs. Geo. Brethour, Toronto; Mrs. R. Durnin, Domain, Manitoba, and Mrs. S. G. Sherman, Tyendinaga, and two brothers, Charles of Winnipeg and John of Belleville also survive.

Interment was made in Fleming Cemetery.

LATE J. H. HURLBURT

Picton — The funeral of J. Harvey Hurlburt was held here on Saturday with entombment being made in Glenwood vault. Mr. Hurlburt died suddenly at his home, Highland Park, Mich., Wednesday evening while celebrating his 62nd birthday at a family party.

Mr. Hurlburt was born at Cressy, Prince Edward County, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hurlburt. He attended high school in Picton. He entered the service of the old Metropolitan Bank here, and was later with the Union Bank in Northern Ontario towns and in New Brunswick. Going to Detroit, he was with the Peninsular State Bank at Royal Oak. In recent years he has been in the insurance and office supply business in Detroit.

Survivors are his wife, formerly May Sibary of Renfrew, a daughter, Mrs. Norton Russell of Detroit; two sisters, Miss Lela Hurlburt and Mrs. William Plews, Picton.

Stolen Christmas Gifts Returned To Amazed Owner

A well-known Foxboro farmer who desires to remain anonymous is puzzled over a Yuletide mystery. He doesn't know whether he was the victim of a practical joke, or whether a thief, suddenly imbued with the spirit of Christmas, turned "honest."

In any event, the farmer and his wife left their car parked on Pinnacle Street near the Armouries. Finishing their daily shopping they deposited the parcels valued at between $35-$40 in the back seat of the car, covering them with a valuable rug.

Both left the car on respective errands and returning a short time after, discovered the packages and rug missing.

Disconsolate at their loss, they sadly returned home. Deciding to return to the city to do further shopping, the farmer entered his garage the next day, got in the car, then his eyes opened in amazement.

In the back seat of the car, intact in every detail were the missing presents and the rug. They had been returned sometime during the night.

Rotarians Guests Of Gerald Jenkins

Guests of mine host Mr. Gerald Jenkins, Hotel Quinte, members of the Rotary Club enjoyed an old-fashioned Christmas dinner at their regular noonday luncheon on Monday.

There was turkey and dressing, and the trimmings, hot mince pie and the rest. It was greatly enjoyed by the clubmen who expressed their appreciation to Mr. Jenkins for a real holiday gesture.

The meeting was a musical one, devoid of after-dinner speakers. Rotarian Jack Deacon led the clubmen in a number of selected Christmas carols and ably aided and abetted by the piano genius of Rotarian Leo Riggs, offered two Christmas numbers which were greatly appreciated by his listeners.

The clubmen joined in giving Rotarian Walter Douglas a mass farewell. Mr. Douglas leaves for Buffalo, N.Y., in the near future having been transferred to that city by the Canadian National Railways. He expressed his appreciation of the fine fellowship he has enjoyed since becoming a member of the club here and stated his intentions of joining the Buffalo club as soon as convenient.

President Alex Nathan voiced his appreciation of the work done for the club by the departing Rotarian and wished him success in his new environment.

Congregation Presents Minister With New Car

St. Catharines, Dec. 23 —(CP) —Rev. W. O. Rathke, pastor of the Christ Lutheran Church here and Emmanuel Church at nearby Jordan, probably was the most surprised man in the Niagara district Sunday night.

Following a children's service, Mr. Rathke was presented with a large box by his congregation. After unpacking a great quantity of paper he pulled out a toy automobile. Further down he came to a gift order for a new car, with delivery promised in January.

Did he need the car? "Well, I'm driving a '31 model A Ford," he replied.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP) — A small cattle supply was clearing well at steady prices in the livestock market up to mid-session here today. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs all were steady. Receipts: cattle 250, calves 60, hogs 420, sheep and lambs 60.

Butcher steers were bringing $11-$15.50 a hundredweight with heifers at $11.50-$14.50. Butcher cows brought $8.50-$12.00 with canners down to $6. Bulls were $9-$11 and fed yearlings $14-$16.50. Stockers moved at $9-$12.

Calves remained steady at $18-$19 for choice with plain vealers down to $11.

Hogs were steady at $23.25 for grade A and $22.85 for B1. Sows were mostly $15.50 dressed.

Lambs were firm at $17 for good ewes and wethers and $16 for bucks.

Sheep ranged steady, $5-$9.50.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Dec. 23 —(CP)— Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

Churning cream, up two cents, No. 1 lb., 73 fob, 77 delivered.

Butter prints unchanged, 1st grade 71, 2nd grade 69, 3rd grade 67.

Eggs: Market steady at unchanged spot prices; wholesale to retail, A large 48-50, A medium 46-48, A pullet 43-45, B 41-43, C 38-39; country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free, A large 45-45½, A pullet 40-41, B 38-39, C 33-34.

Butter solids, up ½ cent, 1st grade 69-69½, 2nd grade 65½-67.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 23 —(CP)— Hog prices were unsettled with no quotations established at Stratford, in market reporting this morning.

DISAFFILIATES

Veteran anti - Communist labor leader Leon Jouhaux (above) split France's organized labor ranks wide open by resigning from the General Confederation of Labor. He is the rallying point of the newly-formed Force Ouvriere.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—Golds took the lead in quiet but firm trading on the stock exchange today to extend the upward move started by industrials yesterday. Activity was mild but prices were firmer across the boards. Industrials traded selectively on narrow —gains, base metals were steady and moderate advances.

Volume for the first three hours was 464,000 shares, about 21,000 more than yesterday's similar period.

Industrials posted gains ranging from fractions to a point and more scattered throughout the lists with no special concentration. Newsprints, steels and utilities were firm but oils eased on announcement of import cuts.

Moderate enthusiasm in golds was seen in gains for Aunor, Campbell, Canadian Malartic, Chesterville, Cochenour, Donalda, Giant, Hollinger, Kerr Addison, Kirkland Lake, Lake Shore, Little Long Lac, MacLeod, Malartic, Negus, Osulake, Wright Hargreaves, Sylvanite, San Antonio, Pickle Crow and Pamour. Base metals traded narrowly but on the upward trend.

Turkeys Plentiful Prices Lower On Christmas Market

An abundance of Christmas turkeys was again evident on the local market this morning as vendors generally quoted slightly lower prices than were in evidence on Saturday. Turkeys were plentiful, while geese, ducks and chicken were also available.

Sixty cents per pound for fully drawn turkeys was the top price asked with 50 cents for undrawn birds. However, well finished birds were available for considerably less than this figure with one vendor offering fully dressed toms at 48 cents.

Geese sold at 55 cents the pound; ducks at 50 cents; and chicken at from 40 to 45 cents, according to quality.

Delicious and McIntosh apples fetched 65 cents per small basket, with McIntosh bringing $2.75 the hamper. Spys and Sweets were quoted at the same price with Snows at $2.

Christmas trees were also plentiful with late purchasers having the choice of a fairly wide range. Prices were from 25 cents for tiny trees up to $2 and $3 for large ones with the trees most in demand quoted at from 75 cents to $1.25.

Income Tax Office Staff Holds Enjoyable Party

With upwards of 150 staff members and their friends in attendance the annual Christmas party and dance of the Income Tax Office here, held last night in the Tobe County Gardens was an unqualified success.

In a colorful Christmas atmosphere the staff and their guests enjoyed dancing until a late hour. Merriment and suspense were injected into the party by holding of spot dances, lucky number dances, door prizes and other gifts dispensed to lucky guests.

For those who did not indulge in the light fantastic or preferred them to dancing, cards were offered with bridge being the dominating game.

Master of ceremonies was Mr. Neil Nicholson of the Income Tax office staff who kept things rolling in a jolly sequence of events. Later refreshments were served climaxing one of the most successful holiday parties held by the staff.

Prize winners included: Door prize, ladies, Miss Carol Norton; men's, Mr. Joe Barrett; spot dances, Mrs. Fred Sprague, Miss Lois Batchellor, Mr. Stuart Hoard and Mr. Glen McCameron; bridge prizes, ladies, Miss Kathryn Hogg; men's, Dawson McLean.

BEAVER DENIED BAIL

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Max Beaver today was denied bail as Magistrate's Court committed him for trial by a higher court on a charge of stealing a chest of silver from Mrs. Margaret Powell while free on $20,000 bail on a narcotics charge.

Defence Counsel J. J. Robinette said the stolen articles were valued at only $35 to $50 and said he would appeal to a higher court for Beaver's freedom in bond.

The missing case of silverware was found in Beaver's possession 48 hours after it was stolen, Crown Counsel George Guardhouse said. Beaver is charged jointly with his wife, Rose, for whom bail was set at $2,000.

Council Defers Action on Many Items of Business at Final Session

With all business for the year with the exception of routine matters being wound up, council proceedings were of comparatively short duration Monday evening when councillors met for their final meeting of 1947. Several matters which otherwise might have been settled were referred for consideration of next year's council.

The matter of completing arrangements with the Canadian National Railways for the proposed siding into the Stewart Warner-Alemite plant was referred to the incoming council for consideration, as was the final decision on closing Elmer Street in the Moira-Yeomans Street district.

Patent Rights Questioned

Possibility of the city being faced with a legal entanglement with respect to the Karpark parking meters which were installed last summer was suggested in a letter from City Solicitor A. B. Collins, he advising that the above company was accused by another meter company that their patent rights had been infringed upon.

As result of the solicitor's letter, Alderman Lazenby introduced a recommendation calling for no further monies being paid to the Karpark Meter Company until all litigation was settled.

Alderman Tice introduced an amendment to the recommendation requesting the solicitor to communicate with the Karpark Meter Company and obtain from them their position in the matter, and also to ascertain what the company is doing to protect the city of Belleville through use of their parking meters. The amendment to the original motion carried.

Convalescent Hospital

The report of the special committee of Mayor Follwell, and Aldermen H. J. Clarke, Butler and Vanner, appointed to secure all information regarding the acquisition of the county home property for the purposes of a convalescent hospital, was referred to next year's council.

The committee reported that several fact-finding meetings had been held with a block plan having been made of all buildings. The main building in the opinion of the committee would, with minor alterations, have a capacity of well over 100 convalescent patients. There are 50 acres of land north of the highway, 30 acres between the highway and the C. P. R. tracks and two acres between the tracks and the bay.

The purchase of this property by the Corporation for a convalescent hospital would take care of a large number of patients now in the Belleville General Hospital, it was reported. "This in turn would relieve that building of its present congestion. In view of this, the question of a new wing for the Belleville General Hospital might be deferred for some years."

$198,000 Valuation

"Your committee are of the opinion that a fair valuation of this property would be $198,000. As the provincial government gave to the Women's Christian Association $100,000 for a convalescent hospital which could be used as part of the purchase price of the county home by the corporation. It would mean a cost to the taxpayer of the city approximately $100,000 to obtain this property."

Council recommendations from Thursday evening's committee meeting were ratified, including a number of motions regarding the sale of city owned lots and the repossession of others through breach of building covenants. Other sales were rescinded as purchasers had not taken up their deeds.

The city engineer was authorized to ask for tenders for the construction of a galvanized pipe storm sewer on Parker Street, from Highland Ave., to Wellington and on Wellington Street from Parker to West Bridge. The Diamond Construction Company was awarded the contract for a 100-foot sanitary sewer extension on Wellington Street north of Burton. Cost of the work would be assessed against the American Optical Company property, it was stated.

An official of Wartime Housing will be asked to attend a council meeting at the earliest opportunity to explain in detail the new low-rental plan recently announced.

Acquire Property for Park

A portion of the property owned by J. B. Boyce and Sons on the south side of Dundas Street West was released from its building covenant to enable the sale of approximately 100 feet to the Public Utilities Commission which is desirous of establishing a park in the area.

Dorland McFarlane, Foster Ave. attended council in protest of council action in permitting the construction of a service station to the street line on the lot adjoining his property. The building cut off the view from his home, he said. Mr. McFarlane was advised to put his objections in writing and present them to next year's council for action.

Mrs. Kerr was rehired as Rooms Registry clerk, while a recommendation to make Front Street alleyways one-way traffic lanes, was turned over to the traffic committee for action.

Alderman Allin asked if lights could be turned on at skating rinks at the city public schools and also inquired regarding the scrolls to be presented to war veterans of the city. He was informed that approximately 1,300 of the scrolls were ready for signatures.

No General Contract

Alderman Lazenby inquired about what sub-contracts had been let for the incinerator and was informed that only one such contract, that for the equipment to burn the refuse, had been let. As far as council knew the contract still stood but its fulfillment had been set back until a general contract for the construction of the incinerator had been let.

In answer to what he termed as street inquiries as to the exact financial position of the city, Alderman Clarke as chairman of finance, listed accounts yet to be paid, together with bills receivable and uncollected taxes. Estimated surplus for 1947 with all taxes collected was from $30,000 to $35,000, he stated.

A communication from the Belleville Public Utilities showed that according to the operating analysis on the local electrical system for 1946 as determined by the H. E. P. C., there was an accumulated surplus of $1,022.09 on the street lighting service. A cheque from the commission for the above amount and made payable to the city, was enclosed with the communication.

Public Address System Installed At CNR Station

Installation of a public address system by the Canadian National Railways at the north station whereby trains can be announced to waiting passengers, will considerably convenience travellers taking trains at the local station, it was stated today by local C.N.R. officials.

Planned for some time but with installation delayed owing to shortage of the necessary equipment the public address system has been in operation for several days.

The heart of the P. A. system is in the telegraph office of the station where personnel announce the arrival of trains, whether they are on time, how many sections of the train are running, whether parlor cars are available and any other information which will be of convenience to the traveller.

Speakers are placed in both waiting rooms and also at the north corners of the station building proper for the convenience of travellers waiting on the station platform.

A Christmas spirit is added between times by the playing of Christmas carols. This is achieved through use of a record player playing popular Christmas numbers.

BULLETS OOZE OUT OF GUN

Danieltown, Va., Dec. 23—(AP) — C. B. Waller, proprietor of a general store here, grabbed his ancient revolver when he heard someone break the glass in his store early Friday morning.

As a hand reached through the fired three times.

The bullets oozed out the front of the old gun and dribbled to the floor.

"Cut it out," said the exasperated would-be thief as he strolled off down the street empty-handed.

Dean of Canadian Letters

Canada mourns in the death of Duncan Campbell Scott the dean of Canadian literature who had reached the great age of 86 years. Though he began late to write poetry he produced a great deal of fine work, much of it expressive of Canadian life and he was writing almost up to the time of his death. His work won the admiration of British writers and critics, among them William Archer and the Poet Laureate of England, John Mansfield, one of the greatest figures in the poetic art at this time.

Duncan Campbell Scott served Canada in the Department of Indian affairs and in the course of his duties he was brought into close touch with the Indian inhabitants whom he came to know and whom he was able to interpret in his poetry.

Not alone poetry but music was the delight of Dr. Scott. In music he was a pianist with rare interpretation and was highly praised for his artistic gifts. To him the artists in Canada have been greatly indebted. He was a staunch supporter of Canadian dramatic art.

His prose work is impressive especially in his many stories of Canadian life and in his biographical work in "John Graves Simcoe," written in collaboration with Dr. Pelham Edgar.

In such men as Duncan Scott Canadians have had an interpreter of Canadian life who has made a worthwhile contribution to the nation's creative work. He gave devoted service to the work of the offices of Superintendent of Indian Affairs and Deputy Superintendent-General as well as making his mark in the writing of prose and poetry, this work being of an imposing character and likely long to hold a place in the literature of this country.

Dr. Campbell belonged to a famous group in which were such writers as Bliss Carman, Archibald Lampman who introduced him to creative effort, William Wilfred Campbell and Sir Charles G. D. Roberts.

His work bears the marks of conscientious craftsmanship and a sound philosophy of life.

Spirit of the Season

Just ahead is the Christmas festival, greatest of all in the calendar. The spirit of Christmas is everywhere, in the streets, the shops, the churches, and in the thoughts, moods, and lives of boys and girls, men and women, athrill with anticipation as the great day draws near.

Under the spell of Christmas the life of the people has been activated by the thoughts and plans for the festival which sheds its influence abroad, before and after Christmas Day.

Its spirit controls business. The crowds of shoppers laden with parcels, the crowded and loaded cars and buses, the good nature of everyone, the busy and kindly merchant, the obliging and courteous clerk and the customer show the spirit of the time.

There is music in the air, from radios and there are the sounds of carillonic bells from the church tower.

What Christmas is has caused all this transformation into the all-absorbing thought of the festival, of family reunions with members back home from far and near.

In every little centre as in the largest of cities the story is the same of the festival of glad tidings of great joy and of good will.

Highways and Streets

As Christmas nears with the thoughts absorbed in the celebration and in the festivities, drivers of motorcars and others using the highways and roads and streets are advised to use every precaution to avoid accidents. Weather conditions may make the chance for accidents more frequent, by slippery condition of the driveways, roads, streets and highways, through frost or light snow or frozen rain, limited visibility in wintertime and the greater crowds who are interested in the business of preparation for the holiday. Therefore the driver must exercise unusual heed lest accidents occur. Snow flurries may put an extra strain on the vision of the driver. Early darkness competes with business and the traffic of the buyers of gifts.

The Ontario Department of Highways urges caution by keeping windshield and headlights clean and eyes sharp.

There is the question of speed. How fast is speeding? is asked. Is it speeds above the legal speed limit and only those speeds? No. The Ontario Highways Department says that everyone using the highways, roads and streets will be safer if drivers realize that any speed which is too fast for the condition of the car, for the condition of the roads, and for the weather conditions is an unsafe speed.

Season of Generosity

At no other season of the year is there so much generosity as at Christmastide. It is one of the events which leave the people richer and if some of its spirit could be exemplified throughout a great part of the year, the world would be quite a different place to live in. At Yuletide it would be unusual to find a person who did not show by example that he or she can be generous.

The Record on the Bomb

Since the Soviet Government operates on the theory that if an idea is repeated often enough it will ultimately gain acceptance, however thin its merits, it is necessary to point once more to the real responsibility for failure in the United Nations to reach agreement in the immensely important question of control of atomic energy.

Mr. Gromyko suggests again that the fault lies with "certain influential circles" in the United States which he claims really do not want agreement. The actual facts are:

1. That of the fifteen nations which have been represented thus far on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, only Soviet Russia and Poland oppose an American control plan which all thirteen other nations have accepted.

2. That the Soviet alternative to the American proposal provides neither for international operation of atomic plants (which is the cornerstone of the Acheson-Lilienthal report) or for abolition of the veto in so far as control of atomic energy is concerned (whic is the cornerstone of the Baruch plan.)

3. That the Soviet alternative would require this country to destroy its existing atomic weapons before it had received assurance that similar weapons might not be made by other nations and used against us.

Confronted by the fact that Soviet Russia has not won a single convert to its own proposal, except its puppet Poland, Mr. Gromyko, still operating on the theory that sufficient reiteration will wear away a stone, continues his effort to place elsewhere a responsibility for failure which lies squarely at the door of Soviet Russia, and there alone. — New York Times.

TWO NIGHTS MORE

If you're six or seven or eight,
Two days more are long to wait.
Age thinks time on wings must fly.
Childhood thinks it's creeping by.
Waiting horn or doll or drum,
Will the Christmas ever come?

These the longest days of all
Through the year for children small.
See them racing off to bed,
Glad another day has sped.
Hear them to each other say:
"Two nights more to Christmas Day!"

Troubled world and everywhere
Disappointment, doubt and care,
Strife and struggle. Sages wise,
Thinkers who philosophize,
Baffled, trying to reason out
What this life is all about.

Well one reason I perceive
As we come to Christmas Eve,
Just to see the children smile
Makes the cares of life worth while,
Trusting us, to hear them say:
"Two nights more to Christmas Day!"

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What was Coxey's Army?

In 1894, during Cleveland's second administration, Jacob Slecher Coxey (1854 - - -), of Massillon, Ohio, marched into Washington at the head of what he called "The Army of the Commonwealth of Christ."

Coxey was born in Pennsylvania and started life as a stationary engineer in rolling mills. Later he became successful in the silica sandstone quarrying business. Early in the year following the Panic of 1893 he organized the "J. S. Coxey Good Roads Association of the United States" and called for a march of jobless men on Washington to petition Congress to authorize a roads and public works program to provide employment. The essence of the Coxey plan was to have the Government issue $500,000,000,000 in currency based in the non-interest-bearing bonds of states, counties and cities.

The march of the jobless to present their grievances personally to Congress was known as "the petition in boots." Small bands of men started from many parts of the country in response to Coxey's call. All groups were to meet in Washington for a demonstration on May Day. Owing to bad weather "General Coxey" and "Marshal" Carl Browne, his chief organizer and publicity man, set out from Massillon on March 25 with an "army" of fewer than 500.

Although the army was met by large crowds along the way, "enlistments" were few. On April 28 it reached the outskirts of Washington, where it was reinforced by about a thousand men from other parts of the country who had answered the call.

At first the authorities made no attempt to interfere with Coxey's Army, but when it appeared on Capitol Hill on May 1 General Coxey and Marshal Browne were arrested by local police on charges of holding a meeting without a permit, carrying banners and walking on and trampling down the shrubbery and grass. A few days later a police court found them guilty and sentenced them to $5 fines and 20 days in jail.

From this incident comes the saying, "Coxey was arrested for walking on the grass," which means punishing a person for a trifling technical trespass when he is doing something objectionable without violating an important law. "Ragged as Coxey's Army" also became a byword.

In 1914 General Coxey led another but smaller march upon Washington for a similar purpose and in 1944, the 50th anniversary of the first march, when he was 90 years old, he spoke from the Capitol steps with the permission of the authorities. He was an unsuccessful candidate on various tickets for U. S. Representative, Governor of Ohio, U. S. Senator and President of the United States. In 1932-33 Coxey was Mayor of Massillon. He christened one of his sons "Legal Tender."

Holyhead, Wales, Dec. 23 — John Stanley, 25, and Martin Stanley, 22, sons of Lt.-Col. Oliver Stanley, were buried and killed under a landslide while walking at Anglesey.

CHINESE GOVERNMENT SOURCES EXPRESS CONCERN

Nanking, Dec. 23 (AP)—Government sources expressed grave concern that destructive attacks by Chinese Communists on the Peiping-Mukden railway would force the government to abandon besieged Mukden, major southern Manchurian city. These sources said it has proving almost impossible to supply the heavily-garrisoned city by air.

THEATRE CLOSES

Kirkland Lake, Ont. — (CP)— One of Kirkland Lake's three movie houses is closing. There's not enough business to keep three theatres in operation here, said the manager explaining his decision.

They Lost Their Case And Look at the Cost!

(From the Vancouver Sun)

Readers might like to hear about the experience of three Vancouver working men who took a case to the Privy Council. They lost it, but that's not the major point of the story. The point is that others like them may be tempted into similar expensive experience unless the Dominion Government makes up its mind pretty soon to abolish appeals to the Privy Council.

The three men would have been saved a large and to them perhaps critical sum if Canada had ceased its litigation for judicial settlement abroad.

This case arose out of a damage action in the B.C. Supreme Court for injuries suffered by the men in an airplane accident. An award of $10,000 was made to them because the aviation company was allegedly negligent.

The company contended it wasn't liable for the negligence and the B. C. Court of Appeal agreed by a split decision. The Supreme Court of Canada also split, but the majority found for the company. The injured men paid £623 for their own expenses and put up £400 more to cover the costs of the company to seek conclusive decision in London. They did so in the belief, supported by correspondence from English solicitors, that these sums should be sufficient to meet their entire obligation.

The Privy Council dismissed the appeal, which was a sorry blow to the men. But now the extra bills for legal expenses have come in. Their own solicitors in England ask for a balance of £154 senior counsel wants £783 and junior counsel £426. The aviation company's counsel claim a balance of £470 above the £400 originally posted.

At the rate of $4 to the pound, the three men are liable for about $12,000 in English legal costs, not counting $500 spent to have the appeal books printed in Vancouver. All this is on top of their costs in Canadian courts in pursuit of their $10,000 award. They'd have been far better off to have suffered their injuries in silence. At least, they recovered from those.

A LITTLE LESSON IN PROPHYLAXIS

A group of women, including some who were or had been trained nurses, were taking turns telephoning a list of voters. Meticulously each wiped the transmitter with some absorbent cotton wet with an "antiseptic" nostrum before she held it before her mouth. You see, there was a rumor of an epidemic or "out break" of a communicable disease in the community and these sophomo—these ladies were "taking antiseptic precautions" against the spread of the disease.

A silly gesture, in the first place, the "antiseptic" nostrum these women used is pretty feeble stuff, for all its powerful odor — the odor probably impressed the customers — no doubt some germs would not survive immersion in it, but against the germs of viruses of epidemic diseases it is as effective as crossing one's fingers.

So far as spreading infection or catching disease through the use of the telephone is concerned, unless you place your mouth in actual contact with the transmitter when speaking you are in no more danger of giving or catching anything than you would be in calling Yoo-Hoo to your neighbor passing by on the street. Disease germs do not leap out upon unwary victims like fleas.

If your mouth or lips accidentally touch the transmitter a more efficacious way of cleaning and disinfecting the mouthpiece of the instrument would be to wipe it with clean cotton or cloth moistened with ordinary soapy water.

A trained nurse who served in the navy accepted a job in a dentist's office as an assistant to the dentist. She didn't remain long—the dentist found that she took a short cut in preparing his instruments—she didn't bother to put them in the sterilizer, but just wiped them off with a towel and let it go at that. The dentist wondered whether she learned that in the navy. He worried, too, lest some of his patients had noticed the nurse's gross violation of surgical cleanliness—aseptic technique — before he did. At least some patients these days change dentists when they observe such malpractice, no matter how fancy and imposing the equipment and atmosphere of the office may be.

A reader sends a clipping of an illustrated article titled "The Fight on Colds," showing radio actors wearing masks of gauze while doing their parts in the play. It is apparent that only a few layers of gauze were used for the masks, for the actors' features are visible through the masks. Maybe the stunt was just a stunt, a gesture. A mask must have not less than ten layers of gauze of 32 thread mesh (32 threads to the inch) if it is to serve the purpose—which is to screen the wearer or those within droplets of mouth or nose spray which may contain the virus of germs of the disease.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

It Belongs in Any Library

A while ago you said there was only one cook book that had a place in your library. (Mrs. E. M.)

Answer—Yes, Adele Davis's Let's Cook it Right, (published by Harcourt Brace, $3) has a place in every library, I should say. An excellent cook tells me she has learned from this book how to broil and fry meat or fish just right without filling the house with smoke and odors.

Breath Odor

Wife tells me I have had a bad breath for years. Have had teeth and tonsils checked and I don't eat onions or garlic. Keep my teeth brushed and use mouthwash. What to do now? (E.J.N.)

Answer—Read the chapter on breath odor in the booklet How to Breathe—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Blackheads and Pimples

I have used (nostrum) on my face every night but it doesn't seem to clear my face of blackheads and pimples. Aren't these externally caused blemishes? (Miss N. A.)

Answer—Don't be deceived by that "externally caused" hokum—that's one of the tricks of the trade. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask in writing for pamphlet on Blackheads and Pimples.

CASH GIFTS DONATED TO CHARITY

London, Dec. 22—(AP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip have given to charity all the cash that was sent them as wedding presents, it was announced Saturday night. The sum exceeds £13,000 ($52,000).

SHOW WINDOW LIGHTING

The partial exemption granted by the Commission, which permitted the lighting of each self-contained show window by a single 100-watt lamp during the pre-Christmas season, expires on December 25th, 1947.

After this date, section 1, subsection b of the regulations made by the Commission under the Power Commission Act becomes fully effective. This regulation prohibits "interior or exterior lighting of show windows".

The Commission regrets that it is unable to extend this exemption, but the need to save electricity is more urgent than ever. Power demands have been higher than anticipated, while power resources have been reduced by low water conditions. However the power situation is constantly under review and whenever conditions warrant restrictions will be relaxed.

Bancroft

Santa's Parade Most Successful Winter Event

Bancroft (Special).—Saturday afternoon was in all respects to past events, the most colorful that Bancroft village has witnessed. The Bancroft Lions Club lent its untiring efforts to produce its annual Santa Claus parade which did them credit. Even before noon hour some two hours before Santa's scheduled arrival the population of Bancroft's some twelve hundred inhabitants began swelling until by two o'clock the village bulged to accommodate twice its normal population. Santa Claus was a few minutes late due to heavy roads but he finally drove into town via Station street to Hastings street and thence to the community hall at the upper end of town.

Santa was decked out in his usual dress and looked to all outer appearances as though Mrs. Santa Claus had looked after him in the far north in the best way possible knowing he must be in excellent condition both in spirit and physically for his annual trip to boys and girls of the various communities to which he must call.

Santa's reindeer not accustomed to the village activities were left on the outskirts of the village and Santa boarded an improvised sleigh atop a specially constructed and decorated float. His sleigh was even hitched to "Lightfoot" the deer in all its natural splendor.

Santa was followed by another float depicting Miss Winter assisted by her snow fairies, and intermingled throughout the parade were witty clowns, Elsie the Borden Cow's boy friend which presented quite a show for both young and old. Once while passing down Main street he espied a trucker with a load of hay and that trucker was quite concerned for some moments when Elsie's friend made a wild dash for the feed. He even lost his fly chaser along the way when one of the children tugged too hard on the animal.

The clowns and the children had much merriment in common along the route. The procession then arrived at the community hall after having passed through the business section of town which streets were densely packed with anxious onlookers. Reeve P. A. Kellar then shook hands with Santa Claus and thanked and welcomed the people for their splendid support to such a worthy cause.

Members of the Lions Club then quickly organized into a smooth running machine and swiftly conducted over a thousand children through a single line where each child received a bag containing candy, nuts, and an arange. The first 350 children to pass through the line were ushered into the community hall for an hour's picture show and the overflow of children following were directed to the Bancroft theatre for another show of eight Christmas shorts. As these shows terminated the children were then transferred from hall to theatre and vice versa so all the grand entertainment afforded the children plenty of amusement which kept them occupied until five o'clock and gave the parents a wonderful opportunity to avail themselves of an afternoon's shopping and thus the curtain fell on an event which was acclaimed by many as the most successful and entertaining Winter event which Bancroft had ever witnessed and thus set a precedent which many will strive in the years to come to even make the show much better and larger.

Special Carol Service

A special carol service was held in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday evening by Rev. C. S. Wright, the officiating clergyman. The church was nicely decorated for the Christmas season. The pulpit, prayer desk, organ and window sills were decorated with fir boughs covered with tinsel. In each window were placed two lighted candles. At the front of the pews on either side of the aisle were two gaily decorated Christmas trees. On the altar were placed a beautiful showing of white chrysanthemums in memory of the late Mrs. W. E. Wiggins by members of the family. The service consisted of the singing of carols and Christmas hymns, after each carol and hymn members of the Sunday School classes read portions of Scripture. After the close of the regular service the Sunday school children had their Sunday school Christmas treat. Santa Claus arrived at the designated time and with the help of members of the church distributed the gifts and candy to all members of the Sunday school as well as to Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Wright and Sunday school staff and a special gift was presented to Miss Marjorie Lumb who is church organist.

BURNED IN FIRE

Lake Dauphin, Man., Dec. 23—(CP) — A 63-year-old handyman, Holgar Ekestubbe, died late last night in a fire which destroyed the home of his farmer-employer, Ove Damsgaard, in this little farm community 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg and nine miles east of Dauphin, Man.

The blaze, believed to have been caused by overheated stove pipes, started while the Damsgaards were attending a Christmas concert. Ekestubbe, who occupied a shack near the main residence, was said to have been working in the house at the time.

SIX-HOUR FIRE IN U. S. "GRETNA GREEN"

Fireman A. C MacCleary, injured while battling the fire in business district of Elkton, Md., is carried from one of the burning buildings after he had been overcome. The fire raged six hours and was fought by firemen from three states until it was brought under control. Elkton is famous for its "Gretna Green" mecca of elopers intent on marriage.

Marmora

School Children Participate In Christmas Party

Marmora (Special) — The official closing of Marmora Public School for the Christmas vacation was changed this year. Its 160 pupils participated in a program at Marmora Town Hall on Thursday evening which thoroughly justified the innovation. The change was made to permit members of the Marmora Home and School Association and parents of the scholars to be in attendance. The hall was well filled. Principal E. C. Prentice was chairman and his staff of teachers co-operated with him to ensure success of the venture. The program consisted of choruses by the school as a whole and numbers from lowest grades to the highest in true sequence. For the musical numbers each grade was under the direction of Miss R. Stringer, music teacher of the district. Pianists of the evening were Miss Betty Harris and Mesdames H. Rennie and E. C. Prentice. At the close of the program each scholar received the gift of an orange and candy.

WMS Life Membership Presented Mrs. Hubble At Informal Tea

3rd Sidney — Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton, 2nd line, opened her home on Wednesday afternoon, where an informal tea was held under the auspics of the Woman's Missionary Society.

To increase the funds which are nearing the allocation point, cash donations were handed in.

During the afternoon a Life Membership Certificate was presented to the retiring president, Mrs. Everett Hubble.

3rd Sidney

Third Sidney — The Christmas concerts, at the Hogle school with Miss Ruth Palmer as teacher, and at the Centenary school with Mrs. Harry Bates as teacher, were held at the respective schools on Thursday evening and were well attended. Both had excellent programs and the teachers and their pupils are to be commended for their efforts.

Mission Band Service

The Aikens Mission Band held its Christmas program at the church on Sunday following the Sunday school. Miss Betty Smith, president of the band had charge of the service. With the superintendent, Mrs. Perry Hamilton at the piano, this service of Christmas songs and Bible lessons was deeply appreciated by the congregation, as was the church service which followed, conducted by the minister, Rev. W. Neelands. Small decorated Christmas trees and baskets of poinsettia at the front of the church added to the Christmas spirit of the services.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills spent last weekend in Toronto.

Roslin

Roslin Public School Presents Splendid Christmas Program

Roslin — The church hall was the setting for the annual Christmas concert of the Roslin Public School on Friday evening when the following varied program was presented:

Opening chorus by the school; a recitation by Lorne Meeks "What is Christmas"?; recitation by Russell Connley "Christmas Candles" assisted by a group of juniors; recitation, Carol Bailey; a dialogue "Zackery's Hired Man;" two-part song "A Prayer" by junior girls; recitation, Ken Howes "We Killed a Bear"; Duet — Misses Mary and Norma Bates; a drill, "Frolic of the Dolls and Teddy Bears"; Boys chorus, "Ring Merry Bells, Ring"; Carol singing by the audience; dialogue — "Naughty Mouse"; readings, Mr. Harold Hart "The Night After Christmas" and "The Touch of the Master's Hand"; chorus by the older girls; "Jesus Was Once a Sweet Baby"; Cantata "While the Angels Sang." Miss Rita Slingerland was pianist for the evening and accompanied the various numbers. Rev. A. C. Campbell of Plainfield was chairman for the evening and voiced the appreciation of the audience to the teacher, Mrs. A. Clare and to all who had assisted in the program.

Bonarlaw

Annual Bonarlaw School Concert A Huge Success

Bonarlaw — (Special) — There was a good attendance at the school concert held by S. S. No. 5 in the school house on Friday evening of last week under the direction of the teacher Mrs. Geo. Williams. W. J. Barlow acted as chairman.

The program consisted of choruses, recitations, dialogues, drills, plays, etc. The two-part choruses were extremely well rendered and the harmony was exceptionally good. Dramatic was displayed by a goodly proportion of the pupils in the dialogues and plays.

During the program Mrs. Williams was called to the platform and presented with a gift from the pupils.

After the National Anthem Santa Claus appeared on the scene and distributed presents from a prettily decorated Christmas tree to all the pupils, and also passed out bags of fruit, candy and nuts.

Madoc

Candlelight Service

Madoc—A candlelight service was held in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening. Special Christmas music was rendered by the choir with Miss Phyllis Beatty and Mr. William Hawthorne Jr., as guest soloists and David Crawford playing a trumpet solo. The minister Rev. M. W. Haslip gave a very inspiring message. "The Story of the Wisemen." The decorations, lighted Christmas trees and candles were very much in keeping with the festive Christmastide.

Police report that the deer was killed when struck by Stoneman's car Sunday night on the Hamilton highway near here.

Rawdon

Joint School Concert Splendid Success

Rawdon (Special) — Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church hall was nicely decorated in a color scheme of red and green with a glowing and well-laden tree for the annual Christmas concert of the Allan and Williams schools Friday evening, Dec. 19. There was a record attendance despite the zero weather, with a large number of visitors from nearby points.

A good program was presented by the pupils under the direction of their teachers, Mrs. Gordon Richardson and Miss Marjorie Bush. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver presided at the piano and Mr. Weaver manipulated the curtain.

Rev. N. Cole and Mr. Orno Sharpe acted as chairmen for the evening as the pastor also attended another Christmas concert at Wellman's.

Several Christmas carols were sung throughout the evening.

The program was as follows:

Welcome song (both schools in unison); "A Christmas Tree Acoustic" (Williams School); "A Gift from Santa", play (Allan Juniors); "Santa Claus Express" (Seniors of both schools); play in two acts, "The Day After Christmas" (Williams School); drill, "The Maypole" (Allan School); song (Williams School); Christmas cantata in two acts (both schools); chorus, "St. Nick"; drill, "Red, White and Blue" (Williams School); play, "Uncle Christopher" in two acts (Allan School); chorus, "Gather 'Round the Christmas Tree (juniors); play, "Dad's Quiet Evening"; a humorous play, "Hec Said It"; song and pantomime, "O Come All Ye Faithful"; closing chorus, "Goodbye and Merry Christmas".

Both teachers voiced their appreciation and Santa arrived with treats for the children and distributed the gifts.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding of Miss Lillian Colden and Mr. Gerald F. Hurley were Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hurley, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Clair A. Devlin, of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fenton, of Galt, Ont.

Miss Bessie Augustine, of St. Thomas, and Mrs. C. M. Andrews, of Toronto, visited Mrs. Andrews at the Belleville General Hospital last week. Friends of Mrs. Andrews will be glad to learn she is making satisfactory progress toward recovery following a recent operation.

Mr. W. H. Osborne is convalescing at his home on Catharine Street, after a recent operation in the Belleville General Hospital.

WEDDINGS

CROSBIE—MEYERS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Meyers, Trent Road, was gay with Christmas decorations, trees and tall red tapers for the marriage at three o'clock on the afternoon of December 20, of their daughter, Doris Marguerite, to James Franklin Crosbie, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Crosbie, of Powassan, Ont. Rev. A. C. McCallum of Wesley United Church, officiated for the ceremony and wedding music was provided by Miss Dorothy Gains, of Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in white and gold lame, with short sleeves and bustle effect peplum. She wore a strand of pearls, a gift from the groom, and a corsage of cream roses.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Sally Perry, of Chicago, wearing a blue grey street length dress, with bustle effect, and a corsage of pink roses.

W/O. Albert H. Tuplin, R.C.A.F., Trenton, ably performed the duties of groomsman.

For the reception the bride's mother wore a gown of soft blue crepe, with black accessories. Delicious refreshments were served from an artistically arranged table with a beautifully decorated wedding cake as the centrepiece, by nieces of the bride, Miss Della Meyers and Miss Joan Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosbie left by train for a wedding journey to Ottawa and North Bay, and following their return will take up residence on the Trent Road, Belleville.

TREE PLANTING CAR

Regina — (CP) — The "tree planting car," a railway car fitted out as a theatre seating about 100 people, has arrived here. Owned by the Canadian Forestry Association, it shows films on tree planting and soil conservation. The Association hopes the car will interest prairie farmers in the use of trees.

Royal Newlyweds Will be Active In British Life in '48

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP) — Return of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, from their honeymoon wrote "finis" to a romantic chapter of British history which began early in the year with spreading rumor of their betrothal.

Now the public has grown accustomed to them as man and wife, Elizabeth and Philip will settle down to a work-a-day round of public duties while making a temporary home at Buckingham Palace. Their official London residence, Clarence House, is being renovated and will not be ready for some time.

Buckingham Palace officials predict that the Royal couple will play a prominent part in public life during 1948 and will, in many respects follow the earlier example set by the Duke and Duchess of Kent, married in 1934.

Because of so many commitments at home, it is not expected they will visit Commonwealth countries before 1949. When they are at liberty to travel, it is possible they will accept Prime Minister Mackenzie King's invitation to visit Canada.

Princess Elizabeth and Philip, erstwhile prince of Greece and new of Earl Mountbatten, Governor-General of India, were undoubtedly the most popular and most publicized figures in 1947. Months before their engagement was announced the whole western world was stirred by rumors of it. Every time Philip's picture appeared in the press there was conjecture as to whether he would utimately be accepted into the Royal Family.

A Popular Figure

The tremendous outburst of enthusiasm following last July's official betrothal left no doubt that the British public had taken the young Royal Navy lieutenant to its heart.

Elizabeth too, derived added glamor from the engagement as her future subjects saw in new photographs an extra sparkle and vivacity.

The long-awaited marriage ceremony at the Abbey November 20—Britain's biggest social event since the Coronation — was superb and simple; essentially English in its contrasts. Kings, princes and prelates, splendid in uniform and cope, sat only a few feet from men in lounge suits—a cheerful concession to the age of austerity.

For the first time in history, at the wedding of an heir to the throne, camera men were allowed to film the procession while microphones carried the service to millions listening in every part of the globe.

Visitors from distant lands — including European royalty — enthused over the unaffected dignity of the young couple and spoke in high praise of the brilliant yet eloquently simple service.

"The British know how to blend pomp with simplicity better than anyone," said a Belgian newspaperman, and the wedding passed into history as a brilliant compromise between the splendor of the past and the austerity of the present.

Some Advice On Gravy

Women who whiz through pastry and similar culinary efforts report gravy is their Waterloo, turning out under their attentions either too thick or too thin; floury, lumpy or a soft beige, instead of a good rich brown. With Christmas-time's delectable turkey in mind, here are some directions which will be of assistance.

Giblet Gravy

1/3 cup drippings
1/3 cup flour
3 cups liquid (giblet broth plus water or milk, if necessary to make three cups)
Salt and pepper
Chopped giblets.

1. Pour drippings from roasting pan into a bowl. Measure one-third cup into a saucepan and blend in the flour.
2. Pour the liquid (giblet broth plus water or milk) into the roasting pan. Let soak briefly. Scrape the browned particles from the sides of the pan.
3. Add the liquid to the drippings-flour mixture. Cook, stirring, until thickened.
4. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add giblets and cook two minutes longer. Yield: about four cups. Remaining drippings may be used for cooking or fat salvage.

To prepare the giblet broth and giblets required in the gravy recipe, put into a saucepan the gizzard, heart, liver and neck. Cover with water. Add a teaspoon of salt, a piece of bay leaf, a small chopped onion and a half-cup of mixed chopped celery and carrot. Simmer, covered, added water as needed for two to three-and-a-half hours, or until heart is tender. Remove liver after about fifteen minutes of cooking. Strain broth and chop giblets.

'Always Make Home Pleasant Place' Says Napanee Couple Wed 70 Years

Napanee, Ont., Dec. 23 —(CP) —On the eve of their 70th wedding anniversary, one of Canada's longest-married couples took time out today to offer a word of advice to young folk starting out in married life: "Consider what you are doing, work honestly together and always make your home a pleasant place."

That's the formula of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesley Kimmerly, who Thursday will sit down to a combined Christmas and wedding anniversary dinner for the 70th time since their marriage on Dec. 25, 1877.

Both in good health and active at 91, the Kimmerlys feel that other people can benefit from the blueprint for marriage which has brought them seven decades of happiness since they were wed at nearby Colebrook by the Rev. W. G. Howard.

Drove in Buggy

Mrs. Kimmerly, formerly Ellen Jane Aikenbrack of Moscow, Ont., and her husband vividly recall the snappy crisp buggy drive from her home to the place of their marriage.

Since then they have been at home every Christmas except their 50th anniversary, when they visited Mrs. Kimmerly's brother in Fort William. Through 70 years of married life they have always been together for their birthdays.

Congenial and energetic as they prepare for the event, these two natives of Lennox and Addington county proudly displayed a three-storey Christmas cake made by Mrs. Kimmerly. She is still able to do sewing and take a share of the household duties which are managed principally by her nephew's wife with whom they live.

Celebrate at Home

The anniversary will be celebrated at their home, where Mrs. Kimmerly will play hostess to relatives in the area.

Mr. Kimmerly still enjoys smoking his pipe and cigars. Both cast their vote in the municipal election earlier this month.

Of United Empire Loyalist stock, the couple farmed near Napanee during the earlier years of their married life and then purchased a general store at Flinton, 40 miles north of here, where they lived for 35 years.

During this time Mr. Kimmerly gave lengthy service in the council and in 1917 was elected warden of the county.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP) — The sale of half-turkeys could prove a boom to many small families this Christmas. There never seems to be a sufficient supply of small turkeys to meet the demand, and the thrifty homemaker who must prepare a holiday meal for only three or four naturally hesitates when it comes to buying a 20-pound bird.

If at first thought the price per pound for these turkey portions seem out of line, home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, point out that when buying a whole turkey the housewife also is paying for head, feet, and entrails, which may amount anywhere from 20 to 25 per cent of the total weight.

The experts also say that a well-cooked half turkey tastes just as good as a whole turkey, and is no more difficult to carve.

When cooking a half turkey, skewer the skin down to the breast-bone, tie the leg to the tail and rub the cavity with salt. When making the dressing allow approximately three-quarters of a cup for each pound of turkey and mound it on a piece of parchment paper. Place the half bird over the dressing, rub the skin with fat, and roast in a shallow, uncovered pan until tender in a moderately slow oven, allowing 20 to 25 minutes a pound.

The turkey should be basted occasionally with fat during the roasting or covered with a piece of clean cheesecloth moistened with melted fat. If additional dressing is desired it may be baked in a separate casserole covered for the first three quarters of the hour.

Home-made candy is popular at any time but with the Christmas season on hand it becomes even more of a treat. Here are some candy recipes calculated to make the homemaker a popular hostess when friends come dropping in.

Mexican Fudge —Ingredients: two cups sugar; one cup milk or cream; one tablespoon butter.

Cook sugar and milk until sugar is dissolved then add the butter. In another pan carmal one cup of sugar and add to other ingredients while they are boiling. Cook all to soft ball stage. When cooled a few seconds beat and add one cup of pecans. Pour into buttered plate and mark off in squares.

Peanut Brittle—Ingredients: three cups sugar; 1 1-2 cup light corn syrup; 1 1-3 cup cold water; three cups raw peanuts; one tablespoon butter; 1 1-2 teaspoon soda; one teaspoon water; one teaspoon vanilla.

Cook sugar, syrup and water together until it will crack when dropped in cold water from tip of spoon. Add peanuts and butter. Stir until when tasted peanuts seem well done. After removing from fire stir in soda dissolved in one teaspoon water and one teaspoon vanilla. Turn out on a hard surface and pull until thin.

Date Confection —Ingredients: one pound dates; one cup nuts; one cup milk; two cups sugar.

Cook sugar and milk till it forms a soft ball in cold water. Beat until nearly cool, add nuts and dates. After this roll in a wet cloth and when cool, slice.

Hints on Using Frozen Foods

Frozen fruits and vegetables are a definite asset to the homemaker whether she takes them from her own freezer or buys the packages from a retail store.

This old way of preserving food has been brought up-to-date so that foods packed and frozen by modern methods retain all their natural fresh flavor and color.

Retention of these natural qualities and also of texture depends greatly on the way the food is handled from freezer to table.

Vegetables, with the exception of corn-on-the-cob, should be put on to cook while still frozen. Those packed in brine require only sufficient boiling water to prevent scorching as they begin to thaw. One to two tablespoons is usually enough. No additional salt should be necessary.

When vegetables have been dry-packed, 1-2 cup of water is used for a 16 ounce package of all vegetables, except cauliflower. For cauliflower, 3-4 cup of water is better. Corn-on-the-cob should be thawed, then covered with boiling water.

A tightly fitting lid on the saucepan is essential.

To hasten thawing and ensure uniform cooking, the melting mass may be broken apart with a fork. This applies particularly to spinach, asparagus and broccoli.

The cooking time for frozen vegetables is about one half that of the fresh product. Time should be counted from the moment at which the water reaches boiling point. Over-cooking spoils texture and color.

Frozen fruits are usually served raw. Most fruits are better if a few ice crystals still remain when served. Therefore, they should never be thawed until needed for serving. Fruit should be thawed in the unopened container, either in the refrigerator or at room temperature.

Fruit Kitchen

1 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour or 1 3-4 cups pastry flour
2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1-2 cup sugar
1-4 cup milk
1-4 cup melted fat
1 16 oz. package frozen blueberries, rhubarb, or gooseberries (approx. 2 cups)
Sugar (see note below)

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg until light. Gradually beat in 1-2 cup sugar. Stir in milk then melted fat. Add dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pat into a well-greased 8-inch square pan. Break frozen block apart and spread fruit while only partially thawed over the dough. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 45 minutes. Serve hot with cream. Six servings.

Note—The amount of sugar required to sweeten the fruit will vary from 1-4 to 1-2 cup depending on the fruit used. If the fruit has been frozen without any sugar use the same amount as for fresh fruit.

Strawberry Whip

3 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar
1-8 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 16 oz package frozen strawberries

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually beat in sugar. Add salt and lemon juice. Add juice from berries (1-2 to 3-4 cup if syrup pack is used) and beat slightly. Fold in thawed berries. Pile whip lightly in individual dishes and serve at once. Six servings.

V.O.N. NEWS

To all the people who are in the habit of reading V.O.N. news greetings of the season are extended.

An old year is about to pass into history a year that has been full of hopes, and fears, and prayers for the futures.

An old year to which good-bye is said with mingled feelings of joy and sadness. May 1948, which is ushered in on the stormy winds of an uneasy peace, find a fair haven in hearts that are determined to make of it a better thing than its predecessor.

In this new year V.O.N. dedicates itself to the betterment of the health of Belleville. In spite of the amazing strides of medicine and chemistry, many will need the care of nurses to supplement the medical care given by doctors.

With the doctors orders the V.O.N. is armed to help the sick recover health, to help the new-born to a life of good habits, and the expectant mothers to a feeling of security in their future.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON W. A.

The December meeting of the Cannifton W. A. was held in the Sunday school rooms of the United Church with the dinner in charge of Mrs. W. I. Cole and Mrs. H. Empson.

The meeting proper was opened by the president, Mrs. Harry Farnham and quiet music was played by Mrs. H. Empson. Mrs. Jack Williams read the Scripture lesson.

Reports were received from the different committees, proving that the association had a very successful year. It was decided to pay $10 to the missionary fund and the same amount to the Sunday School fund. Mr. Willis Brenton to be notified re the wiring of the electric organ, a gift from the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Clapp, and of some other electrical work in the Sunday School room.

Rev. J. R. Trumpour read the story of the "Spirit of Christmas," Mrs. Harry Twiddy and Mrs. F. Furmidge contributed a duet, "Star of the East." Mr. Trumpour thanked the ladies for their assistance in the work of the church and conducted the election of officers for the new year, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. H. Farnham; Vice President, Mrs. Jack Williams; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Owen Roblin; Secretary, Mrs. A. Loucks; Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Gould; Press Reporter, Mrs. F. Furmidge; Organist, Mrs. H. Empson; Committees; Devotional, Mrs. Trumpour, Mrs. Holgate and Mrs. Furmidge; Parsonage, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Cole; Correspondence, Mrs. McMurter; Flowers, Mrs. Bedell, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Peacock; Serving, Mrs. Farnham, Mrs. Furmidge; Dinners, Mrs. Furmidge; Visiting, Mrs. Gould for Corbyville, Mrs. Cole for Cannifton, Mrs. Boyd.

BETHANY W.M.S.

Bethany W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Frank Walker for the Christmas program.

Mrs. George Sills led in the worship service which opened with quiet music, the carol "O Little Town of Bethlehem", and the "Christmas Story" from St. Luke's gospel.

Business was completed so that no interruptions would occur during the beautiful candlelighting ceremony. The report of the Presbyterial held recently in Trenton was given by Mrs. G. Kerr.

The candlelighting service was very impressive with a worship centre arranged on a table, centred by a Bible opened at the Christmas story. Those taking part were the leader Mrs. G. Sills assisted by Mrs. Embury, Mrs. J. Ritz, Mrs. G. McPherson, Mrs. J. Gould, Mrs. R. Ritz and Mrs. D. Clarke.

Christmas carols were sung in unison throughout the program and solos were sung by Mrs. H. Casey, Mrs. C. Eggleton and Mrs. W. Mifflin.

Prayer closed this inspiring service.

The December meeting of the W.C.A. was held in the Board Room of the Hospital, Mrs. Imlah presiding. The usual reports were read and general business discussed.

The Home Board gratefully acknowledged the following gifts to the Home for the Aged during the month of November:

Potatoes and meat, Tabernacle Ladies; sandwiches and cake, Bridge St. W. A.; sandwiches and cake, Hospital Auxiliary; two coats, Mrs. Chadwick; apples and bacon fat, Mrs. A. E. Purdy; playing cards, Mrs. P. H. Wills; potatoes, salad and bread, St. Andrew's Church; potatoes and carrots, Bridge St. Men's Association; two pair shoes, Mrs. R. Grant; sandwiches, Hi-Y Club; rocking chair, quilt, clothing, Mrs. T. Y. Wills; two arm chairs, quilt, Miss Annie Tickell; potatoes, Tabernacle Ladies; bed and springs, Mrs. Grant Sparling.

Films were shown by Mr. Lockyer through the kindness of the Belleville Motor Club.

Major Earle of the Salvation Army held the weekly services during November.

Mrs. R. Abrams is the lady on duty for the month.

TRINITY W.M.S.

Madoc.—Trinity Church members of the W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. E. Moore for their Christmas meeting. Mrs. F. J. Nickle, president, conducted the opening exercises. Various reports were read and adopted. There were 39 sick calls reported. Mrs Leslie Ashley read the report of the nominating committee and presented the slate of officers for the New Year.

Mrs. A. Poulter, convener of the program committee, opened the devotional service by reading a poem, "O Sing a Song of Bethlehem". Prayer was offered for the many countries that are suffering and in need at this Christmas time. A poem "I heard the bells on Christmas Day" was read and Christmas carols were sung. A Christmas Story "A True Tale of the Inn-keeper at Bethlehem", was given by Mrs. Nickle. Mrs. A. Poulter contributed a solo "Pass It On" which added much to the spirit of the meeting.

The Study Book Chapter "The Bible for All the World" and "The Bible for England", were synopsized by Mrs. L. Ashley. At the close of the meeting a pleasant social half hour was enjoyed with the ladies serving afternoon tea

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The Christmas meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. F. White, which was gaily decorated for the occasion in the traditional Yule-tide manner.

The President was in charge and Mrs. K. Bird was at the piano.

After a very brief business period, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. M. Robson, who were in charge of the Christmas program.

After several carols had been sung an inspirational talk about the Christmas Spirit of "Fellowship and Good Will Toward Men" was given by Mrs. Holmes. Mrs. T. Anger read the Christmas Story from Luke 2: verses 1 to 16: The meditation was given by Mrs. L. Reid followed by the singing of "Silent Night". A beautiful Christmas story "The Star" was told by Mrs. Robson.

A Polish carol, sung by Mrs. A. Daniels was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Hall read a poem by Edgar Guest. The meeting closed with the forming of a Friendship Circle and singing "Auld Lang Syne".

Several games and contests under the leadership of Mrs. F. Reid and Mrs. L. Reid, provided the amusement for the afternoon and contributed to the spirit of fellowship and good will which prevailed.

An exchange of house plants, ferns and cacti took place among the members and the gifts from the beautifully decorated tree were distributed by a novel method. Each member was asked to choose one item from a mythical Christmas dinner menu, then she was presented with the gift bearing this name.

Delicious refreshments concluded this happy Christmas meeting.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

The December meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. A. McCurdy, with 1st Vice President, Mrs. A. Wright in charge of the following program —Opening hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem". Scripture lesson read by Irene Moorcroft from the 2nd chapter of St. Luke's gospel and prayer by Mrs. C. Green.

Mrs. Clayton Wright gave the Christmas story, assisted by Mrs. Moorcroft. Two solos were contributed by Mrs. Grant, with Mrs. Lainson as accompanist.

Mr. Arthur Wilson, was guest speaker, and gave a very interesting talk on the life of Abraham Lincoln, his early training and how he finally proved to be a man of wonderful character and a great statesman.

During the business period thirteen members answered the roll call, and four heralds responded to the Watch Tower. The ladies decided to assist with the church service, Dec. 21st, at 7.30 p.m. Mrs. Elmer Post presented the travelling library, the collection was accepted and amounted to $4.50. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Wright.

Mr. A. Wilson closed the meeting with prayer.

ST. JOHN'S W.A.-GUILD

Stirling (Special.)—The annual meeting of the St. John's W.A., and Guild was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday, December 9th, with a pot luck dinner at noon. The proceeds of the dinner will go towards boxes for Britain.

The meeting opened with prayer by Rev. C. C. Brazill and a special hymn in memory of the late Canon Turner. Mrs. Geo. Prince gave an excellent report on the year's activities which far exceeded the previous year. Mrs. Rodgers spoke a few words on love for the church and nominations were then called for the Ladies' Guild and for the W.A. officers for 1948 with the following, being elected: President, Mrs. H. Cooke; Secretary, Mrs. George Prince; Lunch Convener, Mrs. E. Cooke.

W. A. Officers

Mrs. Fred Kent, treasurer, presented a good report on the year's work after which the election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Walter Savage; Secretary, Mrs. Harry Smith; Treasurer, Mrs. Fred Kent; Convener of Lunch, Mrs. E. Cooke; Living Message Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Belshaw; Little Helpers Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. T. Tanner; Visiting Committee, Mrs. Tanner and Mrs. Graves; Jr. W.A. Presidents, Mrs. Belshaw and Mrs. J. Whitehead.

Since a box was sent to Britain recently it was decided not to send a second box until January, the same to be packed at the next meeting.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Brazill after which refreshments were served.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The December meeting of the Ivanhoe W M.S., was held on Monday evening in the church when a very impressive candlelighting service was conducted by the President, Mrs. George Wood. The meeting opened with a short Worship Service and prayer was offered by Rev. J. F. Everson. An invitation to hold the January meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Prest was accepted. A letter from the new Stewardship Secretary was read by Mrs. J. F. Everson.

Christmas Greeting Cards are being sent to several of the older W.M.S. members. The offering was received and the President read an article "Christmas Customs In Other Lands".

A Christmas hymn was quietly played by Mrs. S. Prest and the service from the Missionary Monthly was closely followed. Scripture lessons were read in unison with a duet "Silent Night, Holy Night", being beautifully rendered by Mrs. Goldie McIlroy and Mrs. George Wood.

The following members assisted in the lighting of the candles, Miss Doris Twiddy, Mrs. J. Wickens, Mrs. C. Mitz, Mrs. E. Benson, Miss Cora Prest, Mrs. S. Twiddy and Mrs. A. Wood, while an Indian carol was read by Miss Shirley Reid and an African carol was read in unison. The Mizpah benediction brought the meeting to a close.

At the November meeting the following officers were elected for the year 1948:

President, Mrs. George Wood; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Clifford Mitz; Recording Secretary, Mrs. S. Prest; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Jack Wickens; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Wood; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. J. F. Everson; Temperance, Mrs. S. Twiddy; Community Friendship, Mrs. C. Mitz, Mrs. H. Reid, Mrs. H. McMillan; Missionary Monthly Secretary, Mrs. N. Thomlinson; Associate Helpers' Sec., Mrs. J. Cooney; Supply Sec., Mrs. E. Rollins; Peace Secretary, Mrs. John Wright; Pianist, Mrs. C. Keeble, Miss Doris Twiddy; Baby Band President, Mrs. E. Rollins; Assistant, Mrs. Earl Benson; Mission Band Leader, Mrs. C. Keeble; Watch Tower, Mrs. Albert Reid Group Leaders—No. 1 Miss Cora Prest No. 2 Mrs. E. Benson and Mrs. S. Twiddy, No. 3, Mrs. Harry Lovibond, No. 4, Mrs. H. McMillan.

ST. PAUL'S MISSION BAND
(Stirling)

The December meeting of St. Paul's Mission Band was held in the Sunday School rooms with 29 members present. The meeting opened with a hymn "Silent Night", followed by The Lord's Prayer and the Mission Band purpose.

Treasurer's report was read by Helen Irish. The offering was collected by Sandra Mason and Carolyn Belcour.

Hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was sung, followed by a reading "Christmas in Holland" by Mrs. Irish. A piano solo by Janet Anne Good was much enjoyed. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Irish.

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED W.M.S.

Marmora—St. Andrew's United W.M.S. held their Christmas meeting at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon. There was a fine attendance of members and members of the C.G.I.T. group joined with them for the social hour. The President, Mrs. Haacke presided.

Miss Margaret Brown was welcomed, and conducted the Worship Service very impressively and later took the leader's part in the candle-lighting ceremony.

Mrs. Haacke conducted the business portion of the meeting including a record of calls made and the books read. Mrs. Burwash presented the treasurer's report, which showed a goodly balance above the allocation set. It was decided to forward same as a help towards the different projects the W.M.S. is sponsoring.

The candle-lighting ceremony was conducted following the program in the Missionary Monthly. Those lighting candles were Mrs. Burwash, Mrs. Pack, Mrs. Jarvis, Mrs. Sproul, Mrs. Sabine, and Mrs. Sweet, with Mrs. Prentice giving the closing prayer. The singing of the Christmas carols added greatly to the beauty of the service.

Dainty refreshments brought the meeting to a close. The new officers will take over at the January meeting.

WHITE'S W. A.

White's District — Mrs. Walter Jones opened her home for the December meeting of the White's Woman's Association on Thursday with a pot luck dinner served at noon to a goodly number of members and visitors.

Following the dinner the president, Mrs. Walter Jones, opened the meeting with a Christmas program. Christmas gifts were exchanged. This meeting brought to a close a very successful year, both in work accomplished and from a financial point of view.

WMS. CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

White's District — Mrs. Glenn Meyers, president of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society conducted a very pretty candlelight Carol Service on Sunday evening assisted by Mrs. C. Rush, Mrs. Dudley, Mrs. W. H. May, Mrs. H. M. Rutter, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. G. Clapp, who lighted the seven smaller candles from the large candle and each repeated a bit of verse telling why each candle was lighted. Christmas carols were sung throughout the service and the choir rendered an anthem "cradle in a Manger."

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

Madoc.—Trinity United Church held the Christmas service of Sunday morning. Special music by the choir, including a duet, "O Little Town of Bethlehem", rendered by Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. Jack Smith and an anthem, "Ring Merry Christmas Bells" and special Christmas hymns sung during the service. The pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, gave a very fine Christmas message "Happy Tidings". A pleasant feature of the morning service was the baptism of the little children of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Don Parks and Mr. and Mrs.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.

4th Sidney — The W.M.S. and W.A. met in the Stone Church Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. W. Neelands took charge. Quiet music was played by Mrs. Gray. "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and lighting the first candle of the service by Mrs. Neelands opened the program. The Christmas Story read in unison, was followed with prayer by the leader. The candles were then lit by seven members with Mrs. A. Seeley singing a solo. A closing prayer brought an impressive Christmas service to a close. The business period followed, with Mrs. A. Woods giving the annual report and Mrs. W. Tufts treasurer giving a report of monies collected which, with the Mission Band and Baby Band donations will reach the allocation. The officers elected for next year are as follows: President, Mrs. A. Walt; Vice President, Mrs. J. Detlor; Secretary, Mrs. A. Woods; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. A. Cranston; Treasurer, Mrs. W. Tufts; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. E. Phillips; Temperance, Mrs. F. Jeffery; Literature, Mrs. H. Gray; Supply Secretary, Mrs. H. Phillips.

The W.A. held a short business session planning their January meeting.

C. W. Neelands, A. B. Woods and Hugh Gray; a marinette tap dance by Don Demille; trio "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" by three juniors; chorus "Good Nite Dear Ones" by the school.

After the program Santa Claus arrived in time to give out a good supply of gifts to the children. A pair of chickens was presented to Rev. C. W. Neelands on behalf of the school. At the close Mr. Hugh Gray moved a vote of thanks to Miss Terrion, the school teacher, and Miss Pitman, the music teacher, seconded by Mr. Frank Jeffery and to all who helped to make the concert such a success. Proceeds amounted to $20.

SIX JAPANESE ADMIT STABBING AND SMOTHERING AMERICAN FLIER

Yokohama, Dec. 22—(AP)—Six Japanese pleaded innocent today before a United States Army military commission on charges of stabbing an injured American flier and then killing him by smothering him with dirt in 1945. Key defendant is Kimiya Ichino, former lieutenant-colonel, who is charged with permitting his subordinates to "brutally kill" Fishback.

Roslin

On Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McLaren (nee Helen Sills); on Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Wilson (nee Luella Anderson); and on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Stratton (nee Ruth Reid). Each couple was presented with a gift of money from the Roslin community.

Roslin — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sayers and Helen left on Saturday for New York, where they will spend Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chisholm have taken up residence in the village this week.

Rev. F. C. Beazer, and Mrs. Beazer spent Friday evening at Thomasburg and attended the annual meeting of Christ Church Woman's Auxiliary.

The annual meeting of the Roslin Cheese and Butter Co., was held at the factory on Monday afternoon Mr. A. E. Bates was elected president and Mrs. W. H. White secretary-treasurer. Mr. Ernie Pascoe was re-engaged as cheesemaker for 1948.

Relatives from here attended the Hurley-Colden wedding in Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. Carman Tracy, who has been working near Sudbury, returned home on Sunday.

A large number were in attendance at the eighth line Tyendinaga School Christmas concert which was held in the Orange Hall on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Brand of Windsor, is spending the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Chapman.

Picton

Canadian Legion Stages Party

Picton — The Armouries resounded to the laughter and cheering of children Friday night when Post 78, Canadian Legion, staged its annual party. Three hundred were present. The program was an impromptu one, many children taking part. Santa arrived and distributed candy and gifts to each child. The Legion Ladies Auxiliary served refreshments.

White's District

White's District — Mrs. George Weston and children are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Saylor.

The Rev. A. C. McCallum has been ill in bed with influenza. All his friends hope that he will soon be well again.

Quite a number from this district attended the wedding of Miss Maude Burke (formerly of this district) to Mr. John Baxter of Trenton in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday afternoon.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. James Crosbie (nee Doris Meyers) who were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyers on Saturday afternoon.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. C. Nugent and family in the loss of Mr. Nugent who passed away on Thursday. The funeral service was held at Weaver's Funeral Home in Trenton on Sunday afternoon.

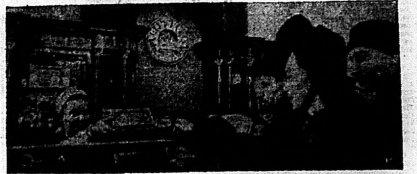
QUICK INFLUX

The population of El Reno, Oklahoma, jumped about 145,000 persons in a single day in 1901 when free land was opened to white settlers.

CONCENTRATING HARD ON THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Intense concentration on the faces of these Philadelphia youngsters as they do their good deed for the Christmas season. They are writing letters to poorer children in Europe, and with their letters will go parcels of food. "Care," the organization that distributes food to Europe, has promoted the idea of children's gifts and letters in Canada and the U.S.

SHOPPING SPREE IN MOSCOW



On December 16, open trade at uniform government prices was started in the Soviet Union, and Russians could buy ration-free goods for the first time since the war in all stores, pavilions, stalls and workers' settlements in Moscow. This scene was in the "Bolshevik" confectionery store on Moscow's Gorky Street. Dropping of rationing coincided with the devaluation of the ruble.

Marmora

Marmora. — Miss Marjorie Brownlie, who is attending Bishop Strachan College, Toronto, is home for the Christmas vacation.

All schools closed on Friday for the Christmas vacation.

Miss Anne Reid, who is attending Normal School in Peterborough, is spending the vacation with her mother, Mrs. T. J. Reid.

85th Birthday Is Celebrated By Connie Mack

Connie Mack, celebrating his 85th birthday today, says his Philadelphia Athletics would be a 1948 American League pennant contender "If I had new second and third basemen who could hit and run."

Shrugging off birthday wishes with a "let's talk about baseball instead" baseball's grand old man—he's been in organized ball since 1884—said in an interview he wants to win another world championship "before I retire and I think I have the makings in this current team of mine."

A Canadian Rugby Union order calling for the Hamilton Tigers-Vancouver Blue Bombers to play only one game, and under eastern rules, for the Dominion Junior Football Championship has brought a prompt reply from Tommy Moran, president of the Vancouver Big Four Rugby League, who has arranged the "Evergreen Bowl" series in Vancouver.

"We'll take no notice of the order," he said, adding that "it would wreck the whole plan." He said the Tigers had agreed to play a two-game series, the first January 1 under western rules, and the second, Jan. 3 under the eastern code. Moran said he would wire Percy Robinson, secretary of the C.R.U. who issued the order, "reminding him of our agreement to split the rules."

Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League will have a new coach from next Sunday onward. He's Chuck Conacher, former member of the Toronto Maple Leafs' famed kid line of Conacher-Primeau-Jackson, who at 37 will take over the reins from Johnny Gottselig who moves into the Chicago front office.

Conacher, who coached the Oshawa Generals to a Memorial Cup championship in 1944, will serve out the rest of the season at Chicago and be offered first choice of the job next year.

Dr. Rice, owned by H. Locke of Williamsburg, Ont., won the feature race in the Dufferin Park trots in Toronto yesterday, taking the trot and pace classified event in two straight heats.

Tim Worthy, owned by H. A. Dickenson of Mount Hope, Ont., and Lee Corporal, owned by H. W. Brown of New Liskeard, finished second and third respectively to Dr. Rice in the 6 1-2 furlong first heat. In the one-mile second heat the positions were duplicated.

Bobby Locke, South Africa's great money golfer, arrived at New York yesterday to take another whack at the United States tournament circuit which he found so lucrative last Spring and Summer. He plans to leave today for Los Angeles, where he will make his first start in the Los Angeles open Jan. 2.

Carl Nater, high commissioner of the Winter Olympic games which are to be held at St. Moritz, Switzerland, in January and February, last night announced his resignation as a protest against a "quarrel" between the Swiss Olympic Committee and the United States Olympic Committee over admittance to the Winter games of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

The U.S. Olympic Committee was said to have considered itself "snubbed" when the Swiss organizing committee recognized the A.H.A. as the United States entry for the hockey tournament. They considered this ruling a violation of Olympic procedure which requires that each country's entries must be certified by the National Olympic Committee.

With 20 goals and 31 assists, George Agar of Houston Huskies continues to lead United States Hockey League scorers, followed by team-mate Paul Mundrick with 45 points, six points in arrears.

Youth and competitive spirit may combine to give the United States one of its better Olympic speed-skating teams this year, but the European racing style probably will prove an obstacle, Coach Peter Miller conceded yesterday. His team averages 23 years.

Food Rationing Hard on Players

Halifax, Dec. 23 (CP)— Food rationing in Scotland made it impossible for touring hockey teams to play their best brand of hockey, Canadian Junior players who returned aboard the liner Aquitania after a jaunt through Scotland, said here Saturday.

Although average attendance was 7,000 for Scottish League games, the players could not give their best performance because they were not in top physical condition.

Those who returned were Don Hebbs, Ken Hulley, and Stew Williamson, with Galt, Ont., Junior Red Wings last season; Gary Hassin, with St. Catharines, Ont., Juniors; Bob Studholm of North Bay, Ont., and Fenwick Laing of Toronto.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 23—(CP)— Although the halfway mark in the National Hockey League Schedule has not yet been reached, many rabid fans ino the six N.H.L. cities have already sold the once-proud and mighty Montreal Canadians down the river.

The consensus appears to be that the flying Frenchmen will not even make the playoffs this season, let alone finish at the top of the pack.

To Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara this comes as somewhat of a surprise, especially since Les Habitants are closer to the top than they were at the same time last year. Baz quotes Canadians coach Dick Irwin as saying that Canadians "wouldn't be worse than second" come March 21.

While not delving into the merits of the Buddy O'Connor deal, O'Meara is of the opinion that the recent swap with Boston that sent Jimmy Peters and Johnny Quilty to the Bruins in exchange for Joe Carveth and a few greenbacks—10,000 to be exact—will do Canadiens no harm.

His reasoning: "Peters wasn't producing. . . . Quilty never improved his skating, had the bad habit of slowing up . . . Carveth can pop goals, was Boston's leading goal-getter to date."

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Caroll sides with O'Meara when he says, "it's too early yet to do any crying." Caroll thinks Canucks will improve when Murph Chamberlain and Ken Mosdell return to the lineup.

—Favoritism?—

In the Quebec Senior Hockey League, the practice has been for some time to have the home team pick their own referee. Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley takes exception to his "Rule" and asks, "how long is the Q. S. H. L. going to carry on with the Bush League practice of home town referees?" Al was thinking mainly of a recent game in Shawinigan Falls in which the hometown official" awarded a goal after he had blown his whistle."

—Groaners—

Baz O'Meara comes up with some fancy language in speaking of Yvon Robert, the grunt and groan expert, who recently captured the mythical professional wrestling title. Says Baz: "Our Yvon the uncomparable has regained the World's Wrestling Championship of Montreal and environs against all nefarious, treacherous malefactors who would deprive him of the same for more than six months at a time."

RUNDSTEDT VISITS SON

Hamburg, Dec. 23 —(AP)— Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, who commanded German forces in the battle of the Bulge, arrived by plane yesterday from a prisoner-of-war camp in Britain. He is being permitted an eight-day Christmas leave to visit his son, Gerd von Rundstedt, 40, seriously ill at Hanover. The field marshal, 72, was accompanied by an officer escort.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

AN OPEN LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

It seems as though, Joe, the salvation of this old world, war-buffetted, sorely-tried in what some people call peace, still wobbly on its feet and headed for who knows where, is in your hands.

It seems that for eleven months and two weeks of this year, a certain nation has beenu anything but conducive to plans for ultimate world well-being.

The dove of peace, in the true sense of the word, is as welcome as a democratic editorial in Pravda, and has been fluttering from hither to yon looking for Home Sweet Home.

For it seems that nations have adopted the habit of giving one another the "bird" and it does not in any way resemble the Dove of Peace.

Twenty-nine years ago, the "War to End All Wars" came to a conclusion. Came an interim of twenty-one years, and a power-crazed German corporal thought he had displaced the Divine Being. He hurled the world into another blazing holocaust. Millions of men were killed or wounded. The world turned topsy-turvy for six years — and isn't much better now, in one sense of the word.

Now with World War II behind us for two years, there are dark rumors of another war. In spite of this, people insist that they do not believe war to be anything but an unsatisfactory way of settling international disputes.

As one writer put its, "It can only be that war is the outward and visible evidence of an inward and invisible poverty of spirit which must first be removed if war is to be abolished."

Nations of the world, two short years ago comrades-in-arms against the common enemy, are now eying one another with distruct. Already the flame of war is being kindled among the smaller nations. Cannon stand ready. Soldiers are being mobilized. Eyes are turned to the seats of the mighty nations, which thus far have failed to meet on the coming ground of universal peace.

"Peace on Earth; Goodwill Toward Man" has been a mockery during the past eleven months and two weeks. To use it even now, seems to be a trifle ironic.

But you, Santa Claus, have afforded us a brief respite from the turmoil of peace. For two or three brief weeks, the thoughts of mankind are centred on Christmas and what it means and represents. Tolerance, the spirit of give-and-take, so sorely needed during the remainder of the year is now abroad.

"Christmas is here" and as its spirit slowly but surely imbues us, old animosities and disagreements seem trivial.

It seems, Santa, that you should have a year-round, full-time job. The spirit of the season which you represent, which causes mankind to broaden his vision, to treat his fellow man as a fellow human, to forget greed and avarice, and to live in the atmosphere which the Greatest Man of all created, must be with us the year round if we are to achieve that universal peace for which so many men fought and died.

There are millions of people in war-starved Europe and in Canada and United States, who would gladly see you "take over."

Thew are sure that the magnificent spirit of Christmas would neutralize nations' greeds, jealousies, and intolerances.

See what you can do about it, Santa.

When Loues, a Greek peasant, won the first Olympic marathon, his reception was so great that women threw jewelry at his feet.—Encyclopdia Brittanica.

And then we suppose a toga-clad Roman "Brundage" ambled down from the seats of the sports gods, and with an imperious wave of his hand, said "Naughty, naughty, musn't touch, remember Barbara Ann Scott."

Screams for help coming from a house caused a passing pedestrian to rush tto the open door and offer his services. A distracted mother explained that her, little son had just swallowed a quarter. The stranger grabbed the child by the feet, lifted him into the air and shook him vigorously. In a moment the coin dropped out of the child's mouth. The relieved mother was profuse in her thanks.

"Doctor, how luck it was for us that you happened by just at this instant. You certainly knew how to get it out of him."

"But madam," replied the stranger, "I'm not a doctor, I am with the Income Tax Branch."

The Rosemount Aquarium and Exotic Fish Club at Montreal has brought out a walking fish — the climbing perch — and had him do his stunts for the benefit of sceptics. Two and a half inches long the little guy stayed out of water more than 10 minutes and went through his act of walking around a table and climbing up an incline and back into the fish bowl. This blue-eyed baby is a sissy though compared with his brothers and sisters out in India and the Philippines. There, when ponds dry up, they walk cross-country until they find another pond. Some are said to have traveller a half mile.

And what these piscatorial prodigies can do about 1.30 p.m. New Year's morning will amaze you — if you can still see them.

Ottawa's Barbara Ann Scott will be a featured guest on the weekly Sports College broadcast over C. B. C. and affiliated stations. Her talk was recorded just before the diminutive ice queen sailed for her try at the only major skating title she has yet to win.

• • •

The mental attitude toward practice and a steady temperament which avoids ups and downs are even more important than outstanding athletic ability in developing a champion, Barbara Ann will tell Sports College listeners.

While overseas she will defend her world title, won at Stockholm, Sweden, last February.

I was interested to receive a very beautiful Christmas card from E. V. S. who writes a note complaining about fees charged at the Arena. I am reliably informed by members of the Rink Commission that the fee set for juveniles to practice is $3 per hour, which is lower than other municipally-owned rinks in the province whose rates are $5 per hour. I am also informed there is no charge for use of pads because the arena does not own any equipment.

Brantford Redmen Score Second Win of Season

It's remarkable what a little powder and paint will do. Last night it was Brantford Redmen's turn for a face-lifting.

The last-place Redmen, who have been rejuvenating their club with fresh blood, came up with their second victory in 19 tries by handing the fourth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen a 3-2 reverse in an Ontario Hockey Association senior A fixture at Brantford.

At Hamilton the Stratford Indians climbed within one point of the second-place Hamilton Tigers with a 6-2 victory over the sixth place Hamilton Patricias, in the other senior tilt.

Barrie Flyers took over lone third spot in the junior loop by handing the seventh-place St. Catharines Teepees a 9-3 defeat for their 12th victory in 17 tries.

Brantford, reinforced by Lloyd Jones, formerly of Pembroke Lumber Kings on rearguard never lost the lead.

Injuries were suffered by both clubs. Brantford's newest player, George Cruickshanks of Toronto, was carried off with a dislocated shoulder. Kitchener's Holly Hollinger came off with a bad shoulder.

Boly Beauchamp led Brantford with two counters and Wally Zuke tallied the other. Johnny Blute and Doug Verity scored for the Dutchmen.

Stratford notched their 10th win in 18 starts against the Pats.

Jim Eady with two tallied led Stratford marksmen, other Indian counters came from Mike Dziura, Mickey Roth, Joe Fitzpatrick and Red Barber. Murray Comfort scored Hamilton's two goals.

Barrie Flyers had their own way all the way against the Teepees.

Paul Meger led Barrie marksmen with three goals. Gil St. Pierre and Rusty Aikin tallied two each, and Bill Barrett and Red Favero scored one each. St. Catharines' counters were by Maxwell, Bunchlen, and Hilderbrand.

Hamilton Patricias visit Stratford Indians in tonight's lone senior fixture scheduled. Oshawa Generals go to Galt in the only junior game slated.

Veteran Centre Of Maple Leafs Still on Top

Montreal, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Although a pair of assists was the best Syl Apps could collect in Toronto's last three games, the veteran playmaker retained top spot among National Hockey League point-getters with 29 points, two better than Detroit's Ted Lindsay.

Official statistics released today show Apps with 13 goals and 16 assists and Lindsay with 16 markers and 11 assists.

Lindsay made the biggest gain during the week when he ran up three goals and helped on two others. Rookie Jimmy McFadden of the Red Wings collected four points to move into a third-place tie with Elmer Lach of Montreal who failed to get a point during the period. Each has 26 points.

Next in line are Buddy O'Connor of New York with 25 points, Max Bentley of Toronto with 24 and Canadiens' Maurice Richard with 23.

Lindsay heads the goals column with 16 counters, while Apps with 16 assists leads the assists department.

Bill Barilko, Toronto's blond bruiser, is in a class by himself in the penalty parade with 87 minutes spent in the cooler.

Montreal's Bill Durnan tops the goalies in both shutouts and goals-against average, with four whitewashings and a 2.37 average. Turk Broda of Toronto has the second best goals-against average with 2.50.

Spud Chandler Most Effective Hurler in Loop

Chicago, Dec. 23 (AP) —Spud Chandler, 38-year-old New York Yankee veteran, was officially tabbed today as the American baseball league's most effective pitcher for the 1947 season, which was definitely a hitting rather than a hurling campaign.

Despite a seige of arm miseries which kept him inactive most of the term, Chandler topped the circuit in the earned run average department with 2.46. His work was based on 128 innings during which he won nine and lost five.

Chicago's Joe Haynes in a span of 182 frames posted a 2.42 for a 14-6 record but was not qualified officially since he failed to complete 10 or more full games, the yardstick used in compiling ratings.

Cleveland's Bob Feller was the only 20-game winner compared with five moundsmen who matched or bettered that mark in 1946. Feller was rocked for 11 losses for .645 percentage which placed him sixth. In that category, Frank Shea, New York rookie, led the percentages with .737 on 14 wins and five defeats.

Feller was second to Chandler in earned runs by limiting opposing teams to a 2.68 per game.

In addition to winning the most games, Feller topped the league in strikeouts with 196 and again twirled the most innings, 299.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP) — Anyone who imagines a hockey referee has a soft touch should take one look at King Clancy's face ... the veteran whistle tooter came to Madison Square Garden the other night already sporting a shiner acquired in Chicago ... he wound up with a fresh gash in the corner of his left eye, another on his cheek .. during a third period scramble he came in contact with Don Raleigh's stick ... Clancy finished out his chores and then retired to the dressing room for repairs.

The most valid objection to Bowl games that we've heard recently was offered by Jack Gray, Texas basketball coach ... "It isn't fair to coaches," says Jack. "It used to be that a coach could lose one or two games and still have a good season. Now he doesn't have a good season unless he gets into some kind of a bowl."

Two Columbus, Ga., bowling teams think they must have set some sort of a record the other night when they rolled three consecutive tie games in league competition ... but they're only boasting about the oddity of the situation not the scores, which were 499, 466 and 498.

Judge Lays Charge And Fires Self

Inverness, Fla., Dec. 23. (AP) — Seventy-eight-year-old Judge E. C. May has fined himself $50 for reckless driving—although a State trooper refused to make a charge against him.

The judge, who has held office 35 years, filed the charge against himself after losing control of his automobile on a sand-rutted road, and hitting a tree.

He reported the crash to Cpl. C. L. Blount. The latter decided the judge was blameless.

Not so, said the judge, and assessed his usual fine for reckless driving.

Ted Lindsay Gets Hard Jobs But No Glory

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit, Dec. 23—(CP)—It's an old old story. The hockey forward that can check like a fiend gets the warm thanks of his coach and the due respect of his opponents—But as for the sport page-glory—well, that's another thing.

Ted Lindsay, 22-year-old 163-pound leftwinger for Detroit Red Wings, is a good example of the type of player who is so good at backchecking that he draws the stiffest shadowing jobs and is thus handicapped in the personal scoring department.

During his first three years with the wings, Lindsay was given the tough task of tailing such highscoring threats as Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Manager Jack Adams didn't care so much if Lindsay scored many goals, just so long as the players he was checking didn't get any.

Nevertheless, Lindsay proved how good he was by winding up with 17 goals the first season after jumping to the wings directly from Toronto St. Michael's juniors in 1944. He dropped to seven goals the second year and then came through with 27 last season which combined with 14 assists to give him 41 points, his best year to date.

This year things are different. Lindsay has been unshackled to a great extent and he leads the league in goals with 16 in 25 games. That's an average that might see him wind up with 40 goals.

Behind the rise to goal-getting prominence for the native of Renfrew, Ont., is the fact that Lindsay, who used to carry virtually all the penalty-killing burden, now shares the chore with rookie Jim Mcfadden, another backchecking whiz.

A realization of that 40-goal scoring mark would give Lindsay about as big a thrill as a small strike in his off-season goldmining ventures around his hometown, Kirkland Lake.

Lindsay enjoys games against Toronto Maple Leafs for then he gets a chance to throw a few body checks at defenceman Gus Mortson. In the summer time the two go prospecting together in Northern Ontario, But you'd never know they were close friends by their sudden meeting on the ice.

Toronto Marlies Leading Parade In Senior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's "Iron Dukes," Joe Primeau's senior Marlboros, still rule the Ontario Hockey Association's seven-team senior "A" circuit after eight schedueld weeks with 15 victories in 19 starts, plus one tie for a total of 31 points.

The junior loop has six strong clubs in its 10-team lineup with Windsor Spitfires in top place with 16 wins in 19 games for 32 points, just four more than the second-place Oshawa Generals.

In Northern Ontario, Hollinger Greenshirts lead the Porcupine Senior League with six victories and one tie for 13 points. South Porcupine Porkies are in second place, three points behind. Sudbury Sacred Heart College holds top-place in the nickel belt loop.

Hamilton Tigers, last season's senior O. H. A. champions are in second place at present, eight points behind Marlboros. Stratford Indians hold down third spot, one point behind Tigers and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen have 18 points for fourth place.

Owen Sound Mercurys are in fifth spot, with 16 points, Hamilton Patricias are in sixth with 11 points while Brantford Redmen with two wins and a tie for five points are in the league cellar.

Barrie in Third Spot

Barrie Flyers with 24 points retain third spot in the junior A race followed by Stratford Kroehlers with 22. Galt Rockets are still hanging onto fifth place with 21 points, one point ahead of Toronto junior Marlboros.

St. Catharines Teepees, Boston Bruins' protege, have garnered 18 points for seventh place and trailing them last season's Memorial Cup champions, Toronto St. Michael's Majors with 12 points. Guelph Biltmores are in ninth place with nine points, three more than the last place Toronto Young Rangers.

South Porcupine Porkies in second position in the P.M.S.H.L. have a 10-point lead over McIntyre Macmen and the junior entry Combines remain winless in the cellar.

In the Nickel Belt loop, Sudbury Wolves are in second place with two wins in four starts. Falconbridge Combines are third and Copper Cliff Redmen remain winless.

Pacific Coast Hockey League Looks to Future

By JIM McCURDY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Dec. 23—(CP)—Half-way through its third year of existence the Pacific Coast Hockey League, one of the largest Senior Amateur Loops in the world, today is looking to the future for bigger and better things.

Owners of five of the 10-team set-up have brought in Ex-National Hockey League players to give big-time experience to their respective squads.

League backers proudly point to the American Ametuier Hockey Association record of the longest no-shut-out streak—169 games —held by Vancouver Canucks. New Westminster Royals tore the skein last Saturday, a week after Canucks had broken the 5 1/2- year-term- old record of Baltimore Orioles of the Eastern Ameteur League.

In the Southern Division San Francisco Shamrocks hold a one-point edge over Fresno Falcons, who in turn hold a similiar lead over the champions Los Angeles Monarchs. San Diego and Oakland bring up the rear but the last-place Oaks are only 10 points out of top spot.

However, in the Northern Division 31 points separate top-spot Seattle Ironmen and the cellar -dwelling Portland Eagles, last part of the gap, 16 points, is between Ironmen and second-place Tacoma Rockets, who last season were mired deeply in the cellar.

The Western International League, thriving little Four-Team Loop operating in the Kootenays of British Columbia and including Spokane, Wash., has the famous Kimberley Dynamiters leading the parade. The Spartans from Spokane hold down second spot, Trail Smoke Eaters are in third slot while Nelson's Maple Leafs hold down the cellar position.

The spectacular Whooping Crane was once common in Canada and the United States, but in the last thirty-five years it has become the rarest of North American birds. After scientific investigations, conducted from Texas to Saskatchewan, it has been estimated that there are less than thirty "Whoopers" in the world! Existing legal protection strengthened by public sentiment is essential to the survival of the species. To increase Canadians' appreciation of the need for conservation, The Carling Conservation Club issues free, authoritative literature on the many aspects of conservation to all its members, as well as colourful reprints of wildlife pictures.

In 1852, the last Great Auk was killed, as had been thousands upon thousands in the preceding years. This aquatic bird provides another example of the inevitable results of wholesale slaughter of wildlife.

His opening bid was two no-trump. This is a bid that promises a hand with eight high cards; or seven with four sure tricks. Such an opening does not force partner to bid.

It says: "Partner, you may pass unless you have one high card or more. But even if your high card is only a queen, for the love of Pete bid something. We will then try for a game."

So, north bid something. With no biddable suit to show he bid three no-trump. South passed. He had what he asked for. Now it was only a matter of finding out if he was sorry he got it.

The opening lead from west was the club five; fourth best of his longest suit. When east climbed up on this trick with the ace, south was wise enough to take stock before playing from his own hand.

For his nine needed tricks he can see three top spades, two top hearts, one top diamond, and one club as starters. He needs two more tricks. Where to expect them? In diamonds.

With two successful diamond finesses his nine tricks are in. The problem was to reach dummy twice. And as clubs now promised no more than one trick, south threw his king on the first round.

This assured him an entry to dummy with a club. The spade queen was a second entry. These would permit two leads of sparklers from there. It was better than hanging onto the king for

What if south had not thrown the club king on the east ace? Entry to dummy with a club would be blocked. The west club queen would have stopped one; the south club king, the other.

To act before you think may put you on the blink.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 23—(AP)—The tough film crew stood behind the heavy wire fence and watched in quiet admiration as the lady performed her job.

Behind a wire cage within the large fence, uneasy cameramen filmed the tiger stalking through the underbrush. The lady shouted directions to the tiger and when the scene was finished, she whacked it on the behind with a whip and led it back to its cage.

The star of this scene will never appear in the picture. She is Mabel Stark. A yellow-haired oldtimer who has been ordering tigers around since 1912. Along with the veteran film animal trainer, Melvin Koontz, she is directing the tigers for "Man-Eater of Kumaon." That is no small task, the cats being bad actors in many respects.

"Tigers do not act as well as lion's," she explained. "That's why they interest me more. I don't care for lions.

A lion becomes more docile the longer he is trained. Not so the tigers. They grow more unpredictable with age. They have to be retired from performing around the age of 12. I wouldn't trust them after that."

Her opinion stems from experience. She estimates that not more than two inches on any part of her body has been unscathed by tiger claws. They have broken many of her bones and have removed large chunks from her hips and shoulders.

I asked the circus veteran if if any of the "Kumaon" actors would be exposed to her tigers.

"No she answered. "These animals are too young to take chances with them. If they attacked an actor, they would have to be destroyed before they would give up.

"And tigers are too hard to get these days."

Managers of first-run theatres in Los Angeles are mumbling to themselves these days because they are entering their most competitive week of business. Academy-Wise Producers have been holding their beloved pictures for release at the last possible time for Oscar competition. For the

CHAPTER 6.

"What am I going to do with you?" he almost groaned as, still holding her, he sat down in a big garden chair.

"I know what you said you'd do, but I suppose you didn't mean it."

"Don't harp on that! I can't get a divorce from Jean in a minute! Those things take time. And I don't see how I'm to get it anyway. She's too clever."

"Yes, she is clever! She completely spoiled my fun of sitting at the head of the table— I don't want to do it again. But I'm glad I came; I've made good friends of Austin and Peter and I never would have known them."

She smiled up at him as she lay in his arms, and her little finger tips caressed his cheek.

"My little love, my life, I can't stand it! We must go away together."

"No, we must stay here together. We can drive her out. I haven't begun yet to take a hand in the game."

"Don't talk like that! There must be no scandal. But you and I will go away by ourselves forever."

"Would you like that? I would not! I want you, but I want all this setting, too. We can get rid of Jean and live here forever and forever. But not if you're so half-hearted before people. They know you love me, or I wouldn't be here. Show your love a little more plainly in the house."

"Never mind in the house. I'll show you now how I love you, out here!"

"Oh here you are!" called a gay voice, and Suzy with Peter Haskell appeared at the end of the pergola.

"Yes, we're just going back to the house," Vivian told them.

"Well" said Suzy, thoughtfully, "I think you'd better. And don't go together. Viv, you come along with me, and let Esme follow with Peter."

The two in the armchair had risen, and so determined was Suzy's tone and so definite her grip on Vivian's arm, that he went with her.

"You're a naughty girl," Haskell said, looking at the mischievous beauty as she stood in a rose-wreathed opening in the pergola and the moonlight gave him full view of her laughing face.

"Don't scold!" she whispered; "everybody scolds me."

"And those who don't, want to," he returned, fully meaning to give her a jolt.

"Yes, I s'pose so. But why should they? I don't scold them. Oh, don't be cross to me, dear Peter."

"Give me one kiss, and I won't" said Peter, involuntarily.

"A dozen if you like. I think you are very nice."

Peter took his dozen and had just sense enough left to know they must go back to the house.

They did, and entered the gym, like two disinterested parties, each looking for some one else,

Esmeralda was in her element. Several attractive men to flirt with, thereby making one particular man furious, gave her real delight.

But just then no one noticed her much, for there was serious practice going on and the tournament was an important interest.

As a proper hostess, Jean couldn't see a guest neglected, She put down her foil and went over to Esmeralda.

"Talk to me," the hostess said; "they're all busy with their fencing arguments:."

Jean and Esmeralda sat down together and the pretty movie actress said, "Do you mind having me here?"

"No not a bit in the world" her hostess replied. "You won't be here very long; Mr. Forrest is already wishing he hadn't asked you."

"Oh I don't think that. Not until he tells me so himself."

"How pretty you are," Jean said, inattentively. "You're just like the dormouse."

"Dormouse?"

Yes in Christopher Robin, you 'dellphiniums, (blue) and geraniums, (red)!."

"What are definerums?"

"Larkspur. Now, will you carry on as hostess for tonight?"

"I will," said Esme, with almost a snap of her little white teeth.

"Are you wise?" asked Sayre, as he followed Jean from her room. "Jean do you remember—"

"Brandon, never say anything to me beginning with 'Do you remember'?"

"Bless your heart, dear, run along and see little Florimel."

The next morning Sayre was awakened by a sunbeam that fell across his face and caused him to open his eyes,

He had braved all sorts and conditions of weather in many and distant lands, and he told himself that the best place in the world was a country estate on Long Island, in July.

For a few moments he lay half dreaming and then becoming fully awake, he jumped out of bed, flung on a dressing gown and sat at a wide window looking out at a beautiful formal gardens surrounding an artificial lake.

After his long experience with natural jungles and rough, hard roads, he welcomed the sight of carefully kept scenery.

But his thoughts soon left the landscape and turned to the conditions he had discovered in the home he was visiting.

He had been incredulous at first, but the more he saw of Jean Forrest and her husband, the more he realized the fearful problems she had to face.

Sayre did not judge from surface effects; he studied deeply the surprising conditions until he realized the truth.

It was not only that Vivian's love for his wife had undergone a change; a deeper trouble lay in the fact that he still loved her.

Sayre knew Forrest well, and he knew that while he was capable of positive cruelty to Jean, he was passionately fond of her at times. He knew of Vivian's women friends. He knew Esmeralda was only one of many, but he was amazed to find the girl in the Forrest home! How dared Forrest do such a brutal thing? And then he knew that Forrest dared to anything, for Jean's gentle nature supplied no weapons of wrath or revenge, and she was not able to fight fire with fire . The righteous indignation she felt was the kind that would suffer in silence, that would never manifest itself.

Sayre knew that the little one was unloved by the father. but he knew to that Florimel was the very life and soul of Jean Forrest, And he believed that she would willingly leave her husband. were it not for the child,

And yet. since he had been at the house. he had seen the pair in happy and gay conversation. and had realized how much they were to each other in some ways. And then it came to him strongly that the matter was none of his business, He felt sure no right even to be thinking about it. He had long loved Jean, he felt sure that she had been on the point of accepting his pleas when Forrest came along and completely turned her head, Well. anyway, he won her and Sayre was man enough to understand that he was barred from even thinking of her in any personal way.

He didn't know what to do, if indeed there was any question of his doing anything.

He thought over all he had seen since his arrival. He was aghast as he realized Forrest's half-hidden insults to his wife.

And he suddenly saw or thought, he did, the reason why he had been asked to Forrest Free. It was a bit of refined cruelty on Vivian's part to get him and Jean together and watch results.

Well, the brute had received little satisfaction so far, but Sayre suddenly determined he should have some! Then he put the thought away. He mustn't involve Jean. He must be careful never to talk to her when Vivian was around. For Jean had an easily read countenance when she was deeply moved, and he felt, he couldn't help feeling, that her heart, broken by continued sorrows, was turning to him for rest and peace.

Ought he to go away? No! Should a man who had faced jungle beasts without tremor run away from a bunch of human beings? Or even from the one human being who would have a right to challenge him?

He had only scorn in his soul for Vivian Forrest, but he must remember that Vivian was Jean's husband.

Then, must he feel he could do nothing—nothing at all to help the woman he loved?

Should he speak to Austin? No, he had no right to denounce Vivian to his brother.

Esmeralda? Absurd! She could do nothing, and after all, she was only one of a dozen. Vivian's affairs were no secret.

Jean? No, he must not add to her cares, and he could see no way to lessen them.

To Vivian himself?

That was the only right and reasonable thing to do. The idea dared not let things go on without an effort on his part.

The man sighed deeply as he rose and began to dress.

But his decision remained unchanged, and he went downstairs, waiting only to find out the best time to have a talk with his host.

He found, however, that Vivian had gone to New York and would not be back until afternoon.

"Come with me," Jean said, "to see the california poppies. They are wonderful this year."

The two walked away. There was a short silence.

The she said, "Don't pity me, Brandon. I can't stand that."

"You dear proud thing! My heart holds for you—only love."

"That won't do either!" She smiled at him. "There is nothing to be done. There is no way out."

"You wouldn't leave him?"

"I can't. He has feared I might, and he has told me if anything like that happened, he would keep the baby, and he would give me no money. I would brave the latter threat, for I might earn my living, but I cannot give up my child. I will suffer any indignities, put up with anything, rather than that."

"You don't love him, Jean?"

"No I never did. He dazzed me with promises. He painted my life with him a perfect pardise; he vowed unceasing fidelity and a lifelong worship. But he is fickle by nature. He can't help it I am not condoning; I am explaining. Even now, he has times of absolute adoration for me. Oh, I know. I cannot be deceived. At such times, I can make him promise anything I ask. And then he falls for a new siren, and forgets all else for her."

"A charmer like Esmeralda."

"Yes she is the type he worships. Not too highly educated or refined, but of great beauty and glamor. Why, Brandon, just think, when he told me about Esme, he, said she was a women of distinction and great culture."

"You are managing her beautifully."

Mines Minister Predicts Greater Interest in Base Metals, Industrial Minerals in 1948

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Except in the gold belt, 1947 was a "very eventful" year in Ontario mining fields. Mines Minister Frost said last night in a year-end statement. He predicted still greater interest in base metals and industrial minerals in days ahead.

Production at the mines, smelters and refineries of the nickel-copper industry increased over 1946. More iron ore was shipped than during any previous year. Non-metallic minerals, structural materials and clay products enjoyed a near-record year.

"But there was very little deliberation in the gold mining industry. There, labor shortages combined with increased costs of production, and the pegged price of gold has played havoc with well-laid plans for post-war expansion.

"Daily average statistics prove that output of bullion from the gold mines is steadily declining. The Dominion government's plan to help the industry is not expected to result in any very great increase in production so far as Ontario is concerned."

Since the Canadian dollar, discounted at 10 per cent during the war, returned to par with the United States dollar in July, 1946, prospecting had fallen off. Lack of attraction for risk capital reduced development work in northern and northwestern Ontario. Dozens of properties had closed down temporarily.

Less Interest Manifest

"Less interest is being manifested in gold mining today than during the war years. The outlook for 1948 is not regarded with any degree of optimism by the gold mining fraternity. The prospector is discouraged."

But with diminishing gold output, there were indications the search for minerals other than gold might be resumed. Current demand for all types of base metals and industrial minerals would spur the search for new sources of those materials and development of new deposits.

Within the last few months, the government had received inquiries from firms in both Canada and the United States concerning sources of iron ore. The United States was running low in high-grade ore and scrap metal. Canada too was looking for local sources. The Canadian demand was greater than the available supply.

May Make Special Study

"Owing to the persisting interest manifested in our iron ore reserves, the Department of Mines is considering the appointment of a full-time technician specializing in iron ore and particularly the geology of iron formations., A special study of the iron deposits of southeastern Ontario will be carried out in an effort to find the best means of exploiting the several comparitively small deposits known to exist in that section of the province. . . .

"The next few years should witness a very decided increase in the output of domestic iron ore. Steep Rock and the deposits controlled by Algoma Ore Properties, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Algoma Steel, are the principal hopes for the immediate future.

With a renewed interest in Cobalt concentrates, there was a possibility of a revival of the old silver camp of Cobalt.

Much Ore Remains

"It is an undoubted fact that much ore remains in the mines of Cobalt and intensive prospecting and development work would result in the discovery of other rich ore bodies there."

Industries' minerals presented a broad field for exploration and development. One such project was at Haley's Station in Eastern Ontario where "impressive quantities" of calcium and magnesium metals were being produced from dtlomic limestone. Nepheline-syenite was being exploited at the eastern end of Stoney Lake north of Peterborough. Mining of large tonnages of quartzite recently was started on Manitoulin Island.

"The future of Ontario as a reservoir of raw mineral products appears brighter today than it did at the beginning of the century. The gradual exhaustion of sources of such materials in the United States lends one to place extraordinary faith in the unlimited possibilities of Ontario in the years ahead."

Centenary Pupils Present Splendid Christmas Program

Centenary — Centenary School room made festive with Christmas decorations, a gift laden tree shining with gaily colored trimmings, and the bright and happy faces of the children, was the setting for an evening's entertainment long to be remembered by young and old.

Great credit is due Mrs. Harry Bates, of Belleville, who trained the children for their parts, which they filled very acceptably. The following is a list of the numbers presented:—

No Opposition Ticket In Russian Election

Moscow, Dec. 23 (AP)—Russian voters chose representatives yesterday for local government bodies in five of the Soviet's 16 Republics, where candidates included Prime Minister Stalin, upon whose 68th birthday the election occurred.

Many voters went to Stalin's Moscow district to cast ballots for the Russian leader. In accord with the practice of the last few years he issued no statement and there was no public birthday celebration, although Moscow newspapers carried his picture on page one without comment.

(The Moscow radio heard in London said that in five hours 100 per cent of the elevators in Stalin's district had voted for him.)

Stalin returned recently from his third vacation in southern Russia since the war's end and persons who have seen him say he appears in good health.

(There was no opposition ticket. Nominees were put up by the "Bloc Communists or Non-Party Citizens" whose candidates were approved by the Communists. A voter can indicate opposition only by scratching a candidate's name off the ballot).

Balloting took place in the Russian Federated Socialist, Ukrainian, Moldavian, Armenian and Karelian-Finnish Republics. The other 11 Republics will vote in January and February to complete filling 1,600,000 seats in local government bodies.

Major Puzzle Facing Ottawa Economic Planners

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP) — A major puzzle facing the Ottawa economic planners and the cabinet today is how Canada can fulfill her new British food contracts and also participate widely and effectively in the Marshall plan for European aid.

The new contracts may take practically all the estimated Canadian food surplus, as they did this year. Exports to Britain also might cut deeply into the surplus of base metals, timber, and other items.

Yet under the Marshall plan, Canada is being counted on by the United States to help supply several billion dollars worth of food and commodities.

There seems to be an unreality about this situation, for if there are no substantial Canadian surpluses over and above those for the British contracts, there can be no real participation by Canada in the Marshall plan.

Some sources here maintain that if Canada is to play ball in both leagues, the only realistic solution is for the British contracts to be enveloped in the structure of the Marshall plan.

This would mean, in effect, that U. S. Marshall dollars would be used to pay Canada for the wheat and food going to Britain under the contracts.

The chances of the U. S. Congress accepting anything as bold as this are paper thin at present.

This is precisely the reason behind the three-month limit on the Canadian-British financial arrangement for the new contracts, it was learned here.

The British did not want to commit themselves beyond March 31 on any financial deal with Canada, for by that time the United Kingdom expects the U.S. Congress decision on the Marshall plan will be taken and its relationship to the contracts may be determined.

The other alternative to meet contracts obligations and pitch in on the Marshall plan too, is for Canada to increase production in Canada or decrease domestic consumption.

NO COAT RACKS

London, Ont. — (CP)— London Public Library, one of the most modern buildings in Western Ontario, is a place where people seldom hang up their coats and hats. The reason: the only cloakroom, adjacent to a basement auditorium, is usually locked.

Unchanged Within a Changing World

ONCE again it's Christmastide, the old familiar Season. All through the house on Christmas Eve the well-remembered chores are done anew.

Cheerfully bustling about, the family creates contented chaos, for Christmas Eve without confusion would lack in geniality and warmth. There's Mother struggling with the noble turkey; she vows that next time the roasting pan will be a bigger one . . . this bird will never fit. But Mother has been saying that for years.

Upon the beaming face of Dad there sits a look of comical perplexity; again he has forgotten—the lights go on before the ornaments.

Whirlwinds and hurricanes spin noisily from room to room . . . the kids won't go to bed. Well, let them whoop it up a little longer. What's Christmas for if children can't enjoy it.

Out of it all . . . the mistletoe and holly, the gaily coloured wrappings, the warmly beating hearts . . . there comes again to reassure mankind a day of Faith, and Hope, and Charity—Christmas unchanged within a changing world.

Woman Suffers Severe Burns On Face, Hands

Picton — Mrs. Viola Reynolds suffered severe burns about the face and hands when she attempted to extinguish a fire in her bedroom. She was admitted to hospital here and is resting comfortably.

A mattress on which Mrs. Reynolds was sleeping ignited when it came into contact with a stovepipe running through the room. In beating out the flames, the elderly woman suffered burns.

The fire department was called and kept the fire confined to one room which was considerably damaged. Smoke filled the house and also did damage.

Christmas Ball Held

The Christmas Ball given by the R.C.S.A. (A.A.) at their drill hall Friday night was a largely-attended event. The decorations were elaborate and beautiful. A buffet luncheon was served.

On Monday, the drill hall was the scene of a gay party for 142 children, members of the families of the army personnel stationed here.

Guests of Parents

Following six months overseas, Mr. and Mrs. William Pope and daughter, Suzanne, are guests of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Pope.

Formerly a flight lieutenant in the R.C.A.F., Mr. Pope flew to Norway in June to deliver an Anson V. This trip from Montreal took 25 hours, whereas the return trip, on the Swedish liner Drothingham, took ten days.

Food is quite plentiful but costly in Scandinavian countries, Mr. Pope said. He visited Norway, Iceland, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, Germany, France and England.

Mrs. Pope and daughter, who had been visiting her father in England, joined him in Oslo for two months before returning to Canada with him.

Christmas Story Told in Song, Sermon Sunday

Picton—Christmas services in the churches were largely attended on Sunday. Amid festive decoration of lights and evergreen, the Christmas Story was told in song and sermon.

At the United Church, Rev. A. E. McCutcheon spoke on "The Wise Men and the Star" and "Glad Tidings." Special music was given under the direction of A. A. Benvie, organist. A mixed quartet composed of Mrs. M. V. Dow, Miss Florence Barber, Glendon Minaker and Ern. Ward sang "Sleep Holy Babe." The junior and senior choirs joined in the anthem "Nazareth" by Gounod. Miss Florence Barber sang the solo "The Birthday of a King." The junior choir sang the carol "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly." The ladies of the choir sang "Star of the East." A quartet, of Shirley, Betty and Ralph Pickering and Earl Holt sang "Only a Little Village," and Misses D. Thurston, Doris Calnan, Earlene McCutcheon, Artie King and Marcia Minaker gave "See Amid Winter's Snow." The senior choir sang "Angels We Have Heard on High" and "Christmas Angelus."

The Presbyterian Church members heard Rev. P. B. Reid speak on "What is Christmas." The choir sang "The First Noel," Mrs. D. Sayers was soloist.

At the Baptist Church Rev. E. J. Cusack spoke on "The Christmas Star." The choir gave an anthem.

On Christmas Eve there will be Christmas services in the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches.

At Bloomfield United Church, a white gift service was held in the morning. Rev. M. Buttars preached.

At Northport United Church, the ladies of the W.M.S. conducted a candle-light ceremony. Soloists were George Baldwin and Mrs. Dufferin Folkard. Rev. I. E. Cavender delivered the message.

Rev. G. Dyson had charge of re-opening services at Bethel United Church and held carol services at Big Island and Demorestville.

At Cherry Valley Church, the S. S. held a white gift service, canned goods being received to be sent to Britain. Rev. E. V. C. Lewis spoke on "The Christmas Story."

The Apostolic Church at Wellington was opened on Sunday. Rev. W. R. Pair of Picton spoke at the morning service and Rev. R. A. Dawson of Lindsay in the evening. The pastor is L. E. Mason.

Major Blanche Ritchie conducted Christmas services at the Salvation Army Citadel. Junior members gave an anthem.

Fire Destroys South Bay Home

Picton.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex McKee at South Bay, was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday. Both had been at Cherry Valley during the day and no one had been in the house as far as it is known. The fire was discovered while confined to a woodshed and most of the contents were saved by volunteer fire-fighters. The fact that there was no wind enabled the men to save a large frame barn which was close by the house. Mr. and Mrs. McKee were married earlier this year.

THE ALBERT MEDAL

The Albert Medal, instituted by Queen Victoria in 1866 in commemoration of her late consort, is given for gallantry in saving life.

Church Schools Hold Entertaining Christmas Parties

Marmora—The Parish Hall of St. Paul's Church was the scene of a jolly party on Friday evening, when scholars of the Sunday School, their teachers and parents enjoyed a miscellaneous program consisting of carol singing, games, refreshments and finally the presentation of prizes to scholars with best attendance and gifts from the Christmas tree. Santa Claus kept the children amused as he helped the rector and teachers in passing out the gifts. The children received candies before dispersing to their homes.

St. Andrew's

The annual Christmas party of St. Andrew's United Sunday School was held in the church hall on Friday. Following a fine supper served by St. Andrew's Women's Association, the children put on a short program. Later with the arrival of Santa Claus, candies and oranges were distributed as well as gifts from the Christmas tree.

THIEVES EAT FOOD, THEN WASH DISHES

Seattle, Dec. 22 — Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Demont reported to police today that an intruder entered their house while they were away. He ate a large bowl of clam chowder, a dish of pudding, some bread and drank a quart of milk.

The burglar then washed and wiped the dishes, they said, neatly folded the tea towel and left a note which said:

"Thanks for the meal (sic)."

Two Christmas Programs Presented At Christ Church Parish Hall

Christ Church parish hall was twice packed to the door last week when the Sunday School held its annual Christmas entertainment. On Friday evening the Junior and Intermediate Departments presented a program, when Rev. Everett P. Smith acted as chairman, and the rector, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, welcomed the capacity audience.

Mr. R. A. Lennox was chairman of the program committee, assisted by Mr. L. Lennox, for the following numbers: Group of carols by Mr. Ronald Godden's class; Butterfly drill by Miss Mary Bongard's class; Recitation "The Snowman's Resolutions", by Roy Gatten; Playlet, "Merry Christmas", by Betty Hodgin's class, This was written by Mr. R. Godden; A quintet of girls from Miss Alice Matthew's class, singing "Silent Night"; Piano solo by Adriene Campbell; Recitation by Lois Batchelor; Play, "Christmas Eve", by Miss Matthew's class; "We, Three Kings," chorus by Mr. Evans' class; "The Astonishing Gift', a play by Miss Dorothy Stewart's class; Recitation, by Lois Blaind; Cornet solo, by Jack Evans, "Deck the Hall"; Recitation in character, "My Girl Maime", by Mary Bongard; "All the Days of Our Life", a six act play written by Rev. J. G. Sparling and was presented by the rector's Bible class, with JoAnne Atchison as narrator.

During the program telegrams were continuously being received from Santa, announcing his progress toward Belleville. After causing considerable excitement Santa finally arrived bringing the traditional gifts which were presented.

Messrs. George Bongard and Kenneth Moore handled the lighting effects very successfully.

Beginners' Department

On Saturday night the Beginners' Department was host to the parents of the children, when Rev. J. G. Sparling was the genial chairman and cordially welcomed the guests.

The program opened with musical numbers by all the tiny tots together singing "Ding, Dong, Ding", "This is God's House", "Dropping, Dropping, Dropping", "This is the Way the Snow Comes Down" and "Jesus Loves Me".

At this point the staff of the department was introduced, including Superintendent, Miss Barbara Carr, assisted by Mrs. L. A. Kells, Mrs. Bongard, Mrs. Adams, Miss Joan Stark, Miss Marjorie Ashton and Mrs. J. Grant Sparling.

Mrs. Cook, Supt. of the Little Helpers, was introduced and Mrs. D. Stewart of the Junior W. A.

An expression of appreciation was voiced to Mrs. Harry Lennox for arranging the crib and sand-table, which were much admired. Mr. Kaye Martin was thanked for his co-operation with the music.

Recitations were given by Garry Lafferty, Rodney Follwell, the Blaker Brothers, Larry Mills, Maureen Bongard, (in character), Jim Sword, David Summers, Peter Jackson, Garry Post, Roger Ling, and Freddy Smith. Songs were sung by: Phyllis Fritz, Rosemary Fritz, Roland Flindall, Marilyn Miller, Rollie Moore, Earl MacDonald, Sheila Hedger, Sherrill Beeby and Ronnie Tucker. An impromptu program followed, with more than a dozen little people contributing to the entertainment.

Prizes for the highest marks in project work were presented to Peter Jackson and Roger Ling, who were tied for first place in the boys' group, and to Maureen Bongard from the girls' group.

Choruses by the whole department, — "Away in a Manger", "Holy Night", and "Hands Together, Softly So" were followed by the benediction.

Santa Claus arrived and presented gifts to each girl and boy, and in honor of Christ's Birthday each received a small cake holding a lighted candle. Refreshments were served, with Mrs. "Ted" Follwell in charge of those for the adults. Mrs. L. A. Kells and Mrs. Bongard were responsible for those furnished to the children.

Thanks were extended to Mrs. L. A. Kells for assuming the responsibility of the invitations, to the Contact Club for the wrapping of the candy and to the Girls' Auxiliary for wrapping the gifts; to the Evening Branch of the W. A. for a gift of money and candy, to the Junior W. A. and to the Parish Guild.

Messrs. R. A. and Les Lennox, Oliver Owen and other men of the congregation assisted Mrs. Sparling, who was in charge of the general arrangements for the program.

Times of Scarcity Do Not Enrich Farmers States Kennedy

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—Farmers do not make big profits when food is scarce and prices high, Ontario Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Monday.

He told a conference of commodity group representatives, that, under those conditions, most farmers make less money.

"In an average year the farmer with 1,000 bushels to sell at $1 per bushel will make $1,000. In a poorer year he may have only 500 bushels and even if he sells them at $1.50 he makes only $750 insted of $1,000."

Mr. Kennedy said sale of home products in home markets will require "a special study of how to get food of good quality to the consumers at a lower price."

"Last spring I had a head of lettuce bought in a store at 15 cents. That head of lettuce was tracked back to the farmer who grew it at Leamington and we found he received 15 cents a dozen for that shipment."

Less Time Lost Through Strikes

Ottawa, Dec. 23 —(CP)— In the first 11 months of this year, Canadian industry lost through strikes and lockouts little more than half the time lost in the same period last year, the Labor Department announced yesterday.

For this year, preliminary figures showed 211 strikes and lockouts involving 76,755 workers with a time loss of 2,403,000 man-days. In the comparative period last year, the respective figures were 223; 138,635 and 4,492,000.

Christmas Party At Kiwanis Centre

The Fourth Belleville Cub pack was entertained with a Christmas party at Kiwanis Centre, Dundas St., E., last Friday when St. Nicholas visited the Centre, to the delight of the 'cubs' and their parents who were guests for the occasion.

A fine entertainment was presented by the boys, which included choruses, recitations and a short play. Four of the older boys were initiated into the Fourth Belleville Scouts.

Gifts were presented by St Nicholas, and candy was dispensed, after which the National Anthem closed the meeting.

BOY GOES TO GET 'TREE'; IS KILLED BY CAR ON WAY

Frederick, Md., Dec. 22—(AP)—A search for a Christmas tree cost the life of three-year-old Jerry Leon Crouse. Police said three children wandered off to "get a Christmas tree" while their parents gathered holiday greens in the woods. Jerry was struck by an automobile when he toddled onto a highway.

Jimmy McFadden Leading Way For Rookie Award

Montreal, Dec. 23. (CP)—The National Hockey League released the list of eligible freshman players for the Calder Rookie Trophy today, and a glance at the scoring statistics shows all other ambition recruits will have to go some to beat out Detroit's Jimmy McFadden.

The Belfast-born forward has been right up among the scoring leaders since the season started to set the hottest pace of any rookie since big Nels Stewart captured the scoring title his first year in the N.H.L. with Montreal Maroons in 1925-26.

McFadden, who packed 180 pounds on his stubby five-foot, seven-inch frame, was picked up by Detroit General Manager Jack Adams when Montreal Canadiens figured the speedster didn't have the goods. Adams liked him mainly for his back-checking ability, but the amazing McFadden has racked up 13 goals and 13 assists in 25 games.

His main threat for rookie honors won last year by fleet Howie Meeker of Toronto, at this stage of the campaign appears to be Pete Babando of Boston Bruins who has scored 11 goals so far.

Rangers Have Two

New York Rangers also have two prominent contenders in Don Raleigh and Eddie Kullman, a pair of fast-stepping wingmen. Raleigh has 15 points in 16 games while Kullman has 11 in 15 contests.

With the Rookie Trophy, donated by the League in memory of the late Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L. from its inception in 1917 until his death in 1943, goes a $1,000 bonus given to the winner by the league. Balloting by hockey writers and sportcasters will be held next March.

Here is the eligible list this year:

Montreal — Howie Riopelle, Doug Harvey, Jacques Locas, Floyd Curry and Tod Campeau.

Detroit— Jim McFadden, Red Kelly, Max McNab, Marty Pavelich, Don Morrison and Rod Morrison.

Boston—Pete Babando, Wally Wilson, Ed Sandford, Ed Sandford, Ed. Harrison and Paul Ronty.

Chicago—Metro Prystal, Dick Butler, Art Michaluk, Hank Blade and Emile Francis.

New York — Eddie Kullman, Don Raleigh, Ed Slowinski and Fred Shero.

Toronto—Bill Barilko, Cy Thomas and Fleming Mackell.

Wife Shoots Self While Husband On Another Date

St. Louis, Dec. 23 —(AP)—Mrs. Robert Slickman, 25-year-old mother of two children, wrote a note to her husband which ended, "incidentally, I love you," then fatally shot herself while her husband was on a date with another woman, police said.

Slickman, 23, told police he returned home early yesterday to find the body of his wife in a bedroom.

"I did so much want to help you as your wife but I have failed so miserably if a pretty face and figure and a hard luck story can destroy all I've tried to build," police quoted from the note.

Police said Slickman told of going to a movie with a young woman he had known about three weeks. Slickman planned to break off the acquaintance Sunday night police quoted him as saying.

Christmas 1947

"Merry Christmas." These simple words are once again echoing and re-echoing across this land of ours . . . bringing hands and hearts together at the gladdest time of the year. The joy that belongs to Christmas is for everyone. It is a time when we develop a deeper regard for the things of true worth: the unselfishness of a neighbour . . . the offer of help from a passerby . . . the spontaneous good deed. In presenting The Dow Award from time to time to deserving persons, we like to feel that we are promoting a greater appreciation of such qualities . . . a new pride in our citizenship and in the achievements of our fellow Canadians.

FIRE RAGES IN CORNWALL SHOPPING CENTRE

Large U.S. Plane In Distress East Of Labrador Base

Pilot Reports One Engine In Fort 'Running Wild'

Halifax, Dec. 24 —(CP)— Canadian and United States air search forces were in action today on distress signals from a United States Army Air Force Flying Fortress making a forced landing somewhere northeast of the Goose Bay, Labrador base, and from an American Seaboard and Western Commercial plane, reporting one engine "running wold" over the Atlantic 400 miles from its Gander, Nfld., destination.

R.C.A.F. and United States forces at Goose Bay were sending off search planes to look for the big Fort which was two hours overdue at the base when it reported it was lost and making a forced landing.

The pilot said he thought he was somewhere "northeast of Goose" and he said he was making a forced landing on a lake. There were no other details except a weather report that a blinding snowstorm or blizzard may strike that area in the next few hours.

The first reports from the distressed commercial airliner were equally skimpy. The plane, of unidentified type, reported only that it was 400 miles from Gander on a flight from Shannon, Eire.

The commander said one engine was "running wild"—an aviation term meaning, it was feathering and useless. He did not say whether he was carrying passengers or cargo.

The United States army base at Stephenville, Nfld., has dispatched a Flying Fortress equipped with an aerial life raft.

HUNCH SAVES FOUR YOUNG HUNTERS IN BACKWOODS

Trapper, Guide Find Trail to Lone Cabin

Liverpool, N.S., Dec. 24 (CP) — A veteran Queens County trapper and an Indian guide who played a hunch were credited today with finding four young hunters missing in the Tobeatic backwoods for five days.

The four—"tired and hungry that's all"—were brought out of the woods where they had lived since Thursday on nothing but rabbit and two porcupines after 54-year-old trapper Gordon Smith and the licensed guide, Claude Labrador, 40, led a search party to a cabin where they had taken shelter.

Smith and Labrador, provisioned for a two-day trip, entered the wild" over the Atlantic 400 miles the hunters would wander in a certain direction.

Knowing that one of the four was wearing army boots and another moccasins the pair picked up the trail and discovered their quarry in an abandoned cabin 30 miles from this south shore town.

Battle Against Cold.

The biggest battle of the four, William Nickle, 29; Burtham Westhave, 19; James Woodsworth, 18, and Jimmie Rogers, 17, was not against hunger but against the biting cold.

They survived a rationing handful of matches, using them at night to light fires. With only a few sandwiches and small calibre rifles they entered the woods last Thursday to look at rabbit snares. They chased a rabbit and suddenly found themselves hopelessly lost.

"Every night about 4.30 p.m.," said young Rogers at his home here last night, "we made a fire and made camp for the night. We didn't get much sleep—when one dozed off someone woke him—we didn't want any frozen bodies."

The first food they had after their sandwiches ran out was Saturday when Woodsworth killed a rabbit. Sunday morning they killed two porcupines.

In the meantime ground search parties had started out to look for them while aircraft cruised overhead and the R.C.A.F search and rescue unit sent out its helicopter.

Although the four reported seeing the helicopter as they walked among the timber, the machine hovering over the treetops did not sight them.

It would, however, have led to their discovery because the pilot picked up their tracks yesterday morning and lowered two men who came upon the cabin a few hours after ground parties had reached the missing men.

CROWN PRINCE OF JAPAN UP AT DAWN ON BIRTHDAY

Tokyo, Dec. 24 (AP)—Crown Prince Akihito, husky schoolboy being trained for the throne of Japan, was up at dawn Tuesday ot start his 14th birthday anniversary with a stiff bit of calisthenics. The Tokyo press told Japan's 80,000,000 people that the prince is developing "magnificently, both physically and spiritually."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP).—Skies are generally clear over Southern Ontario this morning. There is some cloudiness over northern sections of the province and some light snow is falling in sections north and east of Georgian Bay. Higher temperatures are expected in northern sections of the province today and in all regions on Christmas day. No snow of consequence is expected in any region.

Three Gunmen Steal $500 Saved For Holiday

St. Catharines, Dec. 24 (CP)—Three gunmen early today forced their way into Dominic Spada's house in nearby Grantham township, stole $500 and escaped after firing one shot as Spada grabbed a chair and tried to battle the trio.

Two of the bandits held Spada and two guests at gunpoint as the third gunman searched the house. The $500 he found had been intended for a Christmas holiday trip.

Spada told police the trio has escaped in a waiting automobile.

MacKenzie Wishes To be Raised in a

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Analyst)

If you could have your dearest yuletide wish, what would it be?

I'll make one guess:

You'd wish that somewhere in the troubled places of our sorry world there might be raised a wondrous Christmas tree, so tall the silver star of Bethlehem upon its top would touch the sky, that all might see. It's great, green bough would bend beneath the tokens of good will, and round its base would gather a vast choir of all races who would carol songs of peace.

Fanciful, isn't it? Well, there's little harm in wishing. Perhaps if we wish hard enough, our vision may come true.

At this Christmas time I was happy to receive from my friend Tom Keene, editor of the Elkhart (Indiana) Daily Truth, a letter of good cheer and a prose-poem which he composed about a Christmas tree. Here is part of what he wrote about the tree:

I am your Christmas tree.

I have come far—from silent slopes where rabbits run.

Furry wayfarers of the night cuddled contently at my earth-[illegible]ound feet, and winter's snows draped with gay festoons my bending boughs.

From out of the colorful pagentry of the changing seasons I have come to grace the yuletide home with my green symmetry.

Silvery tinsel now drapes the boughs that once so proudly wore the sheeted whiteness of the winter, and the head that once was adorned by the mellow tracery of a bright moon's gleam now rests beneath the crown of a shimmering star.

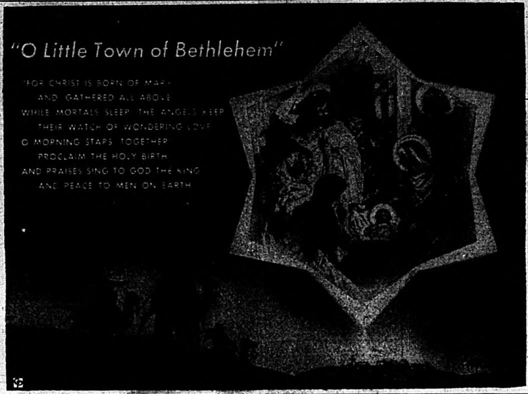
Though I fear a robe of baubles and glittering things, I bring to you the refreshing glory of the great outdoors, and I bid you pause to ponder on Him who is the Creator of us all.

For beneath my tinkling coat there feebly beats a friendly heart drained of its strength by the woundman's wound.

And, though I be dying, I am content, for I have brought you beauty.

It is Christmas time, and I have been given a place of honor in your family circle of happy hearts.

Who among you shall say that I am unworthy?



"O Little Town of Bethlehem"
"FOR CHRIST IS BORN OF MARY AND GATHERED ALL ABOVE
WHILE MORTALS SLEEP THE ANGELS KEEP

Taxi Owner, Held Prisoner, Hurls Self From Car

Hamilton, Dec. 24 (CP).—Held prisoner in his taxi cab for more than three hours and twice directed at gun point to push the machine out of muddy ruts, John Hughes, hurled himself himself from the machine on a Brantford street, early today, and landed at the feet of a policeman while two bandits sped off with the cab.

The car was recovered later in a ditch outside the city and two men are held by Brantford police.

Hughes was at his stand when three men hired his cab about 6.15 a.m. One of them, whom police believe got "cold feet", got out of the cab before the hold-up took place.

'Policy of Insincerity' Attacked by Pope Pius In Christmas Message

Vatican City, Dec. 24. (AP)—Pope Pius, in his annual Christmas message, declared today that a "policy of insincerity" among nations was blocking the path to peace and called for a "league of honest men" to safeguard the world against war.

The Pontiff specifically blamed "a growing tendency toward insincerity" for collapse of the recent Foreign Ministers conference in London, which he said had left the world "further than ever from the true peace".

He sharply condemned those [illegible] whoever has eyes to see and ears to hear must be arrested at sight of this dolorous and humiliating fact:

"Europe and the world today are further than ever from the true peace, from aa full and perfect healing of their ills, from establishment of a new order in harmony, equilibrium and justice."

The Pope spoke of the titanic struggle between two opposing spirits" now going on in the world and declared that hate united one faction while love welded the other into "a vast league" for good.

Voice Filled with Emotion

The pontiff's voice filled with emotion as he declared that the collapse of the conference of foreign ministers was a "tangible result of this mistrust" pervading the world.

He said sadly that the conference had adjourned "without having taken those essential and decisive steps along the road to peace for which the world in its anguish is waiting."

The winning of the peace requires sacrifices as great as the winning of the war, "since there is nothing more difficult for convulsed and embittered human nature than to forego reprisal and lay aside unforgiving rancor.

"The injustice and cruelty committed by those who unleashed the Second World War aroused waves of righteous indignation but served, alas, at the same time to develop the seeds of a natural inclination for revenge."

While the "saner portion of mankind" denounced Nazi excesses and atrocities, it failed to counteract "this degeneracy with its own moral superiority."

As evidence of this the pontiff cited specifically the "forced migrations and compulsory hard labor" which — without naming any guilty country — he said had followed the war.

The pope appealed to "all honest men" to unite for "the rehabilitation of the world."

Reporter Sought For Beating Wife

Toronto, Dec. 24, —While his 28-year-old wife lay critically injured in Toronto General Hospital yesterday, police took out a warrent charging Ivers Kelly with attempting murder.

According to police, Mrs. Kelly was beaten about the head when she visited her husband's Lonsdale Avenue home to see her three children, who have been in Mr. Kelly's care since last Summer. She was found unconscious in the house early Monday morning. Her husband, a reporter on The Globe and Mail, has disappeared after leaving a suicide note.

Fewer Pilgrims Brave Bitter Strife To Visit Place Where Christ Was Born

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Bethlehem, Dec. 24 — (AP) — Cold, rain-sodden winds swept the Judean hills today as Christmas Eve pilgrims, thinned to a handful by unceasing strife in the Holy Land, arrived in this birthplace of the Prince of Peace for traditional observances.

Many of them came from Jerusalem, down the road over which Joseph and Mary passed nearly 20 centuries ago today to seek and be refused shelter at an inn. Their goal was the Sacred Grotto of the Nativity, on the site of the stable where Joseph and Mary found a haven and where Christ was born.

Usually tens of thousands throng this hillside village, sacred to a third of mankind, for the Christmas Eve ceremonies, but today far fewer braved the hazards of communal strife to pray at the place where the manger was.

Constant Prayers in Grotto

In the Grotto, there will be constant prayers until the early hours of Christmas morning before the little marble altar which represents the straw-filled manger where the Baby Jesus lay. Services also will be held in other shrines in the Church of the Nativity and in the Franciscan Church of St. Catherine's next door.

Protestants of half a dozen denominations hold their Christmas Eve services tonight in the open courtyard of St. George's Cathedral of the Greek Orthodox Convent, led by Anglican Bishop Weston Stewart. Gen. Sir Alan Sunningham, British High Commissioner for Palestine, expects to attend.

The Roman Catholic services will include Protestants singing Christmas carols and District Commissioner J. H. H. Pollock will represent the government. The Consular Corps was expected to turn out in full dress for the Midnight Mass, to be conducted by Msgr. Gelat, 62, a Jaffa-born churchman, the first Arab in a hundred years to conduct Christmas services in Bethlehem.

Soldiers Line Pilgrims' Road

The pilgrims' road home tonight will be lined by helmeted soldiers with tommy-guns at the ready to prevent political murder from marring Christendom's holliest day.

Bethlehem's mayor, Issa Effendi Bandak, issued this message to the world:

"From the midst of the new troubles in the Holy Land the Christians of Bethlehem call for peace. Could we but focus our eyes on the true undistorted light that came out of Bethlehem 2,000 years ago, this world would be a more harmonious and less troubled one."

As usual, members of the various Protestant faiths will usher in Christmas Eve with community carol singing at the Church of the Nativity. Later both Roman Catholics and Protestants will make a pilgrimage to the field of the shepherds — a half mile from Bethlehem.

It was there, according to tradition that three frightened shepherds heard that first song of Christmas:

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord."

Tonight and tomorrow services rich with traditional color will be held in the shrines of the various faiths, where preparations for the occasion have been under way for days in disregard of the general situation thrughout the Holy Land.

12 Stores, Offices And Apartments Are Destroyed

Fire Departments From Other Centres Called

Cornwall, Dec. 24 — (CP) — Fire raged unchecked through the heart of Cornwall's downtown shopping district today before being brought under control shortly before noon. Mayor Lloyd D. Dallinger said damage amounts to about $1,000,000.

Twelve stores, several offices and some 24 apartments were gutted during the 11 hours firemen battled to control the leaping, searing flames.

Firemen from Massena, N. Y., 10 miles southwest of here, answered an emergency call and sped to Cornwall to help check the blaze.

Relief headquarters for the dozens of men, women and children forced to the cold, ice-spread street below their apartments were set up at city hall.

Meanwhile, normal business and transportation was strangled in this city of 15,000 persons about 70 miles west of Montreal on the St. Lawrence River.

Traffic Snarled

All along Pitt Street, the city's main thoroughfare, traffic was snarled. For blocks the only vehicles moving were fire trucks and police cars. Deliveries were disrupted.

The weary, hard-pressed regular fire department of 16 men, bolstered by the Massena brigade and volunteers continued to pour tons of water into the smouldering ruins.

One person—a policeman—was reported injured. He suffered a leg injury when struck by a tumbling store front, one of several walls which collapsed during the early morning.

At least two other persons, one a woman, escaped injury under similar circumstances.

Long-time Cornwall residents said the blaze was the worst in the history of this textile and mill community. The last disaster by fire was in 1933 when fire caused $250,000 damage to another — smaller — section of the business district.

Two Dozen Families Flee

The two-dozen families who fled from apartments above the razed block of stores were almost destitute. Most escaped with only scanty clothing and only a few were able to save personal belongings and furniture from the path of the speeding flames.

Mayor Gallinger appealed to householders to provide accommodation for homeless. He indicated that persons who could not be looked after in that way would be cared for by the city.

Officials were considering an appeal for clothing for the destitute families.

There was little wind but intense cold hampered the work of firemen.

Their efforts were commended by the mayor in a statement emphasizing the extent of the disaster and appealing for public assistance.

"This is a severe blow, not only to the individuals concerned but to the whole business life of Cornwall," he said. "Property loss and loss of stock will easily amount to $1,000,000.

Civic Emergency

"This constitutes a civic emergency and I appeal to all residents to render whatever possible assistance they can. The homeless persons will be registered at city hall, which will serve as headqquarters for relief work.

"All welfare agencies and individuals will be expected to do their share in meeting this emergency.

"In the event that such action is necessary, I pledge the assistance of city council in seeing that those persons left homeless will be looked after until they can be rehabilitated."

Cause Not Known

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately. But it was known it started in either the McIntyre and Campbell drygoods store or the adjoining Lowe Brothers paint shop.

Fed by paints and varnishes, the flames spread quickly and soon were beyond immediate control.

In the early-morning darkness the centre of the city was violently aglow as the flames licked upward and to north and south.

The tangle of fire-fighting equipment and the sudden-freezing water from hoses across the sidewalks and into Pitt Street added to the confused situation as the dozens of homeless persons were evacuated from the second-storey apartments.

By 9:30 a.m. the flames had gutted 10 stores, several offices and the apartment dwellings of at least 20 families.

The walls of some of the stores collapsed, spilling rubble into Pitt street, the city's main thoroughfare.

Constable Injured

Constable Percy Riviere suffered a minor knee injury when struck by debris from a falling wall. He had been racing through the second-storey apartments warning sleeping occupants of the blaze. As he made his way to the street, he was caught by the sudden collapse of a wall.

A Mrs. Gadbois, proprietor of a jewelery store, narrowly escaped injury as she sought with an unidentified tax driver to remove jewelry from her store as the flames edged dangerously close.

She and the cabbie were inside the store when the front wall tumbled, crashing over the taxi cab. But because it fell toward the street, Mrs. Gadbois and the man were not injured.

First reports were that the fire started in either the McIntyre and Campbell drygoods store or in the adjoining Lowe Brothers paint shop.

Flames suddenly shot from the rear of the two premises. Firemen were on the scene quickly and poured tons of water into the blaze but, fed by paints and varnishes in the Lowe store, it spread rapidly.

Glows With Flames

Within a matter of minutes the entire downtown business district glowed with flames and water from hydrants froze solid across Pitt Street.

The flames spread north to People's five and ten cent store and into the Loblaw Groceteria.

At the same time, the fire sped south into two dress shops—Viau's and the Mayfair — and a Singed Sewing Machine store.

Firemen expressed belief a "fire-retaining" wall between the Singer shop and Webber's book store would check the southward advance of the blaze.

But the wall did not hold. The flames spread unchecked into the book store and raced through the Orange block, of which Webber's is a part.

Two more dress shops in the Orange block — the Vanity and the Carsley — were heavily damaged.

Then the fire spread again, plunging into several second-storey offices, a fraternal lodge headquarters, and more apartments.

None of the dozens of persons who fled from the apartments were able to save many personal belongings, so swift was the fire's progress.

Situated among the gutted apartments above the first string of stores were a dentist's office, an Ontario Government motor vehicle licence bureau and a second-hand clothing market, all of which were seared by the flames.

Long-time residents said the fire was the worst in Cornwall's history.

MR. CARL MARSH WINNER OF DRAW

Mr. Carl Marsh, 314 Bleecker Avenue, will have a full course Christmas dinner for eight with no expense to himself as he was the winner of the draw sponsored by the Soroptimist Club of this city of which Mrs. Georgia Smith is the president. The draw was made at the Belle Theatre last evening and Mr. Bill Brown on behalf of the club conducted the draw with Mayor Frank Follwell drawing the winning ticket.

OLDER BOYS' PARLIAMENT TO MEET FRIDAY

The 27th Older Boys' Parliament will meet at Emmanuel College, Queen's Park on Boxing Day and continue until December 30, with the theme this year "Boys to Man the Church". Don Rose, 106 Catharine Street and a member of Holloway Street United Church has been elected by acclamation as a representative of all the churches in this city and will attend all the sessions. Don is particularly interested in all boys' work and he will be a fine representative from this city. It is hoped that he receives a high office in this worthwhile organization.

POST OFFICE HOURS OVER THE HOLIDAY

Whether or not the rush of Christmas mail is dealt with, street letter carriers, rural mail couriers and many others of the postal staff will enjoy Christmas at home, it has been announced by Postmaster J. C. Waddell at Belleville. Mr. Waddell stated there would be no letter carrier delivery in the city on Christmas and there will be no rural mail delivery. Stage line postal services will not operate.

Also the post office lobby will be closed all day.

However there will be one street letter box collection in the evening, while special delivery service will be given. Mails will be received and despatched in the usual manner.

CHRISTMAS TREE HELD BY LEGION

The Canadian Legion and the ladies auxillary of the same organization held their annual Christmas Tree party for the children of the members and it was a grand success. After the distribution of prizes and program a six-piece orchestra provided music till the early hours. During the program, the five children of Mr. William Smith, a pensioned veteran, sang a number of carols. There was a large crowd in attendance. Mrs. Matthews was the winner of a 25-pound turkey in the draw sponsored by the Legion.

PICTON MAN ARRESTED

Wanted in Picton on two charges of breaking and entry with theft, Marshall Hawley, 32, of Picton, was arrested on Front Street, by local police yesterday. Hawley had been making a nuisance of himself at a local chain store and when apprehended by police he was under the influence of liquor. Police stated the L.C.A. charge would be dropped and the man turned over to the Picton police to face charges there.

OWNER LEAVES ENGINE RUNNING, THIEF STEPS IN AND DRIVES AWAY

That it does not pay to leave a car unattended while parked on the street with the motor running was learned to his sorrow by a Picton taxi driver who visited the city yesterday.

Parking his car in front of a local cafe, Roscoe McConnell, Picton, was a bit taken aback when a moment later he came out to find his taxi missing. Several bystanders stood on the sidewalk and saw the vehicle move away but thought nothing of it until Mr. McConnell complained that his car had been stolen. One man stated he saw a man get in the car but naturally considered him to be the owner.

SHIP PICKETS WITHDRAWN

Vancouver, Dec. 24 — (CP) — Storm centre of a politico-labor battle for four days, the S. S. Colima, chartered to take a $1,200,000 cargo of arms to China, will be allowed to load without further interference. Pickets have been withdrawn from the drydock where the ship now is undergoing repairs at North Vancouver and she is expected to be ready for cargo shortly after Christmas.

VETERAN OF TWO WARS, RAILROADER RETIRES

St. Thomas, Dec. 24 —(CP)— Roy Palmerston, veteran of the South African War and the First World War, retired after 45 years of railroading as engineer, on the New York Central system crack flyer, the Empire State Express. He was met by a reception committee headed by W. B. Salter, divisional superintendent.

Public Warned To Drive Carefully Over Holiday

With city streest and many of the country roads in a slippery state as result of snow and ice conditions, the annual pre-Christmas warning for motorists to drive carefully goes double this year.

This was pointed out emphatically by both Police Chief Walter Probert of the city police department and by Inspector Page of the Ontario Provincial Police, who urged all motorists to drive with the utmost care during the holiday season.

"The annual Christmas warning if you drink don't drive and if you drive don't drink goes double this year," stated Police Chief Probert. "City streets are in an extremely slippery condition and if care is relaxed for even one instant, an accident may result which the motorist will regret all his life."

The same warning was given by Inspector Page who reported that many of the country roads were ice or snow covered, thus providing the right conditions for a completely unexpected accident. Stretches of highway are completely bare while in spots they are snow covered making driving treacherous.

"If we can prevent just one accident or save a life by motorists exercising every care or with drivers leaving intoxicants alone then the effort has been worth while," assured Inspector Page.

Tweed

Christmas Services St. John's United Ch.

Tweed — Large congregations were in attendance at both morning and evening services on Christmas Sunday, December 21.

The choirs under the direction of Mr. S. H. Connor with Mr. Fred Porter presiding at the console of the organ presented a fine program of Christmas music. At the morning service the senior choir sang "The First Christmas Morn" and "Behold, I Bring You Good Tidings" with solo by Mrs. C. Sharpe. The Junior Choir sang "Star of the East." The service in the evening took the form of a candlelight service, and drew a large congregation. The Junior and Senior choirs numbering about fifty carrying lighted candles, entered the church singing "O Come All Ye Faithful" as a processional. The music for the evening service consisted of two anthems "Christians Awake" with solos by Mrs. M. C. Dales and "Night of Nights", soloist Mrs. S. H. Connor. The third number by the senior choir was a two part number "Slumber Song of the Infant Child, Jesus" for soprano and alto voices. The junior choir sang "Away in a Manger" and "Mary's Lullaby", the latter assisted by the alto section of the senior choir.

Familiar Christmas carols were sung throughout the two services. The pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco spoke at both services on the significance of Christmas and the Christmas hymns.

OBITUARY

LATE ANDREW CARSON
(Crookston)

The funeral of Andrew Carson was held Sunday afternoon last from his late residence at Crookston to the United Church at White Lake where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. J. F. Everson. The Rev. L. Elliott and the Rev. Charles McFarlane were present at the service in the church and assisted the Rev. J. F. Everson in the service. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. F. Everson. The church choir sang "Beyond the Sunset," and a vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. L. Elliott and Mrs. H. Hamilton.

Interment took place at White Lake cemetery. The bearers were H. Radnor, S. V. Mitts, H. Keller, J. LaChapelle, William Dafoe and D. Johnston.

The flowers bearers were the following grandsons of the late Mr. Carson: Carl Wannamaker, Bud Wannamaker, Bernard Wannamaker and Douglas Wannamaker.

MRS. ELLEN LOOKER
(Formerly of Belleville)

(Contributed)

Mrs. Ellen Looker, wife of Mr. W. J. Looker, died in the Montreal General Hospital, Thursday, Dec. 18th, after a lengthy illness.

Born in Swendon, England, 65 years ago, Mrs. Looker came to Canada in 1913 to reside in Belleville for the next twenty years where she was an ardent worker at the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. Moving to Montreal in 1933, she continued her work in the Westmount Baptist Church there.

The funeral service was held on Monday, Dec. 22nd at the Collins Funeral Parlor, Montreal and was conducted by Dr. J. A. Johnston.

Mrs. Looker is survived by her husband, Walter J. Looker of Montreal, two sons, Arthur J. of Dawson College, Que. and Frederick J. of Montreal, two daughters, Edith of Montreal and Mrr. Audrey Booth of Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Revell of Beardley, and Mrs. Amy Powell of Liverpool, England, three grandchildren, Norma, Diane and Isobel.

LATE MRS. GRACE V. SILLS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Grace V. Sills, Sidney Township, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Tueday afternoon with service in the chapel being conducted by Rev. H. H. Hillis. Interment was made in Albury Cemetery.

The bearers were John Rapson, Jack Tweedy, Goldie Denyes, William Wheeler, Robert Gilbert and William Cameron.

LATE J. McMASTERS
(Smithfield)

The funeral of the late Jacob McMasters was conducted in Smithfield Church by Rev. Wm. Sunter on Monday afternoon. Mr. McMasters for many years had a small farm just outside of Smithfield and made a success of growing berries. He was interested in and a good supporter of Smithfield United Church. Of a kindly genial disposition he made numerous friends. Having attained the age of eighty-eight years many of these friends have gone on before him.

Of late years he has made his home with a niece, Mrs. Ezra Maybee and Mr. Maybee in Wellington.

Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery, Smithfield.

Christmas Concerts

ST. THOMAS' S. S.

St. Thomas' Parish House was thronged with parents and friends of the children of St. Thomas' Sunday school for their annual Christmas entertainment Monday evening.

Each number of the program was very much enjoyed and the gratifying results of weeks of effort on the part of students and teachers.

The wee tots who filled the platform for the Christmas carols were the highlight of the evening with their singing of "Away in the Manger", "Silent Night" and "Jesus Loves Me".

The rector, Mr. Smith, welcomed the parents and children, wishing everyone a most joyous season.

The program included:

Christmas carols; opening exercises (Mr. Young's class); recitations (Leslie Wiggins, Norman Rushlow, John Foster, Sandy Casey, Tommy Potter); reading (Dianne Hales); "Here We Go Round the Christmas Tree" (Miss Allen and Miss Howard's classes); reading (Brenda Rosevear); "The Christmas 'C's'" (Mrs. Green's class); recitation (Linda Keel, Jane Wallbridge, Jacqueline Watson); second minuet (Girls' Auxiliary); reading, "The Angel Story" (Barbara Keel); "The Meaning of Christmas" (Miss Ketcheson's class); "The Christmas Alphabet" (Mr. Hanson's class); Christmas play, "Christmas On Our Doorstep" (Mrs. Burr's class); "Christmas Cooks" (Mrs. Smith's class); precision drill (Girls' Auxiliary); Old Time Kitchen Orchestra (Mac Smith's class); "The Christmas Fairy" (Mrs. McNish and Miss Nugent's classes).

Santa Claus arrived with snowshoes and a huge pack on his back filled with bags of candy and oranges which he jovially distributed among the children and a happy evening drew to a close for another year.

IN MEMORIAM

VAN ALLLEN—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Helen Lydia, who passed into rest, Dec. 24th., 1946.

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year;
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.

Ever remembered by husband and family. D24

BABCOCK—In loving memory of a a dear husband and father William Babcock who passed away Dec. 26th., 1942.

Wherever we go, whatever we do,
There is always a loving thought dear William of you.
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why some things have to be
But in His wisdom, God has planned.
Beyond our power to see.
A day of remembrance sadly recalled,
Without farewell he left us all
To be with us in the same old way,
Would be our dearest wish today.

Sadly missed by his wife Frances and sons Arthur, Ernest and Russell.

SCOTT—In loving memory of Mrs. Irene Scott, who passed away three years ago, Dec. 26th., 1944.

With tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you pass away;
We tended you with loving care,
But could not make you stay.
We watched beside your bedside
As the lonely hours passed,
And how our hearts were broken,
When we saw you breathe your last.
Sweet is the spot where you are laid
Many a word in silence is paid,
And each time we try to say,
Not dead, but just away.

Sadly missed by son Freddie, mother, father and sisters. D24

Prompt Action Saves Building

Tweed .(Special.)—A fire broke out in the boiler room of The Tweed Steel Works last Saturday morning and 'only for the prompt arrival of the fire reels the building with all its heavy machinery might have been totally destroyed.

There were no workmen in the building at the time of the outbreak as the men have all day Saturday off and the heating plant is equipped with a coal stoker.

A number of the employees returned to the plant after the fire was extinguished and they soon had the heating plant in operation again, and production went on as usual on Monday morning.

Mr. W. S. Gordon estimated the loss to the building and some stock stored near the boiler room at $3,000, fully covered by insurance.

Bay of Quinte Pioneers in Area Radio Program

(By J. MILTON BELL, in United Church Observer)

On Christmas morning, six basic radio stations in Southern Ontario will send forth a new message of salvation from their transmitters, a message bearing the distinctive stamp of The United Church of Canada.

In August of this year the Radio Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference met at Pembroke, Ontario, in Calvin United Church. This Committee, consisting of Rev. Donald C. Amos of Belleville, Rev. Lawrence C. Brown of Pembroke and Rev. Bruce Gordon, Ph. D., of Peterborough, had previously made a survey of the radic needs of United Churchmen in the Bay of Quinte Conference. At the suggestion of Conferenec officials, they appointed a radio editor in the person of the writer. The duties of the Committee and of radio editor were to investigate further the use made of radio broadcasting facilities by United Church clergy within the confines of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and to formulate policies for more effective use of radio time by ministers generally.

The Committee found that despite the fact the Roman Catholic Church, and numerous Sectarian bodies sponsored regularly scheduled transcribed broadcasts on most radio stations in our area, the United Church did not do so. With this in mind, it was decided to do something about it. To cover initial costs of postage, mileage, and preliminary advertising, the Conference requested a grant from the Radio Commission of the General Council, and $200.00 was received.

Thus sponsored, the committee and the writer set about the construction of a transcribed, half-hour program to be broadcast over the six radio stations in this area once a month. We visualized this program as a vehicle for bringing to public attention the special projects of the United Church, both at home and abroad. The cast was to be selected from personnel at Queen's Theological College and various United Church Y.P.U. groups within the Conference. The programs were to be dramatized in a popular yet dignified form, which would be appealing to lay audiences.

The first program in the series will be presented on Christmas day, over radio stations in Kingston, Brockville, Pembroke, Belleville, Peterborough and Oshawa. This program, entitled "Christmas on Queen Street", will deal with the magnificent work of the Fred Victor Mission, in down-town Toronto.

The laymen of the Conference to date given both material spiritual support to our pro- United Churches in each of above areas are even now ving plans by which they may tinuously sponsor this new United Church series of radio programs.

County Home Folks to Enjoy Christmas Dinner

Elderly people at the County of Hastings Home will enjoy a typical Christmas dinner "with all the trimmings" on Christmas Day.

Upwards of ninety-eight old ladies and gentlemen will sit down to a noonday repast of roast chicken, dressing, vegetables, mince and other kinds of pie, and all the edibles that go to make the festive board a jolly one.

Then afterwards there will be a Christmas Tree loaded with gifts for the old folks and later they will be given packages of candies, nuts, oranges. Thanks to the efforts of Superintendent Elmer Sandercock and Matron Mrs. Sandercock the aged people will enjoy Christmas to the fullest extent.

They have enjoyed entertainment during the past few days thanks to Messrs Albert Jones and William Lockyer, who have shown them moving pictures on various topics. The Salvation Army band visited the Home last Sunday and held a Christmas service afterwards entertaining the old folks with sparkling holiday tunes and Christmas carols.

Swift Canadian Company Holds Christmas Party

Employees of the Swift Canadian Company at Belleville held their annual Christmas party at the Y.M.C.A. Monday evening when a full evening's entertainment was enjoyed while to climax the fun and providing a high point of interest for the kiddies, Santa put in an appearance to distribute gifts.

Singing and dancing acts, together, with a magician's show and other numbers all went to provide for an enjoyable evening of entertainment. Grace and Barbara Barker were heard in delightful duet numbers while Sheila Thrasher and Barbara Fisher did a stair dance. Gail and Gary Tremaine presented a nifty picture in their Jack and Jill dance number.

Len Fozard, Belleville's amateur magician with the professional touch was on hand to mystify the grown-ups and to delight the kiddies with his full repertoire of parlor magic, while other numbers on the program included a reading by Mrs. A. Alyea, and guitar numbers by Miss Kay Nash. Jimmy Corradi presided at the piano for the sing song while William Miller manager of the local Swift Canadian plant was at his best as master of ceremonies.

Jamie Clarke was in good form as Santa and distributed company gifts to the kiddies, following which all were served with refreshments by the Women's Auxiliary of the "Y".

The Christmas party was held in conjunction with the Swift Canadian suggestion plan annual with J. Barker receiving a presentation in recognition of ihs recent suggestion for increased plant efficiency.

Jail Inmates Get Special Fare On Christmas

There will be luscious roast pork, mashed potatoes, vegetables, hot mince pie, cheese, and other delectable "holiday eats" for the inmates of the Hastings County Jail on Christmas Day.

Not only will the boys enjoy a hearty Yuletide meal but also cigars and cigarettes, candies, oranges, apples, nuts, etc, as an aftermath.

During the afternoon they will be able to relax in their quarters and enjoy radio programs to their heart's content for thanks to the foresight and generosity of the Salvation Army, a modern radio has been installed in the cell block for the use of the inmates during Christmas.

The band of the Salvation Army visited the jail on Sunday last and after conducting an impressive Christmas service, entertained the inmates with Christmas Carols and hymns.

Thieves Nearly Captured When Phone is Upset

A telephone knocked off its cradle in the office of a Picton firm last night enabled the telephone operator to turn in an alarm that nearly resulted in the capture of the intruders.

Mrs. Mildred Kinney, night relief telephone operator, saw the light flash on her switchboard and when she plugged in to take the call she heard strange noises like drawers being opened and the rustle of papers.

She called the night constable who rushed to the office of the Fred Elgie Company. Meanwhile Mrs. Kinney at her switchboard heard the men say "Let's get out of here."

When the police arrived the thieves had departed, taking with them a metal cash box containing a small amount of money.

Festivities in Full Swing

From now until after New Year's the Christmas and festive spirit reigns. In olden ages in England the high fetes were carried on until Twelfth Night or Little Christmas which was a crowning of the joys and merriment associated with the anniversary of the birth of Christ. Now they are carried on not so long but still are observed with the participation of the entire population, the modern festival bringing most of the historic and ancient festivities into this age while modern ways, machinery, means of conveyance and outlook contribute to their extent.

The growth of the Christmas festival and the succeeding days of festivity to become the most important of all anniversaries in the year and the hold which it has on young and old is one of the developments in which man's instinct has run true. Whatever each person has put into the festivities he or she receives back manifold such is the expansive power of the season of good will and brotherhood and of the festivities marking the anniversary of the Birth of Christ. The greetings of "Merry Christmas" carry on through with the New Year.

Driving At This Time

Whatever perils there are on the highways at this season or in any other season are challenges to the driver and pedestrian to be ever on the alert by acting safely and sanely. The law expects that everyone will take into consideration whatever seasonal hazards there are now — snow, ice, low visibility and presence of many motorists on the roads and highways. The season of festivity brings the admonition of driving soberly which is of course a requisite at all times.

The wise and thoughtful driver leaves nothing to chance and depends wholly on safety measures and the exercise of a clear mind and a sound judgment.

At Work on Memoirs

One of the makers of British and world history, Winston Churchill, is now busy writing his memoirs in faraway Morocco. Mr. Churchill has been so closely linked with the course of recent history that his study of events cannot but be of greatest value to all peoples and particularly the people of Europe and his own Britain and the Empire.

the lessons the world can draw from his writings cannot but be of great advantage to the present and future.

The world will await the appearance of the memoirs of this great man and leader.

Arab Strength

The Palestinian Arabs have no regular army; at most, their guerrilla groups and youth organizations number 10,000. They have few trained officers, no skilled technical experts, few modern weapons. The effectiveness of their opposition to partition will depend ultimately upon the support which may be given them by the seven states of the Arab League. These are the states and their forces:

	Population	Army
Egypt	18,200,000	35,000
Iraq	4,250,000	5,000
Saudi Arabia	4,750,000	5,000
Syria	3,000,000	10,000
Lebanon	1,170,000	5,500
Yemen	1,700,000	No est.
Transjordan	335,000	25,000

The total manpower of these armies — a little more than 105,000 — is not a measure of their real strength. The British-led Transpordan Legion with about 16,000 men is the most modern Arab force; the rest of the armies are short on training, discipline, weapons and morale.

In the event of a showdown, the Jews could muster a counter-force of about 80,000 men, many of them tough, experienced guerrilla fighters. — New York Times.

Winning "Cold War"

Premier Schuman's victory over Communists in France has been followed by Premier De Gasperi with a similar victory in Italy.

That French and Italian Communists, inspired if not directed by the Kremlin, tried to take over the governments of their respective countries, thus smashing the Marshall Plan before it could get launched, is abundantly clear. That in both instances they have failed, with the failure revealing their weakness, is the best European news in a long time.

A distinguished Italian journalist, in Ottawa recently, told The Journal that as things were developing the possibility of Communism taking power in Italy was no more. He added, however, that without the Marshall Plan, without belief by the Italian people that America was standing behind them, Italy in despair would undoubtedly have turned to Moscow.

Well may it be, therefore, that what happened in Paris, Marseille and Rome, explains the latest violent ravings in Moscow. The "cold war," which Italian and French Comunists tried to make hot, is being lost, with defeat in the first real skirmish likely to be turned into a rout when the Marshall Plan gets in full swing. — Ottawa Journal.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the farm bloc?

In 1922 a number of members Congress from States or districts with dominantly agricultural interests formed themselves into an informal group to remove farm problems from partisan politics and to work for farm legislation irrespective of party lines.

Somebody dug up the French term "bloc" and applied it to this group of Senators and Representatives. At the time some people objected to the term on the ground that it was an undesirable lient in the English language, but "farm bloc" was a short, convenient name, handy for headline writers, and it stuck.

"Bloc" is merely the French version of English "block." Some authorities suppose the two terms are related in origin. Literally "bloc" means simply "lump" or "mass." It had long been used in English in the phrase "en bloc," signifying "in a lump," "as a whole" or "in one piece instead of in separate pieces."

In several European countries, particularly France, "bloc" had long been applied to a combination of two or more political parties working together tempo arily for a common objectiv France does not have a two-par system and the French senate house of deputies are split i bewildering number of small ties that reflect many differ shades of political opinion. important measure can be passe unless enough of these partie join to form a majority bloc. This accounts for the frequent fall an reorganization of French cabinets.

The farm-state representatives in Congress learned that if they stuck together they could get through legislation for agriculture that wouldn't have a chance otherwise, and as the farm bloc increased in numbers it became an important factor in general legislation as well as in legislation directly affecting agricultur The farm bloc is not a tangibl organization of particular members who have agreed to work and to vote for specific legislation. It is an elusive, ever-changing group of men "with a community of interests" and willing to do a little log-rolling to obtain their ends. The members are too

Soldier's Appeal Helped Others To 'See' Better

Phoenoxville, Pa., Dec. 24 — (AP)— The soldier who wrote Santa Claus asking for a pair of eyes last Christmas said today he believes he has helped others "to see" a little better.

"I think," said soft-spoken Cpl. Chester R. Perkins of Indianapolis, "that this Christmas people are remembering that it wasn't so long ago soldiers were being killed and maimed."

It was the 22-year-old corporal a one-time star athlete at an Indianapolis high school, who touched the heart of the United States a year ago when he wrote Santa Claus from the army's Valley Forge general hospital and asked eyesight for his Christmas present.

But it wasn't to be. "No," he said in an interview, "I'll never see again. I knew that when I wrote the letter. I wasn't asking for sympathy. I don't need and can't use sympathy."

Perkins said he received at least 5,000 letters — many of them offering him an eye. Most of the letters said "thanks for reminding me," he asserted.

Doctors at Valley Forge explained that all of the offers had to be turned down because the damage to his eyes was such that there was no chance of transplanting a cornea.

Council Approves Salary Increases

Kitchener, Dec. 24 —(CP)— Salary increases for the mayor and aldermen were approved by city council. The mayor's remuneration was raised by $1,000 — from $1,500 to $2,500 — while the aldermen were boosted from $240 a year to $500. In the case of the aldermen $10 will be deducted for each regular or special meeting missed.

Ald. Dr. S. F. Leavine, with partial support from Alderman John Cook and Mayor-elect Jas. Washburn, were in opposition to the [illegible] and worked nd night to pull you thru' eumonia. So I just gathered that debt—it was only a few hundreds—and had some papers made out to Mary. I'd kind of like to take them out to her on

KEEP YOUR MIND OFF YOUR COLON

Colitis means inflammation of the colon, doesn't it? It does. And "mucous colitis," which a lot of you believe you have, connotes that the excess of mucus that forms in the colon is the cause of the trouble. With that fool notion well fixed in your credulous mind you become a good customer for the colon filling stations, the charlatans who make you think they know more about food than "ordinary" doctors have yet dreamed of and the near-doctors or queer-doctors who are glad to accept your money on your own diagnosis.

Far be it from me to deny that you can produce enough mucus for ten normal persons if you interfere with and irritate the colon as much as you wish. That's what the excessive secretion of mucus means— nature's endeavor to protect the bowel from constant irritation by the unnatural things you or your quack do to the digestive tract.

Sir Herbert McCarrison, M.D., famous for his nutrition studies in India and England, said in his monograph Studies in Deficiency Disease (Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee): "One of the most constant results of food deficient in vitamin is colitis."

The same authority spoke of congestion of the gastro-intestinal mucosa (lining of stomach and bowel) in aniamls as one of the earliest pathological evidences of deficient and ill-balanced foods. Such a state of congestion, said McCarrison, may well give rise in children to the gastro-intestinal catarrah that characterizes "mucous disease." This disorder continued McCarrison, is very common among children who are fed largely on sterilized milk, artificial foods, white bread, polished rice, poor butter, overcooked vegetables and excessive quantities of sugar.

Of chronic intestinal stasis McCarrison said his studies the studies of other investigators led him to believe that deficient and ill-balanced food when consumed from an early age, has a fundamental influence in causing the lesions for synthetic infection which are known to result from it.

Considering that, as McCarrison puts it:

"Unfortunately, most cases of colitis of ill-defined origin in the human subject are of very long standing. I have myself no doubt that a proportion of them have resulted from the long-continued use of deficient foods from childhood onwards . . ." italics by Brady. It would be childish to expect either correction of the faulty diet or supplementation of the diet with the most essential vitamins and minerals to cure in a month what has taken ten per cent or twenty years to develop.

However, I do earnestly advise every man, woman or child who has habitual or chronic constipation, mucous disease, spastic colon, mucous colitis, gastro-intestinal catarrh, colon derangement or just chronic colitis to supplement his or her diet, whatever the diet may be, with an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex, not just for a while, but every day in the year for the next ten years.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Eustachian Tubes

If the Eustachian tubes become closed will it cause dizziness? My blood pressure is low, my liver is all right, so what makes me dizzy? (H.A.T.)

Answer—The Eustachian (u-stake-yan tubes are bony and cartilaginous tubes lined with mucous membrane, connecting middle ear cavity on either side with nasopharynh or post-nasal upper part of throat. They are about 1 1-4 inches long and serve to ventilate the tympanic (middle ear) cavity and keep the air pressure inside the ear drum equal to the atmospheric pressure. If one or both tubes become closed, say by adenoid thickening around their orifices in the post nasal space, more or less dulness of hearing occurs—a common condition in school children who are unjustly called dull, blackward or intractable when they need medical examination and perhaps radium (painless and safe) treatment of their Eustachian adenoidal obstruction. Dizziness? No sir, your dizziness must be from other causes. Only your doctor can find it.

In the year 747 by the Roman calendar, the world ruled by Augustus, that is, the world known to the Romans, extended from a vague, almost legendary, Cathay westward to a barbaric Britain. The popular conception of the world was a plane stretching from the Mediterranean to precipices beyond which all was darkness, ... servants live in ir employer's house as they used to do; they come in by the day or by the hour.

This means that much — if not all—the housework and cooking falls on the mistress of the house—and on the master, too, for if I were not speaking to you just about 'the Englishwoman' I could tell you how well the Englishman has risen to the occasion, and with what pride he does the washing-up, boasting—with some truth—that he breaks fewer plates than the maid used to do.

Lack of help means that the mother with young children has her hands very full. But, to assist her, there are now a number of nursery schools where they can leave the child for the day, knowing that it will be looked after, be given simple lessons in singing and games, and that it will enjoy playing with children of its own age. Many mothers leave their children in nursery schools on their way to a day's work, and collect their children again in the evening.

JEST 'FORE CHRISTMAS

By EUGENE FIELD

Father calls me William, sister calls me Will,
Mother calls me Willie, but the fellers call me Bill!
Mighty glad I ain't a girl—ruther be a boy,
Without them sashes, curls, an' things that's worn by Fauntleroy!
Love to chawnk green apples an' go swimmin' in the lake—
Hate to take the caster-ile they give for belly-ache!
'Most all the time, the whole year round, there ain't no flies on me,
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Got a yeller dog named Sport, sick him on the cat;
First thing she knows she doesn't know where she is at!
Got a clipper sled, an' when us kids goes out to slide,
'Long comes the grocery cart, an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery man is worrited an' cross,
He reaches at us with his whip, an' larrups up his hoss,
An' then I laff an' holler, "Oh, ye never teched ME!"
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Gran'ma says she hopes that when I git to be a man,
I'll be a missionarer like her oldest brother, Dan,
As was et up by the cannibuls that lives in Ceylon's Isle,
Where every prospeck pleases, an' only man is vile!
But gran'ma she has never been to see a Wild West show,
Nor read the life of Daniel Boone, or else I guess she'd know
That Buff'lo Bill and cow-boys is good enough for me!
ECEP' jest 'for Christmas, when I'm good as I kin be!

And then old Sport he hangs around, so solemn-like an' still,
His eyes they keep a-sayin': "What's the matter, little Bill?"
The old cat sneaks down off her perch an' wonders what's become
Of them two enemies of hern that used to make things hum!
But I am so perlite an' 'tend so earnestly to biz,
That mother says to father: "How improved our Willie is!"
But father, havin' been a boy hisself, suspicions me
When jest 'fore Christmas, I'm as good as I can be!

For Christmas, with its lots an' lots of candies, cakes an' toys,
Was made, they say, for proper kids an' not for naughty boys;
So wash yer face an' bresh yer hair, an' mind yer p's an' q's,
An' don't bust out yer pantaloons an' don't wear out yer shoes;
Say "Yessum" to the ladies, an' "Yessur" to the men,
n' when they's company, don't pass yer plate for pie again;
ut, thinking of the things yer'd like to see upon that tree, est 'fore Christmas be as good as yer can be!

p of Palestine the names of ich begin with Beth, because was the most general word house or habitation. Bethle- n meant house of bread. It s one of the oldest towns in estine, it was the home of h; the Book of Ruth is a e from the domestic history Bethlehem. It was the home David; it was there Samuel ne to find the shepherd lad, d anoint him as king of Israel.

And so it was, that, while ey were there, the days were complished that she should be livered.

And she brought forth her st-born Son, and wrapped Him swaddling clothes, and laid m in a manger: because there s no room for them in the inn.

In the days of Augustus, Ro- ans celebrated the Saturnalia, festival of Saturn, in the ven days beginning December . During it, no public business uld be transacted, the law urts were closed, and no male- ctor could be punished. It was time of licentious disorder. robably Saturnalian celebrators rowded the inn.

And there were in the same ountry shepherds abiding in the ield, keeping watch over their lock by night.

Sheep were one of the most mportant possessions of the ncient Hebrews. Judaea had manufactures, fisheries and commerce, but most of its people earned their living from the soil and their flocks. Immense numbers of sheep grazed in Palestine in Biblical times; there is a story of one group of shepherds whose flock consisted of 3,000,000 sheep and goats. Sheep and lambs provided most of the meat, and wool most of the clothes of the East.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen It, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

Because of what the shepherds made known, the world eventually began to calculate time from the birth of Jesus. But there was an error in transcribing 747 into Christian chronology, and the event about which Luke was to pen the greatest news story ever written, occurred in 5 B.C., or 1,952 years ago.

Luke was the nickname of Lucanus, a man of Antioch in Syria. He was a physician and reputedly a painter of extraordinary skill, before he became a convert to Christianity and a companion of Paul. The story was inscribed in Rome in Greek, upon papyrus, as a letter to one Theophilus, another convert to Christianity who was, like Luke, a Gentile, and who appears to have been a Roman of high position and wealth. Nothing else is known of Theophilus except this: by inscribing this Gospel and the Acts of the Apostle to him, Luke made Theophilus' name immortal.

There is little more that we know of Luke, but we know this: he was a friend unto death. "I am all alone, save for Luke," Paul wrote shortly before he was put to death in Rome.

But such devotion was to be expected of a Christian.

It is probable that Luke gained most of his knowledge of the Saviour, as he did his devoutness, from Paul, for there is no evidence Luke ever saw Him himself.

He could have had help from the earlier gospels of Matthew, who had left his job as tax collector at Capernaum to be one of Jesus' Disciples, and of Mark; and there were countless other narratives of Jesus current at the time he wrote. But it appears that Luke was inspired most by what Paul told him and by the material he gathered himself. It is certain he wrote with consummate, unmatched art.

Paul himself was a great writer. The Epistles — First Thessalonians, Second Thessalonians, Galatians, First Corinthians, Second Corinthians, Romans, Philippians, Colossians and Philemon—are awesome evidence of this. His writings and his labors within a few years transformed Christianity from something known to a few into a world religion. But Paul placed his emphasis upon the acts and teachings of Jesus. So it remained for Luke, a man wonderfully inspired, to write the wondrous story the the First Christmas that excels all other Christmas stories ever told.

Finnish Community Builds Own Church

Windsor, Ont. (CP). — This Christmas the Finnish population of Windsor will enjoy the satisfaction of worshipping in a church they personally helped to build.

Faced with high costs and shortage of materials, the community decided early last summer that if it were to have a church it would have to do the building.

Since July, lay members contributing their spare time and abilities have been putting up a stone edifice which they hope to have partly completed for Christmas services.

The purpose is actually twofold, says Karl Lehto, former wrestler and merchant who is working on the new church.

In addition to providing a house of worship it "will show people how to build homes when they haven't the means to get a builder to do it."

The first storey is nearing completion and the second floor is expected to be finished next summer.

At present there are 90 members but it is hoped that by the time the building is completed the congregation will have grown to 200.

ACCURATE CONCEPT

William Gilbert in 1600 set the foundation for the discovery of radio when he conceived of the earth as a great magnet with magnetic poles and a field of force about it.

HOLIDAY at HOME

Mary Crane emptied the last tub and stood it against the shed to drain, sighing her thanks that if she must wash clothes on Christmas Day the job was at least over and done with by noon. She had just returned to the kitchen when a knock came at the door.

It was her neighbor, Hattie Jamieson, decked out in her finest.

"Aren't you the one," Hattie exclaimed, "washing clothes on Christmas Day!"

Mary conceded it wasn't the best way to spend the day, but added that it must be done.

"I wonder if you'd do me a favor?" Hattie asked. "John and Fanny have asked us to come to town for Christmas dinner and the tree tonight. You know, times were a little tough for Henry and me this year, so I took those two little State orphans to board. Now I don't want to leave them at home alone, and Fanny wouldn't want them to come mingle with her youngsters." She sighed faintly. "Would you let them come stay with you for the evening?"

"Why, of course," Mary replied, smiling. "It will make Christmas for me, who was spendin' it alone. What time will they come?"

"Fanny's sending the car for us about five o'clock, and we'll drop them off here on the way."

After Hattie had left, Mary mused that she didn't suppose the Lord thought Fanny's children too good to mingle with these two orphans, but after a moment she realized there was much to be done. By five o'clock she had walked to the store and spent her few pennies on two tiny pair of red mittens, which were now hanging on the little spruce tree Mary had cut in the back yard. And in the kitchen a hot, hearty supper was waiting.

Mary sat in the living room, waiting. "Lucky I did that extra washing today, so I feel justified spending those pennies on the youngsters. Those children must have a Christmas, and maybe—" she sighed—"I shan't have a home another year!"

Waiting there in the old rocker, her head dropped slowly, and Mary Crane fell asleep . . .

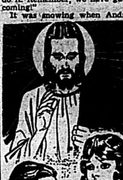
"One thing I'd like to do before dinner," rich old Andrew Craig said to his wife. "S'pose there's time? You remember Mary Crane had some tough luck a few years back. She borrowed money from the bank on her house and couldn't keep up the payment. Well, the directors decided not to give her any more time.

"I couldn't help remembering our lean years, Sue, when Mary was our neighbor and worked day and night to pull you thru' pneumonia. So I just gathered in that debt—it was only a few hundreds—and had some papers made out to Mary. I'd kind of like to take them out to her on Christmas night."

Sue pulled his head down and kissed him. "It will take just 10 minutes to pack a basket for you to take along," she reckoned swiftly. "If you drive there and back in half an hour, you can do it. Remember, we have guests coming!"



"All tall and bright and — and beautiful."

It was snowing when Andrew alighted from the car. A lamp showed him Mary's kitchen thru' the window, the cheery tree, and the sleeping old lady. He tiptoed in and placed his basket on the table, papers on top. The latching of the door aroused Mary.

Her small guests rushed in a few minutes later to find Mary holding the papers to her heart, her face alight with joy.

"Merry Christmas, Mary," cried the little girl. "There was a man on your steps when we came down the lane. We saw him plain as could be!"

"You're right," Mary said. "Andrew Craig is a man, if there ever was one."

"Not the man in the fur coat," insisted the child. "It was another just behind him. All tall and bright and—and beautiful."

"Well," said Mary. "I'm not surprised. Some folks might say it was shadows and lamplight and snowflakes, but" —tapping the papers—"Wherever there's things like this goin' on Christmas night, I'm persuaded He's there!"

SPEND CHRISTMAS AT HOME

Londonderry, Northern Ireland, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Officers of 802 Fighter Squadron 19th Carrier Group, R.C.N., who have been working here since August, will spend their Christmas in England.

Under command of Lt.-Cmdr. H. J. G. Bird of Kingston, they are leaving their base for a short stay at the Royal Naval Station at Gosport. During Christmas leave, they will have an opportunity of celebrating in London or other big cities.

No. 825 Strike Squadron of the same group will also be spending their Christmas leave in various parts of England and Scotland.

WEDDINGS

GREEN—BAMBER

At 2.30 p.m., Saturday, December 20, at the United Church, Frankford, Ontario, Rev. H. Lackie officiated when Ethel Fern Bamber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. V. Bamber, became the bride of Herbert Lloyd Green, son of the late Herbert Green and Mrs. Green of Toronto.

Mrs. H. Lackie played the Wedding March and Mrs. Walter Morrow sang beautifully "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was beautiful in a frock of grey crepe with long sleeves and bustle drape. Her hat was an off-the-face poke shape of powder blue, trimmed with ostrich feathers, and she carried a white prayer book and three gardenias.

Myrtle Rose attended the bride wearing a wine crepe frock, flower hat and corsage of red roses and white carnations. Ralph Rimmer was groomsman, and the ushers were Glen Bamber, brother of the bride, and George Keach.

Reception was at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother wearing a plum colored crepe dress with black accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother was in teal blue crepe with matching hat and corsage of white carnations and pink roses.

Toasts were drunk to the bride, the bridesmaid, the bride's mother and the groom's mother. The bride and groom then cut the cake, after which the wedding luncheon was served by Mrs. M. S. Lloyd and Mrs. Geo. A. Kuhne, sisters of the bride, assisted by Dorothy, Vivian and Betty Lloyd, the bride's nieces.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Green departed for points west.

FIREMEN'S LAST SLIDE DOWN BRASS POLE

Brockville, Dec. 24 —(CP)— In the old days, volunteer fireman Alvin Fox, 73, could slide down the firehall's brass pole with the best of them.

Last night while paying a pre-Christmas visit, he took his last slide. Firemen picked him up, took him to hospital where he died. He had suffered a broken hip and shock when he slid to the hall's floor.

War Memorial Will be Dedicated On Christmas Eve

A war memorial to those of Christ Church who gave their lives between 1939 and 1945, will be dedicated at the midnight communion service on Christmas Eve.

The memorial is a handsome communion cup and plate of solid silver, well designed, and with considerable etching on it. Christ Church Parish Guild, with the assistance of St. George's Guild, are largely responsible for the magnificent memorial, by which is kept in remembrance the greater Calvary of Christ which includes all our lesser Calvaries.

'Twas the Night Before Chrismas

By CLEMENT C. MOORE

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And Mamma in her 'kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap—
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.

Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave a lustre of mid-day to objects below;
When, what to my wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.

More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name;
"Now Dasher; now Dancer; now Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on Cupid, on, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch! to the top of the wall!
Now dash away! dash away! dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew
With the sleigh full of toys—and St. Nicholas, too.

And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof;
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a pedlar just opening his pack.
His eyes—how they twinkled his dimples—how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!

His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke of it circled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face, and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump—a right jolly old elf—
And I laughed, when I saw him—in spite of myself.

A wink of his eye, and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down on a thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drew out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all! and to all a good night!"

Is There A Santa Claus?

(Originally printed September 21, 1897—In The New York Sun.)

We take pleasure in answering at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of The Sun:

Dear Editor—I am 8 years old.

Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus.

Papa says "If you see it in The Sun it's so."

Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?—

Virginia O'Hanlon.
115 West Ninety-fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no child-like faith th[illegible] no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God! he lives, and he lives for ever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Young Again

Let us all be young again
At the Christmas tide,
Casting every care away,
Heart doors open wide,
Welcoming the little child
Lowly Jesus, meek and mild.

Let us all be young again,
On this Christmas day,
Childlike faith and trust in Him
Spirits light and gay;
Dropped the burden of the years,
Smiles replacing sighs and tears.

Let us all be young again,
Catch the angels' strain—
"Peace on Earth, good-will to men"
O'er the Eastern plain—
Joyful that the Christ is born
On this happy Christmas morn.

Let us all be young again,
Hearts with hope aglow,
Oh, so glad and free were we
In the long ago;
May undimmed our pleasures be
With no clouds of Calvary.

Let us then be young again,
Hear the story told
Of the shepherds and their sheep
On the hills of old—
And the Star that led to Him
In a stable cold and dim.

Keeping thus a childhood faith
In the Christmastide,
Happy-hearted we will be
Whatso'er betide;
Christmas Spirit and good cheer
In our hearts through all the year.

Home for Aged Inmates to Enjoy Christmas Turkey

Ladies and gentlemen in the Belleville Home for the Aged are in a gala mood these days to match the year's most festive season, the happy Yuletide of peace and goodwill among men.

The Home is gay with Christmas decorations and a well lighted Christmas tree, where many gifts are already reposing among the branches, while several others are "in hiding" until the morning following the visit of St. Nicholas.

Several Christmas parties have already been given for the benefit of these ladies and gentlemen by different church organizations and clubs of the city, with accompanying gifts and treats. Other gifts have been donated by interested individuals.

On Dec. 25th, a bounteous Christmas feast will be served at the noon hour, including turkey with all the fixings, and plum pudding for dessert, as well as fruits and nuts in abundance; which all augurs well for a truly Merry Christmas in the Home on Dundas Street East.

LETTER & Christmas

"Wonderful weather for Christmas!" Timothy Rowan thought as he tramped home through the snow with an armful of mail from the post office.

But he was apprehensive, for in the bundle was a letter from Caroline, his daughter. Why, he kept asking, would Caroline be writing now, the day before Christmas, unless to tell her parents that she wouldn't be home for the holidays?

Noisily he stamped the snow from his overshoes on the back porch, then walked into the kitchen which was savoury with the odor of his wife Rachel's Christmas cooking. Then, as Rachel approached the bundle of letters he had placed on the table, Timothy found himself shrinking from the room, fearful of how Rachel would take the news.

No Caroline for Christmas! Why never once in her 24 years had Caroline been away. But, then, she was building her own home in the city, now — new friends, new interests. And spending the holidays with two old parents was probably pretty dull.

But how would Rachel take it? If only someone, anyone, would spend Christmas with them to relieve the loneliness! Well, how about young Tom Wakefield, with whom Caroline had once been in love, a fine young chap who didn't have a home, and who probably would miss Caroline this Christmas as much as he and Rachel would?

A few minutes later Timothy was tramping downtown through the snow again, and into Tom Wakefield's garage.

"Merry Christmas, Tom!" he shouted, walking into the small office.

"Same to you, Mr. Stone!" cried Tom. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, Tom," Timothy began, "you can make a couple of old people very happy if you'll come to dinner with us tomorrow. You see—I don't expect Caroline will be coming and, well it, would be nice if you'd join us"

"Gosh, thanks Mr. Stone!" Tom answered. He turned red, then pale. "I'll be there!"

Back home, Timothy was reprimanded. "Well, Mr. Stone, where have you been, leaving me all alone with this news about Caroline?" Rachel's eyes sparkled.

"I know, darling," Timothy said. "It's too bad she can't be here for Christmas, but I've asked Tom Wakefield to join us. It'll be kind of nice having him, remembering how he and Caroline used to be so close. You know, I think that boy is still in love with her—".

Timothy found himself shrinking from the room.

Mrs. Stone smiled. "Well, we'd better get busy, since company's coming. Fix a fire in the hearth, will you?" And as Timothy went off on his errand, her eyes followed him, smiling.

The Stone household was a busy place Christmas morning. While Timothy tended his stock and poultry, Rachel fixed the turkey, set the table and then went upstairs to dress. And shortly after noon Tom Wakefield arrived, handsome young Tom, and the three of them sat down in the living room before the fire for a short visit before dinner.

Then an automobile horn blared out front, and Timothy ran to the window.

"It's Caroline!" he shouted, beside himself. "Rachel, come quick! She must have come in on the noon train."

Then she burst into the room, lovely Caroline, laughing merrily, tossing her bags on the floor and running to her parents.

Suddenly she saw Tom, standing white and tense beside the fireplace, and momentarily her mouth fell open with surprise.

"Oh, Tom!" she cried. "You here, too? This makes it perfect!" And she ran to his arms, while Rachel drew her puzzled husband into the kitchen.

"You may be a pretty smart man, Timothy," she explained quietly, as she lifted the turkey from the oven, "but we fooled you that time! You just assumed, because Caroline wrote the day before Christmas, that she wasn't coming home. What she said in the letter was that she was tired of the city and was coming back to stay.

"Of course," she smiled, "I'll give you credit. Poor Caroline's heart was breaking for Tom, so your inviting him here today makes everything perfect!"

Edible Manger In Ukraine Rituals

In the Ukraine an elaborate Christmas Eve supper breaks a 39-day fast during which no meat has been eaten. Twelve courses are served, one for each of the twelve Apostles: buckwheat and mushroom soup, pancakes in flax, prunes, fish, bread, and nuts are included in the menu.

An additional course of honey and porridge is also served: called Koutia, the dish represents the holy crib: the porridge represents the straw—as in the manger—and the Holy Infant is symbolized by honey and fruit: the honey is also considered symbolic of the spirit and blood of the Saviour.

Hungry Holiday

On Christmas Eve, Nancy hurried breathlessly, into her rooming house. Surely the package from home would be there! But Mrs. Groggins, the ugly little landlady, shook her head.

"Nothing," she said. "The Mailman went right by this afternoon."

Up in her room, Nancy spent a lonesome Christmas Eve. She read awhile to forget her hunger, then went to bed. Next morning it was the destitute Mrs. Wilson who awakened her.

"Merry Christmas, Miss Bell!" she shouted, walking into the room uninvited. Nancy was irritated, momentarily, by this highly painted, shallow creature. But she quickly regained her composure. It was Christmas, after all!

"It was swell of you, dearie, to pay Mrs. Groggins a week's rent in advance last night," Mrs. Wilson, settling herself into the most comfortable chair. "I don't know what would have happened, because I'm caught a bit short just now and couldn't pay!"

Nancy said it was all right, that she had been glad to do it, but then she felt hungry and remembered there had been no dinner—and now no breakfast. All because of Mrs. Wilson!

"I was just about to drop out for a bite to eat," her visitor explained, "and seeing you're all alone, I thought you might like to come alone."

Nancy thought fast.

Nancy remembered the lone 25-cent piece in her purse. "Thank you so kindly, Mrs. Wilson," she answered quickly. "But I'm—I'm not feeling so well this morning. I'll just have a cup of coffee in my room!"

About noon she dressed, for Jim was calling for her at one o'clock. What a ravenous appetite she would have.

But one o'clock passed, and no Jim. Nor at 2 or 3, and Nancy's spirits began to give way. Had he, too, chosen to punish her on Christmas?

Downstairs she heard Mr. and Mrs. Groggins welcoming their guests for the day, and she took a vicarious pleasure from it. She heard the dinner bell, the clatter of dishes as they dined, and then the shuffling of chairs as the well-fed guests retired to the living room. By that time it was five o'clock and Nancy sat by her window, figuratively biting her fingernails. She was almost hysterical with fear, and she began to worry.

At six o'clock she put on her coat and dashed down the stairs, headed she knew not where. Perhaps to find Jim, perhaps merely to escape her room. She reached the entrance, turned the knob and pulled open the door—and there was Jim, just arriving!

Tearfully she threw herself into his arm, shivering from fright. 'Oh, Jim!" she cried. "Where have you been?"

"But didn't you get my message?" he asked. "I had to work in the laboratory this afternoon, and telephoned Mrs. Groggins at 12.30!" His brow was furrowed.

Just then there was a voice behind them. "Miss Bell!" It was Mrs. Groggins. "A message for you. It came just before dinner, but then our guests arrived and I didn't get around to bringing it up."

Nancy took the slip from her hand, wiping away a tear. She heard Jim cursing.

"Let's get out of here honey," he said, quietly.

A short time later they were dining by candlelight while a string ensemble played soft Christmas music in the background. Jim looked up from his coffee and smiled, then reached into his pocket.

"There was a big package on your desk at the office," he said. "It came today. From your folks, I guess. Too big to carry with me, but maybe this will take its place."

He reached for her left hand, then for the second finger, and at its tip he poised a diamond ring. Then he looked at her, asking assent.

"Yes, darling," she said softly. "It's the merriest Christmas ever!"

STRENGTH TO WRESTLER

In Holstein it is believed that it is not only a cure for all green wounds, but that it will insure success in the chase and give strength to the wrestler, if mistletoe is worn.

Christmas Trees, Cribs and Ceppi

Christmas trees and cribs, within respective spheres of influence, provide focal points for observances of the season.

Various legends claim to tell the story of the first Christmas tree; actually, evergreen decorations were so closely associated with pagan celebrations that they were banned by many ecclesiastics of the early church.

According to literature, the first Christmas tree was set up at Strasbourg, Germany, in 1604; even then, the cry rose against heathen customs and, as late as 1851, the Rev. Henry Schwan was severely criticized for setting up a Chris mas tree in his church in Clev land, Ohio.

St. Francis of Assisi receiv
special permission from the P to present a tableau of the nat
ity scene. This first crib, set u Greccio, Italy, in 1223, was an mediate sensation; the renaiss endowed the cribs with orn pageantry and, modernly, the c is to southern Europe and Ca
olic countries what the tree is America and northern lands.

Eighteenth century Italia
were fond of a fantastic decor
tion called the Ceppi. Pyramidic in construction, the Ceppi wer made on a framework of lathe with transverse shelves rising t three or four stories, depending on the over-all size of the Ceppi.

The whole thing was covered with colored paper, tufts, tassels, fringes, tiny pine cones, and little flags; a manger scene was represented on the lowest shelf, while the upper ones were covered with small gifts, etc.; wax tapers were placed along the sides and a large gilt cone ornamented the top. Although the original designer probably never saw a Christmas tree, the Ceppi—aided by a little imagination—bridges the gap between Christmas cribs and trees.

Such a Rush To Give Away Things as Prizes

(By John S. Cooper in the Wall Street Journal)

It is more blessed to give than to receive. The nation's mightiest merchandisers are finding this ancient maxim has a modern business application worth millions in trade and free advertising. And their "something for nothing" sales promotions are hitting a high crescendo.

When Mrs. Ruth Subble of Fort Worth, Texas, shows up at the "Truth or Consequences" radio show to reap her reward for unmasking "Miss Hush," it will mark the high point (so far) of the dizziest "contest" gold rush this country has ever seen. Mrs. Subble will garner: A Buick convertible, an airplane; $2,000 in cash, television set, house-full of furniture, diamond ring, jeweled wrist watch, trip to Hawaii, fur coat and other expensixe knick-knacks.

"Contest" merchandising flowered in the depression '30's. It sagged during the war when there was little to sell. Since then it has come back furiously.

In October and November, biggest months in history, there were more than 20 national contests running at the same time. The rush to give things away was so great people didn't have time to enter all the events. Result — total entries in some contests ran 10 per cent to 20 per cent below returns a year ago.

The contest field is spreading. No longer are its chief practitioners confined to makers of soap, toothpaste, breakfast cereal, newspapers, candy bars, shampoo and other low-priced consumer items.

Such a Rush To Give Away Things as Prizes

It is more blessed to give than to receive. The nation's mightiest merchandisers are finding this ancient maxim has a modern business application worth millions in trade and free advertising. And their "something for nothing" sales promotions are hitting a high crescendo.

When Mrs. Ruth Subble of Fort Worth, Texas, shows up at the "Truth or Consequences" radio show to reap her reward for unmasking "Miss Hush," it will mark the high point (so far) of the dizziest "contest" gold rush this country has ever seen. Mrs. Subble will garner: A Buick convertible, an airplane, $2,000 in cash, television set, house-full of furniture, diamond ring, jeweled wrist watch, trip to Hawaii, fur coat and other expensixe knick-knacks.

"Contest" merchandising flowered in the depression '30's. It sagged during the war when there was little to sell. Since then it has come back furiously.

In October and November, biggest months in history, there were more than 20 national contests running at the same time. The rush to give things away was so great people didn't have time to enter all the events. Result — total entries in some contests ran 10 per cent to 20 per cent below returns a year ago.

The contest field is spreading. No longer are its chief practitioners confined to makers of soap, toothpaste, breakfast cereal, newspapers, candy bars, shampoo and other low-priced consumer items.

The night before Mrs. Subble collects her bonanza, top officials of General Motors will be hosts at a banquet for 5,000 prize-winners of their own. For the best answers to "Why I like my job at General Motors," 5,000 prizes are being given away, including 40 new automobiles, from Cadillacs on down.

Walter Winchell has horned into the act with his essay contest "What is a Communist?" to raise funds for the Runyon cancer fund. The prize — a $10,000 mink coat. The Women's Christian Temperance Union is sponsoring a similar contest on the liquor evil. Klein's, New York's glorified bergain basement, is putting up $5 merchandise certificates and habitual contestors are even running contests of their own, offering home-made articles like quilts and bedspreads as prizes.

David L. Harrington, vice-president of the Reuben H. Donnelley Corp., which has made a profitable sideline of contest judging, says his firm handled 15 percent more contest mail than ever before in its history this year. Seventy-five contests have poured between 25 million and 30 million entries into Donnelley's three-judging centres in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles. The prospects are, says Mr. Harrington, that next year will be even bigger as more companies seek to familiarize the public with their brand names and keep up in the competitive sales race.

"There is every indication that we haven't seen anything as far as contests and premium promotion are concerned," a merchandising official for the Walgreen Co. says. The big drug chain benefits indirectly from contests through increased store traffic when people come in to buy contest mechandise.

The Pepsodent division of Lever Bros. earlier this year sponsored the most effective contest of all time, Bob Hope's "my favorite brunette is," which attracted over 3,600,000 entries. It admits that sales slide off after a contest.

The four basic types of contests are jingles, 25 or 50-word essays on "why I like the product," naming contests and word building.

Professor Lloyd Herrold, head of the advertising department at Northwestern University and Donnelley's chief competitor as a contest judge, says that the jingle is now the most popular contest form. Kroger Grocery, which never got more than 300,000 entries on its previous essay contests, tried a jingle recently and drew 980,000.

Although most professional judging firms are able to roughly gauge in advance the number of entries for a contest, occasionally even the best of them are surprised.

In the Alka-Seltzer single contest two years ago, the experts were looking for about 500,000 entries. Instead, nearly 2,000,000 avalanched in and all radio and newspaper promotion had to be turned off three weeks ahead of schedule. Conversely, after the Bob Hope success this year, another radio comedian was employed to publicize an almost identical contest campaign for another product. The returns weren't one-tenth as many.

Because of the tremendous manual job of opening letters sorting and other physical tasks, contest judging so far has been confined to large direct mail advertising firms. Donnelley's has a labor pool of hundreds to call on at any time. Professor Herrold has an arrangement with R. L. Polk and Co., which processes his contest mail before turning it over for final judging. Only one major contest company, Proctor and Gamble, has its own full-time contest staff.

On big national contests there may be three levels of judges before the top entries are narrowed down for the executive judges to pick the winner.

AROUND THE WORLD

★ The custom of ringing a joyous peal of bells on Christmas morning has been for ages a feature of the Christmas celebration. In many countries, however, the bells ring on Christmas Eve, for according to the old church usage the real beginning of Christmas was at sunset on Christmas Eve. Christmas bells tell us that once, long ago, on a Christmas day love came into the world, flooding the earth with beauty and goodness, when the angels sang about a crib in Bethlehem.

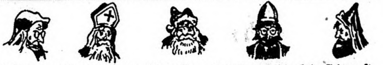
The pagan Romans were the first to utilize Christmas greens for decorative purposes. They decorated growing evergreens with tiny masks to insure fertility. The progress from this pagan practice to the modern Christian use is hidden in unproven theories. Because of their unchanging freshness, evergreens were considered a symbol of eternity. The circle, without end was an emblem of the same symbol. Mistletoe was held in veneration by the ancient Celts and Teutons.

Burning of the Yule log was a symbol of the return of the sun. The log was dragged ceremoniously to the family hearth, where it was drenched with wine and kindled with a brand saved from the preceeding year. When flames crackled forth it portended good luck for the coming year. If the log did not light it was believed to be an omen of ill luck. The "Feast of the Returning Sun" was an ancient pagan festival, observed by many peoples.

★ The giving of gifts was instituted by St. Nichols, who was first considered an ascetic in Europe, when he appeared as an oldster with white beard, on horseback, carrying gifts for good children, switches for bad ones. Pelznickle, from the demon world would accompany him, clad in a fur coat and carrying a switch. St. Nichols, or Nicholas, was bishop of Myra in Asia Minor, in the fourth century. He is patron saint of Greece, Russia, and the city of Naples.

★ Feasting on Christmas today is pallid compared to what it was in days gone by. Turkey was first introduced in England about 1520 and as a mild substitute for the traditional boar's head garlanded with rosemary and laurel. The exotic roasted peacock was also a favorite at early feasts. Mince pie was eaten in the 16th century as a symbol of the riches brought by the three wise men. It was filled with rich spices and products brought from the mysterious far East.

Christmas boxes for the poor did not originate in America. They date back to the days of the ancient Romans. They held a feast in honor of Saturn. Boxes were made up and distributed. This has become an important part of Christmas in this country and the plan has been developed and enlarged by religious, civic and other organizations in order to bring happiness to hundreds of thousands who would otherwise be overlooked at Christmas. Boxing Day is a legal holiday.



★ There are nearly as many versions of Santa Claus as there are nationalities: Father Christmas, St. Nicholas, Babquschka, Kris Kringle and many others. But regardless of his name, he is welcomed and beloved by all—children and adults alike. In America Santa Claus is still recognized by the original drawing of Thomas Nash, made to illustrate Dr. Clement Clark Moore's poem, "A Visit to St. Nichols."

Woman Executive Quits New York For Desert Life

Toronto (CP). — Career gals take note: the business world may present a challenge, but when success is achieved you might not find the "big-city dream job" all it's cracked up to be. At least these were the findings of ambitious Rhoda Howe, who deserted an executive advertising position in New York to run a tiny tourist inn in an Arizona village of 25 persons.

From the risky business of selling automobiles in Toronto during the depression, Miss Howe rose to a top-flight post in the most spectacular salesmanship game in the world—North American advertising. Quick trips from New York to Hollywood to gain movie star endorsements of cosmetic and soap products was something Miss Howe did not have to read about in books. Flights to England were often necessary to gain signatures of British stars. She handled 15 national accounts.

But after 14 years in advertising she soon tired of the "big time", and the so-called glamor of Manhattan. She says she has always loved the country and even when working she commuted 50 miles daily from her Connecticut farm and yearned to escape from the "artificiality of New York life."

Startled Friends

"I knew I'd startled all my friends by making such a complete change of direction, but I wanted to get away," said the dark-haired, attractive Toronto woman. "Besides everyone in business wants to have a business of his own and I was no exception."

With nine Florida girls, Miss Howe set out to find the ideal spot, some place which would be healthy as well as capable of producing a living.

They decided on Red Rocks, a railway stop stuck in the middle of cacti-studded desert and surrounded by great blue mountains.

The tourist inn is staffed by nine, but with wives and children it is populated by 29 persons, more than the community itself.

Aside from learning Spanish from Mexican friends and studying the country's folklore from Indians, Miss Howe is planning to start a home for asthmatic children, a mail-order department in jewelry and several other enterprises.

Miss Howe enjoyed her advertising career and the hard work which accompanied her success, but she'd "rather have personal contact with people than write copy to influenceg them."

WOMEN PROVE THEIR WORTH IN FINANCE

By DOROTHY CAREW

New York (AP).—Wall Street has not yet hung out a "Help Wanted—Female" sign, but women today have a better chance than ever to make careers of finance.

"It has been an uphill fight, but the pioneer work has been done," said one woman investment counsel who has worked in the financial field for the past 16 years.

Statistics on women's activities are hard to come by in this centre of facts and figures. But it is generally agreed that women were few and far between in financial work until the 1920s. Since then girls have been slipping in one by one—and sometimes in job lots.

At last count there were 43 women general partners in stock exchange firms. At least four of them arrived at topflight jobs by coming up through the ranks.

The number of women who are registered representatives of financial firms has increased in the past six months from 177 to 210. And at least half a dozen women are investment counsels at the present time.

The war, some say, accelerated the pace of acceptance of women in finance. Others claim that "the girls would have gotten there just as soon, war or no war."

But with the war, women broke at least one Wall Street tradition. They appeared on the floor of the New York stock exchange for the first time, taking over as pages and quotation clerks.

Career Training

All along the line girls are moving into positions of responsibility which previously were regarded strictly as masculine territory. At least three have been chosen by financial firms for special training courses.

The work done by girls today is about as varied as the list of activities performed by the companies by which they are employed. And their number is steadily increasing.

In banking, women employees rose nationally during the war to "not less than 50 per cent" of total personnel. More than 5,600 women have attained the ranking of bank officers.

A breakdown of the total covered in a recent survey by the Association of Bank Women, shows the following representation of women in top executive positions: owners or partners 9, chairman of the board 19, directors 41, presidents 117, vice-presidents 23, cashiers 474, assistant cashiers 3,867, and treasurers 17.

Ask Pension at 65 For Veteran Miners

Halifax —(CP) — Unless pensions to veteran coal miners in Nova Scotia are raised, those under 70 years of age and thus ineligible for the old-age pension will be faced with privation and even reduced to a state of semi-starvation, members of a committee from the Glace Bay and New Waterford Pensioner's Union declared in a letter to Health Minister Martin.

Pensions of $50 a months to everyone reaching the age of 65, without a means test, and free medical attention to all were asked by the union.

The King's Message Becoming Yule Tradition to Millions

By JACK McNEIL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

John Bull, Colonel Blimp, the little man with the umbrella and a host of other characters have been created in attempts to single out and define that chameleon-like atttribute of British mentality known as the "British genius."

Perhaps it's true that there is no such thing as a national characteristic. But if there is, surely the British genius is an ability to take almost any innovation and make it into a traditional before you can say "What Ho!"

An example of this magic is the King's annual Christmas broadcast, inaugurated by George V only 15 years ago, but now endeared to millions of listeners who find it as much a part of Yuletide as roast turkey and plum pudding.

A traditional is something so popular,, so colorful, or so moving, that people want to perpetuate it. Just what has the Royal Christmas greeting got that makes it worthy of becoming a tradition?

Let's recall a few.

Do you remember the simple, heartfelt message broadcast by King George V on Christmas Day, 1935?

"I wish you all, my dear friends a happy Christmas ... The year that is passing (the 25th. since my accession) has been to me most memorable. It called forth a spontaneous offering of loyalty, and, may I say, of love, which the Queen and I can never forget. How could I fail to note in all the rejoicing, not merely respect for the throne but a warm and generous remembrance of the man himself who, may God help him, has been placed upon it.."

The sincere humility and affection of that message from a beloved ruler was lent added poignancy when George V died less than a month later, on January 20, 1936.

Spirit of The People.

Do you remember Christmas, 1939, before the fall of France initiated the world into the meaning of the phrase "total war"? When King George VI said:

"I believe, from my heart that the cause which binds together my peoples and our gallant and faithful Allies is the cause of Christian civilization. On no other basis can true civilization be built..

"'I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, "Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown," and he replied, "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than the known way."'"

Do you remember when in the dark days of '41 the King reminded the nations of the Commonwealth?—

"The greatness of any nation is in the spirit of the people. So it always has been since history began. So it shall be with us."

And the thanksgiving spirit of Christmas, 1945, when the jubilee of victory had given way to a sober remembrance of the brotherhood of man that Christmas celebrates?

"I think of men and women of every race within the Empire returning from their long service to their homes and to the ways of peace . . . There will be the vacant places of those who will never return."

Perhaps it's because the King's annual broadcast epitomizes what millions of people throughout the Commonwealth think and feel that it is fast becoming a tradition.

Truth a Casualty, College Head Finds

Glasgow (CP). — No condition seems harder to cure than a "widespread disregard for truth" in the western world and its replacement by propaganda designed to induce people to support a policy or a government, Sir Hector Hetherington, principal of Glasgow University, said at a graduation ceremony.

"The risk," he said, "is not that interested parties will report downright untruths — that is a dangerous game—but that they will be sparing in telling the truth and make it difficult for others to discover it."

The root of present difficulties was not so much material shortages as the divisions and oppositions which the strain of war had introduced into the body of Europe and in some measure into every country.

"It is here, I think, that there lies on us in the universities some special measure of responsibility. It is an old saying that the first casualty in any war is truth, and apparently nowadays truth is the victim which takes longest to recover."

Defies Obstacles To Decorate Grave

Vancouver (CP).—Mrs. J. C. Jensen has returned here after visiting her son's grave in the British zone of Germany, a mission she completed despite obstacles which thwarted her for nearly three months.

She left Vancouver last June for Denmark where she waited from July 29 until Oct. 18 to gain permission to visit the place where her son, member of the R.C.A.F., was buried.

Her first application for a visa was rejected and she was told she could not go to the British zone. She persisted and finally told a Danish wholesaler her story.

Though there are no textiles to be bought in Germany, he applied for a buyer's visa which was granted and Mrs. Jensen went to Germany as his buyer.

May we, of the General Motors family, echo the Cheer and Good-Fellowship of Christmas, by extending to all, our warm and cordial Greetings.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1947

Evolution Of Santa Claus

By ANDREW R. BOONE

About midnight on the fourth Wednesday of this 12th month of 1947, jolly old Santa Claus will poke his fluffy white beard down the world's collective chimney, bearing gifts for one and all.

For several centuries, Christmas has been celebrated by those of Christian faith; and more than any character, real or fancied, this beloved personality has inspired a welling spirit of faith, good cheer, brotherly love, good-will and giving.

Santa Claus is a patron saint, though he was not always known by the name. There are gaps in his history at which one can only guess. He has an international background and it's a mite difficult to know exactly from where some of his characteristics stem.

We are certain, though, that he derived from St. Nicholas, bishop of Myra, who lived in Asia Minor during the fourth century, A.D.

St. Nicholas was persecuted by Roman Emperor Diocletian, and languished in prison until the more benevolent regime of the Emperor Constantine. Justinian, another Roman emperor, later erected a church in Constantinople which bore his name and that of St. Priscus.

In Europe, St. Nicholas' name is found often in the histories of the Christian martyrs, and around the beginning of the 11th century churches were dedicated to him.

Even in England, nearly 400 churches are dedicated to his memory. In Russia, St. Nicholas is the patron saint—protector of children, scholars, merchants and sailors.

So much we know about this good man. There the curtain descends. How he came to originate the custom of giving presents during the season celebrating Christmas, a custom followed around the world, no one knows.

Could it be, as one legend recounts, that St. Nicholas heard of three young maidens, whose impoverished father, unable to supply them with dowries so they could acquire husbands, was about to sell them?

The good bishop, the story goes, secretly bestowed dowries, with a result that all became happily married. The custom of giving presents in secrecy on Christmas Eve is said to have started from this beginning.

(True or not, the custom persisted through the centuries, until the time of the Reformation. During the years following this period of religious strife, the saints of the Catholic faith became unpopular in Protestant countries, and the custom of present-giving was changed to coincide with Christmas, thus becoming a celebration of the birth of the Christ Child.

St. Nicholas then became the patron saint of Christmas.

However, the dignified man of Myra did not climb in a spritely manner (or any other, for that matter) down chimneys. The name Santa Claus had not yet come into being. The Encyclopedia Britannica say his name is a corruption of the Dutch, "San Nicolaas." Other authorities declare the name came to life when German youngsters, unable to pronounce Saint Nikolaus, mouthed the word, "San-Ni-Kolaus."

As early as 1800, people in North America were calling him Santa Claus. A few rivals for the position of patron of Christmas sprang up, notably St. Nicholas himself, and Father Christmas, who had been invented in England.

Santa Claus or Kris Kringle out-distanced his rivals during the years, and became accepted throughout the land. Who deserves greatest credit for his spreading fame? An erudite gentleman Dr. Clement Clark Moore, with his now familiar poem, "A Visit From St. Nicholas." Remember how it goes? Who could forget:

"'Twas the night before Christmas,
When all through the house
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a mouse."

One autumn day in 1823, while relaxing from his more formal endeavors, he set out to write a poem which might amuse his children at Yuletide.

In a short time he dashed off a fine bit of whimsy; so fine, in fact, it promises to live forever. It was to change the character of legend, too.

What did Dr. Moore do to, or for, Santa? Actually, he did not use the name Santa Claus. He adopted the more historically correct Saint Nicholas.

However, he did fix more clearly the details of his dress, his method of transportation, the means he employed to enter a home. For the first time, the poem had Santa dashing across the snow in a sleigh drawn by eight tiny reindeer:

"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer
Now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on, Cupid!
On, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch
To the top of the wall!
Now dash away! dash away!
Dash away all!"

Up to the house flew the reindeer as though blessed with wings
Down the chimney went Santa, to stand before the amazed author of the poem as millions of children know him today:

"He was dressed all in fur,
From his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished
With ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had
Flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler
Just opening his pack.
His eyes—how they twinkled!
His dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses
His nose like a cherry!
His droll little mouth
Was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin
Was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe
He held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled
His head like a wreath;
He had a broad face
And a little round belly,
That shook, when he laughed
Like a bowlful of jelly."

Dr. Moore's poem established Santa's reputation with such force it grows each year. The jolly creature of his lines bears little resemblance to the venerable original of Europe.

Where Santa descends chimneys without bothering to remove the faithful pipe from his mouth, St Nicholas sedately enters the front door.

What sort of appearance should Santa Claus actually possess? Dr. Moore did not complete that picture. So an artist, taking brush in hand, added to the legend.

This man was Thomas Nast, a famous New York political cartoonist. Nast drew a jolly little fellow, pipe in mouth and pack on back, climbing into a chimney while Dasher and Prancer, and Comet and Blitzen danced on the roof.

A single change has been made since 1886; Santa later changed his suit of furs for the red-cloth-trimmed-with-white-fur one sees in stores, on street corners and at church parties. Perhaps the costume came from England's Father Christmas, who wore similar garb.

Dr. Moore and Nast completely altered the European conception of Christmas's patron. They gave him transportation, added weight, provided a bag of toys and a polar workshop, and dressed him in red.

Silent Night

Silent night, holy night,
All is calm, all is bright;
Round yon Virgin Mother and Child,
Holy Infant, so tender and
mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Silent night, holy night,
Shepherds pray at the sight;
Glories stream from heaven
afar,
Heav'nly hosts sing Alleluia,
Christ the Saviour is born,
Christ the Saviour is born.

Silent night, holy night,
God on high, love's pure light;
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming
grace,
Jesus Lord at Thy birth,
Jesus Lord at Thy birth.

Luke Tells Of Nativity

St. Luke, Chapter II,
Verses 8 to 16

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in their fields, keeping watch over their flocks by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round and about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly hosts praising God, and saying.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger.

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new-born King,
Peace on earth, and mercy
mild,
God and sinners reconciled;
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies,
With th' angelic host proclaim,
Christ is born in Bethlehem.

Chorus

Hark! the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new-born King.

Gifts Scarce and Costly in Britain

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 24 — (CP)— Early shoppers who raided stores for Christmas presents almost before autumn was in the air fared well in Britain this year but for tardy buyers the prospect was grim.

"Best Christmas since before the war," said a man who did his buying before the November budget raised purchase taxes and

Although final 1947 figures are not yet available, the total may be approximately broken down thus:

To Canada, in the same ratio as was evidenced in the 6 months ending September 30 ,about 36,550.

To Australia, at least 4.500.

To New Zealand, where the total was expected to be "in excess of last year's 4,800, about 6,000.

To South Africa, "at least 10,000 if not 12,000.

Government Estimate

A government statement in the House of Commons recently estimated that at least 50,000 Britons were queued up awaiting passage to Canada; 20,000 to New Zealand, and 95,000 to South Africa. The reply did not mention Australia, but an Australian House spokesman put the number of applications

"It doesn't matter what we have we can sell it," he said. "People are that desperate for presents we literally have to keep everything under the counter."

Liquor Also Scarce

Although the Food Ministry eased the nation's dietary belt a notch or two the early bird fared best where food supplies were concerned. Registered, regular customers at liquor vendors got first call on meagre, most-expensive-ever supplies of spirits, and butchers had long waiting lists for turkeys.

Subject for Debate.

Meantime the moral question of whether a man should leave Britain now — when post-war austerity piled upon seven years of war has discouraged many, and a supreme industrial effort is needed to pull the country out of the economic doldrums — has been widely debated in the press.

Opinion is about evenly divided on the subject — but often wider publicity has been given reports of discontented persons returning from their new homes overseas than to those pleased with life in the dominions.

Adding to the difficulties of gift-seekers was the prolongation of clothes rationing. With textiles a major weapon in the export drive, Britons have to get along on 20 clothing coupons during the current five-month period — not even enough to buy a suit. With stockings, underwear and even ties requiring coupons, not many threadbare shoppers looked into clothing stores.

STAMPS AND UNSTAMPED LETTERS FOUND IN BOX

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 24 —(AP)— A hard-worked postman, collecting Christmas mail from a neighborhood box, was brought up short by this note found therein:

"Dear postman: I put all my Christmas cards in the mail box, then realized I hadn't stamped them. Will you please stick these stamps on for me?"

Among the envelopes were nearly 50 with no stamps. And scattered in the box were half a hundred stamps.

Star of Bethlehem Phenomenon of Age

The Star of Bethlehem has been the subject of extensive research and discussion.

Modern astronomers have considered several natural phenomenon theories without attaching too much weight to any such hypothesis.

Skeptics regard the whole thing as mere invention, colored with Oriental imagery, designed to honor Christ; and faith accepts the star as the supernatural phenomenon which proclaimed the birth of Jesus .

The first chapter of the gospel according to St. Matthew begins:

"The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham . . ."

And confirming Bethlehem as the city of David, the angel of the Lord declared:

"For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a SAVIOUR which is CHRIST the Lord."—St. Luke 2:11.

Considering tradition, which accepts that King David's shield formed a six-pointed star, the Star of Bethlehem appropriately

". . . stood over where the young Child was," St. Matthew 2:9.

Faith and Peace Are Eternal

Twenty centuries have passed since the inn at Bethlehem was overcrowded because of Caesar Augustus and his census.

The bigwigs who crowded the inn were committed to oblivion by their contemporaries and, except for the census and resultant conditions at Bethlehem, it wouldn't matter too much if Augustus completely vanished from the history books.

It is generally immaterial that, puppet king of Judea, Herod tified the kingdom and kept it of the clutches of Cleopatra, built the city of Samaria, and lowed several pagan temples long since crumbled into dust. Few people know, and fewer care, that his wife and two sons were murdered at his command. This sort of a Romanized Jew is remembered chiefly because of his hypocritical treatment of the Wise Men and because he authorized the slaughter of the Holy Innocents—and even this deed of incredible cruelty might have been forgotten if the Innocents were not associated with the Babe of Bethlehem who grew into the Christ and bequeathed a new philosophy of love and peace to all mankind.

Some men question what has been accomplished during the 20 centuries since Bethlehem.

True enough, some of the records have been written with indelible inks of hatred and prejudice and splattered with much blood; but cynics had best not rest their argument too confidently upon the gory records written or provoked by men who either did not know Christ or openly rejected his commands.

On the other hand, the glad tidings announced to a few shepherds at Bethlehem have inspired courage and faith and love such as no earthly decree or proclamation has ever called forth.

Faith and Peace are eternal quests—and twenty centuries are mere fleeting moments of Eternity.

3. Where is Christmas island?
4. Who wrote "White Christmas?"
5. In what country was mistletoe first worn around the neck to prevent sickness?
6. What does the Saxon word "hael" or "be in health" mean in connection with a Christmas custom?
7. An old Christmas superstition starts "A warm Christmas means . . ." How does it end?
8. Who is Quetzalcoatl?
9. What plant, a thorny one, traditionally blooms only at Christmas time?
10. Until her death what song did Mme. Schumann-Heink always sing on Christmas Eve?
11. What is the literal meaning of "Christmas"?
12. Where are the remains of Good St. Nicholas of Myra buried?

Day of Days

It was three nights before Christmas and Margaret was packing to go home. Contrary to traditional sentiment, she was not happy about it, for she had planned to stay in New York with Ralph. With considerable forethought she had even planned the day; church in the morning, Christmas dinner with Amy and Bill, a walk down Fifth Avenue at twilight, a snack of supper, and the theatre.

But Ralph had been invited to a "swell house party in Philadelphia." Margaret slammed down the top of her suitcase. She could have borne up under a Christmas with a lonely mother, or a widowed sister.

"What about me?" she had longed to cry out, but she had, instead, smiled and said that it was just too marvellous, wondering meanwhile if Mr. Johnson would let her have an extra day off. Ralph had only to go to Philadelphia, two hours away, while she had no one within 500 miles!

Several hours later she stood on the porch o fa white frame house.

Now she was ready, bag in hand, for the midnight train. As she waited for the taxicab, she smoothed her black tailored woollen frock over her slim hips. If New York hadn't been particularly kind to her, it had at least taught her how to dress!

She couldn't sleep on the train. Closing her eyes, she saw the cluttered desk which she had left at Roswell's Advertising Agency, and Mr. Johnston's kindly face when hehad told her to go home for Christmas. She saw Ralph's desk in the manager's office, Ralph dancing in Philadelphia, Ralph opening Christmas gifts — and just Ralph, with whom she would never again share good times.

There was a three-hour wait for the local train at Pittsburgh, but Margaret was too tired and depressed to leave the station. After buying a magazine featuring an article on men, and an astrological delineation of her birth sign, she settled herself into the practical task of trying to determine her future in this most unpredictable world. Several hours later, not much wiser but much more weary, she stood on the porch of a white frame house.

The door opened and Margaret blinked.

"I win!" shouted Ralph triumphantly. "She came on the midnight train!"

Mrs. Brown rushed out to the hallway and enfolded her daughter in an ample, motherly embrace. "Margaret! Why child, you're a sight! Your face is as black as coal."

Margaret withdrew herself from her mother's arms and looked at the two of them coolly. "Well, if it isn't asking too much, just what is this? Not a weekend in Philadelphia, I believe!"

Ralph took her bag and magazine and helped her out of her coat. "Don't be like that, Margaret! I bet your mother a box of candy against a mince pie that you'd come down on the midnight train."

"And what, exactly, are you doing here?"

"Margaret!" chidded her mother.

"I invited myself. A surprise for you, and then I wanted to talk to your dad about something . ." Ralph was awkwardly turning the magazine in his hands. "Jumping fishes!" he exclaimed. "Look at the little red book!" He opened it to a centre page, and read: "The natives of this sign are more than likely to have short tempers."

"Give it to me."

Ralph held it tantalizingly out of reach and Margaret stamped her foot. "Ralph Wells," she said, "I came home for a rest and the first thing you do is to make fun of me. If I have a complete breakdown it's your fault. Give me that book!"

"There, there," comforted her mother. "You go upstairs and get washed, you'll feel better."

Margaret started up the stairs, then turned in sudden remembrance, "Are you staying over Christmas?" she asked Ralph.

"I had expected to."

"You might as well. There's a dance Christmas Eve."

At the top of the steps she turned again. "And don't forget, half of that pie is mine. After all I did the coming home!"

"Okay."

"She's tickled to death to see you," whispered Mother Brown cautiously. She patted his arm, and Ralph understood.

CANADA ASSUMES BIGGER ROLE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — Canada in 1947 took a determined stand in support of the rights of middle and small powers to participate in the peace settlements with Germany and Japan.

This diplomatic fight reflected the Dominion's broadened status in foreign affairs, despite failure so far to budge Russia in her opposition to such participation.

The Soviet Union is adamant that the big powers alone will write both treaties, as well as the Austrian settlement.

Early in the year, Canada presented her case for participation in the German treaty-making to the deputies of the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in London.

In the late Winter and early Spring at the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in Moscow, Canada again, through the British and United States delegations, urged that she and other middle and small powers who contributed to victory over Germany should have an adequate share in peace-making.

Skilful, patient work was done in Moscow through private talks with delegates by Dana Wilgress, at that time the Canadian ambassador to Russia. But the Soviet Union refused to yield an inch. It must be a big power peace, despite the war-time contributions of the other Allies.

Will be Revived.

As the year wore on, the importance of this issue temporarily evaporated before graver disputes between the Big Four over Germany. But it will be revived in time and if a separate peace is made by Britain, the U.S. and France with Western Germany, Canada and the other interested states will likely be granted the participation they desire.

The same issue is involved in the pending Japanese settlement. But it appears that the ten countries on the Far Eastern Commission, other than the Soviet Union will disregard the Russions and go ahead and draft a treaty without them. Canada is a member of this commission.

The United States has taken the lead in trying to get all the countries on the commission to share in the settlement and Canada heartily approves this plan.

The struggle for participation is a carry-over from the 1946 Paris peace conference, which drew up treaties with Italy and the four German satellites — Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria and Finland.

Canada, Australia and several other states battled in Paris for the principle of participation and won a partial victory, although the big powers had the final say.

Four Treaties Signed.

This fall, Canada formally signed the treaties with Italy, Hungary, Roumania and Finland. There was no treaty signed with Bulgaria, for due to an oversight Canada never officially declared war on that Balkan country.

Canada was invited to the western hemisphere defence conference in late Summer at Rio de Janiero, but declined. The government felt that the present defence arrangements with the United States are adequate enough without further commitments with Latin or South America.

In the sphere of trade Canada took a leading part in the International Trade Organization conference in Geneva from April to October and also was represented at the world trade conference at Havana which followed.

The diplomatic service continued to expand during the year, with several score young men being taken into the External Affairs Department.

Senior diplomatic changes were not numerous but the chief ones involved the transfer of Mr. Willgress from Moscow to be minister to Switzerland, and the switch from Rio de Janiero of Jean Desy to be ambassador in Rome. Major-General Victor Odlum was appointed ambassador to Turkey and E. J. Garland became minister to Norway.

Mountie's Wife Recalls North

Regina — (CP) — Saskatchewan blizzards held no terrors for Mrs. C. E. Rivett-Carnac when her husband was transferred here as assistant commissioner commanding the R.C.M.P. in Saskatchewan.

The first two and a half years of her marriage were spent at far-northern Aklavik, near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, in a small frame building with "good old oil lamps and a wood stove in every room."

The mail came by plane six times a year and usually meant a sleepless night as letters had to be answered before the plane left again in the morning. Christmas gifts came by boat in July. And frequently Mrs. Rivett-Carnac was alone for five or six weeks while her husband was on patrol.

A former Regina girl, she recalled her daughter Beverly, who was born at Aklavik, made a big hit with the Eskimos because of her blonde hair and blue eyes. They even made her a special little parka with boots.

Although she insists she "didn't mind too much" her stay at Aklavik which started in 1933, she confesses she was "awfully glad to be home.

The net operating revenue was $4,924,000. In November, 1946, revenues were $37,128,000; expenses $31,467,000; and net operating revenue $5,661,000.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—Police followed a three-mile trail of damaged automobiles Saturday night, finally caught up with a stolen bread truck and a 20-year-old youth whom they charged with car theft and dangerous driving.

The truck had sideswiped eight cars, causing a total of several hundred dollars' damage.

YULE SUPERSTITIONS

● You hang holly in your window to keep witches away, not for decorative purposes, according to one of the many legends and superstitions that have been built around Christmas customs.

● If you see a white Christmas, there will be a light graveyard, a dark Christmas, many deaths. Halloween is not the only day when spirits walk, they are also said to walk on Christmas Eve.

● Mistletoe is said to cure all wounds as well as give strength to wrestlers.

● Sauerkraut should be eaten for luck on Christmas.

● It is also bad luck to sew on Christmas or to decorate an upper room.

● Woodland spirits will be driven out of the house if it has been decorated with holly and ivy.

● Plum pudding, it is claimed, is eaten on Christmas day because the Wise Men brought spices to Jesus.

● Stockings hung over the fireplace will protect the owners from evil spirits.

● If a branch of yew is accidentally brought into a house on Christmas, it is looked upon as an augury that a death will occur in the family before the end of the year.

● It is also claimed that a child born on Christmas can understand the speech of animals, and see what others cannot see.

● Daughters born on Christmas will be wise, witty and virtuous.

DOLLAR SHORTAGE REDUCES MEAGRE BRITISH RATIONS

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP) — With dollars almost as scarce as lemons in post-war Britain, her people during 1947 found the national menu shrinking instead of becoming more varied.

While experts argued about the effect of protracted austerity on the country's health, there were warnings that the food import program might have to be trimmed further unless more hard currency was earned or otherwise made available.

Most basic food supplies are guarded by long-term contracts and to supplement them British missions dicker industriously with non-dollar countries, bringing in eggs from Poland, poultry from Hungary and dairy products from Denmark.

Domestic shortages make the sellers cautious, however, and often their desire for dollar payments or for machinery which Britain is pledged to deliver elsewhere hold up transactions.

In an effort to lessen the country's dependence on North America, British agriculture is being encouraged to produce as never before, but even if all 1948 targets are realized, only 42 per cent of the basic ration will be home-grown.

Food Minister Strachey, who went into office in 1945 determined to add a little variety to the national diet, now finds himself hard-pressed to maintain supplies which are designed to provide consumers with a daily average of 2,700 calories, compared with a pre-war 3,000.

Chiticize Diet

Recently a public meeting of doctors endorsed by more than 3-1 a resolution which said the present diet was undermining the national health. One speaker said that many persons were getting only 1,520 calories, although Jack Drummond, wartime scientific adviser to the food ministry, said there was misunderstanding over calorie requirements. People were adequately provided for, according to the work they did.

This was a reference to "differential rationing" by which the government gives heavy workers extra supplies of nourishing foods— bread, meat and cheese—and meat meals at canteens that bring their potential calorie intake well above 3,000.

An example of this preferential treatment is evident in industrial hostels, where resident workers get a weekly meat allotment worth 2s 9d (58 cents) compared with 1s (20 cents) to which the householder is limited.

White collar workers, unskilled laborers and those employed in light industry come at the bottom of the rationing scale. Although there are allowances for expectants mothers, invalids and small children, many Britons unquestionably fall below the average calorie level because of sacrifices made for other members of the family.

Distribution of supplies is regular and even, but if there is no starvation there is widespread weariness with rations that are repeated week after week in such meagre portions as one ounce of bacon and six ounces of margarine and butter.

On the credit side—and it is stressed repeatedly by the government —thousands of low-paid workers are eating a better-balanced diet than ever before.

Canned delicacies which helped to brighten the sparse monotony of the basic diet, although usually expensive and rationed on a points basis, are gradually disappearing from the stores.

Their departure makes more welcome the arrival of overseas gift parcels, thousands of which come weekly to individuals or for distribution through organizations to the needy. As a gesture of sympathy to Briton who were flooded from their homes last Spring, Ontario residents sent 400,000 pounds of food and $97,000 to be spent on additional provisions.

Charitable organizations handled the distributions, selecting needy families and allotting parcels according to their size.

The government offers little hope of an early improvement in food supplies. The dollar crisis led it last Autumn to curtail its buying program abroad at a scale aimed at saving $48,000 monthly. This meant a reduction in wheat imports of 81,000 tons monthly, meat 18,000 tons, cheese 7,000, dried eggs 1,500, animal fats 4,700 and bacon 1,700. Canned meat imports were cut 3,000 tons and canned fish by 2,500.

The reductions did not effect the long-term contract by which Canada provides Britain with 4,800,000 tons of wheat annually —just 50,000 tons less than the minimum required to maintain the present requirements of bread rationing.

60,000 Britons Leave Homeland For Opportunities in Dominion

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP) — Queues are long in Britain—and none longer than that of persons eager to emigrate to the dominions.

Adding up figures from steamship and air transport companies and estimates from the offices of the various high commissioners, one arrives at a total of approximately 250,000 awaiting transportation to a new life which they hope will be more rewarding than that of post-war Britain.

Already this year, about 60,000 have left for Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Although final 1947 figures are not yet available, the total may be approximately broken down thus:

To Canada, in the same ratio as was evidenced in the 6 months ending September 30, about 36,550.

To Australia, at least 4,500.

To New Zealand, where the total was expected to be "in excess of last year's 4,800, about 6,000.

To South Africa, "at least 10,000 if not 12,000.

Government Estimate

A government statement in the House of Commons recently estimated that at least 50,000 Britons were queued up awaiting passage to Canada; 20,000 to New Zealand, and 95,000 to South Africa. The reply did not mention Australia, but an Australian House spokesman put the number of applications for immigration to that dominion at "about 107,000."

Allowing for some duplication of applications — for example more than one would-be emigrant has said he has no preference between Australia and New Zealand — this still means about one Briton in every 180 wants to leave the country.

Viscount Addison said in the House of Lords last month that such large-scale emigration places the government in a dilemma. On the one hand the dominions have stated their need for population increases; and any steps which would strengthen the individual dominions would also strengthen the Commonwealth. On the other hand the enterprising men and women who wish to emigrate may in many cases represent the best type of British citizen to strengthen the mother country's own labor-short economy.

For the time being the British government's policy is one of laissez faire with no hindrance put in the way of those who wish to emigrate but little encouragement is given them to leave.

What long-term policy may evolve is uncertain; many persons in Britain feel such emigration is valuable in the long run in that Britain's economic setup cannot forever hope to support the number of residents now within the country.

Subject for Debate.

Meantime the moral question of whether a man should leave Britain now — when post-war austerity piled upon seven years of war has discouraged many, and a supreme industrial effort is needed to pull the country out of the economic doldrums — has been widely debated in the press.

Opinion is about evenly divided on the subject — but often wider publicity has been given reports of discontented persons returning from their new homes overseas than to those pleased with life in the dominions.

Five men who returned from Ontario this year after a six-week trial of the province were interviewed and photographed on their arrival home; but only small print on an inside page records the Ontario House statement that of 5,400 flown to Ontario up to December 12 approximately 95 per cent obtained satisfactory employment within 3 days.

The reverse of the picture is that Britain still plays her traditional role of willingness to absorb political outcasts from continental Europe.

There is a keen demand for additional labor in such fields as mining, farming, cotton and woollen industries and the like and to date about 25,000 persons from D.P. camps in western Europe have been imported to fill vacancies.

Orchestra, Soloists In Bach Cantata

The second of the six canatats that make up the "Christmas Oratorio", by Johann Sebastian Bach, will be performed on CBC tonight under the direction of Cesar Borre. Soloists will be Arthur Bartlett, tenor, and Mary Palmateer, contralto, supported by a chorus from the Royal Conservatory of Music School of Opera, Toronto.

The program will be heard at 7.30 p.m. EST on the CBC Trans-Canada network.

Rarely performed in its entirety, Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" is especially noteworthy for its second cantata, which opens with a pastoral symphony, considered to be among the most delightful of Bach's orchestrations, and which pictures the shepherds watching their flocks by night on the plains of Bethlehem. This is followed by a narrative, and then by the chorale "Break forth, O beauteous, heavenly Light."

The rest of the cantata includes a brilliant aria for tenor, "Haste, ye Shepherds, haste to meet Him," and the cradle-song for alto — "Sleep, my Beloved, and take thy Repose"—heard just before its conclusion.

Many Splendid Programs Scheduled for CJBQ

Listeners to "The Voice of the Bay of Quinte" will be entertained royally during the Christmas holiday. The management of CJBQ has released the following information regarding "The Christmas Season, at 1230 on your dial."

On Christmas Eve at 8.00 James Bankier and Alec Gordon will present a pre-Christmas concert of carols and old English airs. How do people of other lands spend their Christmas? Perhaps many have wondered and at 8.30 it will be told on the program "Christmas in Other Lands." Frank Luther, well known teller of children's stories will be presenting a group of Christmas fantasies at 9.00, when he tells the old tale of "The Night Before Christmas." "The Little Match Girl" and the "Story of the Nativity." CJBQ's two thriller programs will be heard at their regular times, 9.30 for "Curtain Time" and 10.00 for "The Whistler."

At 12.00 midnight the special events department will broadcast from St. Michael's the Archangel Church. The regular midnight Mass will be described for our listeners by staff announcer Phillip Flagler. For the information of those interested in news summaries, the news will be heard at their regular times with the exception of the 4.00 p.m. summary on Christmas Day. An additional roundup will be heard after the Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, at approximately 2.00 a.m.

On Christmas Day the station will begin operations at 8.00 a.m. with the news of the world. At approximately 8.15 the listeners will be given the opportunity of listening to their church choir, regardless of the religion. For the past month the engineering department of the local radio station has been travelling from church to church with their portable recording equipment and the result is this program, which should appeal to all listeners. Beginning at 9.00 CJBQ will join the CBC for a special broadcast from London, climaxed with the King's speech at 10.00.

Bridge Street United Church have a special program recorded earlier to give one man's idea of "Christmas Eve on Queen street in Toronto". Stephens-Adamson of Canada say the best for the coming season with their program "The World Says Merry Christmas" at 12 noon. 2 o'clock brings to CJBQ one of the best programs produced in Hollywood, "The Happy Prince". It is a story which will put a glow in your heart and act as an appetizer for your Christmas dinner. The show features Bing Crosby and Orson Welles. Christmas carols will be heard at 2.15 and 4.30 in the afternoon.

One of the loveliest of symphonic works will be heard at 3, as Mr. Eugene Lang presents "Handel's Messiah". Lyn Murray's Christmas show will be presented at 4, featuring Earle Writson and the Gotham Quartet with music supplied by Mr. Murray. Another of CJBQ's feature Christmas shows will be at 5, when Dicken's "Christmas Carol" will be on the air with stars from the major networks. An old favorite that never dies is the "Story of the Nativity" presented at 7:30, featuring Walter Hampton as narrator with music specially composed by Gordon Seamon. The production is under the direction of Earle McGill.

CBC Gives Radio Christmas Party Coast to Coast

A Christmas party for all Canadians within reach of a radio will be given by the CBC on Thursday, at 8.00 p.m. EST, 9.00 p.m. AST, over a special network designed to interest listeners coast to coast, the broadcast party will offer a variety of entertainment—light music and serious, songs of the old land and the new, gay humor and a reminder of the holiday's true significance, all "gift-wrapped" specially for Canadian Christmas, 1947. The festivities will originate in the CBC's Toronto studios.

A 33-piece orchestra under Geoffrey Waddington will provide a melodious setting for the program, which is to be one hour in length. A Toronto vocal group —the Leslie Bell Singers—will do a fantasy of Christmas carols; Cuban troubador Chisho Valle will sing a Latin American number; the orchestra is to play a musical Christmas card prepared by Howard Cable from themes of well-known radio programs; Tony Stecheson will present a Ukrainian carol; Gisele la Fleche is to sing "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" in both English and French; and concert baritone Edmund Hockridge will offer the A. A. Milne favorite, "The King's Breakfast."

Other highlights of the program will be a story of how it became a custom to place the figure of an angel at the top of Christmas trees, written and narrated by Mary Grannan; a tale of what happens to an actor at Christmas, related by J. Frank Willis; and a monologue on the theme that Christmas is for optimists, to be given by Dick Nelson, mimic.

THE FIRST TYPEWRITER

The first typewriter on record was one designed by Henry Mill, who patented it in 1714.

Gives Account of First Carol Here

An account of the origin of 'Within a Lodge of Broken Bark", believed to be the first carol ever sung in Canada, is to be given in a broadcast on Friday by Dr. Charles Peaker, organist at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto. Dr. Peaker's program, to be illustrated by him at the organ, may be heard at 4.18 p.m. EST, over stations of the CBC Trans-Canada network.

"Within a Lodge of Broken Bark" was translated into the Huron tongue from the French in 1643 by Father Brebeuf, French missionary in Canada. (It was translated into English some years ago by Edgar Middleton.) In his Huron version of the hymn, Brebeuf made the Christmas story easier of comprehension by the Indians by calling the Bethlehem stable "a lodge of broken bark," the shepherds "wandering braves", the three kings "chiefs from far", and gold, frankincense and myrrh "gifts of fox and beaver pelt".

'Gift of the Magi' Is Christmas Story

One of O. Henry's best-loved stories, "The Gift of the Magi", will be read for radio listeners tonight by the Canadian actor and dramatist Tommy Tweed. It will be heard at 8 p.m. EST.

Interpreting the age-old tale of the Magi's gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh to the Christ child, O. Henry's story is of an impoverished young couple who sacrifice their most prized possessions, to give each other a Christmas gift.

CAME FROM THE EAST

The peacock, inhabitant of Ceylon, Burma, Malaya, and Java, was imported into Greece by Alexander the Great.

A Merry Christmas to All From The Management and Staff of Radio Station CJBQ

CHRISTMAS REVENGE

By DAMON RUNYON

Christmas is coming around once more, and it always reminds me of what good times we have at such a season of the year back in my old home town out West.

It also reminds me of the Christmas that Swede Sam Sudenberg has the big Christmas tree and celebration in Union Park, and gives Christmas presents to all the little boys and girls of my old home town, there being many such, both male and female.

In fact, statistics prove that there are more little boys and girls in my old home town in those days than any other town west of the Mississippi, proportionately to population. It is a matter of which all our citizens are very proud indeed, and is mentioned to everybody who visits our town.

This Swede Sam Sudenberg who gives the Christmas tree and celebation to the little boys and girls is a big squarehead who is run out of my old town by Marshal Dillon a year before, because all Swede Sam does is to hang out around saloons, and drink beer, and whiskey, and keep himself drunked up at all times.

Naturally nobody wishes to see such a character around my old home town, and Marshall Dillon not only run Swede off, but gives him a good booting down the railroad track to make Swede Sam understand he is not wanted.

Well, Swede Sam goes up into the Cripple Creek district, and the next thing anybody knows he strikes it rich. He is wandering around the hills drunk one day and falls into an old prospect hole, and what does he find in this hole but a pay streak which is overlooked by the guy who first digs the hole.

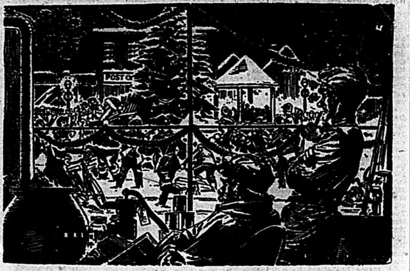
Swede Sam comes back to my old home town with plenty of dough, and naturally everybody forgets what a no-account proposition he is when he is there before. A no-account guy without money, and a no-account guy with plenty of it, are two different matters in my old home town and everywhere else.

Well, it is along about Christmas when Swede Sam returns, and he says he wishes to put on a big Christmas tree and celebration because he always loves the little boys and girls of my old home town, and also is very proud of my old home town having so many little boys and girls, both male and female.

Now this does not sound like sense to a lot of people who know Swede Sam well, and know it is not like him to be loving anybody or anything, or being proud of anything, but as long as he has the dough to pay the bills for his celebration nobody can see any objection. In fact, many of our citizens are in favor of it, figuring it will save them money in playing Santa Claus.

So Swede Sam sends up into the hills and has the biggest pine tree in the whole country cut down and put up in Union Park. Then he goes to Denver and buys Christmas presents for the little boys and girls, though what these presents are nobody knows until the night 'of the doings.

The tree is certainly a pretty sight standing there in Union Park, all lighted up with electric lights, and decorated with glass balls, and one thing and another, and at the foot of the tree are stacks of long bundles and a whole slew of bicycles. There are hundreds of the long bundles and hundreds of the bicycles which anybody can see are girls' bicycles.



"And then out comes old Bill Hemming made up as Santa Claus, and starts to hand out the presents."

The park is jammed with little boys and girls, pulling and hauling, and much pleasured up over the idea of receiving presents from Santa Claus. Furthermore, all their parents are there, figuring maybe Santa may have something left over for them.

Old Swede Sam certainly does the thing up right. He has McClelland's Silver Cornet Band there and also the choir from the First Methodist Church to do some singing, and, Preacher Hathaway to say a sermon, and Dr. T. Hannibal Wilcox to make a speech, although of course, Dr. T. Hannibal Wilcox is nobody else but old Doc Wilcox.

Well, of course, a lot of nice things are said about Swede, and what a credit he is to the community, which, of course, he is nothing of the kind and then out comes old Bill Hemming made up as Santa Claus, with whiskers and one thing and another, and starts to hand out the presents. Old Bill is one of Swede Sam's pals in the days when Swede Sam is hanging around the saloons, but he makes a first rate Santa Claus.

It seems the bicycles go to the little girls, every little girl in town getting one, while the long bundles go to the little boys, and they turn out to be .22-calibre rifles, with several boxes of cartridges with each one. There is also candy for all hands, including the parents, and then the celebration comes to an end with everybody giving three cheers for Swede Sam.

Well, of course, there is some comment on Swede Sam's choice of presents, because some of the little boys who get the rifles are only two or three years old, and some of the girls who get the bicycles are not much older, but everybody figures it shows Sam's heart is in the right place, anyway.

But by noon the next day one and all realize that Swede Sam picks these presents out on purpose, and they can see what a terrible man he is at heart. Furthermore, everybody in my old home town is very sorry Marshal Dillon runs Swede off, and makes him sore at us, because by this time of day there is not a live pigeon and very few canary birds left in town, and crippled cats and dogs are running every which way screeching and howling like the dickens, with bullets from these .22-calibre rifles in them.

Every window light in town is busted, and nobody is safe in the public streets, because if they do not get hit by stray bullets they are sure to be knocked over by little girls learning to ride bicycles. It is one of the most terrible situations that ever comes up back in my old home town out West.

It sounds like the Fourth of July in the streets, as some of the little boys are playing Indians with their rifles, and other little boys are playing cowboys, and everywhere you hear the voices of little female children crying because they tumble off their bicycles.

Well, the members of the city council get together as soon as possible and pass an ordinance forbidding .22-calibre rifles, or bicycles, in the city limits, but by this time the damage is so great that they also add another ordinance forbidding public Christmas trees, or Swede Sam Sudenberg within the county lines for a period of 10 years.

But the chances are Swede Sam Sudenberg does not care, because nobody ever sees him anywhere near my old home town again.

Christmas Roem

The time draws near the birth of Christ.
The moon is hid; the night is still;
The Christmas bells from hill to hill
Answer each other in the mist.

Four voices of four hamlets round,
From far and near, on mead and moor,
Swell out and fall, as if a door
Were shut between me and the sound.

Each voice four changes on the wind,
That now dilate, and now decrease,
Peace and good-will, good-will and peace,
Peace and good-will, to all mankind.
—Tennyson.

Hunting the Wren In Old Ireland

Once upon a time in Ireland, the wren was hunted and killed on Christmas morning: a branch of holly and bright ribbons were attached to his body which was carried from house to house by wren boys who sang songs and expected to receive a dole from each household.

The story goes that during the Danish-Irish war, the Danes were resting after an arduous march and the Irish were creeping up quietly. All of a sudden a wren, spying a few crumbs which the drowsy Danish drummer had dropped on the drumhead, swooped down and began to peck at the crumbs. The pecking awakened the boy, who aroused the camp: the Irish, driven off and defeated, blamed the wren.

Modern Irish, ashamed of the once-honored tradition, say the guilty bird may have been a starling or a sparrow anyway, and now welcome the wren to their farms and homes.

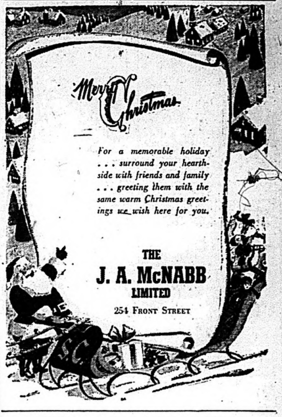
Future Foretold By Drowsy Hens

Divinations were an important part of the Christmas festivities in Czarist Russia.

After a special family Christmas dinner, the girls of the household placed five piles of grain upon the kitchen floor: each pile was given a name, such as Hope, Ring, Money, Thread and Charcoal. A drowsy hen was fetched from the henhouse and allowed to walk around the kitchen floor and choose a pile of grain.

Obviously the hen's choice of Money meant wealth; Ring, foretold a wedding within a year; and Hope, promised the fulfillment of a wish or a long journey. If the sleepy chicken chose the grain designated as Thread, a life of toil was predicted for the marriageable maiden of the household; and Charcoal was considered an omen of death in the family.

Old songs were sung to accompany such goings-on, while the girls and women vied to devise complete stories based on the antics of the hen.



For a memorable holiday . . . surround your hearthside with friends and family . . . greeting them with the same warm Christmas greetings we wish here for you.

Wassail Bowl For Auld Lang Syne

The Wassail bowl goes around in Scotland — and elsewhere — at New Year's time.

The origin of the custom is really lost in antiquity: Saxon ancestors probably quaffed their ale from the polished skulls of defeated enemies, and the Rowena legend must be classified as "presumably fiction".

Rowena is reported to have offered her father's guest—Prince Vortigren—a bowl of wine with the salutation "Lord King, wasshael", literally, "To Your Health". Draining the bowl with one draught, Vortigren fell in love with Rowena and they lived happily ever after.

Anyway, in time the bowl itself became an ornament of graceful design — decorated with branches of greenery which formed a canopy over the bowl. The mixture within was warm and included ale, sugar, spices, sweetened wine was added by hosts who could afford it, apples floated on top of the decoction, sometimes called "lamb's wool" or the "old man's beard." The poorer classes carried a bowl decorated with ribbons around the neighborhood, begging that it be filled, so they, too, might enjoy the Wassail.

The custom of making short calls on New Year's Day was in full swing throughout America about 1900. Newspapers carried columns of "at home" notices specifying the hours during which visitors would be received. A succession of "open houses" and punch bowls sometimes minimized the courtesy accorded to hostesses —receptions were often "crashed" custom has fallen into decline and, by bibulous strangers; hence, the publicly announced "open house" New Year's calls now being exchanged only by intimates, the Wassail bowl goes 'round in private.

Christmas Day

On Christmas Day we repeat the old familiar greeting that, each year, in some mystic way rings fresh and true — "Merry Christmas". Like such words as "hello" and "good-bye", there really isn't anything else to say that pulls at our heartstrings as do these old dear words. And so again we say.

Merry Christmas—to the littlest ones who skip downstairs in the gray dawn to explore their stockings and the wondrous tree and to look at Christmas with the special radiance of youth . . . who lend to the rest of us little glimmers' of the real Christmas glamor.

Merry Christmas — to father who'll strain a point any day to give us all the things we want . . . who probably works much too hard and yet keeps younger and more alert because of the responsibility of a family and the competition of business . . . who makes the gesture of tut-tutting all the fuss and feathers yet beams with affection and excitement.

Merry Christmas — to mother who really calls the tune for the holidays and does the planning and pulling together . . . wro flutters and bustles radiantly for weeks ahead and undoubtedly has the best and busiest time of all.

Merry Christmas — to the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker, not to mention all those who sold us shoes and ships and sealing wax . . . for what would Christmas be without them? For through them we've all been able to share our own little prosperity in the most wholesome way of all —by spending it.

Merry Christmas — to dear friends far and near who've sent us greetings and gifts . . . most especially do we cherish the greetings because even more than gifts they express the true spirit of Christmas.

Merry Christmas —to the droppers-in who come with holiday cheer and friendship . . . who come to our parties or stop by to leave a glass of extra elegant jelly or an original privately invented relish.

Merry Christmas — to ourself, for that matter. But then we feel pretty sure that we'll have one for we've put so much work and excitement and loving getting-ready into it. For of course we all get out of Christmas just about what we put in.

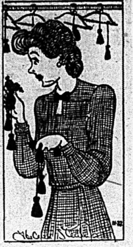
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON



Sachets are a boon to a beauty budget

Be Individual as to Perfume

If a woman wants to feel like a million dollars, believe that there's life and loveliness in the old girl yet, she surrounds herself with the exhilaration of an enticing perfume. There's nothing like it to impart a feeling of elegance.

Some perfumes are costly; many are inexpensive. They come to suit all purses. The costly ones are likely to be exotic. They come in lovely containers that impart an air to the dressing table, and they have lasting qualities. But, if you will take a fastidious nose with you when you go shopping and do some clever sniffing, you'll come home with a little package that won't set back the balance in the checkbook.

Old-fashioned offerings have been revived with spectacular success this season. Violet, rose, lily-of-the-valley have devoted addicts who have been using them for years. There is our good friend eau de cologne that you can splash all over yourself, if your little heart desires, and no nose will be curled scornfully when you waft into the landscape. It is a nice, fresh, inspiring fragrance. Toilet waters, as you know, are not as strong as essences. But they serve the same purpose. They should be the final touch after the daily bath.

There are ravishing bouquets or blends that carry the most captivating names, all suggestive of glamor. They attain wide popularity. When you find a favorite, stick to it. To change perfumes is a mistake. The sweetest of them—like the sweetest of women—will fight each other sometimes.

Scent everything you wear. A drop on the hem of your frock when you are going to dance. A drop or two on the girdle. You will be surrounded by a subtle, trailing fragrance.

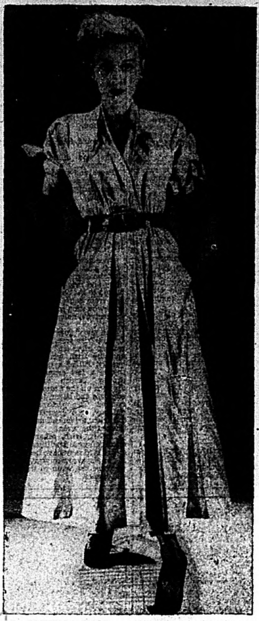
Or, if you wish, keep your perfume in an atomized, spray chest and arms immediately after the bath. Just a wee bit, mind you. The warmth of the flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate; only the floretted odors will remain.

You may like to buy a perfume with a long glass stopper. Pull out the stopper, pass it back of your ears. Never put perfume on your hair. Even a few days after the shampoo, the glands of the scalp will have deposited waste substances on the scalp that will change the character of the scent.

Light, delicate mixtures are in better taste than heavy ones that are likely to offend the public nose. The delicate ones bring back rose-tinted memories of youthful days when romance was the main objective in a girl's life.

If you must be mindful of the beauty overhead, seek out sachets. Few women realize how satisfactory they are, how sweet and lasting. Put them on your coat hangers, in your hat boxes, among your undies.

A Deal With Paris



By PRUNELLA WOOD

DIOR IS THE new fashion name from Paris. . . . a name which is spreading in the quick way of fashion news everywhere that fashion is known. He designed the easy and flattering frock, above, choosing an American-loomed satin, with grosgrain stripe for his medium.

The tint is creamy, the belt black patent leather; the manner in which the seleves are wrapped and tied above the elbow is particularly effective with the unexaggerated rounding of the shoulder line. Hafner satin, imported to Paris, was used for this model, and the finished frock was imported back to us here. It will be reproduced here in its original fabric by American fashion producers.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

What to Give Her Boy Friend For Christmas

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please suggest some gifts I could give my boy friend for Christmas and for his birthday, which is quite soon after Christmas? We have been going together steadily since last Lebruary. I would like to give him expensive gifts, perhaps a more expensive gift for Christmas than for his birthday.

Madeline

In choosing gifts for your boy friend you'll show a greater wisdom and have more fun, too, if you think of them as an evidence of fine taste and thoughtfulness and imagination on your part, rather than to put the emphasis on "expensive". A smart girl, when she gives a gift to a boy, splurges on discrimination rather than on dollars! What are your boy friend's tastes, his enthusiasms, his hobbies? Music? Then how about giving him some records (perhaps an album of records) of the kind of music he enjoys, either classic or popular. Books? Now you can show your discrimination too, and give him one or two or several books you have reason to believe he will like. Or a subscription to a magazine, or to a book club (making your gift "appear" several times a year, instead of once). Has he a collector's hobby, perhaps for stamps or coins? You can get him a commemorative series of stamps, or one of several rare stamps, or an interesting old coin, or perhaps several. Does he like games? There are excellent game sets, handsome, too, in saddle leather containers. Or how about good-looking letter-paper, Club-size single sheets or double-sheeted, with his initials engraved in heavy letters of dark-gray or dark-blue. (Half the supply in the box could be air-mail paper and envelopes.) Or give him a pen-and-pencil set, or one of the trick new pens. Or some fine, white linen handkerchiefs for evening wear, handsomely embroidered with his initials; or a muffler, wool for daytime wear, silk for evening. Or, for his desk, a traveling clock, a pair of heavy, sporty-looking book-ends; or, for his luggage some item such as a dressing-case; or an item of smoking equipment; or a camera.

Plans For Her Informal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married in a church. I am to have only one attendant, and we are both going to wear day dresses of street-length. The groom and best man are to wear business suits. Under these circumstances, (1) Would it be proper for my uncle to give me in marriage (that is, even though I am not to wear a wedding gown), and (2) Is it necessary for us to send out formal engraved invitations?

P. J.

(1) Even though you are to have an informal wedding and are to dress informally, you may have your uncle give you in marriage. (2) Not only is it not necessary for you to send out formal engraved invitations for such an informal wedding, but it would not be correct. If you sent out formal invitations, the guests would take this to mean that the wedding is to be formal. To such an informal wedding, the guests may be invited by word-of-mouth, by telephone, or by notes.

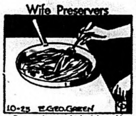
"Good Afternoon" a Too-Formal Form of Greeting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it all right to use "Good afternoon" as friendly greeting? I heard it used yesterday and it sounded so queer and stiff. But I can't figure out why this should be, since "Good morning" certainly isn't stiff.

Elaine

"Good afternoon" has never been accepted as a pleasantly informal greeting, like "Good morning" or "Good evening". It sounds too much on the side of formality. . . . more appropriate to the lecture platform. "How do you do" is a more appropriate form for the afternoon greeting of friend-to-friend.



Best results are obtained in cooking bacon by starting it in a cold frying pan. Heat should be kept low, the bacon turned frequently in order to cook evenly, and excess fat should be poured off as it collects in the pan.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An Incredible Story

Sometimes I get a letter that I find it hard to believe was written seriously. It seems as though the writer must have dreamed up the situation he describes, just to see what I'd say.

On the other hand, some of the situations which the letters deal with are so fantastic that it seems impossible they could have been imagined.

One such, which I have just received, is from a young man whose attitude toward the girl he married is something for which I can find no name. To my way of thinking, he is one of the most thoroughgoing cads who has ever taken the trouble to write me.

In brief, this is his story:

He and the girl who later became his wife were childhood friends, but apparently never seriously interested in each other. While he was in service, she married to escape an unhappy home situation, but lived with her first husband only about six weeks. Then she divorced him on the ground of infidelity.

Because this girl and the man who wrote me the letter had been friends in childhood and still lived in the same town, it was not surprising that they should resume their old acquaintance when he was discharged from the service. As time went on, she confided in him that, following her divorce, she had had an affair with a friend of his.

"I thought a lot of her until I found this out," my correspondent writes. "Nevertheless, I kept going with her. I then married her with the understanding that we would get a divorce after our baby was born."

The baby is now about six months old, and our gallant young man is trying to collect on his wife's pre-marital promise to divorce him once the baby was given his father's name. The wife, however, so far from being willing to go through with the plan, is doing everything she possibly can, even to the point of threatening suicide, to retain her married status.

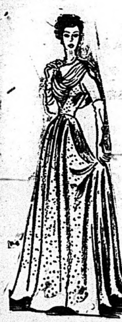
"She loves me very much," says my correspondent. "I am sure of that. But I am not in love with her. I have a very deep feeling for her, but I know I can never forget what has happened. She is a good girl; she'd never step out on me or even flirt; I am sure of this. But she is very jealous of me. She says she doesn't want to live if she can't live with me. On the other hand, she says she doesn't want to deprive me of happiness, yet she is not willing to give me up. Knowing what I do, I am sure I can never love her. Please tell me how to go about getting a divorce without hurting her."

To that last, there is obviously only one reply, which is that there is no possible way this man can divorce this girl without hurting her.

To all the rest, there is so much that one might say that it would be hard to know where to begin.

It seems incredible that any young man could be so contemptibly mean and so hypocritically self-righteous that he would have the bald effrontery to condemn a girl for conduct which he himself forced her to repeat. It is hard to see why any girl would want to live with a man who took such an attitude toward her, and who would no doubt poison her whole life with his preposterous reproaches. But, since she does, if he has even one little spark of decency in him, he should make a pact with her that both will do their best to make their marriage work, and let their future wipe out their mutual mistakes of the past.

In Form For Formality



Beautiful white evening dress

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

WHITE CREPE spattered all over with tiny crystal sequins is the happy medium for this dainty evening dress. The draped neckline, criss-crossed from a V-shaped inset cover the shoulders and terminates in a capeline in back. In the skirt the fullness of the flare is concentrated mostly front and back.

Fashion Flashes

FIRST PLACE in the hat sweepstakes in both high and medium priced brackets seems to be the light felt cloche with turn-back brim pulled down to one side and held by a dark feather fancy—this in aigrette type or ostrich pompons or small plumes. Hat is generally worn off-face.

IT'S REMARKABLE how navy blue is holding on, especially in high style merchandise. Dark navy blue slipper satin makes a beautiful after-dark costume. The simple dress has a snug bodice that closes with tiny self-covered buttons to below the waist. The ankle-length skirt flares softly. Slashes at the neckline reveal shirred pink chiffon. The jacket is hiplength, nipped in through the waist then flared, and fastened at the waist with one link-button.

GROWING IN importance is the suede coat, for town and travel as well as for the usual country wear. A beautiful travel coat, with moderately flared back and loose sleeves with turn-back cuffs, is of precision matched and joined squares in alternating shades of brown and aqua suede. Small collar extends to high, wide-peaked revers.

THE TRIM LINE marks some of the new suit designed for undercoat wear. Golden yellow gabardine is used for a charming suit, its jacket marked by hand-stitched detail at the deep revered coat and double-breasted front which closes with two rows of buttons at the trim waist. Slig padding makes much of hip fla of 21-inch jacket. Skirt is inches from the floor and is mo erately full in contrast to th trim, cutaway jacket.

MOST POPULAR shoes an gloves for after-dark wear ar of black suede or doeskin wit gold touches.

'Marvellous' Prystai Notches Two Goals as Chicago Hawks Swamp New York Rangers 7-1

(By The Canadian Press)

It may be a little early yet, but Chicago fans who watched the Black Hawks in action last night are ready to proclaim the National Hockey League stumblebums of the last few months as a possible "sleeper" when the chips are down next spring.

Boasting five wins in their first 25 games, the Hawks took on the New York Rangers — the team that was knocking the opposition for a loop in early December—and cooled out the blueshirts with a 7-1 trimming.

It was a pretty gesture toward Chicago coach Johnny Gottselig, who coached the club to a dreary last-place finish last season and will hand over the reins to Charlie Conacher next week. Johnny will be even happier in his new role as general manager if his boys take a reef in the third-place Bruins in Boston tonight.

Another smiling face in the Chicago camp belong to rookie Metro Prystal, a one-man team with the Moose Jaw Canucks last season when the western club reached the Canadian junior finals.

Armed with a heavy file of press clippings and the sure-fire nickname of "Marvellous", Prystai has been considerably less than a ball of fire with the Chicago club this season, but last night he rammed home two goals within 30 seconds and rounded out the evening with a spirited brawl that sent him and Ranger forward Tony Leswick to the cooler with major penalties.

Veteran Red Hamill was another double scorer for the Hawks, while George Gee and Roy Conacher were the other goal-getters. Grant Warwick was the lone New York marksman.

Other Christmas eve action pits the third-place Rangers against Detroit Red Wings at Detroit while Toronto Maple Leafs travel to Montreal to take on the fourth-place Canadiens. The league leading Leafs need a win to protect their one-point margin over the fast-closing Detroiters, while Boston, New York and Montreal, separated by single points, could shuffle the standings.

Leafs and Canadiens will be short-handed as ace forward Maurice Richard sits it out for the Montrealers with a leg injury and big Harry Watson leaves his first-string left wing spot for the Leafs to nurse a bad knee.

Sports Roundup

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Dec. 24 — (AP) — As is our wont, it being a very economical way of expressing the Yuletide spirit, we this year again confine our giving to advice, sympathy and understanding, fully realizing the advice will not be taken, the sympathy is unwanted, and the understanding will be misunderstood.

Advice

Joe Louis — don't jeopardize the great esteem in which you are held by belittling Jersey Joe Walcott and hinting you might not meet him in June. Silence, in your case, is golden. Instead of drying out before the next fight, it would be better to dry up.

The Notre Dame football team — hey, quit flexing your muscles. You're scaring everybody away.

Leo Durocher — you're getting your big chance. Keep a civil tongue and behave like a gentleman and you'll have the critics swinging over to your side. Good guys do win pennants.

Boxing solons — take definite action, either pro or con, concerning Rocky Graziano. If he's never going to be allowed to fight it means a tied up title, and the middleweight muddle will start all over again. If he's out for good, say so and make plans to determine a successor, however sympathetic he may be.

Sympathy

Burt Shotton — it's tough to build a mansion then have someone come along and say, "Pardon me, but this is my lot." Everyone appreciates the fine job you did with the Dodgers, and respects you for the way you quietly stepped aside for the return of Durocher.

Floyd Bevens — we know how it would be to be drooling for a piece of pie, then have it splatter on the floor just when we were ready to take a bite, so we appreciate how you felt when Cookie Lavagetto dropped that ninth-inning double against the right field wall to ruin your World Series' no-hit game.

Jersey Joe Walcott — When you do something you think is pretty good, and nearly everyone else thinks is pretty good, but the two you want to think it is good, don't, that's not good. So have a right to feel downcast over losing the decision to Joe Louis because a couple of judges couldn't be convinced.

Understanding

Ted Williams — You led the American League in just about everything offensively, so you probably wonder just what a fellow has to do to be rated most valuable player. You took it like a man, though. We've all had similar disappointments.

St. Louis Browns — nobody seems to appreciate you are trying to build with youth. We know what it would be like to have everybody criticizing every move we make. It's your business, anyway.

And if it's any of our business, we wish everyone a Merry Christmas.

Football Claws Not Dulled By Long Layoff

(By The Canadian Press)

Inactive for several weeks except for practice drills, Hamilton Tigers claimed the layoff had not dulled their football claws as they prepared to leave Friday night to engage Vancouver Blue Bombers for the Dominion Junior Football Crown—official or unofficial.

Finally selected as eastern representatives after the most confusing season on record, the Tigers are not particularly worried in their two-game "Evergreen Bowl" series with the Bombers Jan. 1 and 3 was recognized by the Canadian Rugby Union as a championship affair or not.

Cleveland's Boxing Commission yesterday said it would recognize the winner of the Ezzard Charles-Archie Moore bout at Cleveland Jan. 13, as the light heavyweight champion and recommended to the National Boxing Association that similar action be taken in 30 member states.

W. A. Hewitt, chairman of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's Rules Committee, has announced the C.A.H.A. has adopted a rule change made recently by the National Hockey League and other professional leagues.

The regulation provides that, if a player in the zone from which a pass is made is preceded by the puck into succeeding zones, he may take possession of the puck, except where the "icing the puck" rule applies. If replaces a rule which had required all passes originating in the defending zone to be completed at the centre-ice red line.

Contending that Baltimore's municipal stadium is constructed on public park property injunction proceedings have been filed seeking to prohibit the City Department of Recreation and Parks from leasing the grounds to the Baltimore Orioles of the International Baseball League. Residents of the area have protested use the field for night baseball games, claiming that lights, loudspeakers, and parked cars have created a nuisance.

Winston (Bing) Juckes of New Haven Ramblers, who scored three goals on two consecutive nights last Saturday and Sunday, tied the American Hockey League record set by Tommy Birmingham of Cleveland Barons, it was disclosed yesterday.

Glen (Junior) Davis, former West Point football star, has asked the United States army for permission to leave the service. Davis graduated from the academy last June and under West Point regulations is bound to serve eight years in the army unless released earlier.

Dave Hackett, 21-year-old left winger with Montreal's McGill University Senior Hockey squad, has been invited to join the Amateur Hockey Association's team that will represent the United States at the Winter Olympic games. He is a native of Boston.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Merry Christmas

Much happened in the year just closing that sports fans and athletes should be thankful for.

1947 saw floodlights come to the Exhibition Park, and a new artificial ice plant to the Memorial Arena.

* * *

True, a lot of us wanted more. But if we stop and think that Belleville is far more blessed than some centres its own size and a few a lot larger, then fandom here should be grateful for what we have received.

* * *

Efforts along community recreational lines this year have resulted in the nucleus of larger, more expansive things to come especially in the junior departments.

* * *

With the acquisition of the artificial ice, movements are also already afoot for the formation of midget, juvenile and bantam leagues.

* * *

The installation of artificial lights in the Exhibition Grounds resulted in a surprising increase in box office receipts. This innovation, it is felt, and rightly so, gave the baseball fan who works till six o'clock the opportunity to see his favorite sport at his leisure.

* * *

Artificial ice also was responsible in a great measure to the inauguration of the first district and city hockey league here in decades. It not only provided pre-season hockey for the fans, but the opportunity for players to condition themselves, and also to bring shekels to the coffers of the community-owned Memorial Arena.

* * *

So at this festive time of year, let us not be envious of what other cities have, but instead be thankful for what has been done for sportdom here.

* * *

And so to "youse guys and gals", to all of you, those who sent us "orchids" and those who "took us apart" at times, may the 1947 Christmas season and that of the New Year be the best ever.

* * *

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By ARCH MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Dec. 24—(CP)— The old-timers may mutter that things are coming to a pretty pass but the idea that Winnipeg Blue Bombers have a Ladies Auxiliary —at $10 a head—is catching on but fast.

Bombers, who came so near the Canadian Rugby crown this year, currently are conducting a membership campaign and one of those who beleive women should be admitted to the Hitherto Exclusive-Male organization—the club not the team which presumably will continue exclusively male—is Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan.

This is his Opinion:

"The Bomber players demonstrated this year that it is possible to play winning football without overdoing the hammy, rough-and-tough he-man act—on or off the gridiron. We don't know what some of the old-timers will think but the club membership has decided to abandon its hair- on-the chest exclusiveness. In other words , there is nothing to prevent female fans from becoming members of the club, provided, of course, they kick through with 10 bucks.

"Certainly, if there had been a Ladies' Auxiliary of the Winnipeg Rugby Club in 1946, the bombers never would have been permitted to take the field in the East-West final in those disgraceful ragged sweaters about which there was so much ado in the eastern papers.

"No fooling, there are lots of ways in which the gals can help."

Days of Yore

Every once in a while someone comes up with the declaration that hockey isn't what it used to be—and no compliment is intended. Maurice(Free. Press) Smith writes about one of these cases and the complainant is Art Somers former N. H. L. player who replaced Harry Neal as coach of the Winnipeg Black Hawks.

The Hawks presently — and seemingly irrevocably—arebringing up the rear of the Manitoba Junior A Association and it may be that this has embittered art.

Anyway, says Smith, hockey—and Junior Hockey in particular —has changed a lot according to Somers. When he was starring with Winnipeg Falcons, first local team to win the Memorial Cup, the players ate, slept and drank hockey. It always was uppermost in their minds.

"But today," he quotes Somers as lamenting, "you go into a dressing room and what do you find? All you hear the kids talking about is the dance they attended the night before or the girl they are going to take out tomorrow night. Th last thing they appear to have on their minds is the game on hand.

"Why even the pros. seem to have more interest in winning their games than a good many of the junior players you run into."

Wiggie Wylie Lost to Rockets By Appendectomy

(By The Canadian Press)

The Yuletide, usually a time of good cheer, had nothing to offer to Stratford Indians or Galt Rockets.

The third-place Indians blew their chance to take a one-point second-place lead over Hamilton Tigers when they were defeated by the sixth-place Hamilton Patricias 5-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association senior A tilt at Stratford last night.

The fifth-place Rockets lost a 4-2 decision to the second-place Oshawa Generals at Galt in a junior fixture and also the services of the league's top scorer, Wiggie Wylie, through an appendectomy.

The Stratford game was a complete reversal of form for the Indians as they gave Pats their sixth win in 19 tries. Monday night in Hamilton, Pats grabbed a two-goal lead, only to lose out finally, but last night the Indians took a two-goal lead, only to have it wiped out in the second period when Pats tallied two counters in less than two minutes.

Eight minutes later Pats went one to the good on Robby Robinson's goal but Pete Long knotted the count shortly before the end of the second frame.

With the game 3-3, Hugh Barlow put Hamilton ahead at the 6:28 mark of the third session. Ten minutes later Barlow tallied the clincher.

Frank Long and Killer Kilpatrick scored Hamilton's other goals. Pete Long, Jim Eady and Billy Flick were Stratford marksmen.

Fifteen penalties were handed out in the Galt game, 10 to Oshawa. With the loss of Wylie, coach Alfie Moore sent rearguard Pete Kkachuk up front and he scored the first goal. Don Blair tied it up at the 15-minute mark. Galt went ahead agin at the end of second period on defenceman Bob Robertson's counter.

Speed, Deception Against Weight And a Prayer

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 24 (AP) —Michigan's speed and deception against Southern California's weight and prayer — that is still the picture of the New Year's Day game in the Rose Bowl.

Michigan, in other words, remains the top-heavy favorite to hand Southern Cal its second defeat in 10 appearances in Pasadena's rose-trimmed saucer.

There is an element of mystery around the Trojan preparations, however. For the first time in their history, the Troys have retired to a new setting — Santa-Barbara — to drill in utmost secrecy for the New Year's Day engagement.

This was a move apparently calculated by their coach, Jeff Cravath, to repair whatever morale was damaged in the dreadful encounter with Notre Dame Dec. 6 (38-7).

And if it is humanly possible to bring his club back off the canvas, Cravath is one realistic individual who can do it.

As for new or refurbished playing strategy, offence or methods of defence to solve the magic of Michigan's Bob Chappuis and mates, this, too, remains in the mysterious file and won't be available for inspection until the Cardinal and gold takes the field before those 90,000 spectators a week from tomorrow.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A forcing-to-game bid is comforting, in a way. It permits the pair to relax temporarily. It enables them to leisurely exchange information until they are ready to decide their best contract.

Take this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A 7 4 3	♠K Q 9 2
♥A 9 3	♥7 2
♦A Q J 4	♦K 8 6 5
♣A 6	♣K Q 7

South opens with a bid of one diamond. He promises, among other things, at least five tricks. North responds at once with a bid of two spades. This is known as a one-jump takeout.

The one-jump is a signal that the pair should not stop until at least a game is reached. When the one-jump is a takeout to any suit it promises not less than six tricks.

When a one-jump response is made at the first opportunity, it also guarantees two sure tricks. Thus, the two spade response shows six tricks with two sure tricks and a biddable spade suit.

With his own six, south can already see 12 tricks in their pair. With spade support, he could determine this as their final trump suit. But there is no hurry. Exchange more dope, first.

South bids three spades. He knows this bid will not be passed. A forcing-to-game signal has been given. The next bid by north is four diamonds. He now shows his assist for the first bid suit.

This tells south that their trump suit can be either spades or diamonds. Now it is only a matter of what kind of slam they have. And this may depend on the number of kings held by north.

Modern bidding systems include some signal devices for learning from partner how many aces and kings he holds. The Kibitzer convention is such a signal device.

Thus, south will now ask north how many kings he holds. When he learns this, south can decide whether to end at six or seven.

Going places, it is not always necessary to rush.

AT THE BELLE

"Thunder in The Valley" Heart-Warming Story in Color

Once in a great while there comes to the screen a motion picture of such wonderfully heartwarming quality, and of such truly dramatic grandeur that it remains a rare and unforgettable experience for every moviegoer. Such a picture is Twentieth Century-Fox's "Thunder in the Valley," which, photographed in color by Technicolor, opens Christmas day at the Belle Theatre.

The outstanding cast starring Lon McCallister, Edmund Gwenn and Peggy Ann Garner, Louis King's supremacy sensitive direction, Robert Basslers breathtakingly beautiful production, and Jerome Cady's brilliant screen play combine to make "Thunder in the Valley a perfectly marvelous screen achievement. Rarely, indeed, is it that a motion picture can draw claim to such sincerity and warmth in its telling or mark the measure of deep human emotions with such dramatic power and excitement as does this one.

The role of the vitriolic and cunning Adam M'Adam calls from Edmund Gwenn the fullest measuer of his acting ability. Gwenn, who scored a singlar triumph in "Miracle on 34th Street," comes through with a brilliantly etched portrayal that firmly establishes him among the screen's greatest actors.

Lon McCallister is splendid in the role of the sensitive and wistful —David M'Adam. Among others, his drama-charged scenes with his imperious father (Gwenn) attest to his stature as an actor to be reckoned with on all counts.

In her first grown-up role Peggy Ann Garner is sheer delight. You'll love Peggy Ann as the gentle girl who employs the classic feminine wiles to win her beau. Reginald Owen and Charles Irwin head the extra-special supporting cast.

"Thunder in the Valley," is a "must" for every member of the family. It's great, grand entertainment from start to finish.

DEVIL'S WORK

By Carolyn Wells

CHAPTER 7.

"I do my best. She needs a sharp word now and then, and a bit of flattery at times. I hope to keep her decent while she is here, and not have any flagrant disgrace."

Jean sighed, and Sayre realized that she had serious troubles that he hadn't known of.

"He would bring her?"

"Oh yes. I can do nothing when he is determined. And she is really impossible. She made my baby give up her lovely nursery and go up on the

"Her crying kept Esme awake! Brandon, how can I stay here? And I cannot go."

"You shall go, Jean. You must go. Tell me darling, could you love me well enough to come to me? You used to care for me a little—"

"I don't care—now. I was blind when I turned from you to Vivian. But we can't manage it. He is too strong an enemy to conquer."

"No if you love me, I will see to it that you get your di

"It sounds like heaven. But you do not know your enemy. Vivian would fight divorce, in any case, but more so if I were leaving him for you."

"He hates me so much?"

"Not personally. But he is so very jealous, and he has always been jealous of you. No, he explained to me why it would be impossible for me to get a divorce if he were not willing.

"I'll make him willing."

"You don't know what you're saying. There's nothing you can offer him. He has everything."

"I can find out some secret about him, some disgraceful bit of knowledge—"

The position was a good one. An assistant was employed to help with the less dignified labors, perquisites were plenty and ured than not. But he had a high-temper, and Molton flattered himself that he knew how to deal with temperamental employers.

As Vivian strode along he met Jean walking with Brandon Sayre.

He saluted them smartly, gave Jean a quizzical smile and passed on.

"What's the matter with him?" Sayre asked.

"I don't know. He's in the oddest sort of mood."

"Are you going to stand for that fly-by-night much longer?"

Brandon, don't you know that success is in the silences? Don't you suppose I know what I'm doing—and why?"

I am not a gossip, Jean dear, but Suzy told me that Vivian had house? Did he do that?"

"Why yes, but he put her with her nurse, in one of the prettiest of the guest cottages. They are comfortable there, and I go there whenever—I want to."

"And get soundly rated for it! Jean, you mustn't give in so to that man! The more patient a Griselda you are, the more you will have to be. Do assert yourself! You know I think only of your good when I say this."

"I know that, Brandon. But you can't understand. I've only one object in life—to protect my child. He threatens to take her away from me—"

"What you can't mean that!"

"I do mean it, and if he ever does that, I will kill him, though it be the last act of my life."

"Don't say such things, dear. You must get a divorce. His cruelty to you is sufficient cause."

"No, he won't let me do that. You see—no, you can't see, for your idea of love is gentleness; his is fierceness. He really does love me—more than he loves any one else in the world. These affairs of his are only the most passing interests. Esme has lasted longer than most, because she has that charming air of ingenuousness which, when you know her life, is a sort of paradox."

"I don't care if it's a paradigm. You must not have her here. You must put her out."

"It's more likely that he would put you out. He has already begun to warn me that I must let you alone."

"Don't be silly, darling. I will not let you alone, whatever his orders. I will be with you and keep you with me, until I make him notice it."

"And then?"

"Then we'll have an understanding, and perhaps—fight a duel."

"Oh, Brandon, don't do anything like that! He would kill you!"

"You rate my skill so low?"

"No but he won't—"

"You can't say it, Your gentle soul won't let you. But I know what you mean. You mean he won't fence fair."

"Something like that. And—he knows a trick thrust."

"So do I. I haven't lived in uncivilized countries without learning this and that. But it won't come to that. I am going to save you from yourself, Jean, and do it in a civilized way, not by heathen warfare. I have a friend, a lawyer, who will put it over quietly, and without delay. Vivian will give you a large settlement, but if he doesn't, it will not matter. I have plenty, and—Jean," he drew her to him, "you will marry me when you are free, won't you?"

"It would be heaven," she whispered, "but I can't see the way."

"I'll find a way," Sayre said, and then Austin came round the corner of the rose hedge.

"Don't mind me," the intruder said gayly, seeing the faint flush on Jean's face, and Sayre's slight frown. "I say, you ought to see Viv! He's laying down the law to a new valet, and he's more fussy about his clothes than Beau Brummel himself, and about manners than Lord Chesterfield. But I tell you the fellow has a muscle on him that would fell an ox!"

"But Vivian doesn't want any oxen felled." Jean told Austin.

"He'd better make friends with his minion, though. I've heard rumors and portents—"

"What do you mean, Austin?" Jean asked him.

"Oh it rather centers about the baby doll. That siren vamp! Esme would be Circe and Helen rolled into one, if she only had some decent background. I wonder you let her stay here, Jean!"

"Why, Austin, has she treated you as badly as all that? You must have been put in your place!"

"Nonsense, she doesn't belong in this environment, that's all."

"Well, I can't put her out. Go to Vivian."

"Did, and nearly got put out myself! But what I heard hinted was that she is already married, and her better half—he couldn't be worse—is coming up here to take it out of Viv."

"I know where you got all that gossip," Sayree said. "From our alert reporter and commentator, Suzy."

"Well, pay no attention to it," Jean begged. "I don't want any scenes until after the tournament, and then let us hope Esme will fade out, leaving Vivian all in one piece."

"She won't take his heart with her," Austin declared. "He's pretty near fed up with her already. Guess we'd better let sleeping dogs lie."

The most of those gathered at Forrest Fell the day passed happily. The fencing enthusiasts practiced with energy and patience and the others found varied amusements.

In the late afternoon, making certain that Vivian was in the play garden, swinging Esme so high that she squealed with frightened pleasure, Jean went to the pretty white cottage where lay the jewel of her heart.

"She's asleep, Mrs. Forrest," said Rhoda, "But—well, it's almost time she wakened."

The mother lifted the baby from her crib, and she nestled in the welcoming arms.

"Oh, you darling, you precious!" Jean crooned over her curly head. "Has anybody been here, "Rhoda?"

Trench fever or typhus is transmitted by lice.

On a recent coyote-hunting-by-plane expedition, they recounted, one of the "dead" coyotes began snapping at Davidson's back.

It was disconcerting to be attacked by a coyote in mid-air, he said, but a shot ended the animal's life before any damage was done.

the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Agriculture Department showed Tuesday.

The supply of Christmas trees is good with wholesale prices ranging from 15 to 40 cents a tree.

And except for the usual worries over prices and high feed costs, the farm situation is improved, the crop report indicated.

Prices for pure-bred livestock have improved and the market for hogs and weanling pigs has steadied, particularly in western counties. However, in eastern and central sections of the province, breeding of sows for spring farrowing has fallen off.

In Durham county, the number of sows bred has been "surprisingly low," and in Victoria county only two-thirds as many have been bred in the last three months as were bred in the same period of 1946, the crop report said.

Pope's Cold Prevents Christmas Eve Visit Of College of Cardinals

Rome, Dec. 24 (AP) — Pope Pius will not receive the traditional Christmas Eve visit from the College of Cardinals today because of the cold from which he is suffering, an informed source said.

The Pontiff will, however, broadcast a Christmas message which was to have been his reply to the traditional Cardinals' greeting. Informants said the address would last about 3 minutes. It is to be given at 4:55 a.m. EST. An English-language translation will be transmitted at 11 a.m. EST.

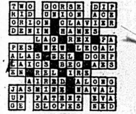
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Retired Police Officer Praises Syntona Highly Was Veteran of World War I, Returned with Bad Stomach Troubles. Took Many Treatments Without Relief. Tells His Experience.
"HARRY GARVIN," well-known former C.N.R Constable who resides at 227 Ray Street, Hamilton, Ontario, thinks every sufferer of stomach trouble should be able to profit by the experience he had over a long period of years.
Here is Mr. Garvin's story as told recently:
"For over 20 years I suffered with stomach trouble originated during my overseas service in World War I First. It was fried foods and rich pastries that gave me trouble, but as time went on, I got so bad I could hardly eat a thing without having awful attacks of gas, acid rising, heartburn, cramps and bloating. I was subject to dizzy spells, had many restless and sleepless nights, and no ambition to do my work. I took every medicine I heard of, went on special diets, was many weeks in hospitals and all in all spent a small fortune in search of relief. Nothing seemed to do me any good.
"One day I read in the paper about Syntona being good for stomach trouble and decided to try it. From the very first bottle I got noticeable relief. Then, following directions carefully, I kept on taking it until I was able to eat anything without fear of suffering afterwards. My appetite returned and I got so that I could sleep the whole night through.

"That was some time ago and since then I've had no stomach troubles and am enjoying the best of health."
Many, many people like Mr. Garvin have benefited immeasurably by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. You, too, can obtain the same good results.
Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Tired of shopping? Well, 365 days of it are coming up and it will be a good idea to get the shelves in order, for the world promises to come calling for about everything Canada has, or can dream of producing.

The Christmas stocking of 1947 looks very good, though some of the things in it may produce headaches if not handled judiciously.

Most interesting shiny new item is the European recovery program (Marshall plan), which has yet to run a course of bitter debate in the United States Congress, but which seems bound to produce an attempt to buy many Canadian goods.

President Truman indicated that some billions of dollars would be spent in Canada.

It hasn't yet been fitted into Canada's late year program of trying to balance its ledger with the United States through import restrictions, or increasing manufactures at home, and generally aiming at world-wide trade. Neither has it yet been fitted into Canada's present large contracts to supply food to the British markets.

However, this seems in store:

Canada in 1948 will embark on a maximum expansion of production, both of raw materials and manufactured goods, with virtually all lines receiving the stimulation whether or not they are directly affected by the European program.

When the present "so-called-artificial" buying is over Canada will be equipped with a great producing plant which will require an outlet in increased "normal" sales both at home and abroad.

In view of this observers feel that the mad rush of buying expected in 1948 should not obscure the need for long-range planning.

On the market front yesterday buying continued buoyant and moderately lively. Toronto extended the recovery shift with the gold section moving into action on good advances for secondary golds as calculations of the value of government assistance were being completed. Industrials in New York, Montreal and Toronto, generally moved steadily on an upward trend.

British Taxpayer Becomes Own Railway Owner Dec. 31

By DON SCHWIND

London Dec. 24 (AP)—The British taxpayer, who becomes his own railroad owner at midnight Dec. 31 inherits a problem which for complexity and ability to generate political heat surpasses even the coal business he took over last Jan. 1.

The taking over of Britain's gigantic transportation assets will be wholly academic for the average Briton. Beyond newspaper stories heralding it there is little to bring home that he shares ownership in 52,000 miles of railways, more than 2,000 miles of canals thousands of miles of bus, tram and tracking routes, the dock and harbor systems — and the bill for $4,000,000,000.

For a long time yet he'll pass his ticket to the same seedily-uniformed collectors, say a morning "cheerio" to the same porters and use the same shabby carriages sporting colors of the late "Big Four" companies — The Great Western, Southern, London and Northwestern, and London, Midland and Scottish.

To some extent, the railway nationalization is a pig in a poke, for not until Jan. 2 will the 800,000 stockholders know the interest rate they'll get once their holdings are converted into government obligations.

High officials of British railways as the new combine is called, say they'll have a good proposition if the interest is pegged at three per cent but a paper loss if the figure is 2 1-2.

Taxpayer's hope that nationalization will cut rates were dashed months ago.

Transport Minister Alfred Barnes, speaking just after one increase had been levied and shortly before another was imposed, warned that "the charges of our transport system have got out of gear with the general price level in the community."

In fact Lord Portal, chairman of the Great Western system warned that rates are bound to rise after vesting day.

Here are some of the problems:

1. Rolling stock largely outmoded even before 1939 and pounded mercilessly under war conditions since.

2. Low moral among employees reflected widespread discourtesy, low operating efficiency, and a bad accident rate.

3. An internal struggle over the degree of centralization of control within the giant new system.

4. Wages and rates.

5. Decrepit plants such as ancient stations falling into decay and acute disrepair, outmoded dock and harbor equipment, and neglected track and right-of-way maintenance.

As of "vesting day," about 20 per cent of the country's locomotives are out of service awaiting repair. More than 200,000 freight passenger and coal cars are immobilized for want of vital parts or the labor and machinery to effect repairs.

There is no hope of an adequate rolling stock supply within five years.

The "railway executive" to operate the system under the transport commission consists of six full-time officials and two part-time members. The rail system will be broken up into six regions.

"Dead" Coyote In Back of Plane Snaps at Flier

Brandon, Man., Dec. 24 — (CP) — When you load a dead coyote into the back of a small airplane, make certain he's really dead.

This is the advice of Don Davidson and Chuck Harvey, two members of the Brandon Flying Club.

On a recent coyote-hunting-by-plane expedition, they recounted, one of the "dead" coyotes began snapping at Davidson's back.

It was disconcerting to be attacked by a coyote in mid-air, he said, but a shot ended the animal's life before any damage was done.

Turkeys Plentiful Across Province

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—Turkeys are plentiful at 40 to 50 cents a pound wholesale in all sections of Ontario except Cochrane south where all holiday fowl is scarce, the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Agriculture Department showed Tuesday.

The supply of Christmas trees is good with wholesale prices ranging from 15 to 40 cents a tree.

And except for the usual worries over prices and high feed costs, the farm situation is improved the crop report indicated.

Prices for pure-bred livestock have improved and the market for hogs and weanling pigs has steadied, particularly in western counties. However, in eastern and central sections of the province, breeding of sows for spring farrowing has fallen off.

In Durham county, the number of sows bred has been "surprisingly low," and in Victoria county only two-thirds as many have been bred in the last three months as were bred in the same period of 1946, the crop report said.

Pope's Cold Prevents Christmas Eve Visit Of College of Cardinals

Rome, Dec. 24 (AP) — Pope Pius will not receive the traditional Christmas Eve visit from the College of Cardinals today because of the cold from which he is suffering, an informed source said.

The Pontiff will, however, broadcast a Christmas message which was to have been his reply to the traditional Cardinals' greeting. Informants said the address would last about 3 minutes. It is to be given at 4:55 a.m. EST. An English-language translation will be transmitted at 11 a.m. EST.

Labor Weathered Political Storms in Britain in 1947

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Fortified by continued success in defensive by-election battled but harried by economic crises, Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government in 1947 extended its program of public ownership and control despite stiff opposition from Winston Churchill and the Conservatives.

Five Labor seats were retained in by-elections while Conservative candidates blasted at nationalization policies, the growing web of government controls and some features of the stern austerity program.

Labor received its severest shock since the 1945 general election when a large Conservative vote turned out in November municipal elections. Labor lost 695 local council seats in England and Wales and the Conservatives gained 643. In Scotland, Labor lost 78 seats.

Labor blamed defeats on the austerity program imposed as a legacy of war. Party spokesmen found comfort in a subsequent Labor victory in Gravesend by-election where restrictions were the chief issue. But they also noted the Conservatives were counting more votes in most by-elections even if they failed to capture government seats.

Commons debates grew in bitterness as a massive legislative program was spurred by Lord President Morrison. Government supporters approved a "guillotine" procedure to halt long debates on controversial measures and it was imposed on the bill to nationalize transport, described as the largest single measure of state control ever presented.

The legislation, effective April 1 despite opposition efforts to halt it, nationalizes railways and their ancillary services, canals, inland transport and long-distance road haulage. Compensation to private owners in government stock will total more than £1,000,000,00 ($4,000,000,000).

Widespread Controls.

The opposition also fought the electricity bill to nationalize municipal and private electricity undertakings with £350,000,000 involved in compensation. The gas industry will be nationalized in the present session.

The Town and Country Planning Act gave the government control over the use of land with the right to levy a charge of increased values. An agriculture bill established prices and assured markets for farmers, and also authorized the removal of an inefficient farmer from his land.

The National Service Act continued compulsory service in the forces for young men despite grumbles from anti-conscriptionist Labor members.

The Supplies and Services Bill of 68 lines, passed over opposition protests, gave the government unlimited power over use of resources, and the Control of Engagements order made many men and women liable to direction in employment.

Parliament passed legislation giving India and Burma their independence, the first divided into two dominions and the second as a country outside the Commonwealth.

Left-wing criticism of Foreign Secretary Bevin's foreign policy died down after he received a resounding vote of confidence from the Labor party annual conference.

Fuel Crisis.

A fuel crisis that closed factories and caused widespread unemployment in February brought severe criticism for the government and Fuel Minister Shinwell in particular. The opposition, backed by some Labormen, charged failure to plan adequately to meet Britain's economic difficulties.

In October, Attlee announced a large-scale re-organization of his cabinet, shifted Shinwell to the war ministry, and promoted Hugh Gaitskell to the fuel portfolio where he will guide the campaign for increased coal production as the key to British recovery.

Attlee also dropped an old colleague, Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, and named Sir Stafford Cripps, board of trade president, as minister for economic affairs with far-reaching authority to plan the recovery drive.

In November Hugh Dalton left office as chancellor of the exchequer after admitting he had told a reporter budget details before they were given the House. Cripps was made chancellor and was spoken of as the next prime minister should Attlee resign.

The government also introduced legislation to reduce the period for which the House of Lords may veto Commons legislation from two years to one. Angry objections came from the Conservatives but the bill speedily passed the Commons and thus can become law before the government's term of office ends in 1950.

Urges Government To Balance Wages And Living Costs

By JOHN LeBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa — (AP) — A showdown with Communists in Canadian unions and continued demands from labor for a more favorable balance between wages and living costs highlighted 1947 for labor in the Dominion.

As the year closed out, labor was demanding government measures to make its dollar go further and there were indications that unless the cost-of-living spiral was halted, a new round of wage demands would be laid down early in 1948.

The wholesale removal of price controls in the second half of the year had touched off a clamor in opposition to the move, and by December the Canadian Congress of Labor was telling the government that the upset slide in prices had all but wiped out wage gains made earlier in the year.

What labor wanted was a return of price control on basic necessities such as foodstuffs —but no controls on wages — subsidies on some essential living-cost items, and re-imposition of the excess profits tax at wartime levels. It wanted prices rolled back to the point where they started their upward surge in the fall.

Communist Issue.

The Communist issue snatched a large portion of the headlines during the year. This was started when J. A. (Pat) Sullivan in May announced simultaneously his withdrawal from the Communist party and his resignation as president of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) on the ground it was dominated by the Reds.

Sullivan subsequently formed the Canadian Lake Seamen's Union which was engaged in a running battle with his old organization for the rest of the year.

The 360,000-man Canadian Congress of Labor embarked on a house-cleaning of Communists. At a tumultuous convention in Toronto, it denounced Communism, elected an anti-Red executive and embarked on a drive to cut down the Communistic influence in some of its affiliated unions.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada didn't go that far. But at its annual convention in Hamilton is voted condemnation of any party or individual trying to use labor "for their own advantage."

Employment continued high during the year. At the peak of industrial activity during the summer, the Department of Labor reported only 1.4 per cent of Canada's labor force was unemployed.

Manpower Survey.

The department's latest manpower survey showed that unplaced applicants for jobs outnumbered available vacancies by about 25,000 in mid-November. That was an increase from the employment peak, chiefly due to slackening off of jobs in seasonal industries.

In wages, the general average was up over the previous year, though labor contended the increases did not keep pace with living expenses.

The field of labor legislation saw the return to provincial jurisdiction of authority which the federal government had taken over in labor relations during the war. The Dominion retained its jurisdiction over shipping, communications and industries of that type.

Industrial relations legislation provoked some controversy. Labor unions expressed opposition to some aspects of British Columbia's new industrial relations measure, and in lesser extent to the Dominion government's measure of this type introduced at the 1947 session of parliament.

The federal enactment was held over, on the decision of the government, and new legislation was to be introduced at the current session. Its details have not been revealed.

Girl Sculptures Tiny Mastodons

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto — (CP) — Ribs and skulls of prehistoric monsters, blending in grotesque shapes and shadows cast by a lone nightlight along museum walls, supply creative atmosphere as 24-year-old Gloria Jeffries works on clay reproductions of giant mastedons for your Christmas mantel.

You'd think she'd be scared silly, but instead the youngest member of the Sculpture Society of Canada marvels at the "magnificent shapes as they come to life at night" to provide inspiration for models to be sold thru' the Royal Ontario Museum where she is employed.

The pretty brunette, who works with skeleton remains 40,000 years old, offers among other Christmas-gift suggestions, a giant mastodon, granddaddy of the elephant, 10 feet high and 21 feet from tusk-tip to tail joint, reduced to the size of a kitten — in clay.

"Only through reproductions and models can educationists and art lovers obtain copies of things locked in show cases," said Gloria

Although she has cast many moulds, the most difficult cast Gloria has tackled in her eight months at the museum is the mastodon.

Teetering atop a step ladder, she took accurate measurements of the skeleton, estimated to be about 40,000 years old. Then measurements were reduced to one-fifteenth of the original size and charts were carefully drawn before the bones were carved in miniature. Muscles were moulded over the bone structure and the animal was given the lifelike appearance it had when it roamed the North American continent.

Gloria thinks "science has a tendency to kill art — the exacting qualities of the scientist leave little room for imagination and interpretation." It is her job to combine the two.

NEW YORK DIGS OUT FROM PARALYZING STORM

Two Die, 3 Injured In Head-on Crash Near Foxboro

Robt. Gannon, Hilda Beary Of City Instantly Killed

Two persons are dead and three others are in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital as the result of a head-on collision early Christmas morning between two cars on Highway No. 14, one and a half miles west of Foxboro.

The dead are Robert J. Gannon, aged 28, of 282 John Street, Belleville and Miss Hilda M. Beary, aged 22, also of this city at 67 Dundas Street.

The injured are Miss Helen Munroe, 62 Moira Street West, a passenger in the Gannon driven vehicle, and Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort of Stirling. Dr. Vandervoort is a dentist at Stirling.

Provincial Police Constable Sam Ervine who investigated stated that the accident occurred about 1:30 Christmas morning as the two cars topped a slight knoll. The impact was terrific with both cars a complete wreck. The cars bounded off to the side of the road and into opposite ditches. It is believed that Gannon and Miss Beary died instantly.

Gannon, who was a driver for Diamond Taxi in Belleville, accompanied by Miss Beary and Miss Munroe, all three riding in the front seat, was proceeding east toward Belleville, while the Vandervoorts were westbound, returning home to Stirling after a shopping trip to Belleville.

Gannon, it was stated, had checked off duty with the taxi firm at midnight and had borrowed one of the company cars to do some personal driving. He was returning to the city when the accident occurred.

Passing motorists are credited with assisting the three injured persons out of their wrecked cars, while Mr. A. Cain, farmer residing near the scene of the crash, also assisted in getting the injured free. He called police and medical aid to the scene of the accident. The injured were attended at the scene by Dr. F. R. Ross and were rushed to hospital by Martin's ambulance.

Of the three persons injured Mrs. Vandervoort, former nurse at the Belleville hospital, is the most serious, it is stated. Mrs. Vandervoort suffered multiple fractures of the jaw as by the force of the impact she was thrown against the dash and windshield. She also suffered fracture of the facial bone, severe lacerations and shock. Dr. Vandervoort suffered a broken left leg, deep scalp lacerations and shock.

Miss Munroe, the only one in the Gannon driven car to survive the accident, suffered leg injuries, lacerations and shock.

Attending physicians stated that none of the three were in danger, while the condition of Miss Munroe, a former Picton girl, was stated to be very good.

FALSE ALARM TO PARLIAMENT HILL

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP) —Fire reels, bells clanging and sirens wailing raced to Parliament Hill today, but it was a false alarm and not a blaze similar to the disastrous fire that destroyed the main parliament buildings during the First World War.

Steam issuing through a ventilator was mistaken for smoke by a government employee and he turned in an alarm.

IMMIGRANTS ENTERTAINED

FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF WRECKAGE

Newport, Wash., Dec. 27—(AP) — A four-day search completed yesterday for plane wreckage in the mountains near Ione, Wash., failed to disclose any trace of a plane, Sheriff Darrell Holmes said last night. The search party hoped it might find wreckage of a Royal Canadian Air Force B-25 Mitchell bomber missing with 9 persons aboard since Oct. 18 on a flight from Calgary to Penticton, B.C.

STRENUOUS SPORTS

Most sports experts agree that the most strenuous sports are, water polo, handball, basketball, football, hockey and lacrosse.

Hundreds of Ducks Swept Over Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 27 — (CP)— Game wardens and veteran rivermen today reported the worst death toll of wild ducks in 25 years, after counting those that perished when swept over Niagara Falls during a dense fog.

About 500 birds were picked up by Game Warden William (Red) Hill along the lower Niagara River. Some will be sent to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, while others will be presented to this district's charitable institutions.

1947 Momentous One for Canadian Trade Says MacKinnon in Review

Ottawa, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Trade Minister MacKinnon in a year-end review of Canada's growth as a trading nation, said today that 1947 had been a "momentous one for Canadian trade" and decisions taken "will lead to changes which we hope will work toward a better balance in Canada's trade with foreign countries."

The minister reviewed how Canada had been forced to impose import restrictions to conserve American dollars and urged the co-operation of business men and manufacturers to make these restrictions workable without imposing further strain on Canada's economy.

Post-war Loans Used

"During the past year many of our post-war loans to European countries have been used up and more supplies will be available for export to hard currency areas," the minister said. "Exports of some commodities to the United Kingdom are likely to diminish as Britain has had to adjust her imports to her current and immediately prospective exchange balances.

"The flow of Canadian goods from now on must be more evenly balanced between hard and soft currency countries in order that our international obligations may be kept within the limits of our capacities."

The most hopeful development in 1947 was the successful completion of the Geneva Conference on trade and employment which drew up the charter and the trade agreements defining the guiding principles of international trade for the future.

"These agreements may well outweigh any other developments in the field of international trade during the year," the minister said.

Adjustments Obtained

Canada had obtained some major adjustments in tariffs and quota restrictions currently in effect in the United States and certain European countries, particularly for her agricultural goods and manufactured products. These concessions would have a favorable effect on Canadian exports in general and to the U. S. in particular.

The minister said the conditions leading up to Canadian restrictions of imports from hard currency countries were the extension of loans to European countries while at the same time purchasing U. S. goods for cash and continued supply to the United Kingdom largely on credit.

With a few exceptions, the drain on Canada's American dollar exchange had been constant and had reduced Canadian holdings from $1,250,000,000 last January to $500,000,000 at the middle of November.

Exports to Europe

On the export side of the picture the minister said that Canada had been "deliberately" channelling her exports to Europe. Contracts for many staple commodities had kept the bulk of the export surplus off the world market and strict embargoes on shipments had kept others from more lucrative markets.

In proportion to her population, Canada had played a part "second to none" in extending post-war aid as a practical step in the establishment of peace.

32 MISSING ON VESSEL SUNK IN TYPHOON

Three U.S. Women Among Survivors

Manila, Dec. 27 —(AP)— Twenty-nine of the 61 persons who were aboard the Danish motorship Kina, sunk by a typhoon in the Samar Sea, have been rescued but 32 still are missing, the East Asiatic Company reported today.

Those saved included three American women en route home from Tokyo.

The company, agents for the Kina, made the report after an exchange of message with the motorship Samuel Bakke, anchored at Calbayog, Samar Island. The Bakke earlier had erroneously reported that all but five aboard the Kina had reached shore, then messaged a correction.

Chief Officer F. L. W. Dalberg of the Kina reported, the company said, a total of 12 passengers and 17 crew members were safe.

Capt. Aage Hrernum, 30 other crew members and one passenger were listed as missing.

Dalbert and four of the crew were landed at Calbayog after being picked up at sea by the Bakke. The other survivors were reported to have reached Dinalio Point, north of Calbayog, in lifeboats.

Planes and tugs continued their search for others from the Kina, who attempted to ride out the typhoon in lifeboats or on pieces of wreckage.

The typhoon, with winds which rose to 120 miles an hour, uprooted trees, flattened power and telephone lines and blew off roofs in Manila, where five persons were killed and at least 20 were injured.

There were no further reports of casualties, but communications were out with many of the stricken provinces to the south.

In all, 20 ships in Philippine waters reported damage.

Accidents, Fires Claim 39 Lives During Holiday

Highway Crashes Kill 22; Nine Die in Montreal

(By The Canadian Press)

Few police departments and few governments, ranging from the small municipal to the provincial, were entirely satisfied today as the toll of Christmas accidents was brought up to date but many a Canadian locality had improved its record in the matter of "unavoidable" holiday fatalities.

At latest record, 39 persons had lost their lives between the period from the day before Christmas up to last night in circumstances that might have been attributable to the strain and bustle, the carelessness that often makes the Yuletide.

A mother and her two daughters, victims of a home fire in Elmsdale, P.E.I., were the latest to have joined the fatality list and a gasoline fire in the kitchen was thought to have been the cause.

Fires were accountable for four deaths, but accidents on highways led by far as they were blamed for 22 deaths. Drownings claimed the lives of five persons. Other reasons contributed, and air accidents were responsible for three deaths.

Latest of these, occurring near Uxbridge, Ont., late on Boxing Day, claimed the lives of an Oshawa pilot, and his passenger, as a light plane crashed only 100 yards from the latter's home.

The Montreal district reported the heaviest list of fatalities with nine accidental deaths.

Authorities in many places—including Toronto which had not one fatal accident reported — had announced stringent regulation of careless motor drivers, and drivers under the influence of alcohol and these measures were thought to have reduced the highway toll. They have warned the same policy would be followed over the New Year holiday.

Two Men Die When Plane Falls Out of Control

Uxbridge — (CP) — Vernon Woodcock, 38-year-old Oshawa pilot, and passenger Frank Noakef of nearby Glen Major were killed late yesterday when a Fleet-Canuck aircraft in which they were flying hit a tree and crashed to the ground some 100 yards from Noakef's home, seven miles south of this Central Ontario town.

The plane, owned by the Ontario County Flying Club of Oshawa, had circled the home several times before clipping the branches of a tree and diving to the ground killing the two married men almost instantly.

The men had left the flying field about 3:30 p.m. on a pleasure trip. Their plane crashed about 4 p.m.

Uxbridge is about 35 miles northeast of Toronto.

At Least 9 Dead In Avalanches

Vienna, Dec. 27 — (Reuters) — At least nine persons today were reported dead in Austrian mountain avalanches which swept away houses, blocked roads and broke telephone wires during Christmas.

Near Salzburg a forester was buried with his wife and four children when his house was overwhelmed. Rescue attempts failed.

At other places near Salzburg, three persons were killed while two others were rescued after being buried.

KILLED TRYING OUT SLED

Milton, Dec. 27 (CP).—While trying out his new sleigh on a hill at Kilbride, 15 miles southwest of here, McClelland Robertson, nine, was killed Thursday as his brother, Roy, seven, looked on. Coroner Dr. George E. Syer said the boy coasted into a road and collided with an automobile.

Split Switch Derails Train Near Foxboro

Splitting a switch when a tire on the locomotive became loose, a Canadian National Railways passenger train running between Belleville and Peterborough was derailed just north of Foxboro station early Christmas morning.

The engine and all the coaches left the track but the passing track prevented the train from leaving the grade and both the cars and engine remained upright. No one was injured in the derailment, C.N.R. officials at Belleville stated.

The derailment occurred at approximately 5:45 Christmas morning the train having left Belleville station a few minutes previously. Passengers on the train were picked up by special buses and were taken on to Peterborough and Lindsay where a special train was made up to complete the run through to Toronto.

Section men from the district were hurriedly called in but it was found necessary to send the auxiliary to the scene of the derailment. New rail was put down and the train then was pulled back onto the track.

Railroad officials stated it was fortunate that the train was derailed on the side which it did as on the opposite side of the track there was a considerable embankment which undoubtedly would have cause the derailled cars to overturn.

Probe Opened Into Cornwall's Greatest Fire

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 27 —(CP) —Provincial fire authorities have opened an investigation into the biggest fire in Cornwall's history which Wednesday wiped out more than 10 business establishments, left 28 families homeless and caused damage expected to exceed $100,000.

Mayor Lloyd Gallinger said investigators of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Toronto would arrive today to probe the ruins for a clue to the cause of the blaze which firemen fought for 18 hours and which broke out again in the ruins after once being extinguished.

Meanwhile, the 28 families who escaped with little but the clothing they wore from apartments above the wiped-out business establishments, found a temporary haven with friends and relatives where they spent Christmas.

Mayor Gallinger has opened a fund for their relief and said the response has been such that money for the "emergency" may reach $15,000. Montreal police departments already have shipped clothing to the fire victims.

Today wreckers are at work, knocking down skeleton walls left standing by the blaze along a block of Cornwall's main street. Several hours after weary firefighters, aided by a fire squad from nearby Messina, N.Y., had left the scene, they were recalled to quell a new outbreak of fire among the ruins of the stores.

Destroyed in the blaze were a jewelry store, a sewing machine company, two ladies' wear shops, a dry goods and department store, a groceteria, a variety store, a shop, a dental office, the Ontario shop, a dental office, the Ontario Automobile Licence Bureau and a clothing shop. Another jewelry store was badly damaged.

Special Yule Parties

Special Yuletide parties were held yesterday for the children of the burned-out families while their parents were busy collecting clothing, food and money from the special emergency fund. Many a Cornwall home put up a special Christmas dinner for the fire victims.

GREECE PLANNING STEPS TO OUTLAW COMMUNISTPARTY

Law Against Reds May Outlaw Others

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, Dec. 27 (AP).—Fighting between the Greek army and Communist guerrilla units continued in the Konitsa-Ioannina region of northwestern Greece today as the government was reported to be rushing plans for outlawing the Communist party.

Greek troops, fighting up the main highway from Ioannina, made contact with guerrillas holding the vital Bourozani bridge in the Konitsa area, key to the main communications line from Ioannina.

Guerrilla forces meanwhile, were reported employing artillery add mortars extensively in an effort to prevent any reinforcement of the Konitsa garrison which already has been attacked three times and is in a state of semi-siege.

A third army communique said 95 guerrillas were killed and 63 taken prisoner in northern Greece during the last 24 hours. Scores of guerrillas were reported killed when they unknowingly moved into barbed wire entanglements.

Authoritative sources said the artillery fire power of the northern guerrillas greatly exceeded the army's. Premier Themistokles Sophoulis told United States Charge d'Affaires, Karl Rankin, last night that the Greek army needed strengthening.

Other Groups Mentioned

Informants said the law against the Communist party also would outlaw the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) and certain other Leftist groups.

The co-ordinating council, legislating while parliament is in recess, will approve it this noon, they said, and make it effective within 10 minutes by publishing it in the Government Gazette.

Yesterday's unsuccessful guerrilla attacks were aimed at Konitsa, some five miles south of the Albanian border, and Agrinion, 100 miles south of Konitsa on the main road northward. The drive on Konitsa was believed to be aimed at establishing the town as the capital of the newly-proclaimed Communist government.

The army's Konitsa garrison was said to have withstood about 2,000 guerrillas who launched their heaviest attack in two days. Brig. Constantine Dovas, wounded in one of the earlier attacks, was reported by authoritative sources to have commanded the defence from a hospital bed.

The defenders of Agronion were reported to have surrounded most of the 1,500 attacking rebels in Kato Proslova village, 12 miles east.

TWO ROBINS REPORTED

Owen Sound, Dec. 27 — (CP)— Two robins were reported seen by Charles Fleming while he was visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Garrett, at nearby Chatsworth. This is the first time anyone in the district has reported seeing the birds so late in the year.

JAPAN MAY BUY CANADIAN COAL

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP).—Government officials said today Canada would be a likely supplier of coal for Japan when that country begins foreign purchases of the fuel, but that up to now there have been no Canadian-Japanese negotiations on coal.

Temporary Plastic for Human Bone, Arterial Grafting Method Reported

Chicago, Dec. 27 —(AP)—Temporary plastic-substance replacements for human bone have been developed in research sponsored by the United States Navy, the American Association for the advancement of science was told today.

Captain C. W. Shilling, chief of the medical sciences program of the Office of Naval Research, reporting on some of the developments in American research institutions on projects aided by navy funds, said in a prepared address:

"A successful method has been devised of replacement of diseased bones with inactive plastic substances, thus enabling the early rehabilitation of the patients, while the (plastic) material is being replaced by normal tissue."

He gave no amplification of the technique, but added:

"The use of this (plastic) material for the devising of an artificial joint seems to be a definite possibility."

Shilling also listed these developments:

"A neurosurgeon has developed a successful technique for (stretching) nerves and thus allowing reinervation of damaged limbs.

"A new method of arterial grafting, making it possible for the first time to permanently repair injured sections of arteries without restriction of blood flow has been developed."

He further stated that in research aimed at curing certain bone disorders and certain types of cancer by means of radiation "success has been obtained in devising an automatic machine so that patients can be treated with the exact dose of radium for a definite period of time."

Record 25.8-Inch Snowfall Maroons Thousands in City

Stalled Cars and Buses Extend Block After Block

New York, Dec. 27 (AP). — North America's greatest metropolis resembled a ghost city today as it struggled to dig out from under a record 25.8-inch snowfall that paralyzed much of its transportation system and virtually erased traffic from its normally teeming streets.

Surpassing the 20.9-inch downfall left by the famous blizzard of 1888, the storm swept in with surprise fury early yesterday, pelted the area with an average hourly fall of 1.8 inches and ended officially 15 hours and 45 minutes later. More than three inches swirled down between 3 and 4 p.m.

It left deep snow deposits and a death of at least 31 in the storm belt which embraced parts of New England, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and south-eastern New York State and extended south to include Washington. New Jersey counted seven dead and New York six, most of them attributable to over-exertion in battling the giant drifts.

The storm centred in the metropolitan area.

Technically not a blizzard since it was not accompanied by high wind and near-zero temperatures, the snowfall wrought sufficient havoc during the day to insure itself a legendary role in New York weather history.

It slowed and in some cases stopped railroad transportation. Virtually all bus lines, interstate and local, were brought to a dead standstill. Planes were grounded and many were buried in snow.

The city's subway and elevated lines lagged well behind schedule and home-bound throngs, as a result, jammed their terminals.

The city's usually congested streets still were congested—but by lines of stalled automobiles, buses and trucks, bumper to bumper, stretching block after block. Other streets, piled high with drifts, were as deserted as country lanes.

Broadway theatres and motion picture houses reported business off from 25 to 75 per cent and Broadway itself was virtually lifeless.

Thousands of commuters sought hotel rooms in the city overnight or resigned themselves to sleeping at terminals.

A possible shortage of fuel was seen by coal and oil dealers who urged householders with sufficient fuel for at least five days not to ask further deliveries until streets are cleared. Food deliveries, while reduced, were expected to be adequate.

All available firemen were assigned to round-the-clock duty and fire commissioner Frank J. Quayle said last night that the city faced the "gravest emergency" in the history of the fire department.

"Our streets are practically impassable," he said.

The burden of paying for the huge snow removal job was of particular concern to city officials. They estimated the bill might come to between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. The amount appropriated for snow removal for the entire winter was $1,285,688.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

New York, Dec. 27 —(AP)— One of the "blizzard men of '88" wasn't impressed by yesterday's big snow.

"This was just half a blizzard," said Augustus Post, 74-year-old past president of the group of veterans who meet in New York each March 12 to relive the famous two-day storm of 1888. The 20.9 inches which fell then held the record until today's 25.4.

But, said Post, the big blast of 59 years ago piled the stuff deeper.

Why he had to carry provisions into his house via a second storey window, with barrel staves as snow shoes, he recalled.

He added with a chuckle that he couldn't even get to his New York home last night. He was snowbound at the home of a sister in Locust Valley, Long Island.

"Today, we got 25 inches of snow on both sides of the street," Post said. "The other time, we got 40 inches on one side and none on the other."

It was the "hurricane-like" winds that did it then, he said.

Besides, he related, the temperature was so low that the East River froze over and people walked across it to get home to Brooklyn rather than brave the gale sweeping across the Brooklyn Bridge.

Countless tall stories have grown up about the big storm of '88, and some 200 surviving "blizzard men" have contributed many a hair-raising yarn.

They relish telling how red hot stoves froze solid and how snow flakes were the size of bed quilts, but along with the fancy were the following facts:

All transportation and communication was halted.

The city was without lights for three days.

Damage ran to $20,000,000.

Exits from Grand Central Station were blocked by snow.

Some 400 persons perished.

Nine Marooned Fliers Rescued

Westover Field, Mass., Dec. 27 (AP) — Seven American airmen and two Canadian weather observers, marooned on a frozen Labrador lake since their B-17 Fortress force-landed Christmas Eve, were brought safely back to Goose Bay yesterday after a four-hour, 29-minute rescue flight.

Officers at the Atlantic division headquarters of Air Transport Command here said radio messages reported the men were in good shape and apparently suffered little from their two-day vigil on barren Lake Dike.

Their rescue was accomplished yesterday by a ski-equipped, jet-propelled plane piloted by Lt.-Col. Emil G. Beaudry. The distance from Goose Bay to the downed plane is 275 miles. In the rescue plane with Beaudry were Lt.-Col. Richard C. Kugel, commander of the base at Narsarssuk in southern Greenland, from which the Fortress had taken off on a Christmas mail delivery mission to Baffin Island outposts.

The Canadians were listed as J. B. Cleghorn of Montreal and R. H. Tyril of Barrie, Ont. Cleghorn, who had been stationed as a weather observer in the Baffin Island area, praised the work of the rescue crew and said the marooned men could have held out indefinitely as they had warm clothing and food.

The downed plane was piloted by Lieut. Chester Karney of Iron River, Mich.

Emergency supplies were dropped from the air despite the storm —blankets, food, heavy clothing and axes to chop firewood. The men radioed they were holding out well and in good spirits, considering their plight.

City and District News

CONSTABLE EVANS STILL MUCH ALIVE

The sudden death of Inspector W. T. Evans of the Toronto Police Department, whose death was reported over the holiday in metropolitan newspapers, caused concern here when residents reading the report connected it with Constable W. T. Evans of the local police force.

"People were ringing the house all day yesterday offering condolences to Mrs. Evans, reported the constable as he reported for duty at the police station this morning."

"In fact it got so bad that finally we just had to plug the phone," he added.

NO FIRES REPORTED

With Christmas holiday the order of the day for the past two days, city firemen, it proved, were in the same category with their mercantile and manufacturing friends and today reported "no business" during the past 48 hours. Firemen reported no calls over Christmas or Boxing Day.

MRS. R. VANDERVOORT TAKEN TO SPECIALIST

Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort, wife of Dr. Ralph Vandervoort, Stirling dentist, who Christmas morning was seriously injured in the motor accident near Foxboro in which two persons were killed. has been taken to Toronto for medical treatment, it was reported by hospital officials at Belleville today.

Mrs. Vandervoort suffered multiple fractures of the jaw, together with other facial fractures and lacerations, when the car in which she was riding with her husband was in a head-on collision with another car. Mrs. Vandervoort was taken to Toronto to be treated by a specialist.

Missing Montreal Child Found Safe On C.N.R. Train

A frantic mother searched through the milling crowds that thronged Toronto's Union Station on Christmas Day, totally unaware that her five-year-old daughter was enjoying her first ride on a crack C.N.R. passenger train speeding toward Montreal.

The little girl "Nicky" Jackson strayed from her mother in the Union Station and managed to climb aboard the Montreal train.

Search in the crowded station revealed no sign of "Nicky." Her mother got in touch with railway officials here and the fast train which pulled to a stop shortly after six o'clock was searched by the conductor and railway employees.

"Nicky" was discovered having the time of her young life. She was taken from the train and Mr. J. W. Ross, yardmaster here, took her to his home. The little girl rejoined a thankful mother when the midnight train stopped here some hours later. The Jackson family were en route to Montreal.

Promenade Band Concert Will Be Held at Armouries

First of a series which will be given throughout the winter season, a promenade band concert will be staged at the Armouries on Sunday evening, the concert to feature the Belleville Municipal Band under the direction of L. F. Addison, musical director, as well as vocal talent.

Christmas music will be featured on Sunday evening's concert which will get underway at 8.30. Well known local vocalist, Ethel Smith will be the guest artist for the evening with Leo B. Riggs as accompanist. Mr. Riggs has agreed to act as accompanist for all the special numbers to be heard in connection with the entire series of concerts. The concerts will be staged every two weeks for the winter season.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion is arranging the details for the staging of the concert series to which the general public is cordially invited. Adequate seating arrangements have been made for the initial concert at which a special silver collection will be taken to further the Legion program.

Following is the program to be heard Sunday evening:

March, "Imperial Echoes" (A. Safroni); overture, "If I Were King" (A. Adam); vocal solo, "The Way You Look Tonight" (Kern), Miss Ethel Smith; two popular numbers, "The Anniversary Song" (arr. by P. Yoder), "White Christmas" (Irving Berlin); suite in four parts, 'Atlantis" (V. F. Safranck); march, "The Gladiator's Farewell" (H. L. Blankenburg); xylophone solo, "Sparks" (Kenneth Alford), W. G. Grant; Humoresque on "Comin' Thro' the Rye" (Arr. by H. Bellstedt); nautical rhapsody, "The Seafarer" (Haydn Wood); vocal solo, selected, Miss Ethel Smith; Christmas Potpourri, 'Noel" (R. K. Prescott); March Militaire, 'My Hero" (Arr. by Harry Alford).

R. Longwell Heads Holstein Club

Ronald Longwell, Foxboro, was elected president of the Hastings County Holstein Club for 1948 at the annual meeting in the agricultural office, Stirling. Other officers are: Vice-President D. Hollinger, Stirling; Secretary-Treasurer A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling; Past President, H. Watt, Foxboro.

It was decided that the Club would again sponsor a Black & White Show for competition and would also hold a field day and picnic and an annual banquet. Plans were also made to take a representative group of breeders on bus tour to visit a number of the leading Holstein herds in Ontario.

Fieldman F. Roy Ormiston, Brooklin, reported that the National Association had had a very successful year and that Association membership in the Dominion was now well past the 10,000.

Slim Market

Market attendance from both buyer and seller standpoint was slim this morning with the outside market being almost completely deserted and the number of vacant stalls in the market building being far in the majority.

Egg prices held at 50 cents per dozen for first with mediums being quoted at 48 cents and pullets at 40 cents.

The fowl offering was very small with chicken bringing the customary 40 to 45 cents per pound, while a few ducks were quoted at 55 cents to 60 cents per pound.

On the outside market top grade McIntosh and Spys were quoted at $2.75 per hamper while Snows and Greenings fetched $2 the bushel, and Milwaukees 40 cents the basket.

Potatoes were offered by one or two vendors at $2.50 the bag.

ZOOLOGICALLY SPEAKING

Zoologically speaking, apes are more like man than like monkeys.

Ivanhoe

Yule Service Held In Beulah Church

Ivanhoe (Special) — A very interesting and impressive candle light service was held in Beulah United Church on Sunday evening with a good attendance. On a table to the right of the pulpit was an artistically decorated and illuminated Christmas tree. On a table immediately in front of the pulpit were miniature representations of the Bethlehem scene portraying the circumstances under which the Saviour was born. Assisting the minister in the service were Miss Doris Twiddy, who read the Christmas story as recorded in several scripture passages; Miss Joyce Reid who sang, "Away in a Manger"; Miss Marjory Prest who contributed a solo, "Silent Night" and Miss Phyllis Twiddy, to whom much credit is due for arranging the service, presiding at the piano. The minister spoke on the "Boyhood and Home Life of Jesus." Some of the carols sung were "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "The First Nowell," "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Presented With Bible

At the close of the Christmas Tree entertainment in Salem United Church Mr. William J. Johnston, who earlier in the year retired as superintendent of the Sunday School, was presented with a beautiful teacher's Bible as a token of appreciation for his thirty years of service, recognition of which had been deferred to this appropriate time as it was hoped that Mr. Johnston would still continue in his office. An address was read by Mrs. Frank McGee and the presentation made by Mr. J. B. Hagerman.

Mr. Johnston who was completely taken by surprise, made a very interesting reply as he related a few of his many happy experiences during his lengthy term of service. His many friends extend their congratulations and realize that the remainder of his days will be rich and full with precious memories.

Christmas Concerts

For the first time in many years three Christmas entertainments were held on Ivanhoe pastoral charge all of which were quite successful being attended by about 150 children and scores of adults. The one for Beulah Sunday School was held in the Town Hall at Ivanhoe, on Thursday evening. This exercise is prepared largely by the public school teacher, Miss Margaret Wright and her pupils to whom go a volume of praise for their very fine effort.

The program consisted of an address of welcome by Joe Wickens, other recitations were given by, Darwin Benson, Jean Benson, Donnie Seymour, Carlyle Rollins, June Holgate, Ila Cooney, Phyllis Wickens, Annie Crookes, Bonnie Brant and Yvonne Brant. Choruses contributed were, "Bethlehem Lullaby," Santa Claus is Coming This Way," "I Saw Three Ships," and "Silent Night." The dialogues given were, "The Three Kings," "Waiting for the Train," "Christmas Wishes," and "The Christmas Burglar." Annie Crooke. and Yvenne Brant contributed a duet. Six girls gave an exercise that demonstrated the points of the Christmas star and Joyce Reid a solo. A flag drill by several senior girls was well done and much appreciated as was a pantomime, "Santa's Mistake." Several senior girls sang "The Running Brook, "Early One Morning" and were engaged in singing an appropriate closing number, "Santa Claus is Coming" just as old Saint Nicholas arrived.

The entertainment at White Lake was held in the church on Friday evening. The program with the exception of a one act play, "Who Gets the Car" given by Young People of the community, was prepared by the teachers of the public school, Mr. Donald Runnals and Miss Elizabeth Gordan, and their pupils gave much evidence of training and practice.

The recitation of welcome was given by Jackie Douglas. This was followed by a carol, "Silent Night". Others giving recitations were Raymond Rohrback, "A Visit from Saint Nicholas"; Helen Howard, "Some Christmas Gifts"; Betty Morgan, 'Santa's Garden"; Raymond Baker, "Christmas Time". And Berdena Cole, "Mrs. Santa Claus". An acrostic was given by nine pupils of the junior room and a drill, "Alice Blue Gown" by the same group, also a song, 'Jolly, Jolly Santa Claus" and a play, "Christmas Chores". These juniors sang, "Christmas Angels". Three boys contributed an exercise, 'What We Like About Christmas". A solo, "Away in a Manger" by Wayne Barnard, was much enjoyed. Two monologues were given, "Old Aunt Dinah's Christmas" by Shirley Dougles and "A Day After Christmas" by Agnes Holland. Numbers given by the senior room pupils were, a dialogue, 'Heck Says It"; a chorus, "Old Santa Is Coming This Way" and a "Good Night Song". Alverna Rohrback and Thelma Mitts, sang "Once in Royal David's City", The Play given by the Young People was directed by Mrs. Carman Mullett, with the following taking part, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Holland, Donald and Raymond Downey and Margaret Radnor.

The entertainment at Salem was given in the church on Monday evening and was prepared by the members of the school under the direction of the Sunday school teachers, and consisted of the following numbers, a welcome recitation by Marion Broadworth, which was followed by two Christmas carols, "Silent Night" and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks", accompanied by Mrs. Sylvanus Hagerman at the organ and Miss Mae Sarles at the piano. Recitations were also given by Harold Sarles, Joe Hagerman, Glen Hagerman, Jean Twiddy, Joan Twiddy, Eleanor McGee, Glenn Heagle, Paul Heagle, Shirley Broadworth and Gail Sine.

A musical number, with Misses Eva Hagerman and Eldo Mayo on the guitars, Lorne Hagerman on the violin, Mrs. Sylvanus Hagerman at the piano and Mrs. Harry Mayo, soloist was greatly enjoyed. Ray Carter contributed a song, and a junior group an instrumental "Jingle Bells," a dialogue, "The Christmas Turkey" was given by Mrs. Harry Mayo's class, who with the assistance of Misses Laura McGee and Mae Sarles contributed a chorus. Mrs. George Sine playing her own accompaniment on the guitar sang, "A Rose from the Garden of Prayer." A number of seniors contributed a dialogue, "Fooling the Agent." The classes of Mrs. Harry Mayo and Miss Laura McGee contributed a Christmas song and Mae Hagerman and Marion Broadworth a duet. Several adults put on a dialogue, "Marrying the Poetess" which was pleasing to all and in which Ernest Broadworth was the outstanding character, a bachelor of fifty years, who advertised for a wife and had many applications and who settled on the poetess as his choice.

The total proceeds of the entertainments amount to over $75.

Holiday Accidents Bring Misfortune To Many Residents of the District

Highway accidents in the Belleville area during the Christmas holiday period claimed two lives and sent at least ten persons to hospital with injuries, while accidents other than traffic mishaps resulted in other persons going to hospital with injuries.

Most serious of the numerous accidents reported in the immediate Belleville vicinity over the holiday was the two car collision at Foxboro in which Robert Gannon and Miss Hilda Beary, both of Belleville, were killed instantly, and three others. Miss Helen Munroe of Belleville, and Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort of Stirling. were sent to hospital with multiple injuries.

Collision at Ivanhoe

Tuesday night Gordon H. Bateman, 164 College Street, and his small son Wilfred, were admitted to hospital following a motor accident at Ivanhoe in which the Bateman car collided with another vehicle. The son Wilfred suffered concussion and was still in a coma Friday afternoon, while the father is suffering from chest injuries and lacerations. The attending physician stated, however that neither was in danger and both were coming along fine.

Five Injured in Accident

At Mountain View on Christmas Eve a headon collision between two cars sent five persons to hospital although fortunately none was seriously injured.

Injured in the accident were Fred Baker, age 34 of Bloomfield and his brother Francis, age 28 who suffered the loss of two fingers and sustained a cut in the cheek. In the second car were Horace G. Brewer, Toronto, driver, who sustained chest injuries, Miss Phyllis Weidmark, Picton, who lost a number of teeth, and John Jones, also of Picton. All five have now been released from hospital.

Freak Accidents

Freak accidents added their toll to the holiday injury list as William Lloyst, age 58, of Arden, suffered a broken leg when he fell on the ice. Mr. Lloyst had been driving his car near Henderson when it slid off the road. He got out to survey the situation, slipped on the ice, and broke his leg. He received medical attention at Tweed and was sent to the Belleville hospital.

A Mr. Tilley of Trenton was walking home from a show at Trenton on Christmas Eve when he slipped on the ice and fractured his hip. He was brought to hospital at Belleville where he was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Passengers Delayed

Thirty-six passengers of a Belleville-Lindsay C.N.R. passenger train were delayed four hours in their journey early Christmas morning when the train on which they were riding was derailed at Foxboro. The train split a switch and ran up along the passing track, tearing up the rails but all cars remained upright and no one was injured.

Holiday Period Comparatively Quiet for Police

With the exception of celebrants who started early with liquid Christmas cheer to buoy up their spirits for the holiday, and for a number of family quarrels reported to police, a comparatively quiet holiday was observed by members of the local police department, it was reported today by Chief of Police Walter Probert.

No traffic accidents resulting in personal injury were reported, although one driver was arrested on a charge of being drunk while in charge of a motor car. This driver was involved in an accident on Dundas Street which resulted in considerable property damage.

No Serious Accidents

"Practically our entire force was on duty for the holiday," stated Chief Probert today, "but with the exception of a number of drunks on Christmas Eve there was little activity to worry the department. There were no serious accidents in the city and only in one instance did police find it necessary to arrest a driver for drunk driving."

"However," added the police chief, "the police will continue to check closely for drunk drivers and in this way we mey possibly avert accidents over the New Year's Day holiday.

Two young boys were apprehended for a bit of untoward Christmas Eve revelry when they were stated to have broken windows at three different places of business along upper Front Street and on Centre Street.

A Kingston motorist, Don Bruce ripped out several highway guard rail posts and broke a hydro pole on the Bay Bridge Road when his car went into a skid and crashed into the guard rails. Another motorist failed to stop at a stop street and collided with a second car, while there were several fender dents due to slippery streets.

The only accident which might have resulted in personal injury occurred on Dundas Street, East, when two motorists were in a sideswipe collision.

Lorne Urch, R.R. 6 Belleville was driving east on Dundas Street and according to police reports was on the wrong side of the road when Earl Fenn, Dundas Street, proceeding in the opposite direction swerved to the left to avoid being hit by the Urch car. At the last moment Urch swerved back to his own side of the road and struck the right side of the Fenn car doing considerable damage. Urch was arrested and charged with drunk driving.

Police showed the true Christmas spirit Christmas Eve when a lone transient showed up asking for a night's lodging. Police fixed him up with a pre-Christmas dinner and permitted him to sleep in the warmth of the police cell for the night.

War Veterans Draw Lucky Cash Prizes

Four returned veterans wore happy smiles over the Christmas holiday when they were informed that their names had been drawn by a city council committee as the lucky holders of tickets for cash prizes held over from Veterans' Day held last summer.

Of the $500 allotted by City Council for lucky prizes to be awarded to veterans residing in Belleville at the time of enlistment, only three were found to be eligible. The amount left was $200.

On Wednesday morning a committee composed of Alderman H. J. Clarke, Angus Duffy, City Comptroller Harold Bateman and Mrs. Angus Duffy examined a nominal roll of resident veterans here with Mrs. Duffy drawing four numbers.

The lucky winners who got $50 each are Russell W. Townsend, 70 Station St. who held ticket No. 1409; Clayton E. Burley, with ticket No. 209; Frederick Regensburg, 49 Ridley St., ticket No. 1083 Hugh A. Simpson, 90 Chatham St. now of Moira Ont., who held ticket No. 1307.

Jail Inmates Enjoy Yuletide Dinner, Radio

Succulent roast pork and "all the trimmings" provided a tasty Christmas dinner for the inmates of the Hastings County Jail on Christmas Day.

The "boys" dined on the pork, potatoes and vegetables and hot mince pie. Later they were presented with cigars and cigarettes, the gift of Police Inspector Clare Hayes.

The jail staff waited on the inmates, and saw to it that everyone was filled.

A Stewart Warner Alemite radio provided entertainment for the inmates during the day.

Stirling

Stirling.—The Christmas musical festival was staged by the pupils of Rawdon Township schools under the direction of Miss M. McKee, musical supervisor, in Stirling theatre, last Wednesday night. A capacity audience was in attendance and Rev. P. H. Christensen acted as chairman for the program.

Each of the sixteen schools of the township directed by Miss McKee and the teacher assisted in the program. The numbers were interspersed with piano selections by Betty McConenll, Mary Elizabeth Meiklejohn, Ruth Sharpe, Doris Hoard, Rosemary Webb and Barbara Meiklejohn. Music was also supplied by the Teen-Agers' Orchestra.

During the evening Miss McKee was presented with a beautiful bouquet by the pupils, in appreciation of her services. Miss Betty McConnell made the presentation.

Mr. A. W. McGuire, inspector of Public Schools, briefly addressed the audience extending thanks to the pupils, to Miss McKee, to the teachers and to the school trustees for their co-operation in making the festival possible and congratulated everyone concerned on the success attending their efforts.

The evening was climaxed with the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, who treated the boys and girls.

Families Lose Possessions

The last disastrous fire was in 1933 when $250,000 damage was done by fire which razed another —smaller—section of the downtown business district.

There was little wind as the little regular brigade, aided by volunteers, fought desperately to check the fire. But the intense cold lent assistance to the leaping flames and by mid-morning there was no immediate prospect of checking the fire.

FIVE FRIARS SENTENCED

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 24—(AP) — Tanjug, Yugoslav news agency, said the regional court of Pola had convicted five friars of spying and sentenced them to prison terms ranging from three to 16 years. The terms will be accompanied by forced labor and loss of political rights.

Madoc Junction

Eggleton Church Christmas Concert

Madoc Jct.—On Friday evening, Dec. 19, a splendid Christmas entertainment was held in Eggleton Church, with Mr. Bruce Stapley as chairman for the following program.

Opening number was a song of Welcome with June White giving a recitation of Welcome.

Drills, dialogues, monologues, pantomimes and Christmas songs and carols were then given, also recitations by Gordon Madill, Myrtle Wannamaker, David Madill, Donna Stapley and Joyce Madill.

A piano solo was contributed by Donna Stapley.

A duet "White Christmas" was sung by Rosella Fitchett and Gladys Clarke.

A Christmas pageant was presented by members of the Girls' and Boys' Sunday School Classes.

A recitation "Farewell" by Grace Clarke.

God Save the King was sung.

Much credit is due the public school teacher, Mrs Gordon Nelson for the splendid numbers given by the pupils, and to Mrs. Bruce Stapley, who was pianist for the songs and drills.

Then Santa arrived in his gay suit of red, and with the aid of several helpers, the gifts from the beautifully lighted Christmas tree were soon distributed. Each child also received a bag containing orange, nuts, popcorn balls and homemade candy.

A lovely electric table lamp was presented to Mrs. Nelson from her pupils, for which she graciously expressed her thanks.

Cornwall's Fire Loss

Communities sympathize with Cornwall in its disastrous fire the day before Christmas. Fire to a community anywhere is freighted with dire calamity and Cornwall has felt a severe blow in view of the losses which have to be borne by the merchants, property owners, and by citizens, forced to leave apartments in the business section as the fire seized on many business buildings. Such a fire at any time would prove a very heavy blow and was the more so as it took place on the eve of the festivities of Christmas and laid a damper upon the celebration of the Christmas feast.

But the courage of the people rose in the face of the danger. Though they have suffered a staggering blow, they are not discouraged but plan for immediate restoration.

In the meantime the routine of the life of the community will be considerably changed as it accommodates itself to the new conditions created by the fire. Until Cornwall rebuilds to make good the loss to the community, co-operation will be the spirit of that city.

Fire is an enemy which citizens of any community may well pray to escape. Its power for disaster is very great.

Christmas and New Year's

After Christmas Christendom feels that it again passed through an immemorial celebration which has left its marks for good on countless lives. Such devotion and service to the ideal of Christmas and in carrying out of the Christmas spirit has all through the ages left an effect upon men and women and children, and 1947 Yuletide and Christmas festival does not differ from others of the past in this regard. Whole populations are caught in the swing of the spirit of the season and feel better and know that others feel better for the rare experience which has been theirs. The sense of happiness and joy has left its impression upon millions and millions as no other event could.

New Year's Day is just ahead. Its celebration seems a pale reflex to most people of the western world as compared with the richness of the experience of Christmas. The latter is a religious festival, the other is not based on religion but on the passage of time and the turning of a new leaf for the year 1948. New Year's therefore has its lessons for all, the lesson of wisdom —of making a new start, of trying to achieve more in every sphere than in the past twelvemonth. New Year's has for Canadians and Americans more of contact with the outer world while Christmas expresses the appeal of the life within, which molds the spirit of man.

New Year's has been in many nations a day of rejoicing at the turn of the year, marked with joyous festivities. It is one of the oldest festivals, dating from remote antiquity. In the Middle Ages Christian countries almost invariably began the New Year on March 25th. According to the Julian calendar the new year began on January 1, and the Romans observed this day as a general holiday. It was for them a time of giving presents. Early Christians were not expected to take part in the New Year's revels or the Saturnalia of December and many of the Christian fathers ordered New Year's Day be kept as a fast. The need for this vanished and in England in the time of Charles II the custom of exchanging New Year's presents had dwindled. It has now given way to the giving of presents at Christmas. The Christmas festival naturally has changed the centre of interest from New Year's to Christmas in many lands.

Supersonic Flight

Only aerodynamic engineers can appreciate the new element which has entered into travel and that is the speed of sound. When man in his modern plane comes to the rate of sound, then "wings no longer part the air with ease. Sound for ages was the ultimate of speed. Today airplanes are breaking through the barrier though shock waves batter and try to twist and rend the plane."

Early engineers of the airplane could not have realized that some day in the near future the structure of the plane must be modified so as to overcome the hazard from the pressure of air. A few years ago he looked on streamlining as one of the great constructive achievements and discoveries of history. It was for the time being. But man has had the thought in his head to speed up the rate of travel and at length the supersonic barrier is reached.

New York Times editorial page carries an interesting article on "Supersonic Flight." It points out that "the noses of the fuselages must be pointed as artillery shells, wings and thin as sharp as knives." Man is determined to raise the rate of travel, crash the supersonic barrier and achieve for the world another high point of wonder and practical effort.

The Times deals with the problem in these words:

"A new region is opened for exploration, and in the exploration there is nothing for it but to risk lives at high altitudes in planes of radically new design inasmuch as wind-tunnels are of no aid in studying shockwaves that have already killed some daring pilots. Hence the importance of an announcement which comes from Aviation Week that a Bell XS-1 achieved the unprecedented speed of over 660 miles an hour more than a month ago at Muroc, California, where the Air Force maintains a flight-test centre.

"The speed of sound varies with altitude and the temperature of the atmosphere. At sea level it is 761 miles an hour when the temperature is 59 degrees Fahrenheit; between 5,000 and 40,000 feet, the altitude at which the XS-1 is reported to have made its record, it is only 660 miles an hour. How much more than 660 miles was achieved? The answer must be given by the Air Force. It seems safe to infer that the old record of 650.6 miles, which still lies in the dangerous "transonic region," and which was also made by a Bell, was not greatly exceeded. Whatever the figure may be, the prediction of the aerodynamic experts seems to have been verified that after the transonic barrier is passed and the supersonic region entered travel in a properly designed aircraft is safe and serene.

"There are human difficulties still to be overcome if a speed of 1,000 miles an hour is attained. Because of the friction of the air at this supersonic speed and the "ram" effect in engines, the temperature of any mechanically propelled vehicle goes up as the square of the speed, so that at 1,000 miles an hour it is hot enough within a plane to boil water. Can pilots and passengers stand such heat? Not for more than fourteen minutes, as recent experiments conducted with human volunteers at the University of California have shown. Hence the decision of the engineers, made long ago, to refrigerate cockpits and cabins, which implies more weight and more designing troubles.

"Evidentally the transonic, sonic and supersonic regions will not be conquered by the aerodynamic expert alone. An entirely new art of flying must be learned, and before it is learned the services of the research physiologist must be enlisted. So we have a case of mechanical, if not Darwinian, adaptation to new high-speed, high-altitude environment."

Lake Liners

Not only is the Noronic the largest but, in her 35th year, she is still the youngest of the Upper Lakes passenger ships.

That seems a ripe old age for ships. Ocean liners are scrapped long before that age but the Lakes seem to have a preserving effect and they go on and on. The CPR Manitoba, still giving good service, is now nearly 60 years old. The Assiniboia and the Keewatin came out in 1907 making them 40 years. They look as they could go on for many years yet.

As all these ships enjoy good patronage it is undestandable why the public should be asking when there may be more, says Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Spare-Time Pilots

More than 500 "weekend" pilots are now flying in their spare time in Britain's postwar Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve. Recruiting started in March this year and now twelve flying schools are operating in various parts of the country. Three more are due to open in the near future, and others will follow. All pilots accepted are granted £35 annual flying training bounty as well as travelling and other allowances. Their flying training amounts to 40 hours each year.

YEAR'S END

Worn and tired and near the close,
Little left to share or do,
Ere in history it goes,
Now the old year waits the new.

Sits another year again,
Knowing shortly it must die,
Like an old man at the pane,
Watching youth go laughing by.

Youth it had, but it is gone.
Middle age it lately knew.
Now the last day's coming on,
Done is all that it could do.

Is a happier year to be
When the old has passed away?
Shall a better world we see?
That depends on us who stay.

Freighter's Hold Floods in Storm

Halifax, Dec. 27 — (CP)—The 7,100-ton United States Maritime Commission freighter Joseph Simon, reporting "one hold flooding in storm and unable to pump" was today advised by her owners to make for the nearest port — St. John's, Nfld., — 250 miles west of her North Atlantic position.

The ship was bound for Baltimore, Md., from Europe with a general cargo.

The RCAF search and rescue unit here has told the captain they will arrange for a salvage tug if he thinks it necessary. There has been no reply.

LETTERS UP AND PARCELS DOWN IN HOLIDAY MAIL

Toronto, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Postal authorities said today that "letters were up and parcels down" in this year's rush of Christmas mail in Toronto. The 25,100,000 letters distributed in the city from Dec. 15 to 24 represented an increase of more than 4,000,000 over last year. Parcels in the city totalled 214,000, or approximately five per cent less than last year.

NOTES ON GIRTH CONTROL

These notes are for adults only, full grown adults. We are not fully grown until we reach the age of 22 to 26 years. And so many of us are still children even when our physicial growth or development has reached the peak. At thirty, perhaps, most of us are as adult as we are likely to be. This does not mean that there is no further development of mind and character after thirty, for of course most men and women can and do acquire some of the finest traits after thirty and after forty.

Anyway at thirty to forty one should be and generally is in his or her prime physically. Therefore the size, dimensions, measurements, bulk, displacement, girth — in short the form, shape or figure of a healthy man or woman aged thirty-five years should be taken as the norm. Note that we say nothing about weight. Body weight is less significant than girth in relation to height. Weight in relation to height gives a false, gauge, because muscle weighs more than fat although it is less bulky — thus two persons of the same height may weigh the same although one has a good figure and the other is too fat, too flabby.

Posture typical of obesity is characterized by a round back and a pendulous belly. One who is growing a corporation may by taking thought and doing a few exercises daily combat the tendency to slump into this bad posture.

The posture is bad because it puts the ribs and diaphragm and the muscles between the ribs at a mechanical disadvantage so that they are not able to expel the air entirely from the lungs. In addition, the booster pump effect of natural (belly) breathing is impaired so that there is inadequate filling of the right heart and consequent diminished output of blood from the heart — this accounts for the well known shortness of breath of the obese.

The exercises to combat the tendency to slump into this bad posture are the Belly Breathing exercise which one may do in bed before going to sleep and again in the morning before getting out of bed; and the half dozen setting-up movements described and illustrated in the booklet The Seven Keys to Vite. For the pamphlet on Belly Breathing send stamped self addressed envelope. If you want also the booklet on vite inclose twenty-five cents.

If you know what every schoolboy should know about physiology you will take this seriously. Try to keep your belly firm and your chin in—that is, inside an imaginary high collar. Just do that every time the thought of posture occurs to you and you will improve your posture, your personal appearance, your circulation and your life expectation.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vain Quest

A fine person when he is sober but terrible when drunk. He wanted me to ask you for suggestions to help him stop drinking — perhaps you can tell me of some tasteless liquid I could put in his coffee.

(A.P.M.)

Answer — There is no such remedy. Here are my suggestions: 1. Get in touch with Alcoholics Anonymous — look for their notice in classified section or a telephone number in telephone directory. 2. Consult a psychiatrist — physician who limits his or her practice to mental or behaviour problems. 3. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ten cents and ask in writing (do not use a clipping) for booklet Dipsomania.

Varicose Veins

I have varicose veins in the right leg. Had them injected three years ago but now they are cropping out just below the knee. Would it be right to have the injection treatment a second time?

(E.H.D.)

Answer — Yes, in your place I'd have the injection treatment by the same physician who gave the treatment three years ago. On written request (no clipping, please) any reader who provides stamped self addressed envelope may have the pamphlet on Varicose Veins.

Poor Kids

Do you believe small children should be forced to eat all the food placed before them in hot lunches at school? I know it is good etiquette. (A Mere Grandmother.)

Answer — Etiquette my eye. No child should be forced to eat anything in any circumstance. If the children in this instance are permitted to indulge in candy sweets, sweetened beverages and the like, at any time they please, it might be well to correct that bad habit, Grandma, mere, and then perhaps the kids would polish off whatever they can get for lunch at school.

What Savings Plan Are You Using?

A small sum of money, readily available, will meet minor financial emergency ... but savings of this sort, because of their availability, never grow large enough to meet a major financial crisis. Nor do they offer a guarantee that, in case of death, your dependents will be left the amount of money you intended to save. Life insurance savings are available in emergency, but are protected from "spend-thrift" impulses. Insurance guarantees financial security for your dependents and is the soundest, surest way of saving for your own later years.

Riches For All Brought Ruin to Czech Town

(By A. L. Fischer, condensed from London, Eng., Telegraph)

If a visitor suddenly showed up in your town one day and wanted to distribute $9,000,000 in cash among you and your neighbors, would his offer be accepted?

The people of the town af Sastin had to make a decision on this very question. Lured by the hope of a life of happiness and security, it is not surprising that they readily accepted the offer. But some rather strange things began to happen when the whole town became wealthy.

Let's start at the beginning.

Sastin, Czechoslovakia, is a typical town, neither rich nor poor. The townspeople are sober and industrious, and earn their living by working on their farms or in the local flour mills or distilleries. There are a few ne'er-do-wells, but we shall not discuss them because it might give the wrong impression of the sort of people who lived in Sastin, in view of what happened later.

These townspeople suffered under the German occupation until one day in April 1945 when the Russians advanced to a point within hearing distance. The Nazis decided it was time to clear out.

Lack of transportation prevented the Nazi commander from taking all his spoils with him. No room could be found for two battered metal trunks.

He was in hurry. "Take these trunks and hide them," he commanded two Slovak orderlies. The car dashed off.

Before the order could be carried out a small Russian detachment entered the town. A young lieutenant noticed the trunks and ordered that they be opened. They were crammed with $9,000,000 worth of notes from the Provincial Bank of Bratislava!

The lieutenant quickly made up his mind. "The money is no good to us," he explained to the villagers who had gathered round. "Tomorrow we may be dead men. We give it to you because you have fought the enemy."

He called a sergeant: "See that it's divided equally among every man, woman and child of Sastin.

This was done, and in five hours every citizen of the town had become wealthy.

Immediately the people advanced on the stores and bought everything and anything: food, clothes, violins, brandy, books and pictures. They finished the night in feasting and in planning how their fortunes would be used. At long last, they believed, all their dreams would come true!

But instead, events left them dazed and bewildered. It took the shops a week to replenish meagre stocks, and the demand became so great that prices skyrocketed.

In a purely agricultural area, eggs rose from a penny to $2.20 apiece; a suit of clothes to $675; and a bottle of cheap brandy to $90. A haircut cost $.50 instead of five cents, for what self-respecting barber—wealthy in his own right—would think of lifting scissors for a few pennies?

Inflation spread outside the parish. Farm workers, who had not shared in the spoils and were working for $2.50 per week raged at the high prices in the stores. In anger they rioted and smashed the windows.

And so it went during the Russian occupation. Shops could not get enough supplies to meet the demand. Prices remained at crazy levels. Families who had been indiscreet with their money starved, and businesses were forced to close down because clerks would not think of working for a mere pittance.

There was a sudden rush on small farm holdings, because families hoped they could thus avoid starvation. Fortunes were buried in cellars and gardens in the hope that the "old days" would return when the Russians quit the area.

Again they were disappointed. When the Rusians pulled out the inflation seemed to grow worse and spread further afield like a contagious disease.

After nearly two years of misery, the townspeople sent a petition to the government, requesting that it take away the remainder of the $9,000,000,. Recently, government officials arrived in Sastin and set up an office in the town hall. The villagers filed by and dropped what they had left of their easy money —some $4,000,000.

There was a big thanksgiving celebration in Sastin that night,

Old Lord of Plains is Passing

Cowpokes, wranglers, and professional horse hunters are going to be looking for something else to do. The wild horse, that had such a glorious part in developing the western country is rapidly disappearing from the horizon. He has been harried from one range to another by rifle, trap, lariat and barbed wire until he has all but vanished, Estey I. Reed writes in The Christian Science Monitor.

At the start of World War II there were 100,000 roaming the vast ranges of the west. Today, it is estimated there are less than 5,000. During the war, the number in the Red Desert Country of Wyoming was reduced from 6,000 to 1,000. In the Arizona Strip country, which includes land along the border of Arizona and Utah, the wild horse diminished from 6,000 to 500 in five years. The number was cut down proportionately in Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico and Oregon. In some places where the free mustangs were once quite numerous there are none.

Lots of Thrills

It was grat fun with a lot of thrills and danger thrown in, to hunt down the wild horses, Particularly in the day before the airplane was drafted into action. The country where they roamed was wild and the animals matched the terrain. Their range was rocks and hard ground. As a result, their feet were hard, and like any animaal which exists on short forage they have unequaled wind and endurance.

They could go at breakneck speed over the worst country possible. Badger and prairie dog holes failed to alter their gait. They went over the rimrocks and through thick mesquite with the ease an army tank goes through young timber. When once caught they made ideal animals for bronc riders in rodeos. When broken they made top cowponies for cattlemen.

The demand for them grew and cowboys and professional horse hunters went to work for all they were worth. The old method of rounding them up on horseback was too slow, so pilots were brought into play in their planes.

Spotted by Planes

So since the war, instead of sharp-eyed trailers locating the herds by following dim trails, planes flew around until a bunch was spotted. Then, the flier dived down to head them toward a camouflaged corral in a gully or box canyon, with small arroyos leading into them. Fences, disguised with sagebrush or greasewood, were built in the ravines leading to the corral.

Once the herd, which generally numbered 15 to 40, had been headed into the canyon where the main corral was, the riders came from hiding and took over. Those that broke away and there were many, would be roped and brought back to the corral.

When a herd grazes, the lead stallion stands majestically on the highest point, keeping an eagle eye for invaders. When danger comes he gives out with a shrill whistle that echoes through dale and canyon, and the whole bunch is off among jagged crags and around the rims like so many mountain sheep.

Run Like Wind

Although they run with the lightness of pronghorns, their hoofs beat out a rhythmic staccato on the hardened ground or rocks. They run through the canyons so fast it sounds like a stiff wind blowing through mesquite.

The history of the American wild horse's ancestors dates back to Arabia in 647 A.D., at the time the Arab warriors went on a rampage throughout the old World. In 710 they reached Spain. Some of their fine mounts were captured by the Spaniards who saw the value of the horse in warfare. They brought him to the New World in 1519, when Cortez landed at Vera Cruz.

However, the American Horse did not descend from Cortez' animals, as is often believed. His ancestry dates from the year 1540 to 1542, when the daring Spanish captain Coronado, paraded through what is now New Mexico, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and southern Colorado. It was from the mounts he lost, when they were stolen by Indians or wandered from the garrisons that the wild horses sprang.

Advertising Magic Building Up Big Tuna Industry

(By R. T. Harding in Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

A tradition of the advertising craft is that one of its members lowered his net into the dictionary then set it upon the path of success that has led it to millions of American tables. More than that, it has taken first place away from salmon in the world's list of canned fish, so that even in America's northwest there are almost as many factories dedicated to its packing as to that of its older rival. Thus it would seem that since it was lifted from obscurity the tuna has realized as many ambitions as could reasonably be entertained by a fish.

That it is unquestionably a fish is emphasized by nearly everyone who writes a menu. Possibly that all but standardized tautology may be forgiven in the light of the fact that the creature's success was based upon its name—upon giving up and living down a bad one by turning to an abbreviated form of its scientific label. That might interest the numerologist but it is where the advertising man came in. A New England fish firm that was his client was having a bad season because the catch was small. The men in the boats got great quantities of fish, but not what they were after. They were pestered by schools of the horse mackerel that no one ever thought of trying to sell. Those they did not throw back were a waste on the docks.

Science Little Knew It Would Help

By some carefully planned experiments the advertising man satisfied all concerned that the despised fish was good to eat, much better than some that had crowded it out of the markets. The thing to do was to rid it of that unhappy nickname and call it something pleasant and convenient. In search of suggestions he found the dictionary gave the word the Greeks had for it when centuries ago they were catching one of its cousins in the Mediterranean. He simplified the spelling and a new business was begun.

Tuna, or tunny, belong to the mackerel tribe, therefore the North Atlantic name was not completely a misnomer, possibly was applied by a disgusted commercial fisherman who had unhappy recollections of his labors ashore. The immediate family has at least six varieties, or branches, of which only four are acknowledged by the canners' bluebook. The others may be canned, but may not be labelled tuna. No matter where you look there is the caste system.

Oddities in This Social Scale

Some of the aspects of that system are as puzzling in the world of fishes as in that of men. It seems incongruous—unless the trade is suppressing biographical facts—that the tuna that won the name bonito is excluded from higher society.

It is even more incongruous that the most highly prized and highly priced variety, the albacore, bears the Arabic name that means young camel. Not even the softening influence of its Portuguese adaptation could have made that sound more tasty than the horse. But since the word is not of our everyday speech it needed no advertising man's ministrations. At the dock the albacore brings nearly 80 per cent more than the bonito.

Association with the tuna does not dull the fisherman's imagination. He tells for instance of the great tunny, which sometimes grows to a length of 10 feet and a weight of 1,000 pounds "or more". Simple arithmetic makes it appear that the creature is not without diameter and simple experience suggests that he would be difficult in a landing net.

The commercially practical ones run from 30 to 150 pounds, some of them taken in nets, but a great many by hook and line. When they are hungry they will leap out of the water to take a feathered hook and the skilled worker merely keeps them moving over the side of the boat. He counts his catch in tonnage and his limit is his strength.

A Mighty Man Was Henry VIII

(From the London, Eng., Times)

When the young King Francis I made careful inquiry of the English ambassador about Henry VIII's phsique, to see how it compared with his own, he was told that the English King had the better leg, relates The London Times.

The legs of one Henry VIII's suits of armour have now been recognized at Scrivelsby by the master of the Tower Armouries and added to their upper portions in London they show how fine a figure of a man he was.

The common notion of Henry's appearance is founded on Holbein's portrayal of him in late life, when he seemed fat and squat. As a young man he must have looked very different. Five suits of his armor survive, and three were made for him in his earlier years, when the circumference of his waist was 34 inches instead of 52 to which it later spread, and his six feet of height could make their proper effect.

One of these suits is that now seen whole again a regal piece of armor made by a member of the great Milanese armorer family of Missaglia and almost certainly etched in England with its decorations of St. George and the Dragon and so forth, perhaps by one of the several Italian artists whom Henry had in his pay.

Among connoisseurs of armor the name of Henry VIII is held in high honor. Early in his reign he founded the only English school of armor able to compete in style and craftsmanship with the South German and North Italian centres upon which his rivals Charles V and Francis I could draw. This was at Greenwich, Henry's own birth-place, where two of his surviving suits of armor where made, and for more than a hundred years the Greenwich school continued to produce work with the same characteristics of restrained ornament, fine appearance, and practicality.

He set up permanent list for jousting at Greenwich, Hampton Court and Westminster, the last of which is known as the Horse Guards Parade. He spent a large part of his fortune on jousts and tourneys, nor as readers of Hall's Chronicle know, was he a mere patron and spectator. He was himself a formidable jouster.

Not long after his coronation he slipped away to Richmond, where he jousted incognito, and on the Field of Cloth of Gold in 1520 the biggest tournament ever staged was held, with jousting, fighting on foot at the barriers, and even a wrestling match the result of which is not recorded—between the two monarchs. To so sturdy a fighter as Henry VIII a suit of armor is no bad memorial.

Through the loan of the lower half by the Dymoke estate, the suit can be seen reunited at the tower and it is not hard to imagine the powerful frame of the King advancing, under its protection, to battle in the lists.

Sludged Blood Has Fatal Result

(From Time Magazine New York)

One of medicine's big mysteries is the bodily process that translates disease into death. One man who has been looking stubbornly for an answer is 43-year-old Dr. Melvin H. Knisely, a gaunt, tall (6 ft. 3) physiologist at the University of Chicago. For 17 years Dr. Knisely and a squad of coworkers at Chicago and the University of Tennessee have been bending over their microscopes laboriously studying the circulation of the blood. Last fortnight Science published their epochal findings.

Using a special quartz-rod light that he developed himself to make blood vessels transparent and three-dimensional under the microscope, Knisely began by examining blood circulation in healthy animals. In all normal animals (including human beings) the red blood cells float separately in plasma like tiny fish in a rapid stream. They flow along freely and often so swiftly that the individual cells cannot be distinguished under a microscope. A normal red cell keeps to itself.

One day Knisely was peering into the blood vessels of a monkey with malaria. He found a radical change in the red cells; instead of flowing independently they were clumped together in sluggish masses. Knisely and his group went on to study the circulation in other diseased animals. Sure enough, sludged blood turned up in every animal and human being suffering from severe injury or disease. All told, they found red-cell clumping associated with over 50 conditions. from the common cold to hysteria.

What makes the red cells stick together? A member of Knisely's group has already discovered an important clue: a sticky coating on the cells (not found in normal blood) has tentatively been identified as a protein. Somehow disease or injury causes the body to deposit this sticky material on the red cells.

The results may be "utterly devastating." The body's smallest blood vessels are barely wide enough to let a single cell squeeze through. When red cells clump, they plug three bottlenecks and deprive tissues of food and oxygen. The tissue cells die. When sludged blood kills important tissues, the patient dies.

Others have seen sludged blood before, but its significance had not been understood. Dr. Knisely thinks that red cell clumping may account for many cases of mental illness (he found the central nervous system of one psychotic patient "showered with permanent plugs" that had destroyed many of the nerve cells). And he suggests that even aging and senility may be accounted for by accumulated damage from injuries and illness.

Churchill, Country Squire

(From an article in Newsweek Magazine, New York.)

"We need a prime minister—Mr. Churchill." That was the way Harold MacMillan, president of the Conservative party, introduced the former P.M., to the assembled Tories at Brighton. Churchill agreed. The cheers of crowds as, smoking a cigar and making his V for Victory sign, he appeared in an open car, sharpened the old warrior's unconcealed desire to retire from his present life to the toils of high office. As such things go, however, Churchill combines activity, pleasure, and profit about as well as it can be done in austere Britain.

Half of England would have gladly paid admission to watch Churchill during the last few weeks, repairing the chicken runs on the farm he bought recently to expand his estate, Chartwell, in western Kent. He climbed onto the roof and vigorously renewed the tar while half a dozen German war prisoners who work on the farm stood about below handing up materials. When he had finished for the day, Churchill clambered down, eyed his handiwork with satisfaction, climbed into his new jeep, which he sometimes drives himself, and bumped back along the narrow country lane to his red brick house.

Chartwell, new by British standards, was built shortly before World War I and has been owned by Churchill for about 25 years. It sits on the brow of a hill, with its plain back to the road and its facade overlooking one of the loveliest valleys in England. Churchill lives there when the House of Commons is not in session, weekends there when it is.

Like other Englishmen, he has some difficulty maintaining his house and does not use all 20 rooms. Its maintenance staff includes two maids, a cook, a valet-butler, two gardeners—and the master, Churchill himself, besides tarring the chicken runs, has laid thousands of bricks around the estate to build the powerhouse, much of the studio, and the boundary walls. He recently said: "I've laid 2,000 bricks in one day—that's well up to trade union standards."

Churchill also constructed the series of fish ponds before the house and stocked them with carp. His intimates say there is something distinctly regal about him as he sits before his fish ponds tossing out tidbits from a sack at his side.

Churchill neither retires nor rises as late as legend says. He usually awakens between 7 and 8, breakfasts in bed, and immediately begins on his daily quota of cigars. He then rings for a secretary and from copious diaries, letters and state documents begins dictating his war memoirs, of which the first volume is to be published next Spring. By tradition, British prime ministers take with them from Downing Street their semi-personal documents (such as Churchill's correspondence with Franklin D. Roosevelt) even if they deal with state affairs.

Churchill dictates all his writings, often wearing a bathrobe and pacing about a large bedroom-workroom as he talks. When he has finished, one of his four secretaries brings him the typescript, which he checks carefully.

He rarely dresses before 11, then often dons R.A.F. battle dress—with a Stetson hat in Summer—he receives luncheon guests. He invariably naps in the afternoon for 40 minutes to an hour and a half, then does his chores around the estate. Althought Churchill wears strange, informal daytime clothes at Chartwell, he always dresses for dinner.

His dinner conversation tends to be about world or national affairs, but frequently ranges over a wide variety of topics. In private conversation, as in his speeches, Churchill has the trick of pausing for the right word and then producing the perfectly turned phrase. He has an excellent memory, can quote at length from the speeches of his father—whom he always refers to as "my papa"—and can usually cap any literary quotation with a longer one. He often begins to chuckle at his best remarks when he is halfway though, then spits out the climax and bursts into pleased laughter.

At a recent luncheon, Brendan Bracken, minister of Information in Churchill's wartime cabinet, admired his close friend's dinner plates and asked if they were a gift from some admirers. Churchill replied that he bought them himself and that they had belonged to Louis Napoleon. Then with an amused gleam he continued: "When people give me presents they always give me alcohol or nicotine. They think I can't appreciate anything else."

Actually, his liquor consumption is not as fabulous as has been reported, although he drinks wine at both lunch and dinner, a little more at Chartwell than outside. He is likely to sip two or three brandies after dinner and has a habit of starting a drink, forgetting it, and then starting a fresh one. He smokes in the same way, with a cigar in one hand and a box of matches in the other. If he is talking the cigar is often discarded before he ever geta it drawing properly.

After dinner conversation seldom keeps Churchill up after 12 or 1 a.m. —though sometimes work does. He is inclined to get an idea at night, call for a secretary, and work until 2 or 3. Such work embraces his memoirs, his ambitious movement for a united Europe, and politics. Churchill thinks his recent lack of electoral appeal has come from his being ahead of the public. For instance, he believes that the new restrictions on business and personal life in Britain indicate his 1945 warnings of a home grown "gestapo". And he pointed out recently that his "iron curtain" speech at Fulton, Mo., on March 5, 1946, would now seem merely platitudinous.

For the future, Churchill anticipates financial and economic catastrophe in Britain within the next six months, and feels that crisis measures taken by him would instill confidence in the country whereas taken by Attlee they would cause panic. Convinced that Britain can recover from its economic ills, he is also convinced that the Labor government is making them worse. And he believes firmly that Anglo-American relations would be better if he were prime minister.

He refuses to admit that his age might keep him from returning to 10 Downing Street. He recently reminded a political associate that William Gladstone was still premier at 84—which would give Churchill 12 more years.

New North Sea Cable Laid

The postmaster-general, Wilfred Paling, put to sea in this ship of the Post Office fleet last week to lay a cable—an undertaking that may be scheduled to take a few days but is just as likely to take a few weeks, such are the hazards of cable-laying, a correspondent writes from H.M.T.S. Monarch to the London Times.

When he left us the other morning at Flushing there remained only the finishing touches to complete the Monarch's task of linking England with Holland by cable from Aldeburgh to Domburg. The cable had been tested and found in working order before the postmaster-general went ashore.

The laying of this cable is of significance not only because a new type of cable has been used for the first time but also because the operation is the first of its kind to be carried out by a ship of this size and equipment. The Monarch is the most recently constructed of His Majesty's telegraph ships there are three others much smaller—and carries all the latest improvements in cable-laying machinery and navigating instruments. With her equipment she cost about £750,000, and the cost of the cable she has just laid can be reckoned at about 10s a foot. Her performance on this voyage has been studied with interest by engineers of the G.P.O., by Dutch Post Office engineers, and by a representative of the Danish postal service, for it is planned to lay a similar cable at some future time between Holland and Denmark.

The Monarch carried for this job 1,400 tons of cable, which weighs 19 tons to the nautical mile. The undertaking has not used anything approaching her capacity and only two of her four cable tanks have been required. On the other hand, no other cable ship would have been able to lay the cable in one run or have been so well equipped to meet emergencies. Happily, the weather, except for one uncomfortable spell, has not been too bad, and only two unexpected faults (or breaks) were found in the cable length. As it takes eight hours to repair a fault, from the time that the part of the cable in which it has been detected is hauled on board, one can appreciate how uncertain is the length of time that a cable-laying voyage may take.

Leaving Greenwich, the Monarch sailed to Aldeburgh and made sure that the buoy marking the English shore end of the cable was still in position. She then proceeded along the proposed route of the cable, laying mark buoys at intervals. As we approached Domburg, on the Walcheren coast, the weather turned so stormy that it was decided not to go farther to check the position of the Dutch shore end buoy. We returned to Aldeburgh and the shelter of the Suffolk coast.

Two days later the storm had abated and the cable end off Aldeburgh was hauled in. Then began the process of "jointing," with which most of us were to become so familiar that we almost think we can do it ourselves. One end of the cable is stripped of its outer coverings of jute, steel wires, and copper stripe. The uncovered cable looks like a thick candle, and the jointer, a highly skilled craftsman, calmly saws through it. The core of the cable is made up of copper wire strands but is not a conductor, being only used for strengthening. Round this core is a spiral of polythene which, being a spiral, makes an air passage at the core. Next comes a layer of copper strip which is the inner conductor, and over it is a thick layer of polythene, round which is wound a second layer of copper strip, the outer conductor.

It is the polythene, a new development in plastic materials, that makes this cable exceptional. Polythene has not been so used before. When the jointer has made his joint — an intricate process of graduations — it is inserted in an injection moulding machine so that liquid polythene can be pumped into it at high pressure.

The first joint had reached this stage by late afternoon when the pressure went wrong and the liquid polythene oozed out at an abnormally high pressure. This was something of a tragedy; it meant that the jointer's work (about six hours of it) had been in vain and the joint was spoilt.

The moulding machine behaved well for the rest of the voyage. After two days the Dutch shore end was sighted and hauled in during the morning. Jointing began in the afternoon and by ten o'clock at night the final splice had been made. Then came the tricky operation of "slipping the bight" — that is, getting the final jointed-up length of cable overboard without a kink in it. It had to be done, too, before the turn of the tide, which meant quick as well as careful work. The Monarch and her men, under Captain Betson, succeeded, and as we lay off Flushing just after midnight these civil servants of the sea were well entitled to feel proud of their work.

WEDDINGS

BAXTER - BURKE

Lighted white Christmas trees and candles formed a beautiful setting for the marriage of Helena Maude Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Burke, Belleville, and John Edgerton Baxter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Baxter, Trenton, in Holloway St. United Church on Saturday December the twentieth at three thirty. Rev. C. A. Perkins performed the ceremony. Mr. Willian Connor played the wedding music and Miss Margaret Hillis was soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a wedding gown of white satin fashioned on princess lines, with inserts of Brussels lace. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Sweetheart headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses and Maidenhair fern.

Miss Marion Daniels was bridesmaid wearing a gown of mauve taffeta. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of mauve and yellow "mums" and Sweetheart roses. Mr. Douglas Baxter, was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Jack Sills and Raymond Gunsolus.

A reception followed at the Chez Henri restaurant where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of mulberry crepe with black accessories and a corsage of white "mums". She was assisted by the groom's mother in black brocaded crepe with turquoise trim and a corsage of pink "mums."

After the reception the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Ottawa. For travelling the bride chose a dress of lime green crepe, a muskrat coat and brown accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Point Anne, Foxboro, Trenton, Bloomfield, Stirling, Deloro, Kingston, Toronto and Ottawa.

Wallbridge W.A. Sponsors Impressive Candlelight Service

Wallbridge — On Sunday evening last a very impressive candle light service was held in the church here, sponsored by the W.A.

The Stone Church congregation had been invited and their choir assisted Wallbridge choir in leading the singing of Christmas carols and also gave special numbers. Instead of a sermon, the pastor, Rev. C. W. Neelands showed two film strips "The Child of Bethlehem" being pictures from the Christmas Story as given by St. Luke and "The Boyhood of Jesus." These were very impressive and most appropriate. Mr. Douglas Ketcheson gave a splendid cornet solo "The Holy City" with Mr. Geo. Ketcheson as accompanist.

Miss Gwennie Ketcheson was organist for the service, when there was a splendid attendance.

Christmas Eve Services Held

Picton — Christmas Eve services were held in the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches here. Large congregations were in attendance. At St. Mary Magdalene Church, the rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, celebrated Holy Communion. The processional hymn was "While Shepherds Watched." As an anthem the choir sang Gustav Holt's "Christmas Song." Carols were sung by the congregation. The introit hymn was "Hark The Herald Angels Sing" (Kyrie). Eric Hunt's setting was used for the Sanctus Benediction and Agnu Dei. The recessional was "Joy to the World."

At St. Gregory's Church, Rev. Father R. J. Coyle conducted mass in honor of the Blessed Sacrament, this being sung in three parts by the choir. During the offertory, "Adeste Fidelis" was sung with Thomas Bourke as soloist. At the communion of the Mass, Miss Jean Hensman sang "Jesu Bambino." Carols were also sung by the choir with Harry Doyle as soloist.

At the Christmas services, Rev. Father Coyle was assisted by Father Brown, O.M.I., of the Oblate Fathers, Ottawa.

Sunday Services.

Christmas services will be continued in most churches next Sunday. At Picton United Church a candlelighting ceremony will be held in the evening. The choir will sing "Angels We Have Heard," "Christmas Angelus" and "Sta rof the East." At the morning service a quartette composed of Shirley, Betty and Ralph Pickering and Earl Holt will sing "Only a Little Village." The senior choir's anthem is "While Shepherds Watched", while the junior choir will sing "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly." Rev. A. E. McCutcheon will deliver the messages.

Women's Activities

MT. CARMEL W.A.

Members of the Mt. Carmel W.A. held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Humphrey. Mr. Sunter opened the meeting with prayer and discussed the missionary work of the church. Following the acceptance of the secretary and tresaurer's reports, Mrs. Alyea thanked the ladies for their support during the past year.

Mr. Sunter presided fo the election of officers with the following results: President, Mrs. Allan Alyea; Vice President, Mrs. Godon Chapman; Secretary, Mrs. A. Humphrey; Asst. Secretary, Mrs. Arthur Tackabery; Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Alexander; Pianist, Mrs. W. H. Seward; Asst. Pianist, Mrs. E. A. Chapman; Convener Refreshments Com., Mrs. A. Chapman; Press Reporter, Mrs. A. Humphrey.

REDNERSVILLE W. I.

Mrs. Ralph Redner was hostess to the December meeting of the Rednersville W.I. on Thursday evening. The president, Mrs. Hugh Weese opened the meeting. The singing of Christmas carols with Mrs. McKay at the piano was very much enjoyed. Several items of business were discussed. Mrs. Sidney Fox took charge of the Christmas program. Three readings, "Christmas in Many Lands", read by Mrs. S. Fox, "These Letters Bring Priceless Gifts" read by Mrs. H. Montgomery and "Adventures in Christmas Giving" read by Mrs. Earl Onderdonk were very interesting. Master Leo Fox and Master Roger Redner favored with a duet. Misses Sybil Anita and Barbara Redner sang "White Christmas".. These musical numbers were enjoyed by all. Miss Elda McFaul gave an interesting report of the 26th annual "4 H" Club congress held in Chicago the first week in December. Miss McFaul represented Prince Edward County Junior Farmers and Junior Institute at the congress. Following the exchange of Christmas gifts the hostess and social committee served delicious refreshments.

Christmas Charity Ball Attended By Large Crowd

A very successful Christmas Charity Ball, sponsored by the members of the Hospital Auxiliary, was held in Ackerman Hall at Albert College last evening, with Mr. Douglas Cavanaugh as master of ceremonies. Approximately four hundred guests danced to music furnished by the "Top Hatters" orchestra of Napanee.

Two beautifully decorated Christmas trees at either side of the stage, and one at the entrance to the hall, highlighted the festive atmosphere for the occasion, augmented by festoons in Christmas colors and the traditional greenery arranged behind shaded colored lights, while balloons and serpentine were used to add to the gaiety of the scene later in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lally received admissions and distributed programs attractively decorated in red and white.

Patrons and patronesses in the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Bert Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Legate, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Stoble, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Forester, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Miss Laura Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Wray, Mrs. R. M. Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert B. Scott.

At midnight a plate supper was served from a long table lighted with tall red tapers in five triple silver candelabra, and during the supper hour, Mr. Arthur Juby, with Miss Barbara Diment as accompanist, contributed two solos.

Prize winners for the different features were: Door Prize, Mrs. Bruce Lattimer and Mr. Bill Brown; Spot Dance, Mrs. J. W. Sherry and Mr. Arthur Simpson; Santa Claus Dance, Mrs. Smith; Balloon Dance, Miss Dorothy Kellty and Mr. Buster Lockwood.

Bonarlaw

St. Mark's S.S. Presents Fine Christmas Concert

Bonarlaw — (Special) — St. Mark's Sunday School held their annual Christmas tree and entertainment on Monday evening of this week in the parish hall with a fair attendance considering the stormy weather. Rev. J. M. Brownlie acted as chairman for a program of choruses, recitations, etc., by the pupils of the Sunday School. Mrs. Jason Baker accompanied on the piano. The second part of the program consisted of moving pictures projected by Clarence Seeney of Stirling, field representative for Hastings County of the National Film Board of Canada who was introduced by Sunday School Superintendent J. F. Baker. Mr. Seeney in a short address explained the work of the Film Board and showed the films "Small Fry," "Christmas Carols" and a beautiful picture in technicolor depicting the search for oil throughout Canada by The Imperial Company. He also projected a film "Robinson Crusoe" obtained by the Sunday School. The chairman thanked Mr. Seeney for his visit and the audience expressed their appreciation by a hearty hand clap.

Following the National Anthem presents were distributed from a prettily decorated Christmas tree to all Sunday School pupils and oranges and nuts were given the children.

Roslin Christmas Concert

Roslin Public School pupils put on their Christmas Concert in the hall last Friday night, before a large and appreciative audience. The concert was directed by the teacher, Mrs. Albert Clare with Miss Reta Slingerland as accompanist on the piano. The musical numbers had been prepared by the music supervisor, Miss Grace Pitman, of Stirling.

Rev. Campbell of Plainfield, very ably acted as chairman for the following program:

Opening chorus, "Welcome", followed by a recitation by Lorne Meeks.

Christmas Candles, Recitation by Russel Conly, chorus by the Juniors.

Chairman's Address.

Recitation, Carol Bailey.

Dialogue, Zackary's Hired Man.

Two-part song "Our Prayer" by six girls.

Recitation, Betty and the Bear, by Kenneth Howes.

Duet, Mary and Norma Bates.

Drill, Frolic of the Dolls and the Teddy Bears.

Audience sing, The First Noel, and Silent Night.

Dialogue, The Naughty Mouse

Readings by Harold Hart, The Night After Christmas and The Touch of the Master's Hand.

Chorus by the older girls, Jesus Was Once a Sweet Baby.

A Cantata in four scenes, "Why the Angels Sang".

God Save the King.

Santa then arrived and was heartily welcomed by the children. He then distributed candy and gifts from a heavily laden Christmas tree. This brought a pleasant evening to a close

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In critical spots, it is wise to be as safe as possible. The bidding of slams enters some tough situations. So, present day ace and king conventions reduce the dangers.

The Kibitzer convention uses a bid of four no-trump to ask of partner how many aces and kings he has. In response, partner first tells whether he has one ace and how many kings with it.

Five clubs shows no aces; five diamonds, one ace and no kings; five hearts, one ace and one king; five spades, one ace and two kings; five no-trump, one ace and three kings.

When having two aces, responses are: Six clubs, two aces and no kings; six diamonds, two aces and one king; six hearts, two aces and two kings; six spades, two aces and three kings.

Suppose partner is known to have no aces. Then a bid of five no-trump asks partner only how many kings he holds. All his responses are in the level of six.

Then, six clubs shows no kings; six diamonds, one king; six hearts, two kings; six spades, three kings; six no-trump, four kings. No more kings could there be.

We have been talking about this pair:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A 7 4 3	♠K Q 9 2
♥A 9 3	♥7 2
♦A Q J 4	♦K 8 6 5
♣A 6	♣K Q 7

The bidding goes like this:

South	North
1 D	2 S
3 S	4 D
5 NT	6 S

In answer to five no-trump, six spades shows three kings. This is what tells south there is a king in opponents hands. If he goes to seven it would be with this danger known to him.

Clinch a cinch and save a rave.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Pretty soon your bald Uncle Ned will be wearing a toupee, just as Charles Boyer, Fred Astaire, Van Heflin, Bing Crosby, Brian Donlevy, Jack Benny and Edgar Bergen do on the screen.

This prediction comes from makeup master Perc Westmore who says that hair prices are definitely in the ascendancy for civilian use. It should be noted that the above-mentioned stars seldom don their "rugs" (also tagged "scalp doilies") in public.

"But," said Westmore, "the time is soon coming when toupees will be in common use everywhere. Let me cite a parallel:

"You seldom see people with crooked, ugly teeth anymore. That's because the use of false dentures no longer carries a stigma. The same will happen with toupees."

Perc declared there are some methods of re-growing hair, but they require much time and patience. A main cause of baldness is nervousness, he declared.

"That's what happened to Humphrey Bogart," he related. "He was in the makeup chair one day this year and I noticed two little bald spots. 'Bogie,' I said, 'you're going to be completely bald in five days.' He was bald in four days!" However, treatments later restored the actor's previous growth, and then some.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bing Crosby, Barry Fitzgerald and Joan Caulfield in a "warm" scene from their heart-warming comedy, Paramount's "Welcome Stranger," the film which opens next Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program first Belleville showing, "The Big Fix," with James Brown and Sheila Ryan. Matinee all next week starting at 2.15.

WIN A $5.00 PRIZE

And Get Acquainted with Your Local Businessmen

Here's something new and different. The merchants advertising on this page are co-operating in a contest which gives its readers an opportunity of winning a weekly prize of $5.00. Here's how you win: Each week in one of the advertisements a word will be "Scrambled." Read the advertisements, find the scrambled word, unscramble it, and send it with the name of the advertiser in whose ad. it appeared to the "Contest Editor," Ontario Intelligencer, Box 190, Belleville. All answers must be in by the THURSDAY following publication, and winner will be announced the next week in the Business Directory. The winner will be drawn from among the correct answers, and a cheque for $5.00 mailed promptly. No member of the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer or their families are eligible for a prize.

THE WINNER IN LAST WEEK'S DIRECTORY CONTEST IS:

MR. BRUCE MILLIGAN

116 CHATHAM ST. — BELLEVILLE

THE UNSCRAMBLED WORD IS:

CHAPTER 8

"Yes, ma'am," and there was hesitation. "Mr. Forrest came in a time ago."

"Did he say anything in particular?"

"Not to say definite, ma'am—he just said he wondered if I would like to go up into the mountains for the rest of the summer."

"The mountains! What mountains?"

"I don't know, ma'am. Maybe the Catskills or the Adirondacks, I'm thinking."

"He didn't half mean it, Rhoda. Perhaps he thought the weather might be to warm for her later on."

"Yes, ma'am, that was it."

But Jean went away from the nursery with a sinking heart.

She knew there was no limit to what Vivian would or could do, if he chose. She must ask him about this, and if he meant to send Florimel to the mountains, she vowed a deep vow that she would go too.

Later, when she was in her room, dressing for dinner. Vivian came in.

"Mimi, vamoose!" he said, looking the girl over from head to foot and smiling at her. "I want to talk to Mrs. Forrest."

"Jean," he began at once, "I have something else I must attend to quickly. So I must speak briefly, and you must listen."

"Yes said Jean, noncommittally, but with a sinking heart.

"Do you remember," he went on, "When we were in Paris, on our wedding trip, and—I have not forgotten—you turned all hearts with your beauty and grace? Do you remember?"

"I remember we were in Paris."

"Yes. Do you remember when we went to dinner at the home of Jules Augier?"

"Oh those people! I do."

"You're wonderful when you show scorn! Your great brown eyes are at their best when you're scathingly intolerant. You're thinking, doubtless, of the household—"

"Yes wasn't he the man who had two wives?"

"You called it that, when we reached home, after the dinner. But both the ladies were not his wife. It was what the French call—you know—"

"Say it yourself."

He laughed at her expression. "They call it a menage a trois. They lived very happily."

"Did you come here to remind me of them?"

"I did, my dear; because, that is what we are going to have here. Esme is going to stay on, as part of our household, and we will have a menage a trois."

Jean turned white, but held on to her senses and her nerves.

"Leave the room," she said. with no trace of anger or shock, and, having accomplished his end, Vivian left the room.

Jean summoned Mimi again, and dressed for dinner, with perfect calmness. She wore a new gown of sheerest silk chiffon of an exquisite turquoise blue. The several skirts, one above the other, of various lengths and shades, were like gossamer in the moonlight, and the bodice was a low bertha frill of the material, which pinioned her arms to her sides as it left her entire neck and shoulders bare. She had never looked more beautiful, and she showed a new, proud air, which gave her a queenly effect.

The dinner was as usual, save that a new element was at work. Its effect was so vague, so subtle, that it was not recognized at first as an elevation of Esmeralda's position. Yet that soon became evident, for Vivian's consummate art made him produce the effects he wanted, and no one was left ignorant of the new regime.

After dinner, Jean was never in the room with the other two, and after an evening of gay amusements, she slipped away upstairs, and did not go down again.

Wearied with her racing thoughts and her efforts to think what to do, she fell asleep from sheer exhaustion, and was wakened by a tap at her door. This was so unusual, she sprang to open it, and saw the imperturable face of Vivian's new valet, who told her that Mr. Forrest begged she would come to his study for a few minutes' fencing.

This was no new experience, and telling the man she would go in a moment, she closed the door and put on her fencing uniform. Her costume was of soft white wool, short plaited skirt and carefully fitted jacket.

She went to the study and thought at first there was no one there but her husband, until she saw two or three shadowy forms in the alcoves. Then came Austin, who was in the habit of putting some drops in Vivian's eyes every night at the orders of an oculist.

Jean watched him, ready to begin fencing as soon as Austin finished his ministrations. With a resounding thawack on Vivian's back, Austin left the room.

Husband and wife faced each other. It was a strange picture, for not once did they smile or speak, except as was necessary to their work.

There was clever thrusts and parries, beautiful lunges and recoveries. They were well matched; what Vivian gained by strength, Jean made up for by skill.

As they fenced, Jean became conscious of more people in the room. Austin had returned, Sayre was hovering in the doorway, and Suzy, who had been flirting with Haskell on a sofa in the shadows of some curtains, came out into the open and admiringly watched the play of the foils.

The principals heeded not their audience; they were not trying to win; they were just practicing hard on one or two points.

And, for she had been watching the clock,Jean saw that the fifteen minutes that Vivian always aloted was up and, after a brilliant riposte, she walked fro the room, putting her foils in its place as she passed the rack.

She said no word to her husband or to any one else; she just went off with a careless air and a steady step.

Forrest looked after her, foil in the air, and then began to tremble, to waver on its feet, and finally to slump down in a quivering heap.

In a moment, Esmeralda was at his side, stooping to take his head on her knee, forcing herself not to scream, but giving little pained sighs, as if hopeless.

No one knew where Esmeralda had comefrom, for she had not come in by the hall door, Sayre stood there. It would seem she came from Vivian's bedroom. She wore but one garment a voluminous and floating nightdress of white chiffon, and now it was stained with crimson. The girl, her eyes wide–with horror, rose to her feet, saying. "He's—dead!" and then fled to her own room.

Austin went forward and knelt by his brother.

"Yes," he said, "yes, Vivian is dead."

Austin rose with an odd look of surprise in his eyes, as if he were more mystified than grieved.

"How did this thing happen?" he said, looking from one to another. "I watched the fencing; there were no dangerous thrusts."

"Perhaps there was something wrong with Vivian," Sayre suggested, coming nearer the dead man. "You're giving him drops, aren't you?"

"Not as medicine," Austin said. "I put drops in his eyes every night. Doctor Stiles advised it. He's a great oculist, you know. He said Vivian eyes were only bothered by the sun, and the treatment would soon cure them."

"They look all right," Sayre said, after bending down and peering into them.

"I think we must send for a doctor," Austin said, uncertainly. "I want to do what is right, and I'm sure that's it."

He pushed the bell for the valet and Molton came. The man looked not at all like a valet. He was not the usual sleek type. On the contrary, Molton was a stocky, sturdy build, and his expression, like she physique, was forbidding.

He looked at the crumpled figure on the floor, without a word. Then after a moment, he turned to Austin and said, "Order, sir?"

His voice sounded a bit military, but his physical attitude denied that. He sagged a little to one side as he stood, but he showed no surprise or curiosity at the situation.

"Yes," Austin returned. "Telephone to Doctor Gregg, and ask him to come here immediately. Do not tell him the exact truth; say that Mr. Forrest is ill."

"Yes, sir," and the man went away.

"What on earth can a doctor do?" cried Suzy, who had come out of her dark corner. "Don't you know anything, Austin? You have to call the Medical Attorney or Examiner or something like that."

"Don't chatter, Suzy," said Austin, in a grave but not unkind tone. "Perhaps you're the best one to go and tell Jean. Where is Anne Fraser?"

But Suzy had already run away, and she burst into Jean's room, without knocking, and ran to the bed.

"Jean darling," she began, and then the task proved too much for her and she gave way to tumultuous sobs.

"Suzy dear, what is it?" Jean asked, surprised at her young guest's outburst. "Don't cry so! Can't I help you?"

"I don't need help—you do! That's why I came. Oh, Jean, Vivian is—is—"

"Is that Suzy? Be sensible! Is he angry at something?"

"No, nothing like that. He is—dead!"

"Dead! Vivian? He can't be Why I was fencing with him a few a few minutes ago."

"Yes, but he's dead. I guess he had a fit—or a stroke—or something. Will you come, Jean?"

"Of course. Wait till I slip on a robe."

Hurriedly Jean took down from her wardrobe a sort of tea gown, finely accordion-pleated and tinted with faint waves of the colors of the rainbow.

Why she chose that, she didn't know, but it was one of Vivian's favorites; she took it subconsciously.

Not for a moment did she think Vivian was dead. She knew Suzy's habit of wild exaggeration, and she surmised that something had happened to him, but what, she couldn't think.

They went back together, and as Jean entered the room there was a sudden silence. She glanced at no one save the huddled figure on the floor.

"Lift him up, Austin," she said, going nearer. "Don't leave him like this."

"No Jean, we must not touch him; the doctor will come soon."

Jean nodded her head; she remembered the law. She reached for a low hassock and sat on it by Vivian's side.

She seemed to forget there was any one else in the room. She looked at the dead face sadly. As tears rolled down her face she brushed them off with her hand.

More and more she became wrapped in a reverie which made her look like one in a dream. She had no volition, no perceptivity, and Anne Fraser, who had joined the group, went to her and said, gently. "Come with me, dear."

Jean looked up at her, like one awakened from sleep. She rose docilely and let Anne lead her away.

But this did not please Brandon Sayre. He stopped them in the hall, and said, quietly, "Where are you taking her, Anne?"

"To her room. I'll put her to bed and give her something to make her sleep."

"No, don't do that! Doctor Gregg will be here shortly. She would have to be roused again, and being sleepy would put her at a disadvantage. Jean, come with me, back to study."

Anne plainly showed her disapproval, and as she frowned at Sayre, she said, angrily, "You want to put her at a disadvantage, yourself! You want her to be troubled!"

Sayre gave a little laugh, and taking Jean's arm, led her across the hall.

Still Jean wore that unconcerned look; still she seemed as if she had no part in the goings-on, no interest in the tragedy that had occurred.

The two went in the study and sat on a big divan sort of thing, and Sayre said, in the hearing of all, "I think it will be best to leave Jean undisturbed for a bit."

"Anne Fraser began," Well, I think—" but was interrupted by the entrance of Esmeralda Fane. There was always a sort of suppressed excitement when the girl appeared, for one never knew just what she would do next.

In this case, she went straight across the room to where Jean sat and knelt before her, burying her head in Jean's lap.

"Oh," wailed Esme, her voice sounding flat and uncultured in that tense circle, "Oh, Jean, isn't it awful to think what we've lost! He was ours, wasn't he—both of ours? What can we do without his love—his wonderful love!"

The rest sat in a sort of stunned silence, while Sayre prayed that Jean might continue her blank mood.

She did. She looked at Esme as if she were not there at all, looked with vague, staring eyes, and said, with no expression whatever, "Yes, yes; please go away."

It was not said rudely, but in a voice which was gentle yet decided.

Esme rose to her feet, and looked round the room pathetically. Her eyes seemed to ask, "Am I not treated vilely?" and "What will you do about it?"

But to her surprise no one answered the beautiful, questioning eyes.

Then Haskell went to her, took her arm, and as she smiled up at him, he said only "Sit here" and offered her a chair in a corner.

To the relief of all, Doctor Gregg came then.

"Tell me about it ," he said to Austin, after a general greeting.

"I don't know what to say," Forrest returned. "We were all in here—no, not all, but most of us here now, just as we often are. We sat or stood around, saying it was time to go to bed, but not going. Vivian and his wife were fencing—they did that every night for practice. We didn't look at them much; it wasn't fancy work, just a bit of technique, and we were mostly at the other end of the room. Then they stopped fencing after fifteen minutes; they alway's did that on the dot. Then Jean went off to her room, and Vivian stayed here."

"And then?" the doctor prompted.

"Why, I don't know exactly. I was over at the table, looking at the list of engagements for to-day. We're having a fencing meet, you know."

"Yes, I know. I thought you had a larger house party."

"Oh—yes. They aren't all here. Some went to bed early. You see, we put in strenuous work with our practice, and we get tired."

But Dr. Gregg was now looking over the dead man.

"We must call the medical Examiner," he said. "This man has been stabbed."

"He couldn't have died from that cut in his neck," Peter Haskell said. "That's a mere scratch."

"Yes, I know. I'm not a fencer, myself, so I wish some of you would tell me. Why would a fencer make a cut like that?"

"It's a sort of stop thrust." Haskell said. "It usually draws the parry and riposte of the adversary, and gives opportunity for the counter-riposte or remise or reprise—"

"Stop." Gregg said, impatiently. "You know all that jargon means nothing to me .Where is the weapon?"

Haskell picked up the foil that lay on the floor nearby and offered it to Gregg.

But the doctor's interest had returned to the victim rather than the method of his death, and he was already at the telephone.

When he turned back to the others, he said, "Peterson will be here directly. You may leave the room if you wish, but no one may leave the house until he comes. As you say there are other guests, I think it would be wise to notify them of what happened. Who is in authority here?"

At first no one spoke and then Austin said, "Mrs. Forrest, of course."

"Oh, no! Said Jean, shuddering. "You take charge won't you, Aust-tin? At least for tonight."

"Yes, dear," he said, kindly, "I'll do anything I can. What do you want to ask, Doctor Gregg?"

"See to it that the other guests and the servants are roused, and tell them to dress and be in readiness if the examiner calls for them."

"But it's only four o'clock, Jean said. "It's surely not necessary to get all the staff up at this hour! Just have enough to look after us all, Austin."

Gregg looked a little surprised at this revision of his orders but he said nothing. He had yet to learn that Jean's calm demeanor hid a very strong will and real executive ability.

"I know," said Austin, as he left the room. "I'll see to it."

"Until Doctor Peterson comes," Gregg said slowly, "I prefer not to make any statement regarding Mr. Forrest's death. It is not entirely clear just what is the exact cause. He was fencing, you say. Was he seemingly in his usual good health?"

"Yes," Haskell told him. "Vivian was alway's well, and today he was the same as always."

"With whom was he fencing? Who was his adversary?"

"You can't say adversary," Haskell said, instructively. "Mr. and Mrs. Forrest were practicing a certain fencing gesture which is easily learned but requires time worked on it every night for fifteen minutes—"

"Why fifteen minutes?"

Haskell stared. Then he said, "I don't know, except that there is a rule among all good fencers to practice at least fifteen minutes every day. That time, short as it is, will keep one from getting rusty in his work."

"Queer game, seemingly," was Gregg's comment. "Now I'd like somebody else to tell me just how Mr. Forrest fell. I mean, was he—well, just describe the scene."

The wording of this speech seemed to exclude Peter Haskell, and no one offered to take his place.

To the surprise of all, Gregg looked at Suzy Kirk and said, "Young lady, I've noticed your intelligent face and your quick comprehension. I'll ask you to tell me what I want to know."

Suzy showed no elation or any embarrassment. She said, simply. "I was not very near them, I was in the back part of the room, in that sort of alcove."

"Where you alone there?"

"No."

"Who was with you?"

"Mr. Haskell."

"What where you doing?"

"Necking."

With difficulty, Dr. Gregg suppressed an exclamination of surprise at the frankness of the younger generation before he went on.

"But you turned your attention to the other two who were fencing?"

"Yes; I always love to see those two; they are so graceful and splended."

"You fence yourself?"

"Yes very well."

"Then can you tell me in words I can understand, just exactly what the were performing when Mr. Forrest Fell?"

"No, sir; not in words you can understand. you don't know the meaning of thrust and parry, of riposte or counter or octave. You call fencing performing! No, Dr. Gregg, I cannot tell you what they were doing when Mr. Forrest fell—so that you could understand it."

"May we come in?" asked a sweet voice from the doorway, and Tom and Barbara Wallace came into the study.

Barbara hesitated and then went and sat beside —Jean, who was doing what good Mrs. Wallace would afterword call "bearing up beautifully." For Barbara Wallace, one of the high lights of the Sargon Club, was also an inveterate gossip, and surely after this experience she would have plenty to gossip about.

"Austin told me," she whispered to Jean, "So I came right to you."

Jean wanted to say, "Please go right away again," but she restrained the impulse, and murmured some senseless words of thanks.

Jean did not actively dislike Mrs. Wallace, but she longed to be alone to set her mind in order, and to think what she would do.

Always calm and clear-headed, this situation found her unprepared, and that, to her, argued weakness of intellect and deeply annoyed her.

But she rose to the occasion, as Tom Wallace came along and she knew he would be facetious even in such a dark hour, she braced herself to meet it.

And sure enough his heavy bass voice rumbled what was almost a joke.

"I told you so," he said. I warned you that any one who decked his walls with a trophy or panoply or whatever you call the damned thing, was just inviting his own murder! That's what I said! And I said, too, that all this William Tell complex would lead to mischief. Oh, yes, I know my wife goes in for it, but it's without my approval. Yes, without my approval or sanction."

"Barbara is one of our expert's" Jean said, being unable to think of anything else to say. Then she pulled herself together. "But, Mr. Wallace," she went on, "Vivian wasn't killed because there were foils on the wall. All fencers use such decorations, and people who are not fencers, too."

"Yes, my dear, yes. Ah, who is coming?"

Dr. Gregg came toward Jean, and ignoring the guests, he introduced Dr. Peterson, the Medical Examiner.

Peterson was a large, determined looking man, and he addressed Jean, turning neither to right nor left as he talked.

"I think, Mrs. Forrest, I will remove your husband to his bedroom for examination. It is more than likely we must have an autopsy, but that will be done after he is taken away. I will not ask many questions. The District Attorney will do that. I have your permission to act?"

His manner was bruseque, and he showed no hint of grief or sympathy.

But Jean was glad of that sympathy from strangers always annoyed her, aand she answered the man in his own vein.

"Certainly, Doctor Peterson. My brother-in-law will be glad to assist you, and my servants will do your bidding. I should like to be kept informed as to your findings."

"Yes Mr. Forrest."

He went away and Jean looked up to see Brandon Sayre at her elbow.

"I want you to sit down now, and talk to no one," he said. "Soon the District Attorney will come, and we must all obey his orders. Don't wear yourself out chatting to these guests who are of no interest to you just now."

"Yes," she said, giving him a grateful look, "put me somewhere, and give me Suzy and Peter for a sort of bodyguard. They will keep the others away."

"You see dear," Sayre went on, "they may have to stay a day or two, whether they want to or not."

"Yes, just that. Now, remember, you are in a serious situation, and you must meet it not only with bravery but with—diplomacy."

"What do you mean?"

"I can't tell you here and now. Can't I see you alone, later on? You are your own mistress now."

"I don't see why you can't. Brandon, will it be an ordeal? Will they ask me difficult questions?"

"I fear they will, darling. And I don't see how we can meet alone this morning. But I must say this. Don't hide anything; speak the exact truth, but don't tell them anything they don't ask. Make your answers concise and don't elaborate on the facts. You understand me, don't you?"

"Yes, and I will obey you. May I go now—to see my baby?"

"No. You must wait until the District Attorney sends you away. And, another thing. Don't talk of your little girl. Answer questions about her as briefly as you can, but don't dilate. Don't appear to be trying to—to win sympathy or favor."

"No I won't. Is that the man now?"

"Yes; that's Mitchell. I know him. He's a fine man, but a peculiar one. Be courteous, Jean, but put on rather fine lady airs. He is impressed by pomp and circumstance."

"You speak as if I were in danger—"

"I don't say that, Jean, but a false step might make it seem that you are. Be natural, but reserved and as silent as possible."

Ther was a commotion as Vivian's body was carried into his bedroom. It had been covered with a large spread of Oriental embroidery, and Molton and Rugg, the butler, with two footmen carried it.

District Attorney Mitchell was not exactly formal.

He stood near the middle of the great room, and said, "I may want to question you separately later, but now I will only ask for a few items of general information. Who of you were here in this room when Mr. Forrest fell to the floor? Please rise."

They counted five—Esmeralda, Suzy, Austin, Sayre and Haskell.

"There was no one else in the room except Mr. Vivian Forrest!"

After a pause, Austin answered, "No one else."

Mitchell continued to address him.

"Were many of you practicing your fencing stunts?"

"No," Austin told him. "No one was using the foils but my brother and his wife."

"Were you playing to win, Mrs. Forrest?"

Jean smiled faintly at the ill-phrased query, but she said, graciously, "No, Mr. Mitchell; we were just drilling on techinque for a special occasion."

"You are having a tournament here, I understand?"

"We planned to. But of course it will not take place now. The invitations must be recalled."

"Yes, yes. Now, Mrs. Forrest, as you fenced, can you think of any cause for the small cut that is found on your husband's neck?"

Jean looked surprised.

"Is there one?" she said. "But tht often happens when the fencers get very much in earnest."

"Yes I know. I am a fencer in a small way, myself."

Remembering Sayre's advice, Jean made no response to this bit of information. Mitchell turned from her and nodded at Austin.

Boston's Ted Williams and Yankees Lead Assault On American League Records

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, Dec. 27 (AP) —Ted Williams of Boston and the New York Yankees collectively led the assault on records during the 1947 baseball campaign as American League teams and players combined to establish or tie 31 marks.

Williams who won the batting crown with .343 broke a major league record by leading in runs scored for the fifth successive season. He tied two major league marks by drawing the most bases on balls for four years in a row and by taking the rather negative honor of playing in 150 games or more without stealing a base.

Sixteen of the total marks were registered on sparkling defensive play. Hitting, pitching and general league records accounted for the others.

The outstanding records for the league as a whole were its .977 fielding average along with the fewest errors committed in one season, 1,080. Cleveland Indians were charged with the fewest bobbles in league history, 104, and posted a new team fielding percentage of .983.

New York monopolized the club honors with six, such as most times in smashing three home runs in an inning (14); most years leading the circuit in homers (28); most years belting 100 or more homers (24) and the winning of 19 consecutive games.

In nabbing the most individual honors, Williams was certified as the official 1947 slugging and runs-batted-in champion in addition to winning the hit title. He was the only batter to drive in more than 100 runs during the season, being credited with 114, and topped the loop's sluggers with a .643 clip.

The lanky Red Sox outfielder amassed 100 or more R.B.I.'s for the sixth straight season and also drew 162 walks, only eight shy of Babe Ruth's all-time mark. He drew more bases on balls than any other player for the consecutive campaign.

Luckless Cornwall Cougars Lose 20th Hockey Game

(By The Canadian Press)

The luckless Cornwall Cougars, holding a firm grip on last-place in the Quebec Provincial Hockey League, went down to their 20th defeat in 22 starts last night at the hands of the third-place St. Hyacinthe Gallos. They were walloped 7-3 in the only league fixture. There were no games scheduled in the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Gerry Gravel's four-goal spree paced Gallos marksmen with Jacques Prefontaine Don Maher and Bill Winemast connecting for the others. Cornwall goal getters were Bert Lilley and Cliff Maundress.

A revised standing, deleting games played with the disbanded Granby Eagles, showed Victoriaville Tigers well out in front with 45 points, 14 more than the second place Sherbrooke St. Francis. St. Hyacinthe has 24, Lachine 12 and Cornwall 4.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED AS COFFEE ROOM CEILING COLLAPSES

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 24 —(AP)— A 25-foot-square section of the coffee shop ceiling in the Hotel Onondaga collapsed at dinner time, injuring four persons one seriously. The age of wood supporting the ceiling was the chief cause of the crash.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The slumping Montreal Canadiens, in another move to inject some much-needed scoring punch in their forward lines, last night announced that right-winger Tod Campeau, recalled from Buffalo of the American League, and left-winger Norm Dussault of the Provincial League Victoriaville Club, will see action tonight against Chicago Blackhawks.

Campeau, who played a few games with the Habitants at the beginning of the season, will replace Leo Gravelle who has been returned to Buffalo. Dussault comes to Canadiens on a "look-see" basis under an agreement between the National League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which allows an amateur player to play three games in the N.H.L. without losing his amateur status, providing his amateur team gives him permission and the player is on the N. H.L. club's reserve list.

The United States Olympic hockey squad will make its public debut tomorrow night when Coach Johnny Garrison sends his charges against the University of Toronto.

This practice game, probably the last one the Garrison skaters will have before departing for St. Moritz, Switzerland, early next month, will be a prelude to a Quebec Senior League game between Boston Olympics and Valleyfield Braves.

Retirement from the ring of the former lightweight boxer, Bob Montgomery, was announced yesterday by promoter Herman Taylor who said he and Montgomery's manager, Joe Granby, prevailed upon the Bobcat to quit because of his showing in two recent defeats.

Montgomery will not go through with his scheduled Feb. 20 return bout with Ike Williams for the lightweight title.

George Kinkead, 34-year-old Louisville business man, said yesterday he is going to try and buy St. Louis Browns, with the backing of two wealthy St. Louis men he did not name. However, William Dewitt, vice-president and general manager of the Browns, said he knew nothing of any deal and didn't know Kinkead.

Members of the Canadian Olympic ski team struggled through the heaviest snowstorm New York has ever seen to go aboard the liner Queen Mary yesterday on their way to the winter games at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

With traffic hopelessly snarled by more than two feet of snow, some members of the team had to walk part of the way across town from their hotel to the ship's Hudson River pier.

The team, which includes Rhoda and Rhona Wurtele, the Montreal twins, will train at Davos, Switzerland, until Jan. 27, then leave for Pontresina and St. Moritz.

SEA LAMPREYS MENACE TO ERIE FISHERIES

Port Stanley, Dec. 24 —(CP)— Sea lampreys, which appeared in Lake Ontario 30 years ago, are becoming numerous and a menace to the fishing industry on Lake Erie. Commercial fishermen report the lampreys are even attacking eel pouts.

Stratford Teams Swamped Under Large Scores

(By The Canadian Press)

Stratford overworked the spirit of generosity so prevalent this time of year when she served up two palatable hockey dishes to her opposition last night as post-Christmas treats.

The biggest helping went to the league-leading Toronto Marlboros who ladled a 14-0 pasting to the third-place Stratford Indians in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A tilt at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens.

A sizeable chunk went to the third-place Barrie Flyers who dunked the fourth-place Stratford Kroehlers 9-3 in a Junior fixture at Stratford. This win, Barrie's 13th in 18 starts, was liberally seasoned with 17 penalties including four majors and one match misconduct.

In two other senior games Hamilton Tigers consolidated their second-place lead by taking a 4-2 decision from the cellar-dwelling Brantford Redmen in the Mountain City; and the fourth place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen upset the fifth-place Owen Sound Mercury's 7-1 at Waterloo.

About the only person who didn't score on the Toronto team at the Gardens was Howie Harvey and he languished on Marlboros' goal posts.: His teammates tallied three in the opening frame added seven more goals in the last 10 minutes of the second session, and took a breather with only four more in the final stanza.

Ike Hildebrand led the scoring parade with four goals and one assist, Johnny McCormack, Bob Paul and Al Buchanan tallied two each, and Leo Curik, Ray Hannigan and Johnny McClellan each scored once.:

It was Marlboros' 16th victory in 20 starts.

Wally Corner, Stratford rearguard, suffered undetermined injuries in the third period and was sent to hospital. Corner and McCormack were fighting for the puck in Stratford territory and Indian's Bill Walsh came in sending the two crashing into the boards. Walsh was penalized for charging.

It was rough-and-tumble all the way at Stratford in the junior meet with both teams dishing it out. Barrie's Stan Long was kicked off in the second period for the rest of the game for talking back to referee Honey Kuntz after receiving a minor penalty for roughing.

Barrie piled up four goals in the first frame without a reply, outscored Stratford 2 to 1 in the second and 3-2 in the third.

It was Barrie's 13th win in 18 tries.

Rusty Aiken, Gerry Reid and Paul Meger led Barrie's attack with two goals each. Bill Barrett French Mayer and Guarda tallied Flyers' other counters. Mat Mesich, Bill Armstrong and Ken McArdle scored Kroehlers' goals.

The Brantford Redmen's aggressiveness, backed by smart blocking of goalie Buzz Cockburn kept the issue in doubt at Hamilton. Tigers took a skimpy one-goal first period lead, tallied two for one in the middle frame and one for one in the final session. It was Tigers' 12th victory in 19 starts.

Tommy Smelle tallied three Hamilton counters and Johnny Connick sank the other. Pidgeon scored Brantford's two goals.

The Waterloo contest was more than an hour late due to a blown fuse creating lighting difficulties. Mercurys' coach Tommy Burlington played his first game after regaining his amateur status just before game time. Art Herchenratter played his first game with the Dutchmen after getting his release from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. The Dutchmen notched their 10th win in 18 tries.

Johnny Blute and Flash Hollett led the Dutchmen with two goals each; Ted Grasser, Dick Behling and Herchenratter tallied their other goals. Tom Pollock scored Mercurys' lone goal.

The junior tilt scheduled for last night between St. Catharines and Guelph at Galt was postponed until tonight. In three other junior games slated for today Galt meets Toronto Young Rangers and Oshawa faces Toronto Marboros in an afternoon twin-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens; Barrie goes to Windsor. There are no senior games scheduled.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Belleville ANAF Senior "B" squad will pry off the O.H.A. hockey season lid in Lindsay next Friday when they meet the Peterborough Legion team in the first tilt of the grouping schedule. On the same night the Belleville Hornets will clash with the Trenton Flyers in Memorial Arena here in their opening game of the Intermediate "A" schedule. Other teams in the loop are Cobourg, Port Hope and Trenton Hockey Club.

The Senior "B's" will start their home games here on Tuesday when they stack up against the strong Kingston club, and that tussle should be one for the books. The Limestone lads are said to be packed with power and the joust will likely be a typical Kingston Belleville brawl.

• • •

The news that Charley "Chuck" Conacher had been appointed coach of the Chicago Black Hawks appeared to have a vitamanic effect of the fluttering birds from the Windy City. The lads stepped right out for the new boss and presented him wiht a couple of wins just to show their hearts were in the right place. Now almost anything can happen. And watch those Hawks go.

• • •

Several years age the name of "Chuck" Conacher and his famous mates Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson of the Maple Leafs Kid Line was on the lips of every kid who could shake a hockey stick and skate. Conacher's bullet-like shot from the right boards scored many a goal and won many a game for the Leafs, and the line rated almost as much wizardy as did the Cook brothers, Boucher line of Ranger fame.

• • •

Bobby Hewitson writing in the Maple Leaf Gardens program claims "the kids built Maple Leaf Gardens, although, he adds, Clancy, Horner, Cotton, Bailey and others will howl that they had a part in it."

But it was the Kids who led the band. They beat the big drum. —And the public loved it.

If it wasn't big Charlie roaring in from right wing for a game-winning score, it was Busher from left wing cutting in across the goal mouth and then dumping the rubber in behind the goaler. Or it was smooth moving Joe manipulating the puck as if it were on a string, and then letting the said puck go to Charlie or Bucher. Individually they were marvels at the winter pastime. Collectively they were dynamite.

Seven years they played together as a Leaf unit, a unit that not only was a drawing power before the home fans in Toronto but a unit that thrilled thousands of others in arenas of the National Hockey League.

• • •

So for seven years they went, did Chuck, Busher and co. And for seven years the customers idolized them. In those seven years as Leafs then amassed a most amazing record of goals and assists, many of them winning goals in playoffs, and some of them winning goals to take the Stanley Cup.

In those seven years Conacher himself scored 204 goals in league and play-off games, Jackson scored 153 and Primeau 71. In that time Conacher had 122 assists, Jackson had 119 assists and Primeau the amazing total of 194. Between them they amassed, in thisoe seven years, a total of 863 scoring points.

• • •

And that, in case you wish to know, is 20 more points than the famous Cook-Boucher-Cook line accounted for during the same seven year stretch with the New York Rangers.

• • •

Remember When—Syl Apps, National Hockey League centre for Toronto Maple Leafs, was acclaimed Canada's outstanding athlete of 1937 in the annual Canadian Press poll, 10 years ago today. The former British Empire and Olympic Games pole valuter will be 33 in January(but is still pivot of the Leaf's attack and has led the league in points most of this season.

Lady Referees Find Hockey Arbiting "Fun"

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP)—If a hockey player trips an opponent and then apologetically lifts him —or her—from the ice in the midst of a play, is a penalty the just reward?

Rulings on such knotty problems leave "tough" male referees bewildered so co-ed puck chasers at the University of Toronto decided a woman's judgment was necessary for their own brand of "gentile hockey."

Legal-minded President Clarence Campbell of the National League would take a lot of convincing that Toronto's wild Bill Ezinicki wouldn't deserve a trip to the sin-bin if he dumped Canadiens' Maurice Richard, just because he stopped to help "The Rocket" to his feet. But the puck-women think such incidents should be left to the discretion oi the referee, after all, if you lend a helping hand to your downed adversary, you must be sorry.

Thirty-two streamlined co-eds learned th difference between an offside and cross-check, and generally mastered the art of whistle tooting but only 15 gained the necessary 85 per cent in examinations which entitle them to send their sister players to the cooler.

Power plays are pretty well "out" as far as the girls are concerned and their male instructors place emphasis on stickhandling skill and speed skating. Boarding, fighting or foul language may be ruled out in men's hockey but with the co-eds it's unheard of—say the gals.

"We just have a lot of fun," said Joan Hume, President of the Women's Athletic Association ana women's sports editor on "The Varsity," the school's daily newspaper. She hopes some universal standards for women's hockey will be laid down soon to make it a game "really suitable for girls."

DIES OF EXHAUSTION TRAMPING THRU SNOW

Truro, N. S., Dec. 27 — (CP)— Still clutching a 40-pound parcel of Christmas Eve groceries, the body of 27-year-old James Stewart was found in a snowbank yesterday where he sank from exhaustion when forced to wade through heavy snowdrifts after his 1917 automobile failed during the storm.

Chatham, Dec. 27 — (CP) — The prize for the meanest thieves on Christmas Day goes to those who broke into John Sepika's store Wednesday and walked away with $40 after cutting telephone wires. Mr. Sepika was to be buried yesterday and his widow was too scared to investigate noises in the store.

Boston Bruins Face Tough Weekend Dates

(By The Canadian Press)

Whether they like it or not, Boston Bruins will spend the weekend doing a little research work in the interests of the rest of the National Hockey League — finding out just how tough the top clubs are.

The fourth-place Bruins took on the job with somewhat less than top-notch references in the form of a 6-1 Christmas - night pastime at the hands of the cellar - dwelling Chicago Black Hawks, and the absence of centre Milt Schmidt and defenceman Johnny Crawford won't make their task any easier.

Their date-book calls for a Saturday-night frolic with the league-leading Maple Leafs in Toronto and a Sunday-night stopover in Detroit as guests of the second-place Red Wings.

Leafs and Wings will stay put during the weekend, Toronto's 3-point edge guarding them against the worst the Bruins can do to them as well as any possible further damage they may suffer at the hands of the Rangers in New York Sunday. Wings have a four-point margin over the third-place Rangers as both play only a single game.

Montreal Canadiens are another club that look forward to the weekend with some misgivings. The limping Frenchmen, shut out at home 3-0 by the Leafs Christmas night and with ace right-winger Maurice Richard still sidelined, will entertain the last-place Black Hawks tonight.

At least one newcomer will show in the weekend's play. He's Syd Smith, only home-bred in the Toronto lineup, who'll fill in for ailing Harry Watson on the Leafs' first line with Syl Apps and Bill Ezinicki. Smith replaces Cy Thomas of Edmonton who will drop back to the Hornets.

CHILD DIES AS 100 MEN TRY TO BREAK ROAD TO HOSPITAL

Kentville, N. S., Dec. 27—(CP) — As 100 men armed with shovels and horse-drawn snowplows struggled to break a road through snow drifts to her home, five-months-old Lona Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Burns, died on Christmas Day. The men gave up most of Christmas Day in an effort to clear the road for an ambulance to take the young child, seriously ill with pneumonia, to hospital.

Record Crowd See Bobby Riggs Defeat Kramer

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—It was just like a wrestling match—only the "villain" won.

"It," of course, was Jack Kramer's first match as a professional tennis player and big Jake, long-limbered, bushy-haired and boyish, was the hero of the 15,114 spectators who turned out for the event in Madison Square Garden in spite of the worst snow storm in New York's history.

The "villain" was Bobby Riggs, a little guy with a waddling walk and with a sneeringly confident look on his face when he plays, an experienced pro tennis trouper who has toured the United States and learned all the tricks of playing under lights on a canvas court stretched over the hard garden floor.

To make the comparison complete, Kramer was fighting an uphill struggle all the way after losing the first three games. But instead of coming through in the end, according to the script, hero Kramer took a 6-2, 10-8, 4-6, 6-4 beating.

Although the weather kept many away, 16,052 paid up to $7 a ticket to see the amateur tennis champion make his debut against the professional boss.

They contributed to a gate of $55,730.16, largest in pro tennis history, giving the backers of the 65-match tour a good start toward the $50,000 they guaranteed Kramer for his first year.

So far as play went, the one-set curtain-raiser in which Australia's Dinny Pails conquered Ecuador's Pancho Segura, 15-13 was more interesting. These two, also making their debuts as pros, fought on virtually even terms until their match was called to permit the main event to start on time.

The spectators applauded Riggs' errors and cheered loudly when Kramer made a good shot. Kramer gave them plenty of opportunity to cheer, for he repeatedly caught Bobby off balance with cross-court shots or passed him trying to reach the net.

But Jake was erratic, too, and in the long run it was Bobby's steadiness that paid off.

In the concluding doubles match Kramer and Pails defeated Riggs and Segura, 6-2, 6-4.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Wanted: A heavyweight meal ticket that hasn't been punched. Apply at Mike Jacobs' office, Madison Square Garden . . . That ad appears indirectly in the first couple of boxing programs arranged for the new year at the Garden . . . Joe Louis has been talking about retiring in 1948 and if he does — or, even worse, if he should lose to Jersey Joe Walcott — Uncle Mike and his dependents wouldn't know where their next $1,000,000 gate was coming from . . . Hence three heavyweight bouts have been carded for Jan. 2, with Jackie Cranford of Washington and Bernie Reynolds of Fairfield, Conn., at the top and a week later Sweden's Olle Tandberg will be unveiled against Joey Maxim.

Besides Cranford and Reynolds, who have split the decisions in a pair of clashes and who are regarded as two promising youngsters, next week's card sends Gino Buonvino of Italy against Gene Gosney of Seminole, Okla., Fidel Arciniega of Spain against Tommy Gomez of Tampa, Fla. . .

Buonvino and Arciniega are undefeated in their country and Gosney never lost a pro bout . . . It doesn't sound too exciting, but this writer can remember when a fellow from Germany named Max Schmeling made his debut on one of those fill-in cards. A year and a half later Max was champion.

Sheer Frustration Dept.

A story causing chuckles in United States collegiate circles concerns an eastern school which was threatened with a basketball "strike because the Varsity cagers were getting only $10 a week and the freshmen were averaging about $7 . . . It was settled by giving the Varsity a raise . . . "The funny part," said one informant, "is that they tell me the frosh can beat the varsity." . . . And the annoying part is that guys who tell the story observe some "purity code" of their own and won't name the college.

MURDER, SUICIDE POLICE LABEL ON FIVE SHOOTINGS

$15,000 Clothing Robbery Foiled By Toronto Constable

400 Suits Piled Ready To be Carted Away

Toronto, Dec. 29 (CP) — A $15,000 clothing robbery of the Allen Stores Ltd., on downtown Yonge Street was foiled early today by the alertness of Constable Raymond Johns who chased a suspect over roof of the building fired a shot at him but failed to catch him.

The suspect dropped an armful of suits being loaded into an automobile parked in a lane behind the store and climbed a fire-escape to the roof. A large safe had been moved from one room to another where an attempt was made to open it. From the size of the safe police figured four men were on the job.

They discovered 300 suits piled on the stairway ready to take away and there were 100 suits piled in the car which bore New York State licence plates. Constable Johns had stopped to yank out the ignition wires of the car and it is believed the rest of the gang escaped. Police believe the car was stolen in Buffalo, N.Y.

Transportation Links in New York Back to Normal

New York, Dec. 29 —(AP) — Transportation links in the New York metropolitan area hurdled their greatest test today as millions straggled back to their jobs for the first time since Friday's devastating snowstorm hit the area from Maine to Washington.

Deaths in the storm belt rose to at least 70.

Railroads, with the exception of the Long Island, reported commuter traffic about normal. The Long Island, which was almost completely out of service Friday night and early Saturday, managed to bring its trains in today although they were subject to delays of more than an hour in many instances.

In the city, most principal arteries had been cleared by thousands of workers laboring in day and night shifts since Friday and using more than 2,000 pieces of mechanical equipment.

Side streets, frozen solid by below freezing temperatures through the night and morning, were slippery and treacherous for pedestrians and those intrepid motorists who brought out their cars.

In outlying areas, the record 25.8 inches of snow that fell here Friday remained almost untouched and drifts were piled as high as five and six feet.

Many of the deaths were attributed to heart attacks induced by over-exertion in clearing snow.

City Markets Commissioner Eugene G. Schultz reported deliveries of food were "good" and warned the public against paying "exorbitant prices" for food.

All subway lines were back to normal but bus traffic still was subject to bad delays, and some lines were not yet back in operation.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 29 (CP)— Synopsis: A few snowflurries persist this morning near the southern shores of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay but generally the weather in Ontario is clear and cold. Armstrong in Northern Ontario reported a low of 36 degrees below zero during the night. An intensifying disturbance moving northeastward over the gulf of St. Lawrence will give strong northwest winds in Eastern Ontario today and strong westerly winds in the northeastern part of the province on Tuesday. Clear cold weather will prevail through out most of the province today. Temperatures will moderate somewhat in Southeastern Ontario on Tuesday.

ANTI-INFLATION BILL TO BE SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

Truman Brands Act as Pitifully Inadequate to Deal With Peril

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP) — President Truman promised to sign into law today the Republican anti-inflation bill, but he branded it as "pitifully inadequate to deal with the "grave peril" confronting the economy of the United States.

Several key Republicans struck back with angry words of their own in defence of the voluntary steps which form the backbone ot the measure.

Thus, the high cost of living and how to bring it down sizzled as the major political issue of the 1948 election year.

On the external affairs front, meanwhile, it was learned Truman may appeal to Congress in his forthcoming State of the Union message to speed up its Marshall plan schedule to avert a possible spring crisis in Europe.

Truman is known to have been told by his lieutenants that, under present circumstances, final congressional action on the long-range European recovery program is not likely to come before the stop-gap relief law approved by the November special session expires March 31.

Under the terms of this act, all commitments must be made before that date. Whether there is any money left for spring relief work depends on the rate at which it is spent during the winter.

Needs Unfilled

In any event, the stop-gap program applies only to France, Italy and Austria in Europe, leaving the needs of other countries unfilled until Congress decides what it wants to do about the long-range proposal.

The first official action to carry out provisions of the anti-inflation bill appeared likely to be an order to distillers to hold their grain consumption to 2,500,000 bushels a month during the five weeks the bill revives wartime powers over whisky-making.

A 60-day voluntary distilling program came to an end Christmas Eve with the government and major distillers at odds over a new conservation program.

KONISTA SIEGE RELIEVED BY GREEK TROOPS

Fight Way Through Guerrilla Siege Lines

Athens, Dec. 29 (AP)—The city of Konitsa near the Albanian frontier, menaced for several days by besieging guerrilla forces, was relieved today by a brigade of Greek government troops which fought their way through guerrilla siege lines, government sources announced.

The relief column was believed to be a part of the forces which the government announced yesterday had been hurled into a new offensive to smash the guerrilla drive on Konitsa.

The guerrillas' goal apparently was to seize Konitsa as the capital of the new independent Communist "government" recently proclaimed by their leader, Gen. Markos Cifiades.

Approximately 44,000 refugees earlier were reported to have sought refuge from the guerrillas in Konitsa, whose garrison was badly outnumbered by the besiegers.

The government forces participating in the offensive to smash the rebel drive were supported by rocket-firing Spitfire fighters of the Greek air force based at Ioannina, about 25 miles south of Konitsa.

Clearing weather gave the airmen their first clear targets yesterday, and they were reported to have inflicted heavy casualties on the guerrillas. Their targets included heavy 66-millimetre guns with which the guerrillas have been bombarding the city, and two of the guns were reported knocked out.

Losses Considerable

Press reports from the front said that the guerrillas had offered fierce resistance everywhere however, and acknowledged that government losses had been "considerable."

Government sources estimated that the guerrillas had 23 battalions totalling about 4.000 men, plus many smaller bands, in the battle area. The number of government troops participating in the offensive was not disclosed.

The area where the fighting is under way is rugged mountain terrain, and operations were rendered more difficult by bitter weather.

The new government offensive coincided with promulgation of a government decree outlawing the Communist party and its sympathizers and providing heavy penalties for violators.

Military courts were empowered to try offenders and to impose sentences ranging from 20 years imorisonment to death.

The measure is aimed at all those who seek to overthrow the government by violence, who favor detachment of any part of Greece or who are in sympathy with such aims.

Authors, printers or distributors of pamohlets or printed matter of any kind supporting Communism are liable to prosecution. Left-wing public gatherings are banned.

Turk's Age Claim of 139 Years Stirs Editorial Writer of Times

London, Dec. 29 — (CP) — A claim that he is the oldest living human being has been staked by a 139-year-old Turk, Velt Sahiboglu, the London Times said today in a report from its Istanbul correspondent. Veli is in excellent health "except for blindness," the correspondent added.

The report gave the Times "fourth leader" writer an excuse for whimsical reminiscences about the regularity with which the Balkans "manage to produce a gentleman who is not merely older but much, much older than anybody else."

It recalled that it is only 13 years since the death of Zaro Agaha whose claim to be 160 years of age "few had the heart and none the means to disprove."

"For some years before his death, it had been widely felt in centenarian circles that Zaro should make way for a younger man and there was solid excuse for gratification in the fact that his successor takes over his position . . . at a comparatively early age."

But this "oldest human" business, the Times pointed out, is an exacting position and has its drawbacks.

"Once past 120, you have to be constantly on your guard against detractors who conceive it their duty to assert in a most officious and most unmannerly way that you can not possibly be as old as you say you are . . ."

"It does not matter in the least to them how old you are and all this inconclusive quibbling over a decade or two is highly undignified. But the oldest man alive can no more escape from these pettyfogging spoil-sports than an owl can avoid being mobbed by small birds."

The Times pointed out these drawbacks:

Awkward question of memory: "If you can not remember much about your early life, people say you are a fraud and if you remember everything, they say the same."

It's a lonely eminence: "You have for one thing no contemporaries. How can Veli Sahiboglu enjoy swapping reminiscences with a mere cub of a centenarian who was an infant in arms when he was in the prime of life?"

Record-breaking baby is 1,000th to be born this year in St. Joseph's Hospital, Chatham. The little girl shown here with her mother, Mrs. Krank Phelan of Stanley St., Blenheim, arrived Christmas Eve and was walked up and down the ward corridor by Santa Claus himself.

Fifteen Killed in Clash At Historic Damascus Gate

Jerusalem, Dec. 29 — (AP) — At least 12 Arabs, two British constables and one Jew were killed in a clash at Jerusalem's historical Damascus Gate today after Jews had hurled grenades and sprayed an Arab bus with machine-gun bullets.

Police at the scene said the melee started when the occupants of a Jewish taxi heaved a grenade into a crowded street near the massive stone gate and machine-gunned the bus.

"At least 12 Arabs were killed," the police said.

They declared that two carloads of Arabs chased the fleeing taxi and overhauled it a mile away, where they killed one Jew and wounded another. The Arabs then brought the taxi back to Damascus Gate where they set it afire.

Two British constables trying to restore order among the enraged Arabs were killed in attempting to put out the blaze.

Other violence of the day added further casualties.

An armed band, believed to be Jewish, raided the British Army's Tel Aviv Litwinsky camp near Tel Aviv, killed one British soldier and fled with a large number of guns.

Doctor Shot to Death

In Bethlehem, an Arab doctor who headed the government mental hospital was shot to death not far from the Church of the Nativity.

The dead in communal violence in Palestine since the United Nations voted Nov. 29 to partition Palestine totalled 424. The toll throughout the whole middle east rose to 545. Twenty-one persons were killed in Palestine yesterday.

Earlier a Jewish civilian was fatally wounded by a bomb tossed at the National Bus Company offices near Barclay's Bank and an Arab corporal of the Trans-Jordan Frontier Police was slain during a machine-gun attack on a supply convoy in Northern Gallilee.

Police said the raid on the British Army camp, situated at Tel Litwinsky near Tel Aviv, apparently was carried out by members of the Jewish underground to obtain weapons. They said the raiders, who wore battle dress and steel helmets, entered the camp by cutting barbed wire barricades and then attacked the armory under cover of heavy gunfire.

The raiders' loot was said to have included 74 rifles, seven Sten guns and 3,000 rounds of ammunition.

Emmitt Holman of Dallas died in hospital at 11:50 p. m. — nearly six hours after three chair cars and a diner lounge left the tracks. A broken rail was believed to have caused the accident.

Tariff Concession Effective Jan. 1

Ottawa, Dec. 29—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today that an order-in-council has been passed bringing into effect Jan. 1 the tariff concession granted by Canada in the general agreement on tariffs and trade concluded at Geneva last Oct. 30.

Eight of the 17 other countries represented at Geneva, including the United States and the United Kingdom, will bring their concession into effect on the same date.

Mr. King said the tariff changes made are of particular importance in the trade between Canada and the United States. Practically the entire range of American tariff restrictions against Canadian goods has been reviewed and "very substantially reduced."

He said that Canadian tariff concessions will be accorded Jan. 1 to each of the 44 foreign countries to which Canada at present grants most-favored-nation tariff treatment and to all parts of the British Commonwealth.

The concessions cover some 1,050 items, of which top provide for reduction in the most-favored- nation tariff below existing rates, and about 460 for the binding or consolidation of the present most - favored - nation rates. The concessions also include about 100 items in the British preferential tariff in regard to which reduction were made in favor of British Commonwealth countries.

Snow and Cold Sweep N. Britain

London, Dec. 29 (Reuters) — Snow and gales swept the northern part of Britain overnight and a cold northwest air stream covered the country.

In the Midlands early today snow fell faster than at any time since the blizzard of last February and blanketed the whole landscape in a few moments.

It was also snowing in Yorkshire, Derbyshire, Cheshire and Scotland and further snow and cold were forecast by the air ministry.

London, by contrast, was basking in brilliant sunshine this morning.

CRASH OF PLANE BRINGS DEATH TO THREE MEN

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 29 (AP)— The crash of a small plane brought death to three young men as they started out from their homes yesterday for a vacation flight to Miami. Killed were Aaron Bigan, 18, Robert Heichel, 22, and James Morey, 19.

RESCUE PARTIES HINDERED BY CRASH-LANDING

Five of Unsuccessful Rescuers Brought Out

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 29—(AP)— Heavy ground fogs, winds of gale force and sub-zero temperatures confronted rescue parties today as the United States Air Force, further hindered by the crash-landing of a C-47 tow plane and its glider in Sunday's operations, sought to evacuate four known survivors of a B-29 crash in the bleak sub-Arctic 95 miles north of Nome.

None of the seven men in the C-47 and the glider was injured. Five of the unsuccessful rescuers were returned last night to Nome by the crew of a C-45. Two others were left behind to prepare the stranded glider to be picked up today.

Condition of the four survivors and fate of the four other crew members of the stricken Superfortress still was uncertain. The plane crashed on a training flight last Tuesday.

Capt. Aiken Mays, Nome air base doctor, and two paratroopers dropped to their aid Saturday night, shortly after the plane was first sighted, but failure of their radio equipment has made it impossible to gather details. A second radio was dropped by the C-47 yesterday but there was no indication that any messages were getting through.

Col. Harry N. Burkhalter, commanding officer of the Nome air base, said rescue operations would be resumed today as quickly as weather conditions permit.

Fog May Blow Away

Burkhalter said it was hoped that the strong wind would blow away the fog to permit a Norseman plane, carrying a dog team and sled, to take off.

While crew members clear a landing strip on the lake for a C-47, the dog team will head for the wrecked B-29 and bring back survivors. Burkhalter said it would require two or three hours to clear the strip for a wheel landing, but expressed hope that evacuation of the men could be completed to Nome before the early Arctic darkness closes in tonight.

The C-47 tow plane and glider met near disaster yesterday as they winged toward the B-29. Both engines of the C-47 quit in the 35-below-zero cold. Cutting the glider loose, the tow plane made a "deadstick" belly landing, crumpling the underside. The glider floated down into the snow safely about a quarter-mile away.

The mishap occurred about 60 miles from the crumpled Superfortress.

St. Bernard Dog Rescued From Drift

Freehold N.J. Dec. 29 (AP)— Sort of a man-bites-dog twist: In this central Jersey area where Friday's now reached a record 30 inches, police yesterday rescued a St. Bernard dog from a snowdrift.

The breed usually is used to rescue snowbound humans.

Jealous Suitor Kills Four, Turns Gun on Himself

19-Year-Old Girl Held Captive by Crazed Gunman

Elmira, Ont., Dec. 29 — (CP)— Police today pieced together details of the slaying of four members of one family in the small Ontario community of West Montrose, 12 miles north of Kitchener, by a jealous suitor of a 19-year-old girl who was held captive for hours by the slayer before he committed suicide after a horror-filled night.

The dead:

Hugh Letson, 45, West Montrose farmer.

Mary Letson, 40, his wife.

Wilson Letson, 42, single, brother of Hugh.

Percy Letson, 38, single, brother of Hugh and Wilson.

Walter (Pat) Letson, 55, single, cousin of the Letson brothers.

Police said Walter Letson killed the first four with a shotgun late Saturday night in the home of Hugh Letson, then sat brooding in the house with the gun beside him, holding Eleanor Springer prisoner. She escaped early Sunday and Walter then turned the gun on himself.

Walter Letson started the shootings late Saturday night, the girl told police, by firing at Wilson Letson as the latter returned with the girl from Kitchener, where Wilson Letson and the girl had been spending the evening. She said that previously she had been going out with Walter.

Walter was jealous of the girl and according to the story she told police, she and Wilson had no sooner returned to the Letson home than Walter came out with the gun and shot Wilson as he stepped from the car. The couple had been accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Letson and his brother, Percy.

Rushed Into House

Hugh Letson, his wife and Percy rushed into the house, she told police, and then she heard "two or three shots" before she herself entered.

The tragedy was not discovered until Sunday night when 87-year-old Elisha Pollock, uncle of the Letson brothers, tried to awaken Walter Letson and found him dead.

Pollock summoned a neighbor, Robert Winfield, who called police and Coroner Dr. Leroy Wagner.

When the officials arrived they found five bodies. The living room walls were pocked with shotgun pellets and smeared with blood. Walter Letson's body on a couch in the kitchen, had the shotgun lying over it.

Police first determined that Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Letson and his brothers Percy and Wilson had been killed late Saturday night. But Walter Letson did not die until Sunday afternoon.

JEALOUS SUITOR—Page 4

Anthropologist Tells of Dream Island Where Modesty Prevails

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 29 — (AP) — At least one place exists in the world where a man runs for public office by telling people he doesn't amount to much.

He may grow a yam nine feet long and weighing 225 pounds but he doesn't dare brag about it. He may be the best carpenter in the community but he mustn't admit it. He may have a fine large home but he must tell visitors that it is old and small.

This peculiar place in Ponape Island, Dr. William Bascom of Northwestern University, Chicago, told the American Anthropological Association.

Bascom, who made a survey of the far eastern island taken from the Japanese, said this outstanding example of modesty and restraint is a foundation stone of Ponapean economy.

The point of all the modesty is that if the man in question really is good, his yams or his carpentry will show it, and he hasn't to admit anything. The other people will judge what he does and will honor him with public office accordingly, Bascom said.

A Ponapean man wins the respect of his neighbors if he serves them left-over food. This is taken to mean, Bascom reported that he is so prosperous he can't eat all the food that ordinarily is set before him, and therefore is somebody of note.

Election to office often has a lot to do with how long a man keeps a pit breadfruit. This is a large breadlike fruit which is wrapped in leaves and buried in the ground for several years to undergo a long fermentation. A man aspiring to office or fame must not serve it if it is less than 10 years old. This is a sign that he is well heeled with food and therefore must be quite a fellow.

VICTOREMMANUEL EXILED KING OF ITALY, DIES

Subservience to Mussolini for 20 Years Led to His Downfall

Alexandria, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Victor Emmanuel III, 78, the diminutive king whose 20 years of subservience to Benito Mussolini led to the downfall of the House of Savoy and nearly brought about the ruin of Italy, died in exile yesterday of pneumonia at his Alexandria villa.

Elena, tall, 74-year-old wife of the former ruler, was at his bedside when death came. The former king was stricken with double pneumonia Wednesday while preparing to celebrate Christmas with his family.

A dispatch from Lisbon said that Humbert, who succeeded his father as king for one month until the Italians threw out the monarchy, planned to leave today for Alexandria.

Victor Emmanuel, esteemed by his people after the First World War, came under the domination of Mussolini in 1922 when the latter marched on Rome and the king summoned him to form a cabinet.

At the time Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported to have asked the king to give him a few regiments to smash the Black Shirt uprising, but was turned down because the king wanted to avoid bloodshed.

During the ensuing years the five-foot-three monarch signed a long series of fascist decrees Mussolini placed before him.

The picture finally changed in July 1943, when Allied victories in the Mediterranean theatre showed Italy's true weakness and Victor Emmanuel played a major role in unseating the dictator to whom he had played yes-man for so many years.

The move was too late, and a month later the Italians voted in a plebiscite for a Republican form of government

Rome, Dec. 29 (AP)—A former king's death in Egyptian exile dumped another problem into the already overladen lap of Premier De Gasperi today.

The problem: Should the government of the young Italian republic send condolences to the family of ex-King Victor Emmanuel III, who died yesterday in Alexandria one year and 10 months after he abdicated the throne he had held almost 46 years?

De Gasperi could be sure that, if he did send the country's regrets, the fire from the Italian left, bitterly against monarchism in all its forms, would be stepped up.

And if he did not, De Gasperi could be sure that Italy's Monarchists—some 10,000,000 Italians voted to keep the House of Savoy in the June, 1946, plebiscite which installed the republic—would hold it against him.

A spokesman at the premier's office said this morning that the new constitution made the members of the House of Savoy "private persons." The spokesman said he did not believe the government would convey official regrets, although individual ministers might.

The spokesman said he believed there was no possibility that Victor Emmanuel would be buried—"at least, right now"—in the 19-century-old pantheon where his father and grandfather lie.

The cabinet was expected to study the dilemma today.

City and District News

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC PARTICULARLY HEAVY

With Christmas holidayers proceeding to their homes after visiting relatives and friends over the holiday, highway traffic throughout the Belleville district was particularly heavy over the weekend, it was reported today by local highway traffic officers.

However, despite slippery highway conditions and drifting in some instances, there were no serious accidents in the Belleville area.

Railway traffic was also particularly heavy as was indicated by the fact there were four sections of the fast passenger train Sunday evening. Despite this even standing room was at a premium on the four trains.

PAYS TO LOCK FAMILY JALOPY

It pays to lock the family jalopy especially after midnight on Christmas Eve, as one city resident discovered to his regret.

Calling on friends for a post-midnight cup of coffee, the luckless one left six or seven valuable presents, including a bottle of "cheer" in the rear seat of his car.

Yes — you guessed it. A midnight marauder on the prowl for unsuspecting victims helped himself to the presents, not omitting the "Dutch courage."

ED. SHORTT LEAVES FOR SHERBROOKE FRI.

Ed. Shortt, former athletic director at the Y.M.C.A. here leaves for his new position as general secretary of the Sherbrooke, Que., "Y" on Friday of this week.

Mrs. Shortt and the little "Shortts" will remain in Belleville until the Spring because of educational requirements here.

CORONER WILL SET A DEFINITE DATE

The inquest looking into the death of Jean Badgley, Frankford, who one month ago was found in the summer kitchen of her parents' home with a .22 bullet through her temple will be resumed Wednesday afternoon at the county court buildings.

The inquest was opened two weeks ago and was adjourned after the evidence of two witnesses was taken. It is not expected that the inquest will be completed on Wednesday as it was the intention of Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott to then set a definite date for continuing the hearing.

COAL IS TAKEN FROM STOCKPILE

With coal retailing at close to $20 per ton, this commodity is well worth stealing at the present.

At least that must have been the attitude of the persons responsible on Saturday morning for taking from two to three tons from the Moira Fuels stockpile.

The proprietor of the coal company reported to police that a truck had backed up to the coal pile some time between seven and eight o'clock Saturday and had loaded up with coal without the knowledge of their warehouse supervisor. The tracks of the truck were seen in the snow.

CAR DAMAGED ON SLIPPERY ROAD

Property damage amounting close to $300 resulted to a car owned by Sam Inwood, 212 Coleman Street, Belleville, when Sunday evening his car skidded on an icy patch of pavement just north of West Huntingdon and crashed into a hydro pole.

No one was injured in the accident, while the new car came off second best when it struck the hydro pole which was not broken.

Provincial Constable Hector Gould of Marmora who investigated, stated that Inwood was southbound when his car went out of control as it struck a patch of ice on the pavement. Passengers in the car were Mr. and Mrs. M. Royle, 212 Coleman St., Belleville.

Two Men Struck By Car While Repairing Tire

Struck by a passing car as they were repairing a tire along the side of the highway, Thomas Munro of Jones Creek, and Wilfred Pecard of Thomasburg, suffered minor injuries early Sunday evening at Milltown, 10 miles east of Belleville.

Munro and Pecard had been westbound near the railway subway when a tire on their car punctured. They got out to fix the tire when they were struck by another westbound car driven by George Thomas, Wellingdon Street, Toronto. Munro suffered a cut in his right leg, while Pecard suffered abrasions and shock. Fortunately no bones were broken.

The accident occurred just at dusk when visibility was reduced by blowing snow, it was reported by Provincial Police Officer Sam Ervine who investigated. Thomas was proceeding very slowly when he struck the two men, it was stated.

Turkey Raiser In This District Takes Big Loss

High costs of feed and government importation of birds from Western Canada, state turkey raisers of this district, caused them to take a financial loss during the Christmas holiday. The most of them had a large holdover of unsold gobblers and hens.

One breeder who raised 700 turkeys for the Christmas market had two hundred live birds left and an additional 100 in cold storage. He spent the weekend in Toronto endeavoring to sell his feathered stock for the New Year's holiday consumption.

The federal government, he asserted, after taking a census of available turkeys for the holiday markets, imported 265 carloads of turkeys from Saskatchewan. Each carload contained 4,000 birds.

This, he claims, resulted in a plenitude of turkeys in Ontario markets and a resulting drop in prices. He said, "the government stands to lose seven cents per pound on a heavy holdover from their importations."

Market conditions, price reductions and government action in the importation of the birds, he added, may have a far-reaching effect on turkey raising next year. In view of what happened this year, turkey men will hesitate to delve too deeply into the business unless some guarantee is forthcoming from government sources, regarding the bringing-in of turkeys and the high cost of feed.

Carpenter Shop Damaged by Fire

Damage estimated at approximately $1,000 resulted late Saturday evening at a carpenter shop at 33 Murney Street owned by Mr. J. Large. The roof of the small frame building was burned off, while the inside was badly gutted, and stock and carpenter equipment was damaged.

The fire occurred shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night with the blaze having considerably headway before the fire department was notified. No insurance was carried on the building or contents, it was stated. Mr. Large manufactured window and door sashes and other articles.

200 Civil Servants In City to Benefit By Wage Increases

Civil servants here in conjunction with those of other parts of the Dominion will shortly benefit by increased rates of pay, it has been announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The new salary scales will be retroactive to October 1st, 1947.

New salary scales have been approved for the clerical grades in the civil service which represent about one-third in numbers of the entire service. Revisions of other civil service scales are still under consideration. Whatever related adjustments are made will also be retroactive to October 1.

"The effect of the present changes," the Prime Minister said, "combined with the increases already made through incorporation into salary rates the cost of living bonus which was granted during the war, is an increase from rates prevailing in 1939 of about $30 per month for grade 1 clerks and about $40 per month for higher grades up to and including the grade of chief clerk.

Increases over last year's salary scale range from $300 in the higher grades to $132 in the lower grades.

There are approximately 200 civil servants in Belleville, 126 of whom are members of the Income Tax Division of the Department of National Revenue.

The Prime Minister also announces that it had been decided to put into effect increases which will average nearly 10 per cent of the total pay and allowances of the armed forces and which will vary from about 15 per cent in the case of privates and equivalent ranks and 5 per cent in the case of senior officers. Increases in respect of pay and allowances are on a graduated scale. The allowance in lieu of rations for officers and men has been increased from $15 to $20 for all ranks.

The government will also recommend that an increase of $10 a month for totally disabled veterans and for pensioned widows. Proportionate increases in pensions for veterans with less than 100 per cent disabilities will also be recommended. All increases will be made effective as of Oct. 1st.

The government will also introduce an amendment to the War Veterans Allowance Act to provide for a supplementary allowance to veterans in receipt of war veterans allowances and to widows in receipt of widows allowances. The amendment will authorize the war veterans allowance board to grant supplementary allowances up to $10 per month in cases of need for veterans and widows who through age and infirmity are unable to provide for their own maintenance.

Two Injured When Plane Crashes At Campbellford

Oshawa, Dec. 29-(CP)— Two members of the Ontario County Flying Club are recovering here from painful bruises and cuts suffered Christmas when their two-seated Cornell plane crashed in a snow-covered field at Campbellford, 40 miles northeast of Peterborough. The plane is a total loss.

Jack Hoar, 30, pilot, and Robert McGrath, 21, both of Oshawa, were flying to Trenton when they ran into a squall. At low altitude, the plane crashed into a hill on the farm of Russel Stephens.

There was a happy climax. After receiving first aid, the bruised pair were invited to sit down to Christmas dinner with the Stephens' family.

Four Weekend Alarms

The fire department answered four alarms over the weekend, the first being to a hydro pole on Front Street Saturday afternoon when an electric sign is believed to have fired the pole.

Two alarms were answered this morning, the first to St. Thomas' Church for what turned out to be a smoke investigation, and the second to the basement room at McFee's Jewellery Store where insulation on the hot water pipes became afire. Very little damage resulted, it was stated.

'INSIDERS' NAMED IN U.S. GRAIN SPECULATION

Investigation into grain speculation in the U. S. is continuing as the Senate and House in Washington hear more names added to the list of "insiders" who knew government buying policy and who profited thereby. Already several men, administration officials or friends of administration officials, have been accused of buying grain on the strength of their knowledge of government policy and thereby adding to the public cost of grain purchases for Europe. Here Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson shows the list of "insiders" to Washington newspaper correspondents.

Band Presents Musical Treat At Armouries

Many music lovers in the city missed out on an outstanding concert Sunday evening when but a small crowd turned out at the Belleville Armouries for the first of a series of band concerts to be staged this winter by the Belleville Municipal Band.

But those who did attend the concert were treated to an evening's entertainment which was outstanding, both on the part of the band numbers heard and the vocal solos by Ethel Smith.

Members of the Belleville Municipal Band were out in full numbers for the concert with 46 players on hand at the time of the opening number at 8:30. The band was under the direction of L. F. Addison, musical director.

Guest vocal artist for the concert was Ethel Smith who was heard in several numbers including "The Anniversary Song," "White Christmas," and the "The Christmas Song." Leo Riggs provided the piano accompaniment for the vocal numbers.

Last night's band concert was one of a series which will be staged at the Armouries during the winter by the Belleville Band in conjunction with the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

Monte Cassino Abbey Restoration Well Under Way

By JOHN TALBOT

Rome, Dec. 29 (Reuters)—The task of deconstructing the great Benedictine Abbey of Monte Cassino destroyed in one of the toughest battles fought by Allied troops in Italy, is well under way, although it will be at least five years before it is complete.

The work of reconstruction has been undertaken by an international committee under the chairmanship of Don Ildefonso Rea, Abbot of Monte Cassino.

Four times this great abbey has been destroyed in its 1,400 years of existence but never has the distruction been so complete as that wrought by Allied bombers. It is estimated that more than 12,000,000,000 lire (about $25,000,000) will be needed to destore the huge building and it is for this purpose that the international committee has been set up.

The sarcophagus containing the remains of St. Benedict had a miraculous escape. An unexploded bomb was found lying close to it. One part of the monastery which escaped is the little tower in which St. Benedict had his cell and where he spent most of his life.

First Work on Ruins by German Catholics

The first work on the ruins of the abbey was carried out by a squad of 100 Catholic German prisoners, all volunteers who were specially released by the Allies.

These men had the task of clearing away the mass of rubble and huge blocks of stone which were scattered everywhere during the bombardment. This work went on for about one year until at length the foundations were completely cleared and the work of real reconstruction could begin.

Under the constant watch and guidance of Don Ildefonso Rea, Italian workmen were called in, and using the stones of the old monostery, the new walls slowly began to rise.

But the walls of the new abbey are rising all too slowly. Already some $1,000,000 has been spent from the slender sums collected and more funds are urgently needed to continue the work. Don Ildefonso Rea has fixed Sept. 21 as an annual "day for the reconstruction of Monte Cassino," but the contributions this year amounted to less than $10,000.

OBITUARY

STEPHEN H. ROBLIN

Picton—One of Prince Edward County's distinguished sons, Dr. Stephen H. Roblin passed away Friday at his home, Main Street East. He was in his 90th year. He had been gradually failing and earlier in the year had undergone an operation, but had made a remarkable recovery and until very recently was down town each day, being both active and mentally alert.

Notable Career

Dr. Roblin was born on the upper Glenora road in Prince Edward County. He had a notable career in the ministry and was for 33 years pastor of the Second Universalist Church in Boston, Mass. He was renowned for his oratory as a preacher and for the sympathetic earnestness of his pastorate. During his residence there he was acquainted with brilliant men including Chauncey N. Depew, Irving Cobb and Mark Twain. He was acquainted with four presidents of the United States, Presidents Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft and Coolidge, the latter residing in Boston and being a personal friend of Dr. Roblin.

Lived Retired

Dr. Roblin has lived retired in Picton for nearly two decades. His residence has been the former McMullen homestead, home of Dr. Roblin's second wife who was the late Ethelwyn McMullen daughter of the early and prominent Pictonian, the late George W. McMullen.

Dr. Roblin made a notable contribution during the war years. He was chairman of several victory loan campaigns and throughout them he worked hard and long. He also served as chairman of the War Saving Certificates drive.

Keenly Interested in County

Dr. Roblin was keenly interested in Prince Edward men in the services, and the war effort in general and gave liberally of his time to every good cause. His whole heart was devoted to the cause, and in action and spirited addresses he made a great contribution.

Dr. Roblin was a supporter of the Liberal party and elections found him at his best in oratory. He was popular as a speaker on special occasions. For a time when St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was without a minister, he occupied the pulpit.

Dr. Roblin is survived by several grandchildren, one of whom Mrs. John P. Milne, resided with him.

The funeral took place this afternoon under Masonic auspices. Entombment was made in Glenwood Cemetery vault.

MRS. HOMER WHITE (Picton)

Picton — Two days after the occasion of the 51st anniversary of her wedding, Mrs. Homer White passed away at her home on the Picton-Bloomfield Road, Thursday, Dec. 25th. The funeral was held at her late residence on Saturday, Rev. A. E. McCutcheon officiating. Entombment was in Glenwood Cemetery vault.

Mrs. White had been confined to bed since October.

Mrs. White was born at Bloomfield 75 years ago and was formerly Annie Loretta Talcott. On Dec. 23rd., 1896, she married Homer White and since they had resided at their present home, which was noted for its warm hospitality. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. James Webster Talcott.

Mrs. White was a member of the United Church. A great lover of flowers, her lovely garden was her delight.

She is survived by her husband.

MRS. EFFIE SIMPSON (Trenton)

Mrs. Effie Simpson, 130 Division Street, Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. She was 69 years of age and was a patient in the hospital since Sept. 17th.

THOMAS EARL DOWE (Ottawa)

Thomas E. Dowe, of 20 Wendover avenue, died in Ottawa Civic Hospital Friday night following a short illness. He was 49.

Employed with the Income Tax Branch of the Revenue Department for the past month, Mr. Dowe was widely known in Ottawa, Belleville and Carleton Place, where he had followed his profession as an accountant.

He was born at Beech Grove, Que., and educated at Aylmer. He worked as an accountant with the old Bank of Ottawa and then with the Ottawa Car and Aircraft Company for seven years.

Mr. Dowe lived in Carleton Place for 12 years and then returned to Ottawa to work with the firm of A. A. Crawley and Company. He then moved to Belleville and returned to Ottawa a month ago.

He attended the Church of England and was a member of the Masonic Order.

His wife, Muriel Walker, whom he married in Ottawa in 1920, survives. Also surviving are his mother, Mrs. Josie Dowe, of Beech Grove; a daughter, Miss Doreen, in training at Hamilton General Hospital; a brother, Foster, of Beech Grove.

The funeral service will take place in the Hulse and Playfair chapel this Monday at one p.m. Rev. Serson Clarke will officiate. Interment will be in St. Luke's Anglican cemetery, Eardley.

Earl Dowe as he was familiarly known here resided in this city for seven years prior to moving to Ottawa, being employed with the Houston Lumber Co., as an accountant. He was a valued member of the Kiwanis Club and active member of Christ Church.

LATE LOUIS STOJAN, Jr. (Frankford, District)

Frankford, Dec. 29 (Special) — The funeral of Louis Stojan, Jr., who died suddenly in Trenton on Dec. 16th., was held from the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, to the Full Gospel Tabernacle for service on Sunday, Dec. 21st. The service there and at Frankford Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. McElhoes.

The bearers were Anthony, Dalcar, L. Zapetal, M. Pukancek, Mac Wilson, Reginald Solmes and H. Skoutajan.

During the service a vocal selection was rendered by Mrs. Donald Rogers, Miss Lois Rogers, Reg. Solmes and Martin Mahosky.

The deceased, who was in his 30th year, was born in Zlin, Czechoslovakia, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stojan of Trenton. For some time he lived in the Province of Alberta and for the past eight years he resided in this district. He was a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

He never married and is survived by his parents; three brothers, Charles and Jerry of Alberta, and Frank of Kingston.

Deseronto Man Injured When Car Skids on Roadway

Joseph Brant, age 58, Deseronto, suffered a broken nose and other facial injuries when Saturday evening the car which he was driving skidded on the icy pavement and was in collision with another auto proceeding in the opposite direction. The accident occurred at Avis' Corners, just west of Deseronto.

Provincial Constable H. Bolster who investigated the accident reported that Brant was westbound when his car slued and crashed into a car being driven by W. O. Richmond of Tamworth. The Brant car was considerably damaged as result of the impact but only one person was injured.

Brant was admitted to Belleville Hospital where he had an X-ray to determine his injuries.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Brisk trading today reversed last week's trends with golds leading the downward move on the stock exchange. Western oils were actively ahead in the morning session but profit taking cut earlier gains to mark an over-all loss for the group.

Volume for the first three hours was 629,000 shares, about 210,000 higher than Friday's similar period.

Price changes in industrials were fractional with most groups easy. Exceptions to the fractional changes were Algoma Steel down 1, Canadian Locomotive up 1, Simpsons Pfd. up 1 ½, Purity Flour down 1 and Brown Pfd. down 1½.

Golds posted losses for Chesterville, Conwest, Donalda, Duquesne, Elder, Eldona, Giant, God's Lake, Hollinger, Kerr Addison, Kirkland Lake, Lake Shore, Macassa, Madsen, McIntyre and Teck Hughes. Base metals were off for Sherritt, Steep Rock, Osisko and Noranda.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Prices were fully 25 cents a hundredweight higher on all slaughter cattle in the livestock market up to mid-session here today. Calves, lambs and sheep remained steady while hog prices were unsettled with no definite price trend established. Receipts: cattle 2,300, calves 300, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 400.

Weighty steers brought $14-$17 a hundredweight with butcher steers at $12-$15.75 and heifers $11.50-$15. Butcher cows were $8.50-$12 with canners down to $6. Bulls were $8-$11.50 and fed yearlings $13.75-$17. A few medium to good stockers moved at $11.50-$12.25.

Calves were firm at $18-$19 for choice with plain downwards to $11. Grassers brought $9.50-$11.

Lambs were steady at $17 for good ewes and wethers, $16 for bucks and $11-$13 for culls.

Sheep were firm, $5-$9.50.

London, Dec. 29 —(Reuters)— When Oscer Fernandiz, special ambassador from President Peron of Argentina arrived yesterday, he carried eight gramophone records which are to be presented to eight European governments, including Britain. They contain a message of good will from the President followed by popular Argentine music.

SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN CONTINUES IN P.E.I.

Upper Montague, P.E.I., Dec. 29 (CP)—Search for 23-year-old Elmer MacDonald missing since Christmas Eve when he left a schoolhouse concert for home during a snowstorm, continued today without success.

R.C.M.P. and neighbors conducted a search of the surrounding district during the weekend but found no trace of the man.

WIFE OF EDITOR PERISHES IN FIRE IN NEW YORK

Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 29—(AP) — Mrs. Olive MacKenzie, wife of Donald MacKenzie, assistant telegraph editor of the New York Daily News, perished in a fire yesterday which destroyed their two-storey frame dwelling. MacKenzie, who required hospital treatment from shock, managed to escape by leaping 23 feet into a snow bank.

ULCERS SIDELINE COACH

Kitchener, Dec. 29 (CP)—An internal hemorrage brought on by ulcers will keep playing Coach Flash Hollett, of the senior O.H.A. Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, out of action for at least a month—perhaps longer.

Hollett was stricken yesterday afternoon. Captain Dick Behling and Lloyd Roubell will be in charge of the Dutchmen when they play Hamilton Tigers in Hamilton tonight.

Widow of One of Four Crash Victims Lost Parents in Mishap

Tilbury, Dec. 29 —(CP)— A slender, dark-haired French-Canadian mother of eight children sat in a rocking chair here Saturday afternoon, staring into space and not saying a word. Rocking slowly back and forth, she lulled a 9-month-old baby to sleep. Close by, two of her older children, their eyes red with tears, offered consolation to younger brothers and sisters.

Consoling neighbors filed through the door and spoke in hushed undertones of the terrible tragedy that struck the home only a few hours previous — the husband and father, George Bourdeau, 39, and her eldest boy, Albelt, 15, had been killed violently. Grandfather Dominic, 72, and neighbor, Alex Thibert, 33, were other victims.

It was a tragedy, but not a new one for the 33-year-old widow, Blanche Bourdeau. Just four years ago her father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Mailhiot, both of Tilbury, were fatally injured in an automobile accident.

She spoke solemnly for a moment of Christmas Eve, of how her boy, Albert, of whom she was "so proud," was asked to serve at the midnight Mass at St. Francis Roman Catholic Church here. Albert had just returned from Ottawa, where he was studying to become a priest.

"He was to be with us until Jan. 7," she said. "He used to be an altar boy at the church. He was a fine boy; smart, too."

Quietly she told how they saved to send Albert to high school in Ottawa on the advice of priests at St. Francis here.

Mrs. Bourdeau spoke of her late husband and tears came to her eyes. She told how on Christmas Eve he asked that they visit her sister because "it might be the last time."

"I thought then it was a strange thing for him to say," she recalled, "but then I forgot about it."

Just across the street the citizens of this predominately French-Canadian town were dropping in at the home of widow Thibert. There, she was left alone. There were no children.

A third widow, Mrs Dominic Bourdeau, remarked at the irony of it all. Her husband, the dead grandfather and father, had retired only seven years before from a railroad position with the Canadian Pacific. They moved from near-by St. Joachim on retirement. And now he was one of four hunters killed at the Saturday morning level crossing crash.

The mother with her seven children sat back into her chair, and slowly rocked her youngest. Outside a New York Central Flier one of those that almost hourly screams by not far distant from the house, whistled shrilly. She looked to the window and then lowered her head as the tears began to flow more freely. It was a similar flier that had crashed into those dear to her.

Marmora

Storm Delays Girl's Journey

Marmora — Among visitors to New York who were affected by the heavy snowfall in that city, was Eleanor Regan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Regan of Marmora. Eleanor was enroute on the Empire State Express, which had to remain at Harmon, N. Y., all night, the point where the trains bound for New York City change over from steam to electricity. Mr. Regan contacted his sister, Mrs. John L. Timoney at New York on Saturday morning by phone and was informed of Eleanor's ultimate safe arrival after sleeping on the halted express all night.

Group Sang Carols

Members of the Junior Choir of St. Andrew's United Church under leadership of Mrs. E. C. Prentice visited about eighteen homes of sick and shutins on Christmas Eve and sang carols which were much appreciated by those visited. They also called at the home of their organist, Mrs. Flora Litt and presented her with a gift. At the end of their rounds they returned to the home of Mrs. Prentice for refreshments.

Christmas Eve Service

Senior and junior choirs of St. Andrew's United Church augmented by the Deloro choir led in the singing of Christmas hymns at the well attended service held in that church on Christmas Eve. The church was tastefully decorated with evergreens and flowers. Rev. E. M. Cadigan officiated and told the legend of "Zea the hunchback," bringing out the lessons it conveyed. The collection went to the Missionary and Maintenance Funds of the church.

Midnight Mass

Midnight Mass was celebrated at Sacred Heart Church on Christmas morning with Rev. H. J. Farrell singing the High Mass. The procession was made to the crib by the children singing Christmas hymns, led by the altar boys. Rev. Father Farrell gave a very interesting address on the Nativity of our Lord. The church was filled to capacity.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Two distinct threads — the inflationary price spiral and the potentialities for continued expansion of production and trade -- run through the current crop of year-end reports from government and business sources.

Opinion on the latter trend, strongly influenced by the European recovery program and the Geneva trade agreements, is largely unanimous. Industry sees no indications of any real slackening of consumer demand on the still tight supply situation in the domestic field, while the demand for capital and consumption goods in Europe and Asia is expected to exceed that of last year.

Wide divergence of opinion exists, however, both on the extent of the inflation and the methods considered to deal with it. The differences range between the extremes of tight government controls and the free play of the laws of supply and demand which, exponents of the latter say, will result in increased production and lower prices.

See Abatement

President Truman's council of economic advisers see distinct possibilities of an "abatement of inflation" in 1948 given a "fair crop year" and the anticipated record-breaking production in the United States in the next twelve months. Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the council, lists the three major influences on the economic pulse during the next year in this order: the weather; labor relations, and foreign aid.

The quality of the first, stability of the second and extent of the third will influence economic conditions not only in the United States but, because of that country's unique export position, conditions throughout the world.

Canada's prospects for 1948 are indicated in Trade Minister MacKinnon's year-end review of Canada's growth as a trading nation. He said that decisions taken in 1947 "will lead toward a better balance of Canada's trade with foreign countries." Canada's trading problem is, basically, resolving the imbalance of selling to European countries on credit and buying from the United States for cash.

CLINTON McAVOY & O'CONNOR MURPHY

Lens Inspectors in the AO Belleville Plant

Teamwork in action! That describes the above picture which shows Lens Inspectors Clinton McAvoy (left) and O'Connor Murphy examining and discussing polished ophthalmic lenses made in the Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited. Through such conferences the quality of AO lenses is maintained and even improved, because the combined "know-how" of two experts is worth more than one opinion.

Tireless guardians over AO lens quality, the two men have been employed by AO for a total of nearly 13 years. Their lens knowledge, developed over the years, represents one more reason why professional men prescribe AO lenses for their patients, knowing the lenses will measure up to the highest of specifications.

Both Clinton and O'Connor are members of the AO Service and Social Club. O'Connor is also a reporter on the plant paper, the AO News and Views. Deeply interested in the welfare of AO, both men follow its progress closely for the simple reason that the future of any employee is dependent on the advancement of his company.

A member of the Holy Name Society, O'Connor has three hobbies: duck hunting, fishing and upholstering furniture. Clinton states his principal hobby is baseball. Efficient in their daily work, both men are a credit to their community .. and an essential team in the AO Belleville plant.

These Days and Nights

The days between Christmas and New Year's are days apart from all the ordinary days of the year. They have the mood of Christmas about them, the realization of the world's fondest hope in the high festival of December 225th., and they have yet to enjoy the feast of the New Year, one of the earliest festivals in human history.

It is a safe prediction that no one would give the Christmas week for any other week in the calendar. These days of the after-glow of Christmas and Yule have a quality that is given no other days.

With New Year's the mind instinctively turns to the sun and its upward climb toward spring. The old year comes to an end and a new year born watches the weeks of winter pass until springtime puts in an appearance.

The week of Christmas and New Year's finds the people in the highest merriment and outlook down the months to the new birth in nature's springtime.

In the Middle Ages these days and nights were the merriest of the whole year. To people of today this week bears the same stamp.

Winter Sports

United Kingdom sports enthusiasts who will not be going to Switzerland this year are planning to foregather in Scotland. Arrangements are being made by the Scottish Tourist Board in co-operation with the Central Council of Physical Recreation and the Scottish Ski Club to provide full facilities for both experts and beginners. Scotland has four areas excellently suited for skiing. These are in the highlying districts near Lock Tay and in the Cairngorms where the mountains rise to over 4,000 feet. The Central Council of Physical Recreation are planning an all-year-round school to be sited at the foot of the Cairngorms. Here instruction will be given in ice-climbing and skiing during the winter months and in mountaineering in summer. Regular skiing instructors are also to be appointed at various centres throughout Scotland. 400 hotels are co-operating in this plan to organize for general enjoyment the excellent winter sport possibilities which Scotland can offer. They are pledging themselves to provide guests with comfort as well as enjoyment; for example, sufficient supplies of log fuel are being built up to guarantee a fire in every bedroom during the winter irrespective of coal allocations.

Royal Broadcast

One of the happy events which the British world enjoys is the annual broadcast by His Majesty the King on Christmas morning. People of his vast far-flung Empire love to think of their monarch and his family in their own home celebrating Christmastide like his father who set the custom for the King's Christmas Day message, spoken from his own fireside.

King George celebrates Christmas as his people do in so many lands in the family setting of the Christmas reunion. His people like to think of their Ruler and his family observing the great feast day as they themselves do.

The King's message at this season is a message which strikes a happy note. He brings before the people the grounds for thankfulness that in spite of the problems of this time, the world has much to be thankful for in what it has escaped through the defeat of the forces of evil.

This year there was the note of the family happily emphasized as Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth and her husband the Duke of Edinburgh were in the gathering at Sandringham, a true Christmas family gathering.

These Christmas messages of the Monarch are in the very spirit of Christmas and the winter holiday season.

Ottawa

Canadians have taken interest in the news of the planning for the beautification of the Capital. Ottawa has a natural site which lends itself to beautification on a scale suitable to the importance of the city and of Canada. Canadians like to think of their capital as one of the most beautiful of cities. Windsor Star notes the news that some 6,500 acres are to be expropriated by the Federal District Commission, so that Ottawa may be one of the most beautiful of cities. It says:

"The general plan is to locate such industries as are in the Ottawa-Hull area, or which may move to the district, on the outskirts of the two cities; to remove the railway lines and the union station to the outer edge of Ottawa.

"No capital of any country should have a finer natural setting than has Ottawa. It remains only to take complete advantage of this in developing it by eliminating anything which detracts from the natural beauty.

"No plan can be a success which fails to include Hull, the sprawling city of 35,000 people, just across the Ottawa River from the capital. Hull is an industrial community with its origins in the lumber industry. It is not a thing of beauty, and is a blemish to the area.

"Long range plans would place some government buildings across the Ottawa River, in Hull, which is in Quebec province. Arrangements will have to be made with the Quebec Government. The full beauty of both sides of the river can be attained only by having the shores under Federal control, so that the entire district can be managed as one unit."

Mechanism in U.K. Coal Mines

Plans to improve the output and quality of coal in Britain in 1948 are disclosed in a report issued by Lord Hyndley, Chairman of the National Coal Board.

The success of the drive will hinge on the rate of mechanization, and here big advances are planned. For example, more than 1,000 coal cutters are scheduled for delivery next year compared with about 800 in 1947. For conveyors the corresponding figures are 4,000 and 2,900. This stepping up in conveyor installation will in turn increase the demand for belting and 13½ million feet are planned for next year compared with 9 million feet in 1947.

Other measures planned for next year include improvement in coalface lighting. For example, there are at present nine pits in which fluorescent lighting, which is incapable of igniting fire damp, is being tested.

Up to 60 "drift" mines worked with modern mechanized methods and capable of producing an additional 4 million tons of coal are scheduled for operation by the end of 1948.

In a drive to remove "dirty" coal, the Board aims next year to instal 200 new cleaning plants. When these are all at work it is hoped that 70% of the total coal output will be cleaned mechanically compared with 48% at present.

Digs Fifty Tons in Six Hours

William Williams, 27-year-old miner of Aberfan, South Wales, created a new record December 12 when he dug 50 tons, 3 cwt. of coal in six hours. He had to stop because he ran out of trams. Williams has thus almost doubled the record average shift production of 25 tons, 15 cwt. set up by Edward Maybank, also of South Wales, a week before, working 4½ shifts. Williams next target is to hew 150 tons in five shifts. Williams used a pneumatic pick and hand-loaded his record 50 tons.

Airplanes have just about reached the speed of sound, so the next target may be the speed of rumor, notes Edmonton Journal.

RICH BOY'S ENVY

My father left a fortune, so I've never been in debt.
I've never wanted anything I had to wait to get.
I've never done a dreary task; I've never learned a trade.
I know what I was taught in school, but not how things are made.

I know the latest fashions; and for every gay affair
I know, and have, the raiment which the well-dressed man should wear.
What florists charge for orchids since my boyhood I have known,
But I've not the slightest notion how such lovely flowers are grown.
I've taken ships to Europe, since such trips I could afford,
But I'm certain I have never been the happiest man on board.
For the eyes that were the brightest were the eyes of those below,
Who had dreamed and saved and waited for the time when they could go.

Oh, I know my father loved me, and I'm grateful for his thought,
And for everything I've wanted which his money promptly bought,
But at times I envy others who have skills that I have not,
And have had to earn their pleasure, for I know I've missed a lot.

JEALOUS SUITOR

Then they learned the story of the girl's night of terror.

Miss Springer told of the return to the house. She said Mr. and Mrs. Letson got out of the car and went to the house.

"Just as Wilson got out, Pat (Walter) was there and shot him. I saw him drop, just as he stepped out of the door of the car. Then Pat grabbed me and held me and pushed me about and tore my coat and I got a gash on my head.

Started Hollering

"I was bleeding and dazed and I started hollering. He took me into the house and gave me a wet rag and cold water to wash the blood off my head.

"I heard two more shots in the house but I didn't see anyone because I stayed in the kitchen all the time. I wanted to come home but he wouldn't let me. He said I couldn't go. I kept asking him but he wouldn't let me go.

"I slept on the couch in the kitchen and he went upstairs.

"Pat told me this morning (Sunday) that Mary was dead and asked me if I wanted to see her. He didn't say much more. He threatened to kill me, too, because he was jealous. He said Mary was in the front room. He said he wasn't going to have anyone like that shove him around."

The girl's story continued. "My head was hurting this morning and I was so scared I didn't know what to do. I just sat on the couch. He (Walter Letson) got up just before I did but I just sat there holding my head until I went home around 11 o'clock. I told my father about it but Albert Bruder told him not to go to the house or he might get the same thing the others got. I was scared. I'm still scared."

Police said Mrs. Hugh Letson still wore her overcoat, indicating she had been killed as soon as she entered the house around midnight Saturday.

The aged uncle, Mr. Pollock, is quite deaf and evidently slept through the shootings. He said that it was early Sunday afternoon when Walter asked him to go to the barn for some coal. When he asked Walter where the rest of the family was, Mr. Pollock was told they had been on a party and were not up. But when he returned to the house he found Walter lying on the couch and was unable to waken him. He said that he did not notice the other bodies, but went to the neighbors and returned with Winfield.

Winfield said he had seen Walter Letson Sunday afternoon — "He was wild looking."

4 Tilbury Men Killed At Level Crossing

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 29 (CP) — Four Tilbury men were killed instantly Saturday when their car was struck by a speeding eastbound New York Central passenger train at Richardson sideroad, 2 1-2 miles west of Tilbury.

The train, which travels on an 85 to 90 mile an hour schedule on the Windsor to Buffalo run, was running late.

The four victims were riding in a 1938 coach and were starting out on a hunting trip when struck at the crossing. All were killed immediately.

The dead are:

Dominic Bourdeau, 70, of Tilbury, father of two of the victims.

George Bourdeau, 32, of Tilbury, father of eight children.

A. Thibert of Tilbury, driver of the car.

A. Bourdeau, 18 of Tilbury attending school in Ottawa.

24 in Province Die Violently During Weekend

Slaying of four persons in an Ontario hamlet by a man who later committed suicide topped a weekend Eastern Canada fatality total of 24, A Canadian Press survey showed today.

Since Saturday morning seven people died of gunshot wounds, nine were traffic deaths, a gasoline motor explosion in Quebec killed three, two were fire victims at Hazeldean near Ottawa, a Timmins miner committed suicide and a Montreal woman died of burns from a house fire. The 24th death was that of 10-year-old girl from St. Eustache, Que., who died in hospital after asphyxiation in her home Christmas morning.

Walter (Pat) Letson, 55, shot Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Letson, his cousins Percy and Wilson Letson, on their farm in West Montrose, Ont., with a shotgun Saturday night and then turned the gun on himself Sunday. Jealousy over a woman's affections was blamed by police for the deaths.

Killed by Shotgun

Phillip Shiers, 32, of Halifax was killed by a shotgun Sunday. Mrs. Kathleen Saccary, mother of five, will be charged with murder. Vanamber Morris, 14, was killed accidentally by a rifle bullet while target shooting at Winchester, Ont.

Mrs. Emma Gamelin, 61, died in hospital at Hamilton Saturday from injuries when struck by an automobile Christmas Day.

Four rabbit hunters were killed Saturday when their stalled motor car was smashed by a New York Central train at a level crossing near Tibury, Ont. Dead are Dominic Bourdeau, 72; George Bourdeau, 35, Albert Bourdeau, 14; and Alex Thibert, 33, driver of the vehicle.

George Gates, 72, of Westbrook, Ont., was killed Sunday when struck by a motor car at Kingston. Alfred Lobb, 73, died in hospital Sunday at Hamilton from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile Friday night.

Three Employees Killed

At Ottawa, Thomas Hutton, of Woodroffe, Ont., 83, died in hospital Sunday from injuries suffered Saturday when struck down by a motorcar; and Mrs. A. Ouellette, 72, died Sunday after being struck by a motor car Christmas Eve.

Three Canadian National Railways employees were killed Sunday at Senneterre, Que., when a gasoline engine operating a coal conveyor exploded. Those dead are Jean Denis Poliquin, Irenee Daigneault and Jean Louis Dery.

Mrs. Beulah Bennett, 30, burned to death Sunday after rescuing two of her children from their burning home at Hazeldean near

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

MIGRAINE HEADACHE

The pain of typical migraine is on one side of the head at least in the first hour or two. The headaches and vomiting continue for a day or so.

Of course it's your head, but speaking as an ignorant country doctor I assure you that no amount of physic, saline cathartic liver regulator or the like will do you any good if you have migraine. In fact, such self-punishment only aggravates and prolongs your suffering, in my opinion.

Please don't huff and puff about the allusion to epilepsy either. I believe migraine is the sensory equivalent of the motor neurosis called epilpsy (this is not my definition, but an idea or theory conceived by a distinguished neurologist name of Spratling fifty years ago.) Having epilepsy or having migraine is no more and no less a stigma or disgrace than having colitis or having anemia. Perhaps there is more evidence to support the idea that one inherits the tendency to develop migraine or epilepsy from a forebear who was more or less dotty, feeble-minded, addicted to drink or subject to migraine or epilepsy. But after all it is just theory, and anyway how many families do you know that are without their share of nuts, neurasthenics, hypochondriacs, morons, alcohol or drug addicts, epileptics or migrainous members in one or another generation? Or does the degeneration in your family run to the cardiovascular conditions — arteriosclerosis, essential hypertension, angina pectoris, apoplexy? As I see it, degeneration of the vascular system is no more or less shameful than degeneration of the nervous system.

I can recommend just one remedy for headache, in this column—but if you are a headache sufferer I have a pamphlet Why Have Headache? which may give you helpful advice. Ask for it in writing (clipping will not do) and inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Here I urge every one who suffers from frequent or periodical headache, whether it be migrainous or not, to try supplementing your diet with calcium and vitamin D as described in the pamphlet—it can do no harm in any cases to do this for two or three months and it may put a stop to the headaches.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cramps in the Legs

I suffered excruciatingly with cramps in legs and feet—many nights they awoke me and kept me walking the floor or trying to for an hour or more. When it began to happen several nights in a week I wrote you, received your pamphlet on Adult Tetany and Growing Pains, began supplementing my diet with calcium and vitamin D, have not had the cramps since. (F. McA.)

Answer—The pamphlet is available to any reader who asks for it in writing and provides stamped self addressed envelope. Do not inclose a clipping.

Functional Murmur

Eight year old son has had perfect health until this year when he had pyelitis. Since then the doctor found a functional murmur in his heart. Although he told me to forget about it.
(Mrs. M. S.)

Answer—I'd forget about Dr. Yakety-yakety-yak and next time the boy needs medical care consult a good doctor. "Functional murmur" means the doctor doesn't know what, if anything, ails the patient—but he is a shrewd operator and he knows how to keep customers coming.

Colitis Obsession

You cured me of chronic constipation with your little book—I have not used any laxative or other artificial "aid" for ten years. I have been trying to tell my friend who has colitis, but he won't listen. (W. P. F.)

Answer—They seldom will listen to common sense analysis of their trouble when they get to that stage. I'm sorry, sir, but I can't send the booklet to your friend without his personal request. Any reader may have a copy of the booklet on written request if he incloses twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Ask for The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

Now See Here

Your constant grumpiness about correspondents using clippings as a convenient way to tell you what they want is hardly courteous. (C. C. H.)

Answer—I'm sorry, but clippings have a way of becoming lost or detached in the handling when they do, we can't give the [illegible] of a large amount of [illegible] reader the service he or she expects.

Debris of Races, Nationalities, Beliefs, Half Million Persons, Seeking to Settle in Italy

By C. R. BRUSINI

Rome, Dec. 29 — (AP) — War has left in Italy human debris of races, nationalities and political beliefs amounting to perhaps a half million people who have settled to stay, if they can.

Police, who give the 500,000 estimate, say many of these people are centres of political intrigue webs reaching into Eastern Europe and Russia.

The most important group of "newly-seeded" foreigners is made up of Slavs — all shades of them, from White Russians and Ukrainians to Poles, Serbs, Croats, Bulgars and all the many others that make up the great Cyrillic family.

Poles number many thousands. They came with the Germans and later with Gen. Anders' armies, and they are among those who desire least to return to their own country.

Most of them have settled themselves somehow: a girl friend, a wife, secret religious marriages — most of the Poles are Roman Catholics — many have small families and have learned the language. Children with limpid blue eyes under waxen blonde hair with last names impossible to pronounce are called Giuseppe, Antonio, Maria . . .

Poles Guiding Committee

The Poles are reported to have set up a sort of "guiding committee" under the lead of Gen. Bor, famed defender of Warsaw during the anti-German insurrection of 1944. If and where he lives is a mystery, but most Poles here will swear they know "he is here" in Rome, or Milan or in a small village, and that one day he will lead the revolt of his country against the "eternal enemy" from the east.

The second biggest lot of Slavs (maybe even the first) is of Yugoslavs. All shades of them too: followers of Mihailovic, of Pavelic, Macek Agrarian party men, Liberals, Serb Nationalists, Social Democrats and even Monarchists have disembarked on the Italian Adriatic shores, crossing the sea by rowboat and even with rafts, to escape Yugoslav police.

Slavs in Trieste

In Trieste the Slavs have their own cafes where they meet, chat and discuss, sometimes even organize parties to cross the border and rescue friends. It is relatively easy for a political refugee to obtain Allied papers in Trieste.

Among the foreigners who came with the armies of the various occupation or liberation forces, the Germans are few. As soon as they could, the Italians combed the country thoroughly to hand the Germans over to Allied prisoners' camps. A few are reported to have found shelter in the German- speaking southern Tyrol Alps.

According to the police estimates, there are about 60,000 Russians, mainly deserters from Soviet and German armies.

They are organized with a centre in Rome. The Ukrainians say that one of their leaders, whom they identify as Dolbukin, is still going to and fro, passing all Soviet control points in eastern Europe, sometimes pushing as far as Western Poland, acting as liaison with the legendary "Benderovici" — the armies of anti-Soviet guerrillas under Gen. Bendera, of Ukrainian extraction.

PUTS WIFE'S GIFT OF GLOVES ON, THEN BEATS HER

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 29 — (AP) — Police said a Dallas man, given a pair of gloves by his wife for Christmas, put them on to avoid bruising his knuckles, then beat her up.

He was released after paying a $10 fine for disorderly conduct.

Royal Bank Reports Profitable Year

The increased momentum of Canadian business activity during the past 12 months is clearly reflected in the balance sheet issued by The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ending November 29, 1947. Profits are substantially higher and public deposits and loans both in Canada and abroad show notable gains, while the traditional strength of the bank is again evident in all departments of its operations.

Deposits Up

Public deposits which last year registered a marked increase, have again risen to a total of $1,845,205,533. This is almost double the volume of five years ago and represents an increase for the year of over $33,000,000. Dominion and Provincial Government deposits have declined $62,573,092.

Commercial loans in Canada which began a steady upward trend three years ago, have increased by more than $126,000,000 and now stand at a total of $435,872,162. Commercial loans by the bank's foreign branches have also increased from $105,064,911 to $118,717,443.

The increasing use of the bank's funds for commercial loaning purposes has been accompanied by a natural reduction in investments in Government and other public securities, the total under this heading being $875,847,469, as compared with $1,098,880,240 a year ago.

Assets Slightly Lower

Total assets amounting to $2,093,641,219 are slightly below the record figure of last year. This decrease is more than accounted for by the drop in Dominion and Provincial Government deposits previously noted.

The liquid position of the bank is as usual very strong, the percentage of liquid assets to public liabilities being 74%.

Profits for the year after the usual contribution to the Pension Fund Society and appropriation for Contingency Reserves amounted $8,724,519, an increase of $1,818,133 over the figure for the previous year. Out of total profits an amount of $2,850,000 has been set aside for Dominion and Provincial Government taxes, an increase of $795,000. In addition an amount of $892,687 has been provided for depreciation of Bank Premises, leaving a net profit of $4,981,832. This figure compares with $4,020,895 a year ago. Out of net profits, dividends amounting to $2,975,000 were paid, and $2,006,832 carried forward to surplus which now stands at $3,474,246.

Animals in Bronx Zoo Endure Storm

New York, Dec. 29—(AP)—The animals at the Bronx Zoo rode out the "big snow of 1947" nicely, thank you.

Only two untoward incidents resulted from the record snowfall on Friday, William Bridges, publicity director for the New York Zoological Society, said.

The lions missed their meal Saturday and two Himalayan pheasants escaped from their snow-damaged outdoor enclosure.

The other animals were in fine fettle, however.

The moose tramped a comfortable "yard" in the high drifts in which to cavort; the deer had no trouble keeping narrow trails open, and the pandas and American otter plowed tunnels under the snow surface in their enclosures, punching vertical breathing and reconnaissance holes.

Harvey Bennett Absent From Nets For Two Games

Providence, R.I., Dec. 29 (AP)—Harvey Bennett, goal-tender for Rhode Island Reds, eastern division pace-setters in the American Hockey League, was absent from the Reds' net for the second successive game last night when the team played Cleveland and there were wide-spread reports that he and the club were at odds over money matters.

A club spokesman said Bennett and club owner Lou Pieri are to meet tomorrow.

Mike Karakas guarded the Providence goal in both weekend games. The Reds lost to Hershey 4-1, Saturday night and defeated Cleveland 5-3, last night.

Picton

BABY BAND PARTY

Picton — The Baby Band of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church held a party in the S. S. hall, with Mrs. A. M. Palmateer, the leader, in charge. The mothers were also present and heard a talk by Mrs. Helen Holmes, president of the W.M.S. Music and games entertained the children until tea time when Miss Edith Burley assisted Mrs. Palmateer in serving refreshments.

Forty members of the United Church choir were entertained at the home of Miss Florence Barber. Several stunts provided much amusement. Carols were sung. Members exchanged gifts which were distributed from a gaily decorated tree. Refreshments were served.

When your little one catches cold—

Tonight ... do what most mothers do to relieve miseries of children's colds: Simply rub warming Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. Results are so good because VapoRub's special relief-bringing action starts right away and keeps on working for hours during the night while the child sleeps. Often by morning most misery of the cold is relieved. Remember, Mother ... when your children catch cold ... be sure you get time-tested Vicks VapoRub.

WEDDINGS

ROMBOUGH—NAYLER

Marmora.—A wedding of local interest took place on Saturday afternoon, December 20th, in the United Church parsonage of Margaret Ileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Clarence Nayler, of Marmora, and Ralph Sanford Rombough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Rombough, of Bonarlaw. Rev. E. M. Cadigan officiated.

The bride wore a pale blue suit with bustle back and with black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. Miss Beatrice Nayler was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a black and white checked suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Ray McLaren, formerly of Bonarlaw, was groomsman.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Rombough will take up residence in Peterborough.

LLOYD—HENRY

Bridge Street United Church decorated with baskets of white Winter blooms, was the setting for a very pretty candlelight wedding ceremony, at five o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 27th, when Evelyn Jeane Lake Henry, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frederick Howard Henry, Charles Street, Belleville, became the bride of Henry Arthur Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thomas Lloyd, of 488 Old Orchard Grove, Toronto, with Rev. D. C. Amos officiating. The church organist, Mr. Alec Gordon, played the wedding music, and the soloist was Mrs. Morley Rorabeck, who sang "The Lord's Prayer", before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, entered the church with her brother, Mr E. Floyd Henry, wearing her mother's wedding gown, fashioned on princess lines, and wide "bertha" trimmed with embroidered chiffon and seed pearls, the long sleeves ending in Maltese lace worn by her grandmother on her wedding gown. Her mother's wedding veil was held in place by a coronet of lace and seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of cream roses and white feather carnations.

Mrs. Randall Berry, of Belleville, was matron-of-honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Mabel Russell, also of Belleville. These attendants wore identical floor length gowns of burgundy velvet, with square necklines, and flared bustle back skirts. Their ostrich trimmed halo hats were of the same shade, and they carried crescents of white carnations.

Mr. Adrian Franklin Lake, of Belleville, was the groomsman, and the ushers were Mr Randall Berry, and Mr. Jack Campbell, of Toronto.

For a reception at the home of the bride, her mother wore a floor length gown of blue lace, with grey accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted in receiving with the groom's mother, wearing a floor length gown of moonstone grey crepe, with fuchsia accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Assisting in serving the guests were Mrs. Bailey Turner, and the Misses Charlotte McGee, Marjory Cook, Doris Lloyd and Eleanor Charles.

For a wedding journey to a Winter resort in the Gatineau Hills, the bride chose an ensemble of grey wool, featuring a ballerina skirt, black accessories and a raccoon coat.

Out-of-town guests were from London, Ont., Hamilton, Toronto, Colborne, Napanee and Kingston.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Lloyd was feted at several showers Mrs. Charles Scott was hostess for a kitchen shower; the Misses Doris Lloyd and Mabel Russell entertained jointly at a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. Randall Berry and Miss Marjory Cook were co-hostesses for a cup and saucer shower, and the 1st Belleville Cub pack entertained at a miscellaneous shower.

Members of the office staff of H.E.P.C. of Ontario, entertained at a dinner party at the Lanthorn Inn; Mrs Taylor Franklin and Miss Ada Moore entertained at their respective homes, in honor of Mrs. Lloyd.

Madoc

Rev. M. W. Heslip Inducted as Minister St. Peter's Church

Madoc (Special.)— On Friday afternoon, Rev. M. W. Heslip was inducted as minister of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, and St. Andrew's Church, Tweed. The service took place in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc. The Moderator, Rev. J. G. Hornsby, had charge of the service. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Reid, of Picton, while the address to the minister was given by Rev. J. Goforth Hornsby, of Belleville. Interim Moderator, Rev. W. H. V. Walker, of Stirling, narrated the steps leading to the call. The address to the congregation was given by Rev. R. C. McLean, B.A. The new minister, Rev. M. W. Heslip, was called from his former charge at Prescott, Ontario. Following the service a reception was held in the schoolroom of the church, where members of the congregation met and welcomed the new minister, Mrs Heslip and their son and daughter to their new home in Madoc.

Women's Activities

BELLEVILLE PHIAT SORORITY

The Belleville Phiat Sorority held their Christmas supper meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 17, 1947, at 6.30 p.m. As guests they entertained the European girls who are employed at the Albert College, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shortt, and Mr Davis the new "Y" secretary who is replacing Mr. Shortt.

A delicious supper was served by Miss Dorothy Cook and her group, who also arranged a lovely gift table. The business of the meeting was discussed and two new members were voted into the club They are Miss Mary Laskaris and Miss Joyce McClelland. At the close of business Miss Shirley Bunnett welcomed the guests and then Miss Ari Gilbert presented Mr. and Mrs. Shortt with a lovely cream and sugar service as a going away gift on behalf of the girls of the club. Mr. Shortt, who is leaving Belleville at the first of the year expressed thanks on behalf of Mrs Shortt and of himself for the beautiful gift.

Christmas gifts were then distributed among the girls and Miss Clara Kikes entertained at the piano and Christmas carols were sung.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 27 (CP).—In this holiday season impromptu parties are taken for granted in any household and the wise hostess knows that sandwiches, whether dainty or substantial, just fill the bill for refreshments.

Cheese is always a favorite sandwich spread. With several types of soft cheese, pickles and salad dressing on hand, an interesting variety may be maintained.

Home economics of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have come up with a new cheese spread which can be kept for use anytime.

Cheese sandwich spread — ingredients: one hard-cooked egg (chopped); one-half pound grated cheese; two tablespoons minced onion; dash of cayenne pepper; one-quarter teaspoon salt; one tablespoon butter; one tablespoon granulated sugar; one tablespoon flour; two tablespoons vinegar; one half-cup top milk.

Mix grated cheese, onion, pepper and salt with chopped egg. Melt butter in a double boiler; add sugar and flour and blend well. Add the vinegar and milk slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water until thickened. Combine with the cheese mixture and pour into sterilized jars. Store in cool place.

* * *

Other suggested sandwich fillings that are different:

1. Preserved ginger, minced, and mixed with mayonnaise.
2. Chicken cut in small pieces and mixed with diced celery and chopped sweet green pickle.
3. Equal quantities of peanut butter and chili sauce.
4. Cream cheese with a small amount of red pepper jelly and mixed to a cream with mayonnaise.
5. Cooked ham minced and mixed with peanuts chopped into small pieces. Add a quantity of chopped pickle and mix with mayonnaise until a good spreading consistency has been reached.
6. Stuffed olives and peanuts chopped with mayonnaise added.
7. Hard-boiled eggs chopped and mixed with ham and sweet pickles which have been put through the mincer. Salad dressing should be added to this and a bit of onion, for flavoring.

Dainty cookies are almost as important as fruit cake at a holiday party. Here is a recipe for Swedish Tea Cakes calculated to make the hostess a popular person with her guests.

Ingredients: one-quarter cup of shortening; one-quarter cup of brown sugar; one egg; one-half teaspoon salt; 1¼ cups flour; one cup cornflakes finely ground; red jam, or jelly.

Father on the Farm;

He Had Great Faith in His Party

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father didn't vote the year a new roof was put on the Orange Hall.

He was too angry, which, to anyone who didn't know father and his motives, seemed to confuse the matter because the Orange Hall unquestionably needed a new roof.

Everybody in his part of the township knew that, for only at the early December township meeting it had rained and the water had come through into the lodge room for anyone to see, including some of the Catholic ratepayers.

The hall, plain and weatherbeaten, stood at a bare crossroads near Beulah Church, one of three appointments on a preaching circuit, and was the only place handy for a meeting of a more or less secular nature. The relatively few Catholics in the township saw nothing amiss in attending meetings held in the lodge room, and, for that matter, the Protestant boys saw nothing out of the ordinary in it either.

On all days except St. Patrick's Day and the Twelfth of July there was a sort of easy-going tolerance for each other's beliefs, which included the Catholics ignoring certain references hanging in frames on the lodge room walls to one William of Orange and places such as Boyne River and Londonderry.

Leaky Roof Was Reflection

Yet it was another thing entirely for Catholics, with their own eyes and in the presence of true and loyal members of the fraternity and other Protestants, to see the rain coming through the roof as an indication of poverty within the lodge.

And Orangemen in father's community tended to be especially sensitive to things affecting the honor of the lodge and the faith in a Dominion election year.

There was gossip even, and as a result of it feeling started to rise, that some not particularly sorrowful glances passed between several Catholic faces when the water started to leak on the master's chair and somebody put a cuspidor on the seat to catch the drip.

Father, not an Orangeman himself, sat during the meeting in a dry area back by the box stove and didn't se anything of a provocative nature. He laid the gossip to a little organized agitation for a new roof.

A more important factor, away in the background of father's decision to boycott the polls, was the reputation the Orange Lodge had in his community of being in the hands of the Tories. Certainly, while it would have been wrong to have said that all the Tories around were Orangemen, it would not have been far out to have said that all the Orangemen were Tories.

How Roof Was Mended

Father was a broken man, therefore when, shortly before the election day the Orange Lodge was dressed up with a new shingle roof that had been paid for—the news was soon spread—largely with money from the Liberal candidate's campaign funds.

Father took a lofty attitude to politics and believed that Liberals could do no wrong. Lots of men said they believed that Liberals could do no wrong, but father really did. It pressed into a corner, father also believed that a Liberal was more honest than a Tory and stood a mite higher in the estimation of the Lord.

He was as mad as hops the time a Liberal organizer, brought in from a Toronto riding to help in a by-election, slipped a $10 bill into his hand to drive reluctant voters who might be Liberals, to the polls. Father expected to do such work as a duty and expected it also of other Liberals. He wasn't mollified a particle to learn afterward the Toronto organizer had thought he was a Tory. He gave it as an anonymous contribution, next Sunday, to the fund for converting the heathen.

Consequently, the perfidy of the party into which he was born—through grandfather having followed the way of Baldwin and men like George Brown—was a shock only slightly less than if mother had eloped with the hired man.

A Supporter of Mowat

Father, in his early days, had supported Mowat in his struggles for state's rights for Ontario, and cast a vote for Laurier in 1896, when he led Federal Reformers to power on an issue of provincial rights. He was still voting for Laurier in 1911 on reciprocity and wavered from that loyalty only in the Union Government election of 1917.

Unlike Uncle Pete, who wasn't anybody's uncle, but a distant cousin of mother's father stopped voting for Sir Wilfrid after his death, early in 1919.

He still voted Liberal, but there never seemed to be the same affinity between the young man Mackenzie King, and father. Father, when Laurier was leader, used to predict what he would say about any issue that came up. He tried the same thing two or three times with his successor but got discouraged.

Uncle Pete, a somewhat simple soul, couldn't understand father's attitude on the Orange Hall roof. Father felt in his heart it was demeaning to a Liberal and the party to wean away—he couldn't bring himself to utter the word bribe—votes from the Tories with a couple of squares of British Columbia shingles. And so, in protest, he refused to vote.

Uncle Pete pleaded with him. "What's a few Grit shingles on a roof?" asked Uncle Pete. "Doesn't Laurier need our votes?"

Sir Wilfrid had been dead going on ten years, but no one at the time had the heart to remind Uncle Pete. He meant well.

Father, in provincial politics, voted Farmer once, and then returned to the Liberal fold. When the young man Hepburn started to jab brave lances at Conservative armor, he used to laugh and say, "Ah, that Hepburn!" In later years, when the lances used to poke at chinks in the mailed shirts of Federal Liberals, he used to say, "That Hepburn."

Took Responsibilities Seriously

Father never ran for municipal office, but he took his responsibilities seriously when he was roadmaster, and all the farmers in the mile hauled gravel in fulfilment of their statutory duties. That is, father conscientiously had all the gravel dumped on the road in front of his farm, as did every other farmer when his turn came to be roadmaster.

It was a pleasant custom that made each one think he was getting something out of the others, and no one was the worse for it. When roadwork was abolished, some believed that something fine had been taken from the farm life.

There were others who hated it. Silas, a neighbor, was one of these. Silas was a man who could be aroused to profanity and he had the reputation of not knowing his strength. As a shortcut in the time required to haul his allotment of gravel, Silas received the idea of doubling his load capacity by placing another gravel box on top of the regular one and using a four-horse hitch.

It was a fine plan and Silas warmed to his cleverness all the way-back with his first load. But it was a hot day and his wagon wheels were dry and unbeknownst to him a rear tire worked off. The double weight of gravel crushed down the wheel as if it were matchwood.

Silas was nearly thrown to the road when the wheel collapsed and his roaring—and the words he said—were the marvel of all the concession within hearing distance, which was a considerable part of it.

Father's dog, Rover, who was so lazy he ate lying down, heard it from a great distance and hid in the box stall in the horse stable.

Aside from road work, father was most faithful about his duties as a ratepayer in the field of education. He attended school meetings regularly and was the first to draw the attention of the trustees to the loose knotholes in the girls' outhouse and demand remedial action.

He was always present when tenders were let for wood and afterward examined the woodpile to see that its contents matched the specifications for maple, with so much and no more beech and other hardwoods.

Politics, he always insisted, should be kept out of the school. A man should follow his conscience in electing trustees and, if it should be a Liberal conscience, so much the better, said father.

(Another instalment next Saturday).

POPULAR SIZE

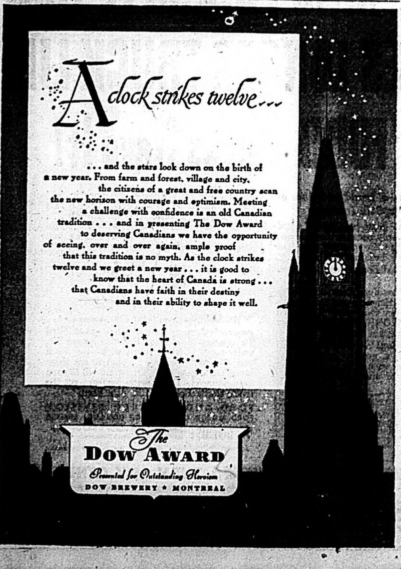
The most popular size in truck tires is 8:25 by 20, the size of about 13.8 per cent of all truck tires sold.

"BASE PRACTICE"

In 1678 Henry Sayville complained that too many men were drinking tea — "a base Indian practise."

SEMITIC LANGUAGE

The Syric language belongs to the Semitic family of languages of which Hebrew is the chief and is a branch of Aramaic.



A clock strikes twelve . . .

. . . and the stars look down on the birth of a new year. From farm and forest, village and city, the citizens of a great and free country scan the new horizon with courage and optimism. Meeting a challenge with confidence is an old Canadian tradition . . . and in presenting The Dow Award to deserving Canadians we have the opportunity of seeing, over and over again, ample proof that this tradition is no myth. As the clock strikes twelve and we greet a new year . . . it is good to know that the heart of Canada is strong . . .
that Canadians have faith in their destiny

British Housewives Find Austerity Year Full of Worries

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)— Post-war economic problems made 1947 a difficult year for nearly everyone in Britain—and none had a bigger share of austerity than the housewife.

Tired from standing hours in queues, worried by the mounting cost of many household necessities, depressed by eight long years of hardship—with no immediate prospect of improvement in her day-to-day lot—she stuck doggedly to her job of running a home.

Rations became smaller and many types of unrationed food became more scarce. The struggle to get "a nice piece of fish for tea" in place of meat she would prefer was a wearying errand. Fresh vegetables were expensive and potatoes were added to the "rationed" list. Shopkeepers, secure in their sellers' market, could be extremely trying.

Her family, fed as adequately as she was able (and many British mothers habitually stinted themselves to provide extra portions for their children), had still to be clothed. This was one of her most difficult tasks.

Britain's clothes-rationing system was stringent—even a bit of rough cloth to patch the lining of an man's suit was "on coupons"—and it was impossible to replace worn-out garments as often as one wished. That meant extra hours of mending, patching and darning.

Home furnishings grew shabby and were difficult to replace. Newly-married couples received "dockets" — a sort of glorified clothing coupon — which entitled them to purchase "utility" furniture at controlled price but others had to go to second hand stores where cost was high and quality often poor.

Scarce and Expensive.

Bedclothes were scarce and a pair of sheets required seven coupons of the 32 that had to last eight months. Blankets also were "on coupons". Eiderdowns were a pre-war memory. Curtains, linoleum, rugs — sky-high in price—pots and pans, plates, cups, saucers all were hard to replace.

To these difficulties often was added the discomfort of living in crowded quarters. The national housing shortage frequently forced two or more families to share dwellings designed for one household. Some bomb-damaged houses still had not yet been adequately repaired.

Many women took on further responsibilities outside the home. Britain's need for factory labor was as great as it had been during the war—although now it was goods for export, not munitions, that the country wanted badly. Thousands of wives, who had worked through the war and gone home when their men came back from battle, entered the cotton, pottery, garment and other dollar-winning industries. Other thousands continued to help their farm-husbands to boost Britain's agricultural output.

Politically women were active. Twenty sat in the House of Commons and 1947 brought the death of a 21st.—red-headed Ellen Wilkinson, minister of education. At the year-end there was agitation that women be permitted to occupy seats in the House of Lords.

Women also sought strenuously to have the pensionable age for spinsters reduced from 60 to 55. The government agreed in principle to the request but said economic conditions did not justify such expenditure at present.

Wooler

Wooler (Special) — Mr. C. Thompson is spending the Christmas vacation at his home in Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Nelson and Calvin of Niagara Falls, Ontario, are visiting their parents for two weeks.

Mrs. R. Putnam and Mrs. L. Bryant were in Peterborough on Thursday visiting their sister, Mrs. L. C. McColl, who is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Orvis.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wilkins, of Kingston, are holidaying with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs A. G. Austin.

Miss Marjorie Merton is spending the Christmas holidays at her home in Harrowsmith.

Mrs. E. M. Wessels has gone to Brighton to spend Christmas with her sister, Mrs. Robt. Wade and Mr. Wade.

Mr. Roy Sharpe, of Haileybury, is spending Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sharpe.

Miss Esma Cole, of Niagara Falls, Ont., is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cole, for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill visited Mrs. H. Hubble, Johnstown, last week.

Miss Jeans Crews has returned from Peterborough, where she spent a few weeks.

Miss Pearl Cole, on the teaching staff of the Brighton Public School, is holidaying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cole.

Mrs. S. Vanhorn and daughters are in Kingston for a few days.

Miss Pearl Sharpe, Reg. N., of the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. Ross McMaster and mother, Mrs. E. McMaster, also Mrs. Chas. Sharpe, were in Peterborough on Saturday.

The Wooler Public School, gaily decorated for the annual Christmas concert on Thursday evening, was filled to capacity with parents and friends of the pupils. Mr. N. N. Haggerty of the school board, was chairman for a fine program of music, recitations, drills and dialogues, at the close of which Santa appeared with treats for the children and helped to distribute the gifts on the tree.

The choir of the United Church presented a Christmas pageant and candle lighting service in the church on Sunday evening.

The Agricultural Society sponsored a dance in the Town Hall

Barbara Ann Sparkles In 1947 Sports

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In a sports year sprinkled with memory-making thrills, an 18-year-old girl and her magic skates wrote Canada's 1947 success story by dancing to international fame with a flawless finesse that sparkled both in and away from her familiar ice-world.

It was a success with a heady quality of a fairy tale come true—a triumph that stirred Canadian hopes for victory in the 1948 Olympics—and it took a rightful place at the front of an exciting sports parade.

Sportdom honored other standout performances during 1947. Great in defeat, Winnipeg Blue Bombers earned football glory in a hectic Dominion final with the mighty Toronto Argonauts. The hockey world acclaimed Toronto Maple Leafs for fighting to the Stanley Cup with a boisterous young spirit that overcame the odds of experience.

But petite Barbara Ann Scott put sports on front pages across Canada by winning the world figure skating crown in Sweden and captivated Canadians with the vision of a pretty, blue-eyed blonde who spent tedious years of training for that overnight glory.

An aftermath of slight heartbreak made the appeal indelible. Canadians could ever be proud of a little Ottawa girl who appeased the warlords of amateurism by returning, unhesitatingly if tearfully a gift automobile to an adoring city because: "It would be selfish of me to keep the car and lose a chance to bring honor to Canada in the Olympics."

Now In Europe

Barbara Ann, first of Canada's Olympic athletes to leave for Europe, was the favorite to return with honors, but Canadian amateur officials selected a potent, if compact, group of athletes to compete in the winter games in Switzerland Jan. 30 to Feb. 8.

Outside of the hockey team, hamstrung in its efforts to regain the title from Britain by Olympic committee insistence that the roster all be simon-pure amateurs, the group included a skiing team of 10, three figure skaters headed by Barbara Ann, and four speed skaters.

From these athletes and the others who will be chosen later for the Olympic summer games, may rise the headliners of 1948. But most of the 1947 thrills were written by others.

Montreal sportdom enjoyed a well-won triumph when the Royals brought the city its first Allan Cup in 17 years by defeating Calgary Stampeders in a Dominion senior hockey final that stretched its full seven games. The Royals won automatic choice as Olympic representatives by that triumph, but declined on grounds that the players could never hope to take the Olympic oath.

Eastern Canada completed the sweep of East-West hockey honors when Toronto St. Michael's won the Memorial Cup as junior champions by beating Moose Jaw Canucks in four straight games.

Victories for West

The West earned its share of intersectional laurels, however, wit hvictories in basketball and lacrosse against Ontario teams. Vancouver Meralomas defeated Windsor Assumption in a five-game playoff at Vancouver for cage honors and New Westminster Adanacs captured the final box lacrosse series in three straight games from the Mimico Mountaineers.

Laurels were split in the Dominion football final, even tho' the Argonauts emerged as Grey Cup holders for the third straight year. In just one game, Winnipeg's Blue Bombers re-won the West's lost football stature and racked up enough might-have-beens before bowing, 10-9, to keep the second-guessers arguing for years.

It was the year's second championship struggle that will long be remembered. The other was the Stanley Cup final between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

The Leafs deposed the old champions by taking the best-of-seven playoff final 4-2 in games but not before l'affaire Richard set the hockey world seething. The arguments waxed furious after Maurice Richard, the Canadiens colorful Rocket, blew a fuse and drew a one-game suspension for gashing Bill Ezinicki's head with his stick.

Canada showed weakness again in international tennis and golf. The Davis Cup team lost all five matches to Australia. Bobby Locke the South African ace, captured the Canadian open at Toronto Scarboro while Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., defeated hockey's Bill Ezinicki at Boischatel, Que., to take the Canadian amateur golf title.

Other Highlights.

Just running through the record-book recalls these other 1947 highlights:

Curling—Jimmy Welsh' skips his Winnipeg Deer Lodge team to the Dominion title at Saint John, N.B.

Horse Racing—Moldy, the outsider, wins 88th. running of the King's Plate at Toronto Woodbine.

Golf—Ontario successfully defends Willingdon Cup at Boischatel, Jue., with British Columbia eight strokes back as runner-up; Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, retains junior crown; Ontario wins ladies' interprovincial team play while Grace Lenczyk, Newington, Conn., captures Canadian women's open at Toronto.

Track—Bob McFarlane, University of Western Ontario, clips .9 seconds off Canadian mark with 47.5 quarter.

Rowing—John Kelly Jr., Philadelphia Vespers, captures singles crown at 65th. Henley, won by Buffalo Westsides.

Hockey—All-Stars defeat Maple Leafs, 4-3, at Toronto in the N.H.L.'s first all-star game; Chicago's Bill Mosienko fractures ankle; hockey history made with five-for-two deal that shifts Max Bentley from Chicago to Toronto.

Football—University of Western Ontario again defends Intercollegiate crown, although surprised by University of Toronto with 12-all tie in last game.

By BERT ALLEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 29—(CP)—Charlie Conacher has bowed in as a big league coach with Chicago Black Hawks, but whether the old bullet-shot artist of Toronto's famed Kid-Line will be able to lift the Hawks into contention will be interesting to watch.

Although the National Hockey League doormats have been showing signs of making it tough for other clubs lately, Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll said his first reaction on learning that Conacher would succeed Johnny Gottselig, was the thought that "Big Charlie can't tend goal."

"But he may know where to lay hands on a goaler," said Dink, "and if he does it will help the Hawks a lot."

It's easy to see that Dink is on the right track, for a glance at the standings before the weekend games showed Chicago were the highest scoring team in the circuit, but have had 121 goals scored against them, 31 more than any other team.

Dink thinks that the other N. H. L. teams have a too high personal regard for any goalkeepers within their organizations to deal them to the Hawks and have them try to operate behind that shaky Chicago defence.

Coach Dick Irwin of Canadiens thinks Conacher will help the Hawks, Dink reports.

"He's the driving, forceful type —on or off the ice," was the Montreal mentor's comment.

—Form Chart—

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson asks how a guy is supposed to rate the N.H.L. Clubs on their past performance so far this season. It can't be done, says Fergie citing these games which upset all calculations:

"Leafs, who hadn't scored a goal on Montreal ice previously this season, came to Montreal and blanked Canadiens . . . Rangers, beaten in New York by Canadiens last out, went to Detroit and set down the second-place wings without a goal . . . Chicago with the weakest goaling in the league, Hitherto, betook themselves into Boston and deluged one of the league's greatest netminders, Frankie Brimsek with rubber . . . Before that, Rangers had invaded Toronto, beat the Leafs, then Canadiens went to New York, whipped Rangers, but couldn't score a goal on Leafs last Thursday."

It appears there's no such thing as form in hockey, says Fergie, but at the end of a season, oddly enough, the best team is generally on top.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

The National Hockey League's leading scorers had a lean weekend when the goaltenders came into their own, holding the marksmen to 12 goals in four games. The best the top men in the upper brackets could do was four assists split between the leaders, Syl Apps of Toronto, Buddy O'Connor of New York, who holds down second spot, Detroit's Jim McFadden and Elmer Lach of Montreal. Apps has 31 points, O'Connor 28, McFadden, Lach and Ted Lindsay of the Red Wings each have 27.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Belleville District Hockey Association resumes the playoff wars in Memorial Arena tomorrow night, President Leo Kelly announced today. In the second quarter finals series, the up-and-coming Hornets will clash with the Napanee squad in the 7.30 curtain raiser while the second joust sees the smart Stirling squad cross hockey rapiers with the Cobourg crew.

The games are of the elimination voriety and two of the teams will pass into hockey oblivion. And that means that the lads will be out there to do or die for their dear old Alma Mama not forgetting Poppa Mazuma. Hornets should give the Gibbardville crew the battle of their lives especially in view of the fact that Walt Gerow is still on the sidelines with an injured shoulder. However, the Napanee gang still pack lots of potent punch and the game should be an old-fashioned hockey brawl.

• • •

And by the same token the Stirling-Cobourg set-to should be productive of some neat pastiming. The Stirling squad have been hotter than the southern part of a fire-fly's lap while Cobourg, weakened somewhat by injuries can be depended on to battle to the last ditch.

• • •

In the meantime the Rockets Juniors, which pulled a grand game out of the bag when they defeated the Trenton Flyers in their quarter-finals series and Madoc, which bested the Trenton Hockey Club are waiting for their next appearance. Nothing definite as yet on the finals series although in all likelihood what with O.H.A. series coming up, the wind-up games of the District Loop will be a two-games series with goals to count.

• • •

Hockey fans hereabouts will get their first glimpse of Junior "A" hockey "as she is played" on Friday, January 9th when the Galt Rockets, sister club of the Belleville Rockets, and both farm children of the Philadelphia squad of the same name, will be here to clash with Coack "Smoky" Harris' beardless buckaroos. Arrangements have been completed, so Secretary Dick Beare, of the Junior Hockey Association informed us yesterday, for the Galt crew to appear here on that date.

• • •

The game will feature "Junior Appreciation Night" and the powers-that-be are going all out to make the affair a gala event. Galt boasts a powerful young aggregation including "Wiggie" Wylie, who recently underwent an appendectomy and who may or may not be in uniform that night. In "Dutch" Dougall, of Kingston the Galtians boast one of the most promising young netminders to do pipe duty in junior ranks since Howie Harvey was kickin' 'em out for the starry St. Mikes, Dominion champions. Sammy Mulholland, another Kingston product is also going great guns for the Alfie Moore crew. Should be a neat evening's entertainment.

• • •

By the way the tickets for the game are now available and you an exchange one of the pasteboards for reserved seat tickets at Bill Cook's cigar eporium. Price is 75 cents for the select circles while a half-dollar takes you into the rush seats. Better get 'em early.

• • •

From Clarkson Tech in Potsdam, N.Y., comes a neat hockey booklet anent the collitch lads ice activities this season. Prominent in the lineup is the name of popular Dick Fitzpatrick now in his sophomore year in mechanical engineering. Dick is the only letterman to return to the Tech squad this year, and the college coach rates the young fella highly.

• • •

And this from the Peterboro scribe:—"It is noted that in the official releases of the senior "B" schedule by Frank Buckland not a Peterborough referee has been suggested so far. These names have been submitted: Bill Morrison and Peg Hurst of Oshawa, Bill Watts and Mike Rodden of Kingston, and Speedy St. Louis and Toots Holway of Belleville. Each home team appoints a local linesman. Club secretaries are Lorne Cook of Kingston, Jack Devine of Belleville, Glen Carson of Legion and Floyd Parsons of the Petes. Suggested refs in the lakeshore intermediate "A" setup include: Speedy St. Louis, Vern Goyer, Toots Holway, Stan Crossett, Jerry Rowden, Joe Crombie, Bernie Hodgetts, Larry Heffering and Peg Hurst.

Canada had better look to her hockey laurels, and garner some sort of a squad that can do better than its present Olympic representatives, for from England comes word of a Czechoslovakian team that is some punkins in hockey circles in Europe.

• • •

The Czech team, said to be the strongest in Europe is now being stamped as a serious Olympic threat and even now more than ever after their successful exhibition tour throughout England in which they won 4 out of six games. They concluded their tour last Wednesday with a 4-3 victory over handpicked English clubs.

The Czechs are said to be well-trained, fast and play a quick-passing brand of hockey. Coached by M. Buckna, who at one time played for the Trail, B.C. Smoke Eaters, the European team played against two of England's strongest clubs that are made up of Canadian players, and made them look like novices.

Said Buckna, when asked about the Olympics, "We have another 15 or 20 men who are Olympic possibilities at home and we don't know ouh team yet. We were without Jaroslav Drobny one of the best wingers in Czechoslovakit who is a sure bet to go to St. Moritz."

• • •

Two of the Czechs' impressive wins were at the start of the exhibition tour when they trounced Harringay 8-1 and then followed the victory with on easy 9-3 win over an English team that included several Olympic players.

THE AMAZING RESULT OF AN ENGINEERING PRINCIPLE THAT ASSURES LONGER TRUCK LIFE

...And FORD Trucks Have It!

Coming for 1948—a brand new line of Ford Bonus Built Trucks!

Soon you'll see the great new line of Ford Trucks—great not only because they're new, but because they are the amazing result of a time-proven truck building principle.

This principle is Ford Bonus Built construction.

Every one of the new Ford Trucks for '48 is Bonus Built . . . designed and built with extra strength in every vital part. This extra strength provides WORK RESERVES that pay off in two important ways.

First, these Bonus Built WORK RESERVES give Ford Trucks a greater range of use by permitting them to handle loads beyond the normal call of duty. Ford Trucks are not limited to doing one specific job! Second, these same WORK RESERVES allow Ford Trucks to relax on the job . . . to do their job more easily, with less strain and less wear. Thus, Ford Trucks last longer because they work more easily.

NHL Winds up Christmas Jam With Leafs Further In Lead, Hawks Further in Rear

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The leaders went further ahead and the tail-enders went further behind but in the vital mid-section where play-off positions are what count even at this stage, there was a closing up during the weekend grind that polished off the National Hockey League's Christmas week jamboree.

Toronto Maple Leafs, with a win and tie over the weekends, now have a solid four-point margin over the Detroit Red Wings, who won their only game. The New York Rangers got a tie which puts them in third place five points behind Detroit.

Boston Bruins were the hard-luck team of the weekend, losing both games to go into a fourth-place tie with Montreal Canadiens, who won their only game. Boston and Montreal now are ten points ahead of the Chicago Black Hawks, but the tailenders showed a good game before losing to Canadiens.

If this is a little confusing, here's what happened: on Saturday Toronto beat Boston 2-1, and Montreal beat Chicago 3-1. On Sunday, Toronto and New York tied 1-1, and Detroit whitewashed Boston 3-0.

That leaves Leafs with 37 points, Detroit 33, New York 28, Boston and Montreal 26, Chicago 16.

The league-leaders had hard going in both games. Toronto's 2-1 win over Boston, in the closest sort of struggle, cost them the services of steady defenceman Garth Boesch from Winnipeg, who suffered a twisted left knee and likely will be out for a week.

Plugging Duel

That game at Toronto was a plugging duel with no score until Rookie Sid Smith, just up to Toronto from Pittsburgh Hornets, fired a goal past Frankie Grimsek in the Boston net midway through the second period. Vic Lynn made it 2-0 early in the third, and Turk Broda's shut-out was spoiled with less than seven minutes to go when Boston's Pete Babando got the puck just past centre ice and dashed in all alone for a clean-cut counter.

In the other Saturday game the Hawks, with coach Johnny Gottselig in the driver's seat for the last time, ran up against goalie Bill Durnan on one of his hot nights. The Hawks had beaten New York and Boston last week, but they couldn't beat Durnan Saturday.

Scores Through Maze

The lowly Hawks had more dangerous attacks working against the Canadien net than Emile Francis had to stave off in the Chicago zone, but they couldn't click against the redoubtable Durnan after Bill Mosienko fired their only goal in the first period. That one evened up Tod Campeau's goal for Montreal. In the second period Roger Leger scored through a maze of skates and old Toe Blake made it 3-1 for Montreal.

At New York last night, with Madison Square Gardens jammed by a sell-out crowd of 15,925, Rangers took the lead in the first period on Phil Watson's goal. Toronto gained the tie with Howie Meeker's back-handed goal in the second period. There were 15 penalties, eight to Rangers and two Ranger stalwarts—Edgar Laprade and Tony Leswick—were forced off for repairs of head cuts.

Second Shutout

At Detroit it was goalie Harry Lumley's second shutout of the season as Wings blanked Bruins for the fifth time this season, 3-0. Lumley at that only had 16 saves, ten of them in the second period. Marty Pavelich scored for Detroit in the first period, Pete Horeck and Roy Conacher in the third.

The teams now are idle until Wednesday, when the New Year's Eve fixtures have Boston at Rangers and Chicago at Detroit. All are in action on New Year's night.

Buffalo Bisons Within a Point Of Loop Leaders

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo's charging Bisons today stand within one point of the American Hockey League's Western pace-setters, the Pittsburgh Hornets, and if they continue at their present clip, should soon vault into the lead.

Bisons came up with a double weekend triumph, downing Cleveland 6-3 and Hershey 5-1. Meanwhile, the faltering Hornets, who have led the league since opening night, were shunted 4-2 by New Haven in their only outing.

In the Eastern Division, Providence Reds maintained their comfortable seven-point lead over Hershey although the Bears downed them 4-1 on Saturday. Reds came back last night to edge Cleveland 5-3.

New Haven moved into a second-place stalemate with Hershey by tying Philadelphia 3-3 after tripping Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Indianapolis Capitols scored a double triumph, defeating St. Louis 4-2 and Washington 11-4. Springfield Indians shut-out Philadelphia 5-0 to round out the games played.

Les Hickey, Hal Jackson, Murdo McKay, Len Halderson, Joe Bell and Doug Harvey accounted for Buffalo's goals against Cleveland with Gordon Davidson, Bob Carse and Bob Solinger scoring for Barons. Bell, Jackson, Tommy Cooper, George Pargeter and Art Lessard with the goal-getters in Buffalo with Paul Ronty picking up the sole Hershey goal.

Close Triumph

Goals by Ken (Buck) Davies and Jean Paul Denis with less than five minutes to play enabled New Haven to hand Pittsburgh its first defeat on home ice. Angus Cameron and Ian Mackintosh were the other New Haven scorers. Les Costello and Bud Kemp tallied for Hornets.

Veteran Carl Liscombe and Roger Bedard, with two goals each, paced Providence to a close triumph over Barons and gain the Reds a split in their two weekend tilts. Whitey Prokop scored the other Providence goal while Bob Carse, Fred Thurier and Churchill Russell tallied for Cleveland. Things were different on Saturday with Herbit Cain, Renty, Johnny Pierson and Gordie Bruce spelling defeat for Reds. Liscombe saved the Rhode Islanders from a shutout with his first period goal.

Steve Wochy's third period goal gave Philadelphia a 3-3 draw with New Haven. Mike Narduzzi and Wendell Jamieson were the other Rocket goal getters while Chick Webster scored twice and Wingy Johnston once for Ramblers.

Gerry Couture turned in a two-goal performance to lead Indianapolis in St. Louis. Enio Sclisizzi and Norman McKay were the other C.A. scorers while Steve Black accounted for both Flyer goals.

On Sunday, Ed Bruneteau, another former Detroiter and Cliff Simpson each scored three goals as Caps trounced the hapless Washington Lions while Pat Lundy bulged the twine on four occasions. Lloyd Doran scored the remaining Indianapolis goal Paul Raney picked up two for Lions with one each going to Dan Porteus and Laurie Archambault.

Eric Unger with two goals starred for Springfield as Indians goalie Floyd Perras, recorded his first shutout. Red Kintz, Eldy Kobussen and Wimpy Jones also flashed the light for Springfield.

Juvenile, Midget Hockey Schedules

Following are the schedules of the district Ontario Minor Hockey Association groupings as drawn up at a special meeting held in the city over the weekend under the chairmanship of Convener Sam Curry, Tweed.

Belleville and Trenton entries are in Midget "C" with Stirling, Madoc and Tweed grouped in "C." All five teams will play in a single schedule but the Belleville and Trenton squads will playoff for the right to enter the OMHA playdowns while the two leading teams in the remaining three "C" squads will playoff for the honors of their group.

A second Belleville Midget "C" team operating under the colors of the Inter-Service Club Council has drawn a bye and will likely play the winners of the Trenton-Belleville Merchants series in the first round of the playdowns.

US Olympic Team Considered Good By Ace Bailey

Boston, Dec. 29 (AP)—The 1948 United States Olympic hockey team, which outskated the powerful —University of Toronto sextet, 7-4, Saturday, is described by Toronto coach Ace Bailey, former Maple Leaf star, as "a good team."

That observation from the astute Bailey was made after the Varsity Blues had been defeated by the red-shirted Americans before 5,900 fans at Boston arena.

Bruce Mathers star of last year's great Dartmouth team which won the American championship and tied for the mythical international title, scored three goals against the invaders.

Mather also assisted in the game's opening goal, scored by left wing Ralph Warburton.

Two of the Toronto goals were scored while Johnny Kirrane, 19-year-old defenceman, was serving two of the five penalties he received during the game.

The Olympic team showed to good advantage even though showing an obvious need for competition. Since the Amateur Athletic Union blew the whistle on other American teams, forbidding them to play against this sextet sponsored by the American Hockey Association, the Switzerland-bound skaters won't get much opposition until after they arrive in Europe. They are due to sail Jan. 9.

The Americans had a 3-0 lead after the initial period and made it 4-0 early in the second when Bill Harding, an old Harvard player, and Stan Priddy collaborated.

Jack Riley, another former Dartmouth hockey star, banged in the fifth United States goal after whirling by the defence. Speedy Bob Boser scored the sixth before Mather got his third, the final American counter of the night.

Toronto's scorers were Harry Boyd with two, Harry Johnston and Norm Brown.

Houston Huskies Top South Loop By Wide Margin

(By The Canadian Press)

Houston Huskies emerged from the United States Hockey League's weekend encounters as undisputed leaders of the Southern Division of the league and they went on a scoring spree in the process.

The Huskies defeated Omaha Knights 12-5 Sunday night, taking advantage of the substitution of Sam Skelski for Terry Sawchuk, regular Knight goalie who was injured in the first five minutes. The Huskies ruined Skelski's evening by scoring from all angles. Ken McKenzie, Joe MacArthur and Morden Skinner paced the winners with three goals each.

In Sunday night's other game, Mel Read's two third-period goals gave St. Paul Saints a victory over Kansas City Pla-Mors, 4-3 Read tied it up with his first marker and scored the winner with three minutes to go.

Kansas City gained a split for the weekend, however, as they edged Minneapolis Millers 5-4 Saturday night in a game marked by 17 penalties. Leo Gasparini, 25-year-old Minneapolis left wing from Sudbury, suffered a broken leg in the third period.

In the other game Saturday night Dallas Texans defeated Omaha 4-1, with Omaha's only goal coming on a penalty shot by Eddy Reigle.

No games are scheduled tonight.

Oshawa Generals Still Second In Junior 'A' Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Although without their official coach until the middle of next months early lessons were absorbed fully when the league-leading Windsor Spitfires defeated the third-place Barrie Flyers 4-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A fixture at Windsor Saturday night. It broke Barrie's six-game winning streak.

In a Saturday afternoon junior twin-bill at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens the second-place Oshawa Generals edged out the sixth-place Toronto Marlboros 2-1 and Galt Rockets moved into fourth place by swamping the cellar-place Toronto Young Rangers 11-2.

The ninth-place Guelph Biltmores moved to within one point of the eighth-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors when they notched a 4-2 victory over the seventh-place St. Catharines Teepees at Galt.

There were no senior games during the weekend.

Windsor tallied their 17th victory in 20 starts but found the rugged northerners tough going. Teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first, Spitfires led 3-2 in the second frame and added one more in the third.

Windsor marksmen were led by Gord Haidy with two goals. Earl Frezell and Johnny Wilson scored other Spitfire counters. Bill Barrett and Gerry Reid were Barrie goal-getters.

Smarting from a 11-3 defeat by Galt last weekend, Marlboros put up stiff opposition for Oshawa's 16th win in 20 tries.

Score on Ganging Attack

Following a scoreless first period, hefty Frank Sullivan blasted in a low close-in shot on a ganging attack by the Generals. Oshawa got their second counter when Danny Oleksuik caught a Toronto goal corner in the third frame. Frank Pernfuss flipped in the lone Marlboro tally at the final stanza's 10-minute mark.

The listless nightcap was Galt's 10th victory in 20 starts. Young Rangers dissolved before the Galt attack.

Hary Pidhirny, Pete Tkachuck and Harry Marchand led Galt marksmen with two counters each. Art Galashoe, Harold Hopper, Lyle Gibson, Sam Mulholland and Ken McNally tallied other Galt goals.

Doug Chapman and Reg Spragge scored for Young Rangers.

Guelph tallied their fifth win in 19 tries at Galt. St. Kitts scored one for one in each of the first two periods with Guelph coming through in the last 20 minutes of play with two unanswered counters.

Neil Gordon led Guelph scorers with two goals, while Ron Plumb and Gordie Miller tallied the others. Fred Hildebrand and Bill Kodatsky notched Teepees' counters.

The fourth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen visit the second-place Hamilton Tigers in tonight's lone senior game scheduled. Galt Rockets visit the fifth-place Stratford Kroehlers in the lone Junior fixture slated.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

NEW YEAR'S—RESOLUTION TIME

Here it is—another new year—and a chance for a fresh start. There's no point in making great resolutions we know won't be kept. It's better to concentrate on the smaller things—and stick to them. Let's resolve to be more tolerant and friendly toward all the people we meet. Let's resolve to take an interest in everything and everybody in the community. Let's plan to be "Good Citizens" during the coming year.

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Almost any correct bridge contract is subject to defeat. It may be from bad timing. Or from unfavorable distribution. Or from unlucky finesses. But you have a play for it if the trick count is there.

In a duplicate tournament was this unexciting deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 6 2
♥Q 5 4 2
♦K J
♣K Q 8

WEST — EAST
♠10 3 — ♠A 7
♥J 10 — ♥9 8 7 6
♦A Q 3 — ♦9 6 5 2
♣A J 10 9 5 4 — ♣7 3 2

SOUTH
♠J 9 8 5 4
♥A K 3
♦10 8 7 4

Some north players ended at a bid of two or three spades. They should have gone to a game of four. We wondered why they stopped too soon. It seems they feared opponents held all four aces.

Such a worry would not last long where an accurate count is in use. Chances of south being without an ace would be very remote. It would be too remote to consider in a bridge game.

An opening bid of one spade is started by north. South responds with an assist of two spades. This promises at least three tricks with not less than two high cards among them.

North has a count of seven tricks. Even if south has no more than three, they have ten tricks between them. Ten tricks are enough for a game in spades. Why stop short of game?

Ten tricks may not be taken soon enough if opponents have four aces. Going to game, therefore, would be safe only if south has at least one ace. How will north know of this in advance?

High cards are aces, kings, queens. Only 12 of them are in a pack. North has six of them, three kings and three queens. Unseen by north are four aces, a king, a queen.

South is known to have at least two of them. Which two could south hold? They could possibly be the unseen king and queen. But there are a great many more chances that he has one of the aces.

Good players realize that some games depend on a doubtful odd trick. But there is such a thing as being too careful. The world would move forward by inches if everyone waited for cinches.

AT THE BELLE — Cyd Charisse, Margaret O'Brien and Karin Booth portray ballerinas in "The Unfinished Dance," grapping story of life backstage in the world of dance artists. Filmed in color by Technicolor, the new M.G.M. production opening today at the Belle introduces to the screen, the night club and radio favorite Danny Thomas.

The Movie Column

Hollywood, Dec. 29 (AP) — Whether you call it flu or the "mystery bug" which has been afflicting Los Angeles, sickness has been haunting film schedules, with many of them having to be re-arranged because of the absence of stars. Director Richard Thorpe is the latest victim and his illness has shut down "A Date With Judy" temporarily.

Robert Hutton is getting a big break, Warners announces. The studio plans to star him opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "The Glad Hand," a backstage story. Heretofore a juvenile, Hutton is supposed to play a heavy.

The next Bing Crosby-Barry Fitzgerald opus is being called "Diamond in the Haystack." It will take place in Eire. Ronald Reagan indicates there is still hope that the differences between him and Jane Wyman will be patched up. At this point, everything is still up in the air.

Ray Milland's eight-year-old son is having a rugged Christmas vacation. First the boy broke a bone in his foot. Then he came home with his head swollen with poison oak to the size of a basketball.

Around the Lots

Charles Laughton has an offer to present his "Galileo" in Berlin next March...Jesse Lasky won't get around to "Caruso Sings Tonight" until late next year. Before that he plans "Intermission," a theatrical comedy, and Galsworthy's "The Apple Tree." ... Walter Pidgeon is the pride of the MGM wardrobe department. The Saint John, N.B.,-born stars measurements for the new Greer Garson film "Julia Misbehaves," are precisely the same as when he played in "Saratoga" in 1937.

Strictly Trivia

Red Skeltons gag file now numbers 23,000 jokes. It is carefully cross-indexed and the funnyman need never be at loss for an ad-lib...Gene Kelly is teaching his four-year-old daughter, Kerry, to dance. Hollywood film production is settling down for a short winter's nap.

Look around town today and you can find scarcely a score of pictures in the works. Production is normally down during the Christmas season, the studios figuring the holiday spirit is not conducive to film making. But not since the grey days of 1933 has the slump been so great.

Reports indicate production is due for a jump after New Year's Day, but I'll wait and see. I have talked to numerous stars in the last week and hardly any of them know what their next assignment will be, if any. It might be a colder winter than Hollywood expects.

Old Hand

Concluding his 13th year at 20th Century-Fox, Cesar Romero paused to reflect on his lengthy service. Only a gifted few have lasted so long at one studio. Offhand, I could think of only Bette Davis and Alan Hale at Warners; Clark Gable, Lewis Stone and Wallace Berry at MGM; Bing Crosby at Paramount.

Cesar started with the old 20th Century Company in such films as "Clive of India" and "Cardinal Richelieu." He went along with the firm when Darryl Zanuck moved in on the old Fox lot. A New York native, he has played almost every Latin nationality. This year he has been a Spaniard in "Captain From Castile," a Portuguese in "Deep Waters" and an Italian in "That Lady in Ermine."

He's philosophical about his career:

"It's true I haven't drawn the best roles in the world, but then, I'm not the best actor in the world, either."

Soft Pedal

From an inside source comes a report that the motion picture industry is going to have a renewed campaign to discourage news of the whopping salaries paid to film notables. The studios have long tried to soft-pedal the astronomical wages paid here. They figure such publicity doesn't set well with such normal wage-earners as you and I.

New York, Dec. 29 —(CP)— Intelligent direction and fine acting have been lavished upon Rodney Ackland's dramatization of "Crime and Punishment" which opened recently at the National Theatre but somehow the production fails to register as a satisfactory dramatic achievement.

John Gielgud as the tortured student Raskolnikoff, and Lillian Gish and Dorothy Haas as the other principals turn in sterling performances against an admirable setting by Paul Sherriff. Theodore Komisarjevsky has handled the large cast skillfully, especially in some of the crowd scenes.

But in trying to condense the monumental Distoyevsky novel, Ackland has created a series of episodes rather than a cohesive drama.

Series of Tableaux

The Dostoyevsky characters come to life and move through the scenes of the play amid an atmosphere of frustration and depression that is faithful to the novel. But the effect is more that of a series of tableaux than a stage play in which the action mounts steadily towards the climax.

The scenery by Sherriff was brought over from London where the play recently had a six-months run. Robert Whitehead, a Montrealer by birth, and Oliver Rea produced this version of "Crime and Punishment," the first Broadway has seen in 12 years, with Bea Lawrence as associate producer.

Memorable Album

A notable galaxy of scenes from notable stage shows is being assembled for a one-night benefit performance at the Ziegfield Theatre Jan. 18 on behalf of the American National Theatre and Academy. The program will include episodes from the following shows: Florence Reed in "Shanghai Gesture;" Toronto-born Raymond Massey in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois;" Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina;" William Gaxton in the song "Thou Swell," from "A Connecticut Yankee;" Libby Holman in the "Body and Soul" song from "The First Little Show," and Willia Howard in a hilarious "Rigoletto" quartet from "The Passing Show."

Kindly Karloff

Boris Karloff, long typed as a monster or at best an evil-hearted villain in the movies, will play a gentle, erudite professor in the Broadway production of J. B. Priestley's "The Linden Tree," due here in February.

DEVIL'S WORK

By Carolyn Wells

CHAPTER 8

"You next, please," he said, and Austin rose.

"Oh, sit down. This is merely a general query. Tell me just what happened? A brief resume of the whole affair."

"I didn't see it close by. I was over at the table, across the room, looking over some notes for today's program. We are very busy with last-minute arrangements."

"You were writing?"

"At that particular moment. I was waiting for Mr. Sayre, who was going to help with the program. He was coming in the door —"

"Mr. Sayre will tell his own story. Were you looking at the fencers?

"Not especially, but I saw Mrs. Forrest leave the room."

"Then what happened? What attracted your attention?"

" I heard a slight scream, and then I saw Miss Fane fly across the room and stoop down by my brother, who had fallen or was falling to the floor."

"Miss Fane reached Mr. Forrest before he fell?"

Austin hesitated. His thoughts grew confused. What was Mitchell making him say? Suppose Esme—

"That I don't know," he said, was surprised to see Miss Fane, for I hadn't known she was in the room. She didn't come in from the hall, for Sayre stood in that door."

"Miss Fane will tell her own story, Mitchell reminded him. "What did you do next?"

"Why I—I don't know. I jumped up, and went over toward Vivian, and I saw blood on Miss Fane's white gown, and I knelt down and lifted Vivian's head, and it sort of fell over, and I knew he was dead or dying.'

"Where was Miss Fane then?"

Austin wanted to say, "She will tell her own story," but he felt it was no time for such a retort.

"I didn't know where she went," he answered. "I paid no attention to anything but my brother's condition. He seemed to be trying to say something and I listened, but I couldn't make out the words."

"I could!" came Suzy's chirpy little voice. "I was right back of Austin, and I heard Vivian say, 'He did it! I knew he would!' and then he sort of choked and didn't say any more."

"You will be questioned in your turn, Miss Kirk," Mitchell said. "Did the words sound like that, Mr. Forrest?"

"Not the least bit in the world," Austin replied. "I think he wasn't entirely conscious. He had been practicing a difficult play for some days, and I think he had succeeded, and was saying something like: 'I did it! I knew I could.' But this is all problematical, and of no importance anyway."

"Go on, Mr. Forrest; and then?"

"The my brother gave a slight gasp and a long drawn sigh, and died."

Austin's voice was steady and gentle, and the expression on his face was stoical but by no means callous. He was repressing his feelings but quite evidently by a strong effort.

Mitchell said nothing further to him, but he called on Brandon Sayre.

"You are visiting here?" he asked.

"Yes."

"You are a fencer?"

"Yes."

Tell me anything you saw or heard as you stood in the hall doorway while Mr. and Mrs. Forrest were fencing?"

"At first, I saw or heard nothing unusual or startling," Sayre said, slowly. "I was looking at the fencers, casually, but not specially, as I was about to go to the table where Austin Forrest was sitting."

"Did you go?"

"No; just then I saw Vivian Forrest begin to tremble a little, as if he were ill, and I watched him, but I thought he recovered himself. Mrs. Forrest left the room just then, and I noticed Vivian quivering again, as if with some sort of pain. And then he sank down slowly, as if unable to help himself at all, and Miss Fane suddenly appeared, and almost instantly she said, "He is dead."

"You went to the dead man?"

"I did. I have some medical knowledge, and I knew he had been taking drops of some sort, so I feared he had some illness that had proved fatal."

"You examined him?"

"Oh, not that, but Austin said the drops were for sun-blindness, so I looked into Vivian's eyes."

"And you found?"

"Nothing wrong. His eyes were all right."

"The pupils were of normal size?"

"Thank you, Mr. Sayre, your statements are of value. Miss Kirk, please answer a few questions."

Yes, Mr. Mitchell. Oh, I know a lot about it all."

Kindly take pains to be very exact in your answers," District Attorney Mitchell said to Suzy Kirk. "How long had you been in this room when Mr. Forrest died?"

"Oh, dear District Attorney, sir, how can I answer that exactly? I never know what time it is, nor how long I am anywhere—oh, dear!"

"Were you over in that alcove place all the time?"

"Why, yes—I think so—weren't we, Peter?"

Answer for yourself, please," said Mitchell.

"Oh, all right. I guess we were there all the time—except when Peter went to get us a couple of drinks and when I ran out to find my compact I'd left on the sideboard."

"And what first drew your attention to anything unusual out in the room?"

"Oh, when Esme—that's Miss Fane—went flying across the room like a white streak. She was in her nightgown from a negligee or pajamas."

"Where did Miss Fane come from?" Mitchell went on.

"Oh, heavens! I don't know," Suzy said. "Oshkosh, I guess, or somewhere out there."

"I don't mean that, I mean where did she come from when she ran toward Mr. Forrest?"

"I can't imagine!" And Suzy looked eargerly curious. "She didn't come in from the hall, and there's no other door except from Mr. Forrest's bedroom."

"I wasn't in there!" declared Esme, and her voice was lessangry than sad. "I'll tell you where I was."

"All in good time, Miss Fane," Mitchell said "Go on, Miss Kirk. What more did you see?"

"Why—let me think—there wasn't much more to see. Austin came and sort of lifted Vivian up, and Mr. Sayre came, and Esme—she just ran away. She'll tell her own story, don't you think?"

"I will attend to that. Do you fence Miss Kirk?"

"Do I fence? Why, next year I'll be a junior!"

"You seem very junior now. Did you notice what special points Mr. and Mrs. Forrest were practicing?"

"No Mr. Dictrict Attorney, I didn't. You see, we experts don't watch other people fence. Beginners do that in hope of picking up a bit of information. And anyway, what good would it do you to know whether they were trying out the straight sixte or the cut-over or the counter lunge tierce? But Viv wasn't killed by fencing foil! It isn't done. He had some kind of heart action, or whatever you call it, and an attack came on, and he just keeled over. Poor Viv!"

"This is the first I've heard of heart trouble, are you sure of what you say Miss Kirk?"

"I'm always sure of what I say," Suzy returned, with what was meant to be a scathing glance.

" Thank you, Miss Kirk. Now, Miss Fane, will you answer a few inquiries?"

"Certainly, Mr. Mitchell." Esme raised her great violent eyes to his with an impression of infinite sadness, accompanied by a sorrowing little smile meant to show forced bravery.

They had an effect on the District Attorney, who seldom met this type of girlhood. Wicked little glamour girls he knew aplenty, but not with this accompanying air of refinement, almost aristocracy.

For Esmeralda was an artist, and when it came to costume and make-up, she had unerring taste and uncanny judgment.

Just now, she turned to Mitchell a sweet girlish face with simple innocence written all over it. The least touch of art in the right places gave her an appealing air that made for instant sympathy.

And Mitchell accepted her at her face value.

"Miss Fane," he began, "you said you would tell us where you were hidden when you ran across the room to one side of Mr. Forrest."

"I was hidden," she said with a glance, tender, but showing no hint of apology. "You see, it was like this. Everybody had gone to bed, and I knew Mr. Forrest expected Jean to come in and fence in a few moments. I was in my room across the hall, and I just wanted to say good night to Vivian, so I scooted over here—and—I was just a second too late, for Mrs. Forrest was already in the hall. Well—I just stepped in that wardrobe there, the big one, and I—well, I had to stay, you see. Oh, Mr. Mitchell, I'm afraid I make it sound awful, but really I—I—"

"You and Mr. Forrest are—were great friends?"

Somehow, the innocent face suddenly looked different to Mitchell.

"Yes, indeed," Esme said, gazing at him earnestly. "He was so good to me. Why, he said we were going to have a menagerie at Troy."

"A what?"

" A menagerie at Troy. You know, a—"

"That will do, Miss Fane, for now. You are excused. Mr. Haskell, if you please."

Haskell came forward and sat nearer the questioner.

"You fence, Mr. Haskell?" was the first question.

"I do yes."

"Were you looking at the sword play when Mr. and Mrs. Forrest were fencing?"

"They used foils, not swords; but, no, I as not looking at them."

"You were in the room?"

"Yes. As Mrs. Kirk has said, we were having a mild flirtation over in that alcove."

"I see. You knew Mr. Forrest well?"

"Pretty well. We didn't meet very often, but we were glad when we did."

"Did you ever hear of his having heart trouble?"

"Oh, nowadays everybody has heart trouble, don't they? No, I never heard that definitely about Vivian."

"He was a good fencer?"

"Oh, yes; very good."

"As expert as Mrs. Forrest?"

"They were evenly matched. They studied under a famous teacher in Paris, and they usually took the prizes at the meets."

"Did you see Mr. Forrest fall?"

"No, I knew nothing of it until Miss Kirk, who was with me, gave a little scream, and jumped up and ran into the room. I followed her, but I didn't go near Vivian. There were so many looking after him, I knew I wasn't needed and might be a bother."

"Did you hear Mr. Forrest say, 'He did it!' as he fell down?"

"No, I was not near enough for that."

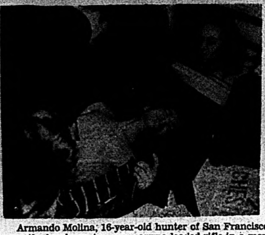
PORTRAIT OF A CARELESS HUNTER



Armando Molina, 16-year-old hunter of San Francisco, learns the hard way to never carry a loaded rifle in a moving vehicle. He was riding a bus, on his way to a hunting trip with friends. The bus hit a bump and his .22 rifle, resting in his lap, discharged, sending a slug through his shoulder and severing an artery. An ambulance steward attends the writhing youth as spectators get a close-up view through one of the windows of the bus.

Picton

Glenora Fish Hatchery Busy On Usual Winter Operations

Picton — Millions of fish fry will be deposited in lakes and bays of Ontario during the summer months as a result of operations now in progress at the Ontario provincial fish hatchery at Glenora, six miles east of Picton.

During the fall months fish spawn has been secured locally and from distant points. At the present time there are eighty million whitefish eggs at the hatchery. The spawn was secured from the hatchery's nets set in Hay Bay and from commercial fisheries of Big Island.

Speckled trout eggs have been received for hatching from the rearing station at Sault Ste. Marie Brown trout eggs will be secured from the station at Codrington, herring eggs from Hay Bay and Atlantic salmon eggs from Nova Scotia.

The eggs are placed in large glass containers. Fresh water passes through these continually. This hatchery is unusually fortunate that a never-ending supply of water is secured from Lake-on-the-Mountain located just above the hatchery. This is simply piped down, no pump being required.

Manager of the hatchery is A. B. Brown who was previously with the Southampton hatchery for fifteen years. Assisting with hatchery operations are Louis Andrews, Stewart Snider, Donald Storms, William O'Neill and John Downs.

The hatchery of the Atlantic salmon eggs is part of an experiment to restore these fish to Lake Ontario. Earlier this year, fry was released in a creek at Pickering and it is hoped they will migrate to the lake and remain. If successful, these fish will mean added revenue for commercial fishermen.

London Letter

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 27 (CP)—Tired tipplers in search of a final drink before the milkman calls, generally head for the Covent Garden area just north of the Strand, where London's wholesale vegetable, fruit and flowers trading is carried on early each day.

The Lodestone is a group of five public-houses spaced around the intersection of Long Acre and Bow Street—licensed to sell spirits between 5 a.m. and 9 a.m., the middle of the working day for the porters, buyers and salesmen who work in the market.

In theory a publican may not serve any person whose work is not connected with Covent Garden, but in practice the bartenders will pull a friendly beer for any late passer-by who still seems relatively sober.

If he wanted to tell the difference between a prosperously-dressed fruit-buyer and a City broker en route to the exchange, it would be simple. Covent Garden drinkers have a rhyming slang all their own.

Half a cup of tea is a mixture of tea and Scotch—a favorite dawn brew; salmon and trout is stout; Bay of Biscay is whisky; thimble and thumb, rum; Ver Lynn (radio entertainer) is —gin; Daily Mail, ale; Lancashire lass, bass; apple fritter, bitter (beer); rose and crown, brown (ale); merry and bright, light (ale).

Finally the market man calls for an old frog and toad—one for the road.

The whole market covers about 10 acres, 7 1-2 of which, including the site and building of the Royal Opera House, belongs to Covent Garden properties and is estimated worth £2,675,000 ($10,700,000). About 160 wholesalers have stands and shops in the district and about 3,000 porters and traders work there daily.

The ancient byways which cover ground once part of the "Covent Garden" of Westminster Abbey are jammed during business hours by slow-moving trucks and horse-drawn wagons piled perilously high with blasphemous oaths as they squeeze through tiny spaces.

Market authorities agree their place of business is over-crowded, rendering distribution less than ireally efficient. But Covent Garden remains one of the most colorful quarters of post-war London.

Practically NEW CARS

With the present shortage of steel and the embargo of New cars from the United States, cars will, we expect, be in short supply this year. We anticipate that this situation will mean a definite increase in car prices and we suggest if you're in the market for a new car, rather than risk disappointment, you would be wise to buy one of our practically new cars now. Here are four cars in new car condition.

STUDENTS' MUSIC UN-HOLLYWOODISH UNORTHODOX WORK

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto (CP). — Memories of poison ivy itch and painful bee stings were forgotten by a youthful group of motion picture enthusiasts as they watched the efforts of their nine months' work flash by in 35 minutes.

The group of 11 men and women sat on the floor of an attic room, silenced by the impact of their first movie, "In Between". Produced on an un-Hollywood budget of $35, the film is an unorthodox, psychological thriller based on the thread separating the subconscious from reality.

Momentary fear of slipping into the ghoulish world of his dreams was the inspiration of the movie, said Elwy Yost, 22-year-old writer and director of the film. A psychology student at the University of Toronto, Yost said the pantomime-acted silent work was "a dream to end all dreams!"

Inspired by the theories of Sergei Eisensein, John Ford and Orson Welles, the group—most of them university students—decided to experiment with a "new approach" to movie-making.

"Not because we have anything against Hollywood," said Harold Smith, art director of the film and one of its cast. "But we want to go beyond them in artistic achievement."

Action, expression and symbolism are the keystones of the film which tells the story of a frustrated artist, the hatred he bears for his wife and his suppressed love for another woman.

Unusual Technique

"We relied on spontaneity for our effects," said Yost. "Actors were directed as the camera rolled, sometimes with no knowledge of what was coming next.

The merit of this technique is seen when actors often registered genuine surprise paralleling that of the spectator.

Familiarity with Freudian psychology is not necessary to interpret the symbolism involved. Constantly hovering behind the wife is a cynical-faced puppet suggesting inevitable doom and the artist's frustrated ego. Three perspiring workmen represent public opinion and as such try to make short shrift of the artist and his love by burning them at the stake—torture the artist knows his wife would approve were she to fathom his thoughts.

Sustained suspense for the silent film without sub-titles is built up by an original musical score recorded on wax records. The music was written by Morris Kates while Bill Bourke collaborated on the scenario and wrote the introductory poem calculated to clear up misunderstandings.

To 24-year-old Bina Smith, the diminutive actress who plays the wife in the triangle and was a 10-day poison ivy victim during its filming, "In Between" is "not the best movie ever filmed."

"Nor is it the worst," she said. "The result lies 'in between'."

Veterans' Pool Service Skills

Winnipeg (CP).—A group of army and R.C.A.F. veterans have put their war training to use in civilian life and now are members of a prosperous aerial survey business.

Louis Bawlf, formerly of Winnipeg, and a squadron leader in the R.C.A.F. during the war, first got his buddies—Lewis Williams and A. L. Gray, former Canadian army ski-trooper and surveyor, interested in the idea shortly after they were released from the services.

Gray and Williams were sold on it but there was one hitch — no airplane and no aerial camera equipment.

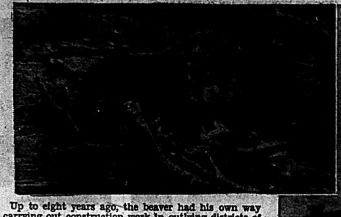
Bawlf went to work on his plan and finally persuaded the air force to lend them a camera and arranged for the chartering of a plane. That was back in 1945.

Since then they've handled an assortment of odd jobs across Canada. These include seeding operations for reforestation, spraying and dusting agricultural land; estimating watersheds in connection with spring flooding; treating snow in mountainous districts to ensure pure water flow; exterminating grasshoppers from the air, and mapping and photographing cities. Today they own six planes and a helicopter.

Some of their assignments have been pure adventure. In their helicopter they have hunted for the killer of a Vancouver bank manager; placed a hook and rope on top of a 150-foot chimney at a Vancouver asylum to enable the workmen to repair a chimney and install a ladder; rescued an injured workman in mountainous country, 15 miles north of Vancouver; and flown two prospectors—veterans of 20 years of fruitless gold searching—to their first "strike".

TRANSPORT WORKERS HELP

London (CP). — Transport workers collected £820 ($3,280) for cheerful Ada Clark, 21, a former street car conductress who lost both her legs in an accident two years ago.



Up to eight years ago, the beaver had his own way in carrying out construction work in outlying districts of Virginiatown. Now he's being ousted for new residential development at Kerr-Addison Gold Mine property.

Bulldozer starts filling in the marshy ground which is now being drained. Trim houses for mine workers will be built on sites of log huts.

Canadian Legends Attractively Told

By JEAN THOMPSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stories of Canadian folklore from early Indian to modern times are charmingly recounted in "Thunder in the Mountains" (Oxford) by Hilda Mary Hooke.

Believing that a basic thread of truth underlies all legends and mythology, Miss Hooke has selected tales that bear out her conviction. A simple, narrative style invests the stories with an atmosphere particularly suited to their origin and type.

The book is organized in three sections. The locale ranger across Canada from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. One of the book's chief charms is the way in which geographical names are used to decorate the stories, at the same time lending a touch of familiarity.

Here are the tales that Indian chiefs told to their children and that come, "beautiful as old things are beautiful, to you and me." From Nova Scotia comes the story of Glooscap, Big Man of the Micmacs and his beautiful amethyst beads. The big potlach or annual feast a Pacific coast chief gave for his twin daughters brought peace between the tribes. Nanna Bijou, the Sleeping Giant, still lies on Thunder Cape guarding the silver secret in Lake Superior and on the Ottawa River the winds still carry the Lament of Cadieux.

Miss Hooke, now living in London, Ont., is well known for her work in the Canadian theatre movement. Several of her poems have been included in anthologies of Canadian verse.

This distinctively Canadian book, designed primarily for young people, is sympathetically illustrated by Clare Bice.

Veteran Recalls Pilot's Training At Wright School

Edmonton (CP).—K. F. Saunders, inspector of civil aviation here, shakes his head in bewilderment when he hears aviators tell nowadays about supersonic speeds, engines of more than 3,000 horsepower and cannon-firing fighter aircraft.

His amazement is understandable. Ken Saunders learned to fly 32 years ago last October in one of the Wright Brothers' first biplanes, made from odds and ends in the bicycle shop of the famed Dayton, O., aviation pioneers. That aircraft had a top speed of 45 miles an hour. A 40-h.p. engine powered two small propellors by chain drive. The plane had no instrument panel.

Mr. Saunders received his pilot's licence after a four-hour course at the Wright School. The certificate—No. 353—is one of his proudest possessions. More than 100,000 purely civilian licences have since been issued in the United States alone, and the number excludes any of the pilots of the Second World War in either Canada or the U.S.

It was as a youngster of 22—one of 15 Canadians who reached Dayton in 1915—to learn flying so they could enlist in the British air forces—that Ken Saunders arrived at the Wright School.

The Canadian students paid $1 a minute for their instruction, plus train fares to Dayton and their board bills while there.

Fair Warning

When they made their first and only solo flight, their instructor wished them good luck.

But he added the warning, "You think you're pilots now, but you're not. You won't be until you have walked away from a cracked up plane for the third time."

After finishing at Dayton, Mr. Saunders went to Ottawa, then on to England, where he joined the Royal Naval Air Service.

He still chuckles over the oral examination he underwent before a pompous admiral.

"What would you do if you were flying along one day and a Zeppelin loomed up in your path?" asked the admiral.

"Well, I'm not just sure, but I believe I'd shoot it down," blurted the young Canadian.

"By jove, you're right. That's exactly what I would do myself. You have successfully passed the examination," said his examiner.

Later, flying a Sopwith Camel, Ken shot down several German Gothas over England. He received the Distinguished Service Cross, and later won the Air Force Cross.

He returned to Canada after "barnstorming" for three years in Sweden, entered commercial flying, then joined the civil aviation branch, now under the transport department.

He came to Edmonton in 1938, owns two planes which he usually flies himself, and believes Edmonton has a great future before it in aviation.

DANGEROUS "SNIFFLES"

The first sign of a more serious infection may be a cold, say doctors. A cold which "hangs on" may be a sign of approaching bronchitis, pneumonia or influenza and should be cleared up as soon as possible.

Gold Smuggling Takes Nosedive

Kirkland Lake, Ont. (CP).—With gold production in most of Canada's big mines down and the government declaring parity between the United States and Canadian dollar, the gold squad—specially trained branch of the Provincial Police in Northern Ontario—is finding business poor.

The odd ounce of contraband gold occasionally finds its way to Montreal or Windsor, known trade centres for "highgrade" ore, but most of the big-time smugglers have been robbed of their incentive. Police say that profitable markets were cut off when the last of Canada's servicemen came home.

At one time a considerable amount of gold was finding its way out of Canada. Police cite the case of a young ferry command pilot who bought gold for $25 an ounce in Canada and then flew it to Africa where in one month he made a profit of $80,000.

Stories of the tricks miners played to smuggle gold out of the mines—secreting gold between their toes, in their teeth and hair, in thermos bottles and even in bottles with specially-built secret compartments — are recorded in the gold squad's files.

But now scientific precautions, fallen-off demand for gold and the vigilance of the gold squad have put an effective damper on this once lucrative racket.

Sally the Bear Cub Longs for Pals

Edmonton (CP).—People are confusing. Take it from one who knows—Sally, a 40-pound black bear cub.

Sally was found by a corporal in the United States Army Air Force who took her back to the camp at which he was stationed, near Dawson Creek on the Alaska Highway. His buddies adopted the month-old cub as their mascot. The corporal named her "Junior" in memory of a cub he owned while a forest ranger in the States. But later the boys decided that wasn't formal enough—they renamed her Sally.

For some time Sally was happy with camp life. Instead of grubbing for food she was fed chocolate bars, bread, jam and similar delicacies. But one thing Sally didn't know—when you join the air force you see the world. She was packed into a plane and shipped to a zoo in Edmonton.

She had hardly arrived at the airport when her old buddies at Dawson Creek decided they were lonely for her—so she was shipped back.

Then winter started rearing its ugly head and the boys again decided the Edmonton zoo was the place for Sally. She was flown to the Alberta capital and adopted by a group of Canadian airmen. But the R.C.A.F. couldn't decide whether or not she was a good influence so again she was sent packing—to the zoo.

Sally doesn't mind the zoo—but she misses her pals and the things they fed her. She hasn't been forgotten though. The boys at Dawson Creek have informed zoo officials they'll be down soon to greet their pal.

Five Colleges Make Survey Of Native Customs

By A. P. STANDFORD
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Johannesburg (CP). — Five South African universities will next month begin one of the most comprehensive and ambitious surveys of the life and customs of the Bantu-speaking peoples ever undertaken in the Union.

The survey will be carried out in the Transkei area of Cape Province and will be made by 42 students—12 of whom will be non-Europeans.

It has been organized by Sydney Brenner, national research director of the National Union of South African Students. The men and women members of the field survey will live in tents and will study the health, housing, education, agricultural methods and tribal culture of Africans in the Transkei.

The work of the expedition will be documented in a film which will be used for educational purposes.

Photographs will be taken of every aspect of the expedition's work, and these will later be exhibited throughout the Union.

Members of the survey will be divided into a number of branches according to their qualifications. One branch will study the health of the Africans. This will include a socio-medical survey, and clinical laboratory investigations.

The Union department of health has expressed its interest in this aspect of the expedition's activities, and has offered the assistance of its representatives in the Transkei.

Students with agricultural qualifications will devote their time to studying the farming methods of the Africans, and will examine the possibility of encouraging them to adopt anti-erosion measures when tilling the soil.

Sociologists will report on the Africans' conception of family life, the strength of kinship, and the effects of lobola (an African custom whereby an intending bridegroom 'pays' for his bride in cattle). They will also investigate housing problems in the territory.

The National Union of South African Students gives high priority among its research works to African education, and one branch will study the degree of literacy among the peoples of the Transkei. They will also report on indigenous tribal culture. This will involve a careful examination of native folk lore, legends, magical and religious rites and tribal songs and dances.

The expedition is estimated to cost about £600. This will be met by a grant of £150 from the research department of N.U.S.A.S. and from student funds at the principal universities and colleges. The Bantu Welfare Trust has made a grant of £50 to help meet the expenses of the non-European members of the expedition.

The universities taking part in the survey are the University of Witwatersrand, Capetown University, Natal University College, Rhodes University College, and the South African Native College, Fort Hare.

Egyptian Children To Get Free Shoes

Cairo (CP).—To combat diseases acquired through the feet, the Egyptian government plans to distribute free shoes to needy children between the ages of eight and 16.

The shoes, of the traditional sandal type, are to be made in a government factory which aims at producing 1,000 pairs a day.

The most common disease acquired through the feet is hookworm. Barefoot children are also exposed to other parasites which enter the blood stream by boring through the skin.

Although no official figures are available, the number of Egyptians who do not wear shoes is largest in the villages and the agricultural areas.

Rolling Out The Barrel Is Pleasure

Saint John, N.B. (CP).—Many persons may wonder how it feels to own a barrel of money. Ralph Lawton not only wondered, but did something about it until his dream came true.

The story started more than two years ago following his demobilization as a flying officer in the R.C.A.F. Years in uniform had trained him to neatness and he acquired a daily habit of setting aside accumulated coppers. Soon overflowing, a tray on his dresser was replaced by a candy box that too became full and the pennies kept coming.

"Just for the novelty of it," Lawton recalls, "I took an empty nail keg, put a new head on it and cut a slot in the head just big enough to admit a penny, and duly installed it in a corner of my room. I had to take a lot of kidding from the family, of course, but I just kept dropping pennies into the slot.

"A couple of weeks ago, when I just couldn't force another penny into the keg, I decided to open it and bank the works. The kidding changed to envy and admiration and even I was shocked when the flood of coppers rolled out."

Counting Big Job

The keg had grown so heavy it couldn't be lifted and Lawton's mother had many pointed comments about the impossibility of sweeping that corner of the room.

A whole week of evenings was required for Lawton to count the pennies while his girl friend wrapped them in rolls of 50. The final count was 21,000 pennies, or $210.

"I took them to the bank in $20 and $35 instalments," says Lawton, "taking care to explain how it happened I was making such extensive 'copper' deposits in case they thought I might have come by the money by some unorthodox means.

"In case you're interested, the head is back on the keg and I've begun on my second barrel of money. My girl friend's only comment was that it might be a good idea to have quarters instead of pennies, but that would be a bit steep these days."

Small Trees Used By New Pulp Mill

Victoria (CP).—A pulp mill, operating on small trees previously left after logging and second growth timber on lands that have been logged, will be established at Duncan Bay, on Vancouver Island, 40 miles north of here, Lands Minister E. T. Kenney has announced.

Size and type of plant and number to be employed have not yet been decided. It will be built by Canadian Western Timber Company Limited and associates.

"The project points a new era in forest practice," said Mr. Kenney. "Lands previously logged over will be used to provide a perpetual supply of timber. Greater utilization of our forests means more and more permanent jobs.

"Success of this project is of greatest importance to British Columbia."

It is the third mill to be established in the province this year and Mr. Kenney believes it possible that more pulp mills will be established next year.

Already a pulp mill at Port Alberni has begun operation, consuming 10,000 horsepower of electrical energy. The other project is the Port Edward Cellulose company, subsidiary of the Celanese Corporation of America. This plant is near Prince Rupert and will cost $15,000,000.

During the last few months several firms have investigated timber resources and sites on Vancouver Island for pulp mills.

Immense Fortune Moved Each Week In Armored Cars

By E. M. CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto (CP).—It used to be caravans toting wealth of the Orient, four-masters laden with Indies' riches and stage coaches jolting along with gold dust. But that isn't the way it's done today.

For when it comes to conveying millions of dollars weekly in cash wages, stocks and bonds from banks to plants, from department stores to vaults—a teaming metropolis like Toronto plays safe.

Instead of foam-flecked nags whipped by jittery pony-express men—always with an eye cocked for badland ambushes—this city, like most Canadian centres, relies on high-powered, bullet-proof money cars driven and protected by guards who know how to handle those revolvers they carry.

Few Torontonians know that the hub-centre of the city's largest fleet of armored cars (Brink's Express Co., Ltd.) is a colorless looking suite of offices in a downtown office building.

But don't be deceived. Try to get past the electric-operated, bullet proof door with double-thick, non-shatterable window. You ring a buzzer. A pert secretary appears. She hardly glances at your face. She's more interested in your hands—and bulges in your overcoat.

You pass scrutiny, the electric eye opens the door. Inside, it's rather odd. Why should a handful of secretaries need so many mirrors? You look in a couple and see yourself. Move on to another where—instead of your own puzzled face—you catch a glimpse of a nattily-capped head with steely eyes looking you over. An imposing piece of armament nestles in one corner of the reflection.

Catch on? Here's where the wealth of a dozen Croesus' comes and goes each week—and where nobody trusts a stranger.

Guardian of Cash

As Manager William Campbell explains it:

Some of the city's largest industries, department stores and small businesses use his company's 14-car fleet to pick up cash from banks sufficient to fill thousands of employees' weekly pay envelopes.

The cash is taken to the armored car company's main office where it is distributed into kraft paper containers. Later, they are bundled, placed in one of the silver grey money cars and delivered to employers' pay-roll cashiers.

What type of men make the best money-car guards?

"Well," said Mr. Campbell, "our men. They must pass a stiff medical test before being employed. They are thoroughly investigated and bonded." They are also fingerprinted and "mugged". And, he added, they must be family men.

"A married man cannot work here unless he lives with his family," the manager explained. "He must be a good family man—no nonsense. And that goes for single men, too."

"Hold-ups? — we haven't had one in Toronto since we first began operating here in 1928."

EROSION, WASTE IS ENDANGERING U.S. FARMLANDS

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York (CP).—Of the 1,903,176,620 acres of farmlands and badlands, mountains and mesas, desert and swamp that is the United States, only 460,000,000 acres of good cropland remain. By the mid-1950s, experts warn, these productive acres may be insufficient to support the population in the manner to which it is accustomed.

The Soil Conservation Service, which seeks to show the American farmer how best to work his land, says that 500,000 acres of topsoil are being lost annually to erosion and over-use. It forecasts of a rising population and declining croplands—good land that will not be damaged by continuous use providing proper farming methods are practised—are borne out, the danger point of land insufficiently will be reached shortly after 1950.

It is estimated that about three acres of land are required to provide each inhabitant of the United States with food and clothing at an "average" standard of living—429,000,000 acres now are in use for the 1947 population of 144,239,000. The reserve of 31,000,000 acres will be exhausted, government statistics show, after 1950 by which time the population is expected to be at least 147,500,000, rising to 170,000,000 by 1970.

About 550,000,000 acres of good croplands were available in the United States in 1800. Erosion and poor farming practices since have destroyed or damaged millions upon millions of acres, a situation prevalent to a lesser extent in the Canadian West where excessive use of the land has been widespread since the turn of the century. Between 1895 and 1930, the annual loss in the United States was 1,000,000 acres of topsoil but it now has dropped to an estimated 500,000.

Warns Against Waste

For 50 years Hugh H. Bennett, the S.C.S.'s first and only chief, has been trying to redeem American farmland from the exhaustion of over-farming, erosion and waste. In a recent address he said bitterly:

"Because of our thriftless ways with the use of our God-given heritage of productive land, such as probably no nation before us ever fell heir to, we have left in this country today only about 460,000,000 acres of good cropland. All but about 100,000,000 acres of this is subject to erosion. . . . Erosion is still costing us in the United States more than $1,000,000,000 a year in such measurable items as direct cost to farmers, contribution to flood damages, siltation of reservoirs and soon.

"Nothing less than scientific, acre-by-acre treatment and use of the land will halt erosion, safeguard our productive land and maintain it in a permanently productive condition."

The S.C.S. in 1934 completed the only general reconnaissance survey ever made of the United States. The service terms it "if anything, conservative in the amounts of erosion shown, as indicated by subsequent detailed surveys in specific localities." In addition, 260,000,000 acres have been conservation-surveyed in detail, on a scale adequate for individual farm planning.

The reconnaissance survey covered all 48 states. Its over-all summary shows:

Mountains, mesas, badlands, etc., 144,768,315 acres or 7.6 per cent; no apparent or slight erosion, 700,512,011 acres or 36.8 per cent; moderate erosion, 775,678,031 acres or 40.8 per cent; severe erosion, 282,218,263 acres or 14.8 per cent.

Science Changes Fishing Vessels

Vancouver (CP).—Pacific coast fishing fleets—formerly little boats with gaping holds and waiting nets—are becoming more and more scientific as the quest for king tuna takes them further to sea each year.

Refrigeration, costing approximately $2,000 per boat, is taking the place of huge blocks of raw ice once thrown in the hold to preserve catches.

The idea is believed the first step toward fast Canadian tuna clippers, similar to United States vessels operating out of Portland and Seattle, each costing $250,000.

The trend toward more complete refrigerating plants and long distance navigation instruments is a direct result of fishermen being forced to follow the Japanese current each year, sometimes staying at sea months at a time.

Sometimes ships come on tuna 100 miles off shore, after having been out 12 days or more and may have to fish for several days to insure a remunerative catch.

High cost of installing refrigeration equipment is a result of the difficulty of insulating the tiny, weather-worn hulls.

Want Tiber Gold For Civic Debt

Rome (CP).—An age-old story of a fabulous treasure of gold and jewels buried in the mud at the bottom of the Tiber has been put forward by Rome newspapers as a solution to the municipal deficit.

A dredging machine working along the left bank of the river in 1889 struck a heavy object firmly planted in the river bottom. Engineers reported they were unable to raise the object but claimed traces of gold were found in the teeth of the dredge which made the contact.

They believed the "discovery" proved an ancient legend that one of the Emperors had hidden his treasure there. Plans of where the object was struck were given city officials but no further action was taken.

It has now been proposed a second attempt should be made to unearth the "treasure".

Four of five persons travelling in an auto to a rabbit hunt were killed Saturday, near Tilbury, when their car was struck broadside by a fast MCR passenger train. Dominic Bourdeau, his son and his grandson died in the wreckage, as did Alex Thibert, driver of the auto. Henry Thibert, brother of Alex, jumped from the car seconds before the collision and was unhurt. Photo shows general view of the crossing, from east. Parts of wrecked auto are in foreground.

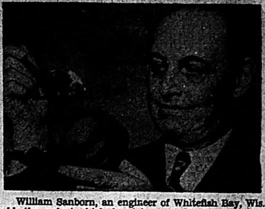
CLAIMS DEVICE SAVES FUEL



William Sanborn, an engineer of Whitefish Bay, Wis., holds the gadget which, he claims, cuts fuel consumption on domestic oil burners by 15 to 22 per cent. A multi-blade rotor, like a miniature windmill, is fixed in the fuel injection housing of the oil burner. Air pumped under pressure through these fixed, not moving blades, picks up the high-speed jet of oil on the far side of the blades and twists it into a fine spray.

THE HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

John Blackmore Social Credit MP, Protests Innocence

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 29 (CP) —John Blackmore, Social Credit member of parliament for Lethbridge, stood firm today on his declaration that he had "done no wrong" despite his excommunication by the Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Church.

The excommunication, on charges of teaching and advocating the doctrine of plural marriage, was announced Saturday at Salt Lake City by David O. McKay, second counselor in the first presidency.

Such teachings, said Mr. McKay, are contrary to the present beliefs of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

In rebuttal, Mr. Blackmore, first leader of the Social Credit party in the House of Commons, said: "I definitely declare I have done no wrong."

In a statement to the Lethbridge Herald he added that he was charged with "teaching and advocating the dostrine of plural marriage but notice that I was not charged with advocating the practice of plural marriage; neither was I charged with practising plural marriage.

"I deny the charge, I maintain that I have merely discussed and defended the doctrine of plural marriage as a biblical principle... I definitely declare that I have done no wrong, that I have not consciously broken any of the Ten Commandments, or violated any of the principles of the Sermon on the Mount; that I am the husband of only one wife and that to her I have always been scrupulously faithful."

His excommunication, meanwhile, was confirmed during the weekend by officials of the Alberta State of the Church of Latter-Day Saints.

Frank Crowninshield, Magazine Editor, Dies in New York

New York, Dec. 29 —(CP)— Frank Crowninshield, 75, Magazine Editor and bon vivant whom Dorothy Parker called the last of the species known as gentlemen died yesterday.

He was an apostle of elegance and urbanity, had an extremely wide acquaintance in literary, art and social circles, and was much in demand as an after-dinner speaker. He once wrote an article entitled "Ten Thousand Nights in a Dinner Coat."

As editor of Vanity Fair, until it was absorbed by Vogue in 1936, Crowninshield published the first work of many writers who later became widely known. These included Edna St. Vincent Millay, Clare Booth, Hendrik Van Loon, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Walter Winchell, John Dos Passos, Anita Loos and Alexander Woollcott.

He also introduced to American magazine readers, authors such as Aldous Huxley, Noel Coward, Philip Guedella, P. G. Wodehouse and Ference Molnar.

Crowninshield, who was a bachelor, was the son of an American artist and was born in Paris. At 23 he was publisher of the Bookman, and at the turn of the century became in turn assistant editor of the Metropolitan Magazine and of Munsey's Magazine. In 1913 he joined the Conde Nast Organization as editor of Vanity Fair.

Known as "Crownie," the editor carried himself with old war dignity, always had a flower in his buttonhole, and was as much at home in society as among artists and literary people. Four years ago his art collection and library, sold at auction, brought $181,747.

As an editor, his rejections of hopeful authors' work was disarming. He once told Paul Gallico "My dear boy, this is superb! A little masterpiece! What color! What Life! How Beautifully you have phrased it! A veritable gem —why don't you take it around to 'Harper's Bazaar'?"

Gas Rationing May Backfire On Great Britain

London, Dec. 29 (AP) —Prospects that gasoline rationing may backfire on this dollar-hungry isle have the British tourist trade worried.

Sir Alexander Maxwell, chairman of the British Tourist and Holiday Board, outlined the problem at a recent press conference in these simple terms:

"I foresee great difficulty, in the coming summer with the hotels in expecting them to do everything they can when their revenue has been cut in the last few weeks by the cessation of the basic petrol allowance.

"Hotels on the south coast are not going to have funds to keep them going. Their loss has been appalling ever since basic rationing fell."

But Sir Alexander nursed brighter hope — given government co-operation — of other methods of extracting dollars from American tourists in return for goods going now chiefly into the export trade.

Tourists now may buy such goods without ration coupons providing their purchases are sent directly to the ship or plane in which they are returning home.

Sir Alexander believes present precautions are cutting down sales and wants to cut out this red tape. Under his proposal visitors would be able to buy goods from the export quota upon producing their passports or some other identifying document.

All told, he anticipates at least 100,000 tourists will visit here from North America during 1948. And he has a word of advice for those who want to see that tourist trade — and the resulting flow of dollars — grow.

The watchword is "service and a warm welcome."

KING MICHAEL ABDICATES THRONE OF ROMANIA

36 Jews, 11 Arabs Killed in Fight At Oil Refineries

Riots Touched off by Bomb Thrown From Speeding Car

Jerusalem, Dec. 30 —(CP)— Thirty-six Jews were officially estimated to have been killed and 14 wounded in a battle at the Consolidated Oil Refineries plant on the Haifa-Acre road in northern Palestine today which was touched off when two "barrel bombs" were hurled from a speeding car among 100 Arab laborers waiting at the works' main gate.

Arab casualties were officially placed at 11 dead and 47 wounded.

Following the bomb attack hundreds of infuriated Arabs ran amok attacking Jewish oil workers in the biggest Arab-Jewish riots since the United Nations partition decision marked the commencement of racial disorders in the Holy Land 30 days ago.

British troops moved into the refinery at once in an attempt to put down the violence, involving 1,800 Arab workers and 400 Jews.

Officials said the rioting inside the refinery broke out after a bomb was tossed from a taxi, identified as Jewish, into a crowd of about 100 Arabs queued up seeking employment.

Irked by Raids

Arabs, irked by Jewish punitive raids for three successive days, took the initiative in earlier communal rioting in Palestine today as the bloody strift, which broke out after the United Nations decision to partition Palestine, entered its second month.

Arab machine-gunners raked a Jewish bus half way up Mt. Scopus on the outskirts of Jerusalem, wounding 14 Jews, two of them seriously. Police said the bus was loaded with nurses and other hospital employees en route to work.

Arabs also sprayed the outskirts of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv with gunfire for an hour ,but the casualties were not immediately known.

Taxis Banned

In Jerusalem, British military authorities banned Jewish taxis from the streets beginning at 6 a.m. today to prevent further use of these vehicles by Jewish raiders. Twelve Arabs were killed at Damascus Gate yesterday when several Jews riding in a taxi bombed and machine-gunned an Arab bus.

The ranks of Palestine's militant Arabs, meanwhile, were reported gaining strength from armed and trained volunteers filtering across the border from neighboring Arab countries.

Jewish sources said Arab riflemen who participated in a battle with Jewish defence forces last night along the Jaffa-Tel Aviv border were reinforced by fighters drawn from an Arab concentration centre near Nablus.

Reports continued to circulate that two large ships bearing 14,000 European Jews were nearing the Palestine coast in the biggest single mass attempt to circumvent British immigration restrictions.

The reports, which said the Jews had sailed from Black Sea ports in the Russian sphere, brought from an Arab League spokesman an assertion that the "Communist influence" would not be long in making itself felt should the refugees enter Palestine.

The spokesman said it was not unreasonable to suppose that among these Jews embarked in the Soviet zone of influence there would be a strong corps of "well-indoctrinated young Communists and trained cell organizers."

EXTRA STAFF EMPLOYED

Niagara Falls, Dec. 30 (CP) — In grandmother's day the bosom was a handy place to hide a handkerchief but customs officials said today it's considered "a natural for wily smugglers trying to take extra dollars into the United States.

Because of this, extra staffs of women inspectors have been taken on at border points to enforce the Nov. 17 regulations designed to safeguard the Dominions dwindling dollar supply.

Onspectors said the bosom vies with the girdle as a female currency smuggler's idea of a safe place for illegal funds. Ten women inspectors here are trying to correct this impression.

Cold Spell Sweeps Over S. Manitoba, Saskatchewan

Winnipeg, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Hard on the heels of the blizzard now attacking north central districts in the United States, a cold spell is sweeping over Southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan with temperatures of 20 to 25 below predicted for tonight.

After supplying a comparatively balmy Christmas, the weatherman could only say of New Year's that it would be cold — probably the coldest to date this winter.

It was reported that cold would blanket the entire region by Wednesday morning with temperatures of 30 below at some places.

Meanwhile, effects were being thrown off of a heavy snowfall and winds which had whipped drifts as high as six to eight feet in some localities and blocked inter-city traffic in others.

Snow still was falling over Southern Manitoba and Southeastern Saskatchewan but was expected to stop late today here and later still in Northern Ontario.

At Kenora, roads were reported clear and no difficulties were looked for. But at Brandon, Man., all west-running buses were cancelled although drifting later was reported ceasing and government snow plows were expected to be out early today. It was expected to take several days to open all district roads.

Air traffic still operated, most trains ran late but railway officials said this was not entirely due to the storm.

25 Injured By Flying Glass

Boston, Dec. 30 —(AP)— Twenty-five persons were burned or injured by flying glass last night when a series of terrifying underground explosions tossed manhole covers high in the air, blew out fronts of a score of stores and windows of office buildings and left busy Dewey Square in the downtown section strewn with rubble.

Deputy Fire Chief William Quigley said half the injured were firemen who were burned prying open manhole covers after the first few of six blasts. None was apparently hurt seriously.

Quigley said the explosions apparently were caused by accumulation of gases in pipes under now-covered streets.

Geologist's Observations on Cemetery Damage May Alter Seaway Plans

By H. DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 30 — (CP) — An earthquake which occurred at Cornwall on the night of Sept. 4, 1944, will probably determine changes in existing plans for the proposed St. Lawrence seaway, Dr. Charles P. Berkey, Professor of Geology at Columbia University, New York said last night.

The professor was sent by United States authorities to examine the ravages of the quake in order to lay plans for power installations which would be earthquake-proof. His findings indicate a probable change of present plans for the seaway project.

Dr. Berkey, basing some of his observations on graveyard damages he discovered poking about in the Cornwall-Massena (N. Y.) area, found a considerable portion of the proposed main canal would be highly susceptible to any future earthquake of the 1944 type.

Of four main types of land in the area, two were found to be solid bases for construction, two not so solid. On the latter types of ground, the gravestones and buildings suffered considerably more damage. Total damage in the Cornwall quake was estimated at $1,000,000.

Structures established on sound rock foundation, such as dams, locks and power houses, would be in no danger from such an earthquake such as that of 1944. Works resting on glacial till would suffer no material damage.

But considerable portion of the main canal rests on loose glacial sands and marine silts, particularly vulnerable to earthquakes. These works probably would slump in the event of a quake, just as the tombstones and buildings earlier.

In other words, if the present plans have to be changed, you can blame it all on the glaciers. The material they washed down as they were receding back to the Arctic, and the deposits left when the sea covered the Cornwall area, will pose some tricky engineering problems for future seaway builders.

ARREST SURVIVOR OF MASS SLAYING AS INCORRIGIBLE

Eleanor Springer Tells More Coherent Story

Kitchener, Dec. 30 —(CP) — Nineteen-year-old Eleanor Springer, sole survivor of Sunday's mass slaying at nearby West Montrose, who told a terrified story of being held captive by a man who slew four relatives before killing himself, was arrested last night on a charge whose gist is that she is an incorrigible.

The girl was charged under the Female Refugees Act, Crown Attorney W. P. Clement said today. She was remanded until tomorrow, when she will appear before Magistrate H. R. Polson.

Commitment to an industrial refuge for an indefinite period up to two years is possible under the charge.

Killed by shotgun blasts in the weekend tragedy were; Hugh Letson, 45, West Montrose farmer; Mary Letson, 40, his wife; Wilson Letson, 42, Hugh's brother; Percy Letson, 38, brother of Hugh and Wilson.

Police said the slayer, Walter Patrick Letson, 55, a cousin of the Letson brothers, killed himself with the same gun 15 hours after the slaying after drinking and brooding in kitchen of the home 12 miles west of here. They said Walter believed Wilson Letson had replaced him in the affections of the girl.

No Definite Decision

Mr. Clement said that no definite decision has yet been made regarding an inquest into the five deaths but that it was unlikely any further investigation would be made. The five bodies were released to a funeral parlor in Elmira, where the service for all five will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Letson, Wilson and Percy, will be buried in a single grave.

Burial of the other members of the family will be at Winterbourn Presbyterian Cemetery while Walter Letson will be interred in the United Church Cemetery at West Montrose.

The girl is reported to have told police that Walter sat on a kitchen chair throughout the night while forcing her to stay on a kitchen couch, where she slept. Later the girl told newspaper men that Walter went upstairs while she remained on the downstairs couch after the shootings.

Provincial Police said today that Eleanor Springer was recovering from nervous shock and able to give a better account of what happened Saturday night.

Apparently Slain Earlier

She had told of Walter shooting Wilson after she arrived home with him from a drinking party and later killing Hugh and Mary Letson. Percy apparently had been slain earlier.

She said that when she awoke Sunday morning Walter was sitting in the kitchen drinking again and talked to her until about 11 a.m. When she got up, said she'd go home and left.

43 Slayings in Year Set All-Time Record in Ontario

Toronto, Dec. 30. (CP)—This has been the grisliest murder year in the history of Ontario, police officials announced today.

Their records show: an all-time record of 43 slayings, including this week's quadruple murder near Elmira. Twelve of these are still unsolved, while seven occurred in Toronto.

Two cases on the blotter are listed as doubtful. They refer to Christine Kettlewell, bride of a few weeks, whose body was found on the banks of the Severn River a few feet from her honeymoon cottage, and Marion Jean Badgely, pretty blonde secretary, found shot at her Frankford home.

Other sensational murders yet unsolved are: George Vigus, plant foreman, and Iris Scott, secretary, whose bodies were found crammed into the luggage compartment of a small car in a gloomy section of Toronto's west-end High Park.

Velair Vandebelt, Toronto nurse, strangled to death near Cochrane.

Arlene Anderson, tiny palsy victim, who was raped and later strangled with her own "snuggies" and thrown into a field near her West Toronto home.

Also unsolved is the murder of Angelo Fonti, dish-washer and one time bootlegger, whose body was found jammed into a culvert in suburban Etobicoke Township nearly a year ago. The restaurant in which he was employed had been robbed of $3,000 a few days before his disappearance and police are inclined to link the two crimes.

Other unsolved slaying are those of Albert Richer, Geraldton taxi driver; Sydney Hall, bank guard of Ailsa Craig; John Blue, found dead on the front steps of his mid-town Toronto rooming house, and Ralph Margeson, suburban York Township taxi driver, shot and robbed.

Six murders were solved by persons listed as murderers who committed suicide.

Facing the gallows are four men. Death sentences were passed in connection with the double slaying of Joseph Grant, Toronto prospector, and Marcel Duchesneau, his assistant; Robert Todd. Wavell, Ont., pensioner; Betty Playford, Owen Sound, and the double murder of Mrs. M. Rupert and her infant son, Lee, near Sault Ste. Marie.

Candidacy of Wallace Catapults Foreign Policy Into Presidential Race

Washington, Dec. 30 (AP) — Henry A. Wallace catapulted foreign policy into the United States presidential campaign today by embarking on the first serious third party effort since 1924 amid Democratic jeers and fears and Republican cheers.

Wallace's announcement that he will run for president as an independent candidate next year propelled American relations with Russia into the race as an issue.

It apparently shook the political structure of the party he served as vice-president and possibly reshaped the die from which the Republican nominee will emerge.

Politicians are almost unanimous in their judgment that Wallace has an even smaller chance of election than the late Robert M. LaFollette Sr., who carried only his home state of Wisconsin under the Progressive banner in 1924. LaFollette polled 4,822,000 votes, more than many observers think Wallace can get despite a vast increase in the electorate.

But the same politicians agree that Wallace's attack in his Chicago radio speech last night on what he called the "Bipartisan Reactionary War policy" will require answering by the two major party candidates during the campaign.

Wallace said that policy "is dividing the world into two armed camps and making inevitable the day when American soldiers will be lying in their Arctic suits in the Russian snow."

Despite public statements discounting the effect of Wallace's move, there was ample evidence the Democrats fear its possible effect in such key states as New York, California, Washington, Illinois and Michigan.

Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Conference, named those particular areas in declaring that Democratic hopes for 1948 had suffered "a major blow."

In Los Angeles, James Roosevelt, son of the late President and chairman of the California Democratic Committee, said the Wallace move will "bring closer to reality the dangers in a return to power of the Republican party."

Americans for Democratic action the self styled "Liberal" political organization, called Wallace's announcement an "invitation to disaster." The group said that whatever Wallace's own intentions, it is "indisputable" that "the Communists are the machine behind the party."

Wallace has had organized labor backing in the past, but the indications are that none of the major labor groups will follow him in his new venture.

Jack Kroll, director of the C.I.O.'s political action committee said in a statement it has been P.A.C. policy "not to support a third party in 1948."

Several Shots Fired by Police At Fleeing Car

Toronto, Dec. 30 —(CP)—Pedestrians near the midtown intersection of Carlton and Ontario streets were startled last night as police fired several shots in an unsuccessful attempt to halt a car whose passengers were suspected of carrying illicit drugs.

Two officers of the Toronto Police Morality Squad had stopped the car and were questioning its occupants when the driver set it in motion. Police cruiser cars converged on the scene and the chase continued for some blocks before the suspect car eluded pursuit.

Police said they believed the driver of the car may have been wounded by a police bullet.

MOTHER, FATHER BURNED

Montreal, Dec. 30 —(CP)—Two persons were burned to death today when fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Rene Blain in suburban Montreal North.

Dead were Mr. Blain and his wife, both 27, who were trapped by the flames.

One-year-old Rene Blain, Jr., escaped injury when dropped from a second-storey window by his father.

Pravda Suggests Britain Abandon Rationing Program

Moscow, Dec. 30 (AP) —Pravda suggested today that Britain could overcome her economic ills by following Russia's lead in abandoning rationing and revaluing her money.

The idea was put forward in a three-column front-page editorial in the Communist organ just three days after Britain and Russia concluded a short-term trade agreement which, it has been intimated, may lead to a long term pact next spring.

"Today in England," Pravda said, "they are not establishing economic order by the necessary financial reforms and by complete cancellation of the rationing system, but they are instead applying all kinds of rationing which are progressively worsening the already difficult life of the broad mass of the population."

Pravda boasted that Russia was the only country "to carry out such monetary reforms with a simultaneous drop in prices."

Pravda denied that there was any inflation in the Soviet Union.

CHATHAM POLICE CONSTABLE DIES AFTER AN ATTACK

Man Arrested Charged With Manslaughter

Chatham, Dec. 30 (CP)—James Whaley, 24, arrested Sunday night soon after Constable Douglas Reynolds was beaten outside a King Street restaurant, was charged today with manslaughter in connection with the policeman's death.

The 26-year-old Constable died in hospital early today of head injuries. He did not regain consciousness.

Whaley, who yesterday had been arraigned on a charge of assaulting a peace officer, was remanded to Jan. 6 on the manslaughter charge. He said he was prepared to proceed with a preliminary hearing on that date.

If committed for trial, Whaley would be tried at the Ontario Supreme Court Winter Assizes, scheduled to start here Jan. 12.

Reynolds was beaten about the head and left on the sidewalk. When admitted to hospital, he was said by attendants to have suffered a concussion and possible skull fracture.

Constable Reynolds joined the police department in 1941, served overseas in the R.C.A.F. and returned to the force in 1946 Surviving besides his parents are two brothers, Bryce on the Chatham police force and Jack in Windsor.

Rye and Scotch Supply Short

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP)—Ontario celebrants of New Year's Day will not be able to welcome 1948 with any great quantity of imported Scotch whisky or Canadian rye, Ontario Liquor Control Board officials said today.

Although many vendors will be supplied with new holiday shipments today, it is doubtful if there will be enough to go around they said. For the past few days only the cheapest grade of rye whisky has been available in most stores, a brand selling at $2.85.

Imported Scotch supplies were so greatly depleted by Christmas shoppers officials said it was doubtful whether any sizable amount would be available until the middle of January. Gin and rum, however, will be in good supply with a fair amount of Canadian Scotch available.

"We are still on a quota basis of imported Scotch," said one official.

Same Situation Here

Local Liquor Control Board officials said that a similar situation exists here. There is no imported Scotch available. Rye stocks are just fair, but there is plenty of gin and rum.

New Year's celebrants were not buying in any great quantities today, but a heavy demand is expected Wednesday.

21,767 LETTERS TO D.L.O. FROM HAMILTON

Hamilton, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Despite wide publicity by local postoffice officials to put return addresses on Christmas card envelopes, 21,767 letters mailed here between Dec. 19 and 26 ended up in the dead letter office.

Cabinet Declares Country Will Now Be Republic

Abdication in Interest Of People Says Michael

Bucharest, Dec. 30 (AP)—King Michael abdicated today and the Communist-dominated cabinet immediately declared Romania a "Popular Democratic Republic."

In a broadcast proclamation, King Michael said he had abdicated in the interest of the people.

He said the present changes in Romania had made an alteration in th constitution necessary and he would not stand in the way of the people, who must be free to choose their own form of government.

A proclamation to the people, signed by all cabinet ministers, declared Romania a "Popular Democratic Republic."

Parliament is now sitting for ratification of these acts.

The 26-year-old monarch returned only recently from a trip to London and Switzerland amid reports that he was seeking government permission to marry Danish Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma.

Michael attended the wedding of Princess Elizabeth to Prince Philip in London Nov. 20.

It was reported, without confirmation, that Michael left at 5 p.m. for an undisclosed destination. His father, Carol II, twice renounced the Romanian throne.

Twice Ascended Throne

Michael twice ascended the throne of Romania—the first time when he was only six years old. He became king then upon the abdication of his father. Carol renounced the throne rather than give up his love affair with red-haired Mme. Elene Lupescu.

A regency ruled for Michael until Carol ascended the throne again after reconsidering his abdication. During the Second World War, Carol fled the country after the Nazi-affiliated iron guard rose to power.

Michael resumed the throne, and later succeeded in overthrowing dictator Ion Antonescu in a coup Aug. 23, 1944. Michael was honored by the Soviet government with the Order of Victory for his "courageous act."

Michael's name was linked with that of Princess Anne, a member of a Danish-French family, during his recent trip to Switzerland. She was in Switzerland at the same time.

Michael was the last reigning monarch in countries of eastern Europe which Russia dominates. The kings of Albania (Zog), Bulgaria (Simeon II) and Yugoslavia (Peter) previously had lost their thrones in upheavals connected with the war.

The abdication left King Paul of Greece the only king in power in the Balkans of southern Europe.

FIVE BURNED IN FIRE

Black Creek, Wis., Dec. 30 — (AP)— Five persons perished today in a farmhouse fire. The victims were Mrs. Fern Pingel, 31, and four of her six children, ranging from one to eight years of age. The two other children were dropped from an upstairs window by their father who then, almost overcome by smoke, tumbled through the shattered glass himself.

FATHER KILLS SON THEN JUMPS IN FRONT OF TRAIN

Would Not Return Young Child to His Estranged Wife

Montreal, Dec. 30 (CP)—Rather than return his baby son to his estranged wife, Leonard P. Smith, a 39-year-old army veteran on leave from the Montreal Military Hospital for the Christmas holiday strangled the child and then jumped in front of a moving train last night, police reported.

Police said that the couple had been separated and that Smith, on his release from the hospital on Christmas Eve, went to stay with his parents here.

While Mrs. Smith had custody of the child, she brought him to her husband's house for the afternoon with the understanding that the child would be returned early in the evening to her parents' home in suburban Notre Dame de Grace.

Returning home, her father, Louis Ellis, found the body of the three-year-old baby in a driveway next to his home, about 20 feet from the sidewalk. The body was lying face down with a scarf wound tightly around the neck.

Police were called and a search was begun for the father.

Shortly after, a Canadian Pacific Railway section man found a badly mangled body on the tracks near the suburban Westmount station.

Brought to the morgue, the body was searched and papers found enabled detectives to establish that the dead man was Smith. His skull had been fractured when he apparently jumped under a train.

Police said that Smith had been in the Military Hospital since his release from the armed forces at the end of the war. His condition had improved steadily and he had been granted a leave of absence for the holiday period.

Police said it appeared to be a case of murder and suicide. An inquest will be held today.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP)—Synopsis: The weather is cold in most of Ontario this morning. Temperatures dropped to 30 below in some sections of Northern Ontario during the night. Snow is falling from Lake Superior westward, elsewhere the weather is good. The area of snow is expected to spread eastward and a little southward today becoming light and intermittent by this evening. Little if any snow is on store for Southern Ontario today though strong easterly winds are indicated. Scattered light snow is likely in some sections of the province Wednesday.

BABE BURNS TO DEATH

Shawville, Que., Dec. 30—(CP) —Donald Allan Tubman, four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Tubman, was burned to death today when fire destroyed the farm home of his parents near this town about 45 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Mrs. Tubman and three other children escaped from the fire which started while Mr. Tubman was feeding cattle.

Two Scottish Brides Not Pleased With Gowns Presented as Gifts

Glasgow, Dec. 30 —(AP)— Two Scottish brides have created a stir in the Highlands by saying out loud that they don't like their "Princess Elizabeth wedding gowns," which were gifts of American manufacturers to the Princess.

One bride said a dressmaker who must have been somewhat rattled had sewn the sleeves of her gift dress "back to front," another said that on opening the box sent her she thought friends had played a joke on her.

The dresses were part of a large consignment of garments sent to Princess Elizabeth by American manufacturers. Having more than she needed, the Princess instructed the surplus dresses should be given to United Kingdom girls married the same day as she. The women's voluntary services attended to the actual shipments.

"And mine came rolled up like a ball," said Mrs. Elizabeth Scotland of Dundee, the bride who thought it was a joke. "Honestly, if the dress were offered coupon-free in a Dundee shop I wouldn't give it a second glance."

The bride who didn't like her sleeves, Mrs. Grace Scott of Glasgow, said: "It looked just like something done in a hurry by a bad dressmaker. I can't believe the dress was intended for the Princess' trouseau."

But all Scottish brides were not so disappointed. Mary Patterson of Airth, who qualified for and got one of the gift gowns, said hers is a honey — "a three-piece suit in strawberry check. Short jacket, pincher-in waistline, sloping shoulders." The skirt is longer than Scotland fancies, but Mrs. Patterson will fix that with scissors and needle.

City and District News

KINGSTON GIRL WINS RADIO

Twelve-year-old Joan Logue, Kingston, was the holder of the lucky ticket which brought her a handsome radio as a result of the draw held by the Belleville Merchants Midget Hockey team the other day.

Joan held ticket No. 151 which was sold her by one thirteen-year-old Charles Doran, one of the more ardent young supporters of the club.

POST OFFICE HOURS ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

There will be no mail deliveries by letter carriers nor by rural couriers on New Year's Day, nor will there be any stage line mail service on that day, it has been announced by Postmaster J. C. Waddell.

The post office lobby will be closed all day but there will be one street letter box collection in the evening. Mails will be despatched and received as usual and special delivery service will also be given.

FIRE DAMAGES KITCHEN

Damage of approximately $150 was caused at the home of Mrs. F. Morris, North Front Street, early last evening when fire presumed to have originated from a defective chimney set fire to the kitchen. The alarm was sent in to the fire station with firemen extinguishing the blaze with the use of the booster tank.

CONSTABLE KEAYS TRANSFERRED TO NIAGARA FALLS

Member of the Provincial Police district detachment office at Belleville for the past five years, Constable J. Ernest Keays has been transferred to the Niagara Falls district headquarters, it has been announced by the Police Commission through the Inspector W. A. Page.

Member of the Provincial Police for the past twelve years, Constable Keays came to Belleville from Ottawa district. Prior to joining the Ontario Provincial Police he had been with the R.C.M.P. for some years. Constable Keays will assume his new duties at Niagara Falls on January 15th.

POLICE HAVE BUSY DAY LOOKING FOR LOST CHILDREN

The primary function of the local police department is not to operate a lost and found department, but officers of the force yesterday must have thought that something of this nature was the case.

For no less than three small children were either reported lost by frantic parents, or picked up by officers on the street. The first two reports sent officers to the district where the kiddies were last seen only to be told on arrival that the young ones had been found safe and sound.

But the last instance was a bit different. The officer on the beat saw the young three-year-old lad at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets apparently lost. He was taken to the police station where some time later he was picked up by his grandmother who had not realized the boy had disappeared.

POLICE COURT

Pleading guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while his drivers' licence was suspended, Robt. Allen, Bridge Street, was fined $25 and costs when he appeared this morning in police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Court proceedings were of short duration with practically all the cases listed on the docket being pleas of guilty. The cases included six charges under the L.C.A. and several charges of infraction of the local traffic by-laws.

Record Snowfall During December

Halifax, Dec. 30 — (CP) — A record snowfall for the month o December was reported here by the Dominion Public Weather Office which said a total of 36.3 inches had piled up. The previous record for December was 33.4 inches, established in 1917.

Officials said virtually all of the snow had fallen during the last week, when a double - barrelled snowstorm passed over the Maritime provinces.

Cape Breton reported the most intense snowfall, which tied up buses and trains Christmas Eve and kept workers busy all week clearing roads and rail routes.

In Halifax, Mayor John E. Ahern called a special meeting of city council to ask for $100,000 worth of new snow-removal equipment after receiving a deluge of complaints from householders whose streets were blocked and automobiles mired hopelessly in four-foot drifts.

Prince Edward Island recorded a fall of two feet during the week but New Brunswick escaped the brunt of the storm.

KILLED BY FALLING LOG

Mattawa, Ont., Dec. 30 (CP)— Vernon Bertrand, 19, of Mattawa was killed when struck by a falling log at the Patrick Lamothe and Son lumber camp a short distance west of Mattawa.

Bertrand was helping to load logs on a sleigh when a heavy piece of timber, which had just been hoisted to the top of the pile, dislodged another log which fell from the sleigh, striking Bertrand across the back. He was knocked unconscious and died en route to hospital.

Hungerford Reeve And Council Given Acclamation

Tweed (Special) — On Monday afternoon the ratepayers of the township of Hungerford met in their council chambers to nominate a reeve, deputy reeve, and three councilmen.

Mr. J. Ernest Cassidy, clerk, received the nominations and afterwards acted as chairman.

Mr. Chas. Rush who has acted as reeve since 1939 was again returned for another term by acclamation. He was proposed by Joseph Bergeron, seconded by Stanton Healey. Mr. Harry M. Coulter who has acted as deputy reeve for the past five years was again returned by acclamation for another term. He was proposed by Jas. Jeffrey, seconded by H. A. Mouck.

Mr. W. E. Bateman who has acted as councilman for the past five years was again returned for another year. He was proposed by H. A. Mouck, seconded by W. J. Jeffrey.

John J. McGrath as councilman proposed by Cecil Courneyea, seconded by Ernest Rashotte; Stafford Hopkins proposed by Fred Rashotte, seconded by Simon Courneyea;

Edward Rivers, councilman, proposed by Stafford Whalen, seconded by Chas. Rush.

Mr. Hopkins wished to have his name withdrawn and he will be replaced by Mr. Rivers, thus avoiding an election at this time.

Mr. Joseph Bergeron, treasurer, gave a very encouraging report, no debts, bills all paid, and auditor's report showed a nice surplus at the end of the year.

Mr. Cassidy then called on the different candidates, and Reeve Chas. Rush read a detailed account of receipts and expenditures which run into a lot of figures.

Mr. Rush said in the course of his remarks that the township was never in a more prosperous condition than at the present time and he also sounded a warning that the business of managing the affairs of the township must be handled very carefully in the coming years. He thanked all the members of the council for their co-operation during the year and wished every person a very prosperous and happy new year.

Mr. Rush replied to a question asked at this time by Mr. H. Varty with regards to the high school area and he said that from reports from other counties it was proving a very costly affair.

Mr. H. M. Coulter dealt with the county roads system and reported that all county roads were in very good condition. He also said that on account of the heavy snowstorms last winter it cost the township a lot of money to keep the roads open.

Mr. W. E. Bateman gave a report of the annual convention of the Association of Rural Municipalities held in Toronto recently. He was the representative from Hungerford township.

The other candidates thanked their sponsors for the nominations and wished all a happy new year.

New Year's Parties Will Be Most Expensive on Record In All Parts of Dominion

By E. M. CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

They'll swear they had a wonderful time, but hullabalooing Canadians who help 1948 through Leap Year's swinging doors Wednesday night will admit it was about the most expensive New Year on record — give and take a hangover or two — because:

For those silly hats perched on their heads, a couple of clacking irritators clutched in their hands and a chair or two in a table-to-table nighterie or a swank sable-and-satin lounge — they will pay $10 to $25 at Toronto, Edmonton and Regina, and up to $37 at Winnipeg and $50 at Montreal, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

And those prices will only allow you entry and the privilege of screaming your lungs out and catching a glimpse of a chorus line through pea-soup cigaret fog — legal, or illegal, liquor comes extra.

$40-$50 for Evening

For the flush pocketbook, Montreal offers the Mount Royal Hotel's Normandie Roof (around 4 a.m. you'll have a mortgage on it) at about $40-$50 for the evening. Add to this 30 per cent provincial and city taxes.

Toronto will greet the shivering tyke for the first time in more than 30 years with cocktail lounges and bars. Reservation lists are swollen, while, as usual, travel agencies say many of its citizens want to usher in a new uncertain year with visits to the Laurentians, Montreal and New York.

Those in other cities will:

Start with a $5 bottle of rum at Winnipeg; pay $10 to get past the ticket-taker at a hotel dance, $3 for taxi, $3 for corsage, $4.50 for after-dance dinner and another five-spot for a second flask of potable dew.

A canny figure-and-fact observer at Edmonton says one couple could spend $25 an hour, but most night spots are asking $10 come-in-and-sit-down fee.

Fairly High in Halifax

It won't take much effort to spend a sizeable wad in Halifax. Two leading hotels offer dinner and dancing for $12.50 a couple— more added for mixers and bottle-bringers. Large spenders will begin with a $5 sea-food dinner, take taxi to the Nova Scotian hotel and then shuffle through his pockets for tips and hatcheck offerings. Earlier he must have visited a liquor commission dispensary to buy his crock for the party — strictly illegal, of course. If it's the best Scotch it nipped him $7.50. To all that add taxies and corsage and the night's damage clears $37.

In most respects, the year-end holiday will duplicate Christmas which was one of the quietest in years with city taverns closing early and public liquor sales stopping at 11 p.m. For those who wish, hotels are offering parties at $16 a couple.

Many centres report fewer midnight theatre shows.

Windsor maitres de hotel say reservations have reached capacity, notwithstanding indications that the average border city sport will spend $20 and up. Heavier trade this year is said due to fewer people wishing to cross over to Detroit because of higher United States prices and the limited amount of Canadian money allowed.

And Toronto police, setting the pattern for other cities, warn that good fun or no, the net's out for drunk drivers. Every member of the force's traffic division will be on duty from noon tomorrow until daylight New Year's.

Speaker at Rotary Expresses Gratitude For Interest Displayed Toward Blind

The Christmas spirit glowed as brightly in the hearts of members of the Rotary Club yesterday as it did at the beginning of the festive season. For the clubmen were hosts to some twenty sightless people of the city and district, their escorts, officials of the National Institute for the Blind in this area and those of the Hastings County Advisory Board at a sumptuous turkey dinner in the Quinte Hotel.

Officials present included Mr. P. I Timmins, field secretary of the National Institute for the Blind, Kingston; Miss R. Munro, home teacher, Kingston and Mrs. Harry Rollins, vice president; George Wishart, treasurer, and Miss Peck and Mr. Archibald of the Hastings Advisory Board.

There was fun and hilarity, music and singing for the guests. Rotarian Charles Symons and Jack Marshall personally inspected the "Christmas ties" of the clubmen and as judge and one-man jury assessed fines or paid bounties according to the quality, color and style of the cravats.

Rotarian George Carver was officially "invested" with a necktie monstrosity, a cross between Joseph's coat, 1894 wallpaper, a New Year's morning nightmare, a leopard skin and a surrealist painting.

Rotarian Dr. Arthur Locke's fine mastery of his violin was heard in the tuneful melody "Traumerei" with the capable Leo Riggs at the piano while the melodic voice of Rotarian John Deacon offered "Loch Lomond" and another Scottish number.

Other guests were formally welcomed through the usual procedure while the guests of honor were given special welcomes by President Alex Nathan and Rotarian Grant Sparling, who was in charge of this part of the program. Incidentally Rotarian Sparling was invested with a colorful "tom-cat" tie of lurid colors before assuming his official duties.

Tribute To Service Clubs

In a brief address Mr. Timmins expressed his appreciation of the sightless guests for the generosity and Christmas spirit of Rotary Club. "We owe a great deal to service clubs for the work they do for sightless' people," he said, "and we wish to thank them for their assistance, interest and kindness shown us."

He paid tribute to the Hastings County Advisory Board which has done splendid work. "They are grand people to work with," he added.

Mr. Timmins also expressed the appreciation of himself and his organization for the fine efforts of Dr. Locke in helping with examinations and other work in saving sight and conserving vision. He also thanked Drs. Forrester and Chant for their worthwhile efforts along these lines.

The work of the home teachers is very important in the everyday life of the sightless, Mr. Timmins said. These teachers go from house to house instructing in braille, the crafts and typewriter operation.

Bowling enjoyed

He also thanked the Y's Men's Club for their interest, financial and otherwise, taken in the bowling efforts of the sightless. "We have a team that meets every Friday at the Y.M.C.A. and every member is making good scores. He invited those sightless people who had not yet joined the bowling club to attend the weekly get-togethers.

Rotarian Charles Symons told the clubmen that the Crippled Children's Committee had taken care of 28 of these children during Christmas, presenting them with gifts, toys, candles, nuts and games. He paid special tribute to Rotarians Art. Francis and Russ Hachborn for their generous gifts of toys candies, nuts, oranges, etc., and to President Nathan for his assistance in delivering the holiday packages.

OBITUARY

MRS. PETER C. DEMPSEY
(Brighton-Belleville)

Mrs. Peter C. Dempsey, 37 Dunbar Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Sunday evening after a brief illness.

The late Mrs. Dempsey was born twenty-seven years ago near Brighton and prior to her marriage she was Vivian Locklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Locklin. For some years Mrs. Dempsey taught school in her home district and in other localities. Prior to coming to Belleville two years ago she was engaged in teaching in Napanee.

Possessing a pleasing personality and many fine traits of character Mrs. Dempsey made many friends during her residence in this city and to them her death has brought sincere feelings of regret. She was associated with Holloway Street United Church and in the activities of the Energetic Club and other organizations she took an active part.

Surviving her are her husband and an infant daughter; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Locklin; two brothers, Gordon Locklin, principal of Cannifton Public School, and Thomas Locklin, of Peterborough; two sisters, Miss Edith Locklin, nurse-in-training in Toronto, and Miss Lennan Locklin at home.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the home of her parents near Brighton and interment took place at Albury cemetery.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP) —Irregularity prevailed in quiet trading today on the stock exchange with only the golds establishing a definite trend downward. Industrials traded both ways with some groups firm and others weak, base metals and western oils were strong at opening but profit taking reduced gains.

Volume for the first three hours was 456,000 shares, about 173,000 less than yesterday's similar period.

Price range in industrials was narrow with variations mainly in fractions.

Weaker golds were Amalgamated, Belleterre, Central Patricia, Cochenour, God's Lake, Kerr Addison Lake Shore, Little Long Lac, Negus, San Antonio and Pickle Crow. Base metals were ahead for Smelters and Waite Amulete.

Crop Report Shows Need For Feed Grain

Toronto, Dec. 30. (CP)—Good supplies of poultry and increasing need for feed grain for livestock were noted today in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Grey County has produced one of the largest and finest crops of turkeys ever grown there, with prices ranging up to 50 cents a pound, the report said. In Southern Ontario, supplies of poultry were pretty well cleaned up, but enough remained for New Year's with an abundance of eggs available in Lincoln County.

Because of high grain prices the number of beef cattle on grain feeding in Middlesex was markedly reduced, meaning less stable-fed livestock for market. Prices for carrots, parsnips, and turnips were up ten cents a basket in Welland County.

The feed grain shortage was noticeable in Central and Eastern Ontario. Livestock inquiries included keen demand for springers with top grade cows bringing up to $200 in Prince Edward and good response for fresh cows in Stormont.

In Northern Ontario a good supply of hay was noted in Cochrane South but the supply of feed grain was lower than in previous years.

Claremont Trustees Can't Get Out of Office

Claremont, Ont., Dec. 30—(CP)— "Exasperating," says Trustee John Norton, one of three men who administer this Ontario county police village of 450 persons.

For years now, he and his two partners have been trying to "get elected out of office. But they've had no luck.

He pointed out that at the combination nomination and appointment meeting, at least seven persons must be present.

"But you can't get seven electors out even after a house-to-house-coax-canvass."

There were six electors at last night's meeting — it was postponed for two weeks.

"This has been going on 11 or 12 years," said Trustee Norton. "Many times in the past two or three years I took the notion to get out of the job. I found I couldn't get out. Nobody else would run."

Armed Bandits Secure $1,000 From Windsor Man

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 30 —(CP) —Two armed bandits last night entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Groombridge, held them at gunpoint, and took a purse and wallet containing $1,000 in cheques and cash.

Groombridge, a service station operator, was lying on a couch when the two men pushed their way into the house. They took the service station's receipts which were in the wallet.

"I started to laugh when they came in," Mrs. Groombridge said. "This is no joke," one robber said. "This is a holdup."

One thug wore a nylon stocking over his head and the other held a towel in front of his face.

President Signs Duplicate Bill

Washington, Dec. 30 — (AP) — President Truman today signed a duplicate copy of legislation designed to reduce the cost of living in the United States while secret service men searched the White House for the original.

The President's signature was penned reluctantly after a hurried scramble to copy the Republican-sponsored measure, which disappeared mysteriously after reaching the White House.

Declaring the United States economy faces a "grave peril," Truman said in a statement the bill is "pitifully inadequate" to deal effectively with the problem of high prices. But he promised its "meagre authority" will be used to the fullest extent.

Business Leaders, Economists Predict Levelling off and Some See Recession During 1948

By HARRY T. MONTGOMERY

New York, Dec. 30 —(AP) The economy of the United States set many peacetime records as it boomed through 1947, but at the year's end there are increasing signs of possible trouble ahead.

For 1948 business leaders and economists predict at least a levelling off, and some see the recession which, though widely heralded, failed to develop in '47.

Mid-year now is the date most generally mentioned for the necessary readjustment. If it comes, its severity will depend on what happens between now and then, and in particular on whether the current inflation gets out of hand.

Prices of many things, including such essentials as food and clothing, are expected to rise further in 1948. On the other hand, further wage increases may be granted to industrial workers now getting roughly double what they did before the war.

Expect Competition

The new year is expected to bring back in force for the first time since the war the real price competition which is a traditional characteristic of capitalist economy. This will come as the supply of goods and services balances demand. When it comes, perhaps for most business about mid-year, it should force prices down.

The danger is that if they get too high beforehand, they will fall too fast and too much. Business failures will mount in any event; with a sudden plunge of prices they will be epidemic, and the unwanted depression will be under way.

Three main problems as listed by President Truman's council of economic advisers as demanding prompt attention in 1948: "Inflation, high cost of living and threatened recession." In their second annual report late in December these economists warned that some of the factors making 1947 a year of record business activity were "artificial props."

High Employment Predicted

The council observed that it was possible for current high production and employment to continue "through 1948 or longer" on these props: the war-grown backlog of demand for both consumer and durable goods, foreign aid, military expenditures and crop shortages.

However, the council said, an immediate effort would be made to stabilize the economy, and to establish sounder bases than those during and since the war. As a general pattern the economists recommended "achievement and maintenance of real price competition," rather than "the highest price the traffic will bear in an unstable economy."

Profits should be reduced, wage inequities ironed out and "maximum production" substituted for the traditional goal of "full employment."

The economists studied with interest the 1947 dollar value of the United States output, hitting at the end of the year a rate of more than $230,000,000,000, compared with an average of $203,700,000,000 for 1946. Some predicted it would hit $250,000,000,000 in 1948 which would be double that $125,300,000,000 figure for 1941 and approaching three times the $90,400,000,000 rate of the last real pre-war year, 1939.

Goods Twice as Expensive

The average citizen, however, was more interested in different figures in 1947: It took well over $1 to buy a dozen eggs, a pound of butter or a pound of beefsteak over wide sections of the country.

In general most goods became just twice as expensive as before the war; in other terms, the dollar was worth just about half what it was in 1939.

This inflation was, of course, much of the story behind the records established in prices, wages and profits, and therein were more warnings. The dollar value of 1947 retail trade, for instance, is estimated at a record $110,000,000,000, but the amount of actual goods moved across store counters was less than in 1946, when they were worth only $96,670,000,000. The 1941 figure was $55,490,000,000.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Belief in some financial circles that the year-end stock market rally may not extend into 1948 was supported by action on the main markets yesterday when prices generally eased.

Despite reports of record earnings, and output, continued shortages and unsatisfied consumer demand in 1947, and promise for 1948 of increased production and expansion of trade, pessimistic quarters make comparisons between unit sales figures and dollar value and say there actually was less consumed in 1947 than in 1946. Should the price spiral reach higher levels, they add, there will be even less consumed in 1948 with the resultant cutbacks, high-priced inventories cleared at loss, business failures and the unwanted recession.

Year-end reports estimate the dollar value of the 1947 retail trade in the United States at a record of $110,000,000,000 but the amount of actual goods moved across store counters at less than in 1946 when they were worth only $96,670,000,000.

For Canada, the Canadian Bank of Commerce's index of general business activity rose from 155 in October (1937 equals 100) to 161 in November, reporting increases in meat-packing, production of pulp and paper, automobile vehicles and non-ferrous metal products.

Canadian business looked to increased activity in 1948 with announcement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday that an Order-in-Council has been passed bringing into effect Jan. 1 the tariff concessions granted by Canada in the Geneva trade agreements. He said the tariff changes made are of particular importance to the trade between Canada and the United States. Particularly the entire range of American tariff restrictions against Canadian goods has been reviewed and "very substantially reduced."

Stock markets in New York, Toronto and Montreal registered losses yesterday for the industrial sections and in Toronto golds continued the retreat interrupted in the pre-Christmas and immediate post-Christmas sessions.

$1,000,000 Seized In Deposit Box

Montreal, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police here disclosed today that they are holding, pending investigation, about $1,000,000 seized in a safety deposit box at a Montreal bank.

The amount was said to be made up mostly of Canadian government bearer bonds and of a small sum of United States currency.

R. C. M. P. gave few details, but said the seizure order had come from federal authorities.

They said that the name and address given by the person who had rented the deposit box are fictitious. Whoever owns the $1,000,000 had not turned up to claim it, although he was aware of the seizure.

R. C. M. P. indicated they are investigating the possibility that the hoard may be the proceeds of wartime black market operations.

CANADA RECORDS DEATHS OF MANY PUBLIC FIGURES

(By The Canadian Press)

Death claimed two of Canada's foremost religious leaders and notable figures in the judiciary, political, science, letters and the realm of sport during 1947.

Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, died Jan. 17 at Alhanmbra, Calif., near Los Angeles. The scholar who had risen from humble position as a shoemaker's son to become a prince of the church was stricken with a heart attack while recuperating from a long illness.

Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, archbishop of Toronto and primate of the Church of England in Canada, died in Toronto April 9.

Religion lost another leader when Rev. Dr. W. J. Clarke, 86, of the United Church, a former moderator of the Presbyterian Church, died in Montreal, Jan. 17.

In the world of politics, Viscount Bennett, prime minister of Canada from 1930 to 1935, died at Dorking, England, June 26.

The Dominion cabinet lost Hedley Bridges, 45, minister of fisheries, who died Aug. 10. Death struck four senators: J. J. Bench, Ontario; Edward Michener and W. J. Harmer, both from Alberta; and W. E. Foster formerly premier of the province he represented, New Brunswick.

Four former lieutenant-governors died during the year: H. E. Munroe of Saskatchewan; W. D. Ross, of Ontario; F. F. Mathers of Nova Scotia, and W. J. Tupper of Manitoba.

Other outstanding Canadians who died during the year were: Supreme Court Justice A. B. Hudson, of Ottawa; W. H. Southam, publishing executive, at Ottawa; Dr. H. M. Tory, first president of the National Research Council, at Ottawa; F. L. Crumblehulme, president of the Dominion Soccer Association, at Calgary; and N. J. (Piffles) Taylor, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, at Regina, and Duncan Campbell Scott, poet and former civil servant, at Ottawa.

ARREST SURVIVOR

But Provincial Constable Vincent Scherer said her own escape from death was almost certainly the result of the unwitting intervention of elderly Elisha Pollock, an uncle of the Letsons and deaf boarder in the home, who slept through the shootings and later discovered the bodies.

Walter Letson on the Sunday morning had asked the girl in menacing tones if she wished "to join Mary". Mary was Mrs. Hugh Letson who was shot down in the living room of the home about Saturday midnight, along with her husband.

Before anything could happen, Pollock came in from doing chores and the girl seized the opportunity to run away from the house and reach her home, some three miles away.

The revised statutes of Ontario under which the charge falls states: "Any patient or guardian may bring before a judge any female under the age of 21 who proves unmanageable or incorrigible and the judge may proceed as provided in Sections 15 and 16."

Sections 15 provides all hearings are to be private and specifies the judge may commit the party accosted to "an industrial refuge for an indefinite period not exceeding two years." Section 16 relates to the distribution of the court documents.

BROUGHT FROM GERMANY

The Christmas tree is said to have been introduced into the British Isles when Albert came to England in 1840 to wed Queen Victoria.

Beware Bachelors Your Freedom Is in Danger, So Don't Say We Didn't Warn You of Leap Year

Here's a quiet tip to you single buckaroos both young, and old. The year coming up, 1948, that is, is Sadie Hawkins year, or in other words Leap Year.

So if you happen to see the old familiar gleam in the eyes of the deadly sex, brother, watch out—she means it. For 3 years gals have been patiently waiting for you fellows to ask her permission to buy her groceries, minks, nylons etc., for the rest of her life—and a lot of the maidens have been disappointed.

But 1948 will be different. It is the year for the bachelor gals to howl—and the popular theme will be "Hearts and Flowers."

The husbandless misses will have a double meaning for that newly-coined phrase "New Look," but it will the old one all dressed up in Determination Blue and Mountie Red. And you know what the slogan of the Mounties is.

And don't think that that L'il Abner complex that has saved you from being the second-in-command of your home for a long time will save you this year. There is a new movement afoot among the single maidens — and they're out for the "kill."

Their is a common belief that you can escape the net of matrimony by the purchase of a dress. But the way prices are you'll be better off financially by marrying the gal.

So if you want to remain in single blessedness, gird on the armor of determination, and the first time a moon-eyed maiden glances at you with a look like a dying calf — either call the police — or go jump off the dock.

It all started away back in 1288 in Scotland. It seems that the braw laddies of that age were averse to taking the gals of the local greenswards into wedlock and either remained single to play golf, or took to themselves a buxom wench from England, or Ireland.

Action Taken

So the gendarmerie stepped into the picture. Tearful lassies complained that their kilted swains were cooler than the winter ice in Loch Lomond — and something should be done about it. It was.

The cadis of that day and age being males, and married, felt that their single brothers should enjoy the delights of wedlock and passed a law declaring that "it is lawful during the reign of Her Majesty in every year known as Leap Year for maidens of both high and low estate to indicate her feelings for the man she loves. If he refuses to take her to be his lawful wife, he shall be fined the sum of one pound."

Well a pound's a pound and that started the great exodus, and today you find Scottish names in every part of the world.

But the law stood, and the Leap Year legend was handed down through the ages. Not that the legal status of the old Scottish cadis' edict is still good—but it gives the femmes an idea anyway.

Days and Dates

To go off on another (1948 tangent, some demon research gent, with plenty of time on his hands comes up with the following. There will be two "Friday the Thirteenths" in the year coming up, one in February and the other in August.

New Year's Day, April 1st. (All Fools Day) and Armistice Day all fall on a Thursday. St. Valentine's Day comes on a Saturday with the "Sivinteenth of Oireland" falling on Wednesday. Hallowe'en falls on a Sunday this year, of all days.

Lent and Easter will arrive early in 1948. Ash Wednesday happens along on February 11th and Easter on March 28th.

Labor Day falls on Monday Sept. 6th., with Christmas Day arriving on Saturday. Farewell to the long holidays in 1948. Dominion Day falls on a Thursday and the 24th of May, or Victoria Day on a Monday.

Club Commodore To Feature New Year's Eve Party With New York City Entertainment

MISS ARLENE THOMPSON

The talented singing star of many Broadway musicals will make her appearance at Club Commodore on New Year's Eve.

This beautiful and lovely songstress has a smooth and mellow voice of wide range and her versatility and style is a delight to hear and see. She has won a very solid reputation with her various engagements at the Club Versailles, Cafe Society and many other of the finer spots in New York. She brings with her a fine repertoire of popular songs and the Club Commodore guests should be pleased to have such a fine artist to appear in Belleville.

The Commodore Orchestra will be on the bandstand providing the music for this great evening. The dance will begin at 10.00 p.m. and will continue until the early hours of the morning. Novelties, hats, horns, spot dances and photographers from Alicia Photos will be some of the features; and for those few who will be in their homes a special broadcast over CJBQ has been arranged from 11.45 p.m. until 12.15 a.m. Then another added attraction will be the lunch that will be served at 1.30 a.m., and needless to say it will be quite welcome to the merrymakers after having blown off all of their surplus steam that has accumulated during 1947.

Yes, Club Commodore has spared nothing to make this the most talked of dance that has ever hit Belleville. Oh, by the way, there will be more tables available also. There is definitely a limit on the ticket sale, so don't leave your purchase of tickets to the last minute. A few are still available from Bill Cook's Cigar Store and the United Cigar Store.

The Height of the Season

In this season of splendor and happiness which will soon be over, young and old have taken on a fresh view of life, so great has been the effect of the celebration of the Christmas festivity.

Young children knowing that there are two holidays in this season, might be excused if they think Santa Claus would come twice in so brief a period of time. But of course New Year's Day is different from Christmas yet part of that season of the year when the course of nature begins the change from the sun's farthest south to the magic of June when the orb will shine in fullest splendor on the blossoming face of the earth. Christmas has brought a spiritual exaltation which should last for long. New Year's as its name signifies marks the first of another year. In this land we are fortunate that in having two such days in the calendar for both have meanings, Christmas with its message of divine interest in humanity and of good will to all mankind, and New Year's with the outlook down the avenues of the future, the way that all must go in order to develop.

New Year's is at hand. Its coming has been to many in years past an impulse to deeper thinking on the problems of life and of man's conduct in the light of all the lessons he has had the opportunity of learning through the Christmas festival.

It tells man that he can govern his conduct. The very making of resolutions which some persons impose upon themselves is an acceptance of the fact that man is to a very large degree master of his fate and that he can master the art of living and of life if he will but set his mind to the task before him.

The making of a resolution or of a number of them is in itself an appraisal or judgment of one's life up to the present and of the opportunity which looms of improving it in the days and nights ahead.

BCG Test

Result of the work of a clinic in Montreal where with BCG vaccine 900 children have been vaccinated is most encouraging. According to Dr. A. Guilbeault, "in spite of the fact that about 50 per cent of our vaccinated children live in direct contact with tuberculous parents, none of the 900 children vaccinated with BCG in the isolated quarters of the BCG clinic has died or is actually suffering from any tuberculous infection." The success of the clinic opened in 1935 by the Quebec health department proves, says Dr. Guilbeault, its value to every provincial department of health in Canada.

BCG, named for the development of the Bacillus of Calmette-Guerin, two French scientists who made a chance discovery. The vaccine they developed was used on a large scale in cattle and twenty-six years ago was first used on a human, a new-born infant living in contact with a tuberculous grandmother. Within three years 300 such infant children in France have been vaccinated and none has died of tuberculosis.

A fixed rule in BCG vaccination is that the vaccine must not be given until it is proven that the patient is absolutely free of the disease, skin tests and X-rays being used to establish whether a patient is tuberculin negative or positive.

A year from now all patients who have been vaccinated at the Montreal clinic and all their records will be studied by a medical research team of the National Research Council. Some observers are confident that this report will lead to the establishment of BCG clinics in other provinces.

Ex-King Victor Emmanuel

Former King Victor Emmanuel of Italy who lost the throne of Italy through the weakness he displayed in facing the issue which arose when Italy's dictator, Mussolini, appeared on the public scene, is dead in Alexandria at the age of 78 years of pneumonia. For 46 years he had reigned. In the First World War he was the idol of the people of Italy and visited the troops at the front on numerous occasions.

The test came to Victor Emmanuel when in 1922 Mussolini ordered the march on Rome and was later summoned by the King to form a cabinet. Thereafter Mussolini took the leadership and the King signed fascist degrees, even to giving the Fascist Grand Council right to decide the succession to the throne. That period which followed gave the world reason for concern as Mussolini and Hitler took those steps which ultimately led to the Second World War. The Italian King's acquiescence is shown in the acceptance of the title of Emperor of Ethiopia which Mussolini had conquered and of King of Albania after Mussolini's aggression against these two countries had shocked the democratic world. He asserted himself too late to save Italy from the disaster of war but he had a good share in the overthrow of the boasting dictator as the ruler co-operated with Marshal Badoglio to bring about the Italian armistice. The Germans then turned Italy into a battlefield.

The King found asylum with the Allies. But he had lost the favor of his people who did not forget the long dictatorship of Italy by Mussolini. He tried to save the throne for his family by abdication and his son Humbert reigned but one month when the people voted for a republican form of government.

In his career he had seen all the vicissitudes of life and his last year was spent in exile, his throne gone and his country struggling through the present crisis. It is thought unlikely that his body will be buried in Italy in the Pantheon built by Hadrian in the second century and dedicated by him to all the gods of Rome, though a niche in this tomb had been assigned him.

Hopes in Barbara Ann

Ottawa's Barbara Ann Scott has left for Switzerland, to defend there her world skating title. With her go our hopes and our complete confidence that, win or lose, she will do her best, never anything but her best.

Since she came home from Europe a world champion in figure skating, Miss Scott has enlarged enormously the circle of her friends and admirers. Generous in displaying her rare prowess, eager to support with her prestige all good causes, unspoiled by attentions which would have turned many an older head, this lovely and charming girl has been a champion beyond reproach.

Miss Scott belongs primarily to Ottawa, but the collection of funds for her present mission gave interesting evidence that our local pride is shared by all Canada. In the contest she is facing, and for which she has trained with ardor and persistence, we may be sure she will cover herself with distinction and give us all new cause to praise her and to love her.—Ottawa Journal.

Last of Literary Landmarks

With the death of Meredith Nicholson there disappears the last of the literary landmarks that towered for so long over the Indiana countryside.

A group of Indiana writers seemed imbued, regardless of the subject matter they set down on their pages, with an unalloyed midwestern American spirit. Meredith Nicholson, whose best known work was "The House of a Thousand Candles;" Booth Tarkington, George Ade and James Whitcomb Riley, literary gentlemen from Indiana, all of them, captivated millions and we cannot foresee the time when books of their authorship will be relegated to the attic shelf.

While Mr .Nicholson was best known as the author of "The House of a Thousand Candles," "The Port of Missing Men," "Hoosier Chronicle" and "Black Sheep! he was also a diplomat of considerable stature. Between 1933 and his retirement in 1941, he served successively, and served well, as minister to Paraguay, to Venezuela and to Nicaragua.

Mr. Nicholson has joined a little company of Indianans whose writings made America a pleasanter place in which to live.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Western Canadian universities are reported to have placed a ban on co-ed beauty contests. How about making it Dominion-wide? asks Brockville Recorder.

The idea of philosophy is truth; the idea of religion is life.—Peter Bayne.

JUST FOLKS

SWEARING ON

Tired of hearing friends who scoff,
I am done with swearing off.
Time has taught me, winging by,
Just how frail and weak am I.
So, when this old year has gone,
For a change, I'm swearing on.

Since the stubborn faults remain,
Stop, but surely start again,
And the habits I regret
Seem in me so firmly set,
It must be that I am one
Who should do some swearing on.

To be gracious; to be fair;
Sooner sense another's care;
More to cherish and to prize
All that under freedom lies;
Pro for right; for evil, con;
This is what I'm swearing on.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is South Carolina called the Palmetto State?

In 1939 the South Carolina legislature adopted a resolution designating the palmetto the official emblem of the State, notwithstanding the fact that the State had been popularly known the the Palmetto State for 163 years. The reason for the belated resolution was a rumor that another unnamed State was about to adopt the palmetto as its official emblem.

South Carolinians have a sentimental interest in the palmetto and ample reason for wanting to establish priority in the emblem. In June, 1776, Colonel William Moultrie successfully defended Charleston because his little fort on Sullivan's Island at the entrance of the harbor was made of palmetto logs. The cannon shots from Sir Peter Parker's British fleet rebounded from the tough palmetto logs as if they had been made of iron.

It was in that battle that Sergeant William Jasper rehoisted the Colonial flag while British bullets whistled around him. Fort Sullivan, as the fort was first called, was renamed Fort Moultrie in honor of the American commander.

The State adopted the representative of a palmetto tree in the coat-of-arms in its great seal. Upon the outbreak of the Civil War South Carolina adopted its present State flag — a white palmetto in a blue field, with a white crescent in the upper left hand corner. A monument erected on the Capitol grounds at Columbia to South Carolinians who fought in the Mexican War consists of a bronze palmetto tree.

"Palmetto" is from Spanish and means "little palm." There are about 1,000 species of palm trees, but the palmetto grows naturally farther north than any other species of this remarkable family of trees and is the pride of the South for practical as well as sentimental reasons. It is sometimes called the "cabbage palm" because its large terminal buds are eaten like cabbage. Palmetto logs are desirable as wharf pikes because they are immune to the attacks of shipworms. Palmetto hats are made from the tender shoots of this tree. The large, fan-shaped leaves, ribbed with wonderful exactness, were used by the Indians and early settlers to thatch their cabins.

South Carolina is rich in nicknames. "Swamp State" is now seldom heard. Francis Marion was known as the "Swamp Fox," and a gun used to defend Charleston harbor during the Civil War was called the "Swamp Angel." "Rice State" fell into disuse after rice-growing became a dead industry in South Carolina soon after the turn of the century. Formerly South Carolinians were known as "Weasels." More recently because of the presence of iodine in the soil and vegetation of South Carolina, commercial interests have promoted the nickname "Iodine State."

Charleston, founded in 1670 and named after King Charles II, disputes with several other cities the distinction of being "the most historic city in the United States." In 1787 the South Carolina legislature changed the name of the chief seaport in the State from "Charles Town" to Charleston The palmetto thrives in and around Charleston and is one of the attractive features of the city. Murray Boulevard, running parallel to parts of the Ashley and Copper rivers, is lined with beautiful specimens.

MUST BE ELECTION COMING

Toronto, Dec. 30 —(CP)—When Travel Minister Arthur Walsh found that he had been carrying a piece of shrapnel in his right hand since Ortona in 1943, he went to his old friend Dr. Mike Gorman, Lindsay, complaining that he couldn't shake hands. "So you want it taken out," joked the doctor. "There must be an election coming up."

The group support no candidates but offer assistance to anyone in their district from baby-sitting to the use of a car on election day.

PRE-WAR BURMESE PREMIER GUILTY ABETTING MURDER

Sentenced to Die With Eight Others

Rangoon, Dec. 30 (AP) — U Saw, pre-war Premier of Burma, today was sentenced to death by a Burmese Special Tribunal which convicted him of abetting the murder of U Aung San and other Burmese Ministers last July.

Eight others accused in the same case also were convicted and sentenced to die.

Ba Nyun, who turned state's evidence, was acquitted.

All the defendants pleaded innocent upon arraignment Nov. 4

U. Saw, who was removed from office by Britain during the war on charges that he had collaborated with the Japanese, was arrested soon after Maj.-Gen. U Aung San and six other Burmese cabinet ministers were machine-gunned to death in the council chamber in Rangoon, last July 19.

Approximately 340 persons were rounded up in connection with the murders.

U Saw was leader of the Myochit party, which was in opposition to the anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League of Aung San, who had been slated to become the first premier of an independent republic of Burma next year.

Aung San, an anti-Communist "strong man" was killed with his colleagues by five assassins who entered the council chamber, sprayed the room with machine guns and then escaped in a jeep. Aung San commanded the Burma Independence Army and fought with the underground during the Japanese occupation.

In a 25,000-word document of judgment, the tribunal President described U Saw as "the brain behind the assassination — the man who hatched and directed the crime."

The condemned men were given within which to appeal. None of them indicated their intentions Four of the accused were convicted of abetting the murder.

Coroner's Jury Finds Boys Died From Exposure

Owen Sound, Dec. 30 —(CP)— A coroner's jury here last night found that Robert, 12, and Donald, seven, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Cohen of Hepworth, Ont., died from exposure Thursday, Dec. 18, in Keppel township, two and one-half miles northwest of Hepworth.

In the jury's summation they said, "had the alarm been given on the night of Wednesday, Dec. 17, these boys would have been found alive."

The boys found in a marsh the following Friday, huddled together in death after leaving their home Wednesday to bring home a Christmas tree.

Testimony from the parents said the brothers had left home about 4.30 p.m. Wednesday, apparently to cut a Christmas tree. "Robert said he would be back within 15 minutes as he had to kill two chickens for supper."

The boys' father said he arrived home from work in Owen Sound about 5:45 p.m., and inquired about the boys. There was no alarm for the boys' safety until after 7:00 p.m. One of the other children was sent to the telephone office to call the home of Evan Moore, five and a half miles north of Hepworth, where the parents thought the boys had gone.

The telephone lines to Moore's home were down because of the storm. The parents said they tried to telephone Moore twice more that evening, and once the next morning.

Mrs. Cohen said the telephone operator, a Miss Bannister, on the first call, had told the child sent to the office that she had seen two boys walking along the road in the direction of Moore's home. The Cohens said they were confident the boys had gone to Moore's home until the boys' father motored to the nearby hamlet of Clavering at 1:30 p.m., Thursday.

He telephoned Moore from the hamlet and learned that the boys were not there.

NO ONE HURT

Farmington, Me., Dec. 30 — (AP) — A gale estimated unofficially at 50 miles an hour ripped the top 30 feet off the 100-foot wooden steeple of the North (Unitarian) Church shortly after a group of Girl Scouts entered the building for a meeting last night. The wreckage punched a big hole in the church roof, then toppled to the sidewalk. No one was injured.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO RELAX?

Most American adults of fair intelligence don't know how to breathe, so it is not to be expected that many of them know how to relax.

Sixteen years ago a book titled Progressive Relaxation by by Edmund Jacobson, A. M., Ph. D., M.D., was published by University of Chicago Press. In his book Dr. Jacobson described in medical terms (the book was for physicians, not for laymen) the technique developed by himself and his co-workers in the physicological laboratory for therapeutic application. Among the ailments which have resopnded well to this method of treatment, suffice to mention just one here—mucous colitis, spastic colon, colon derangement.

The popular idea of relaxation is just "getting away from it all" taking a good rest, lying abed or sitting around perhaps watching a ball game or other show.

That is fine for honest working people but bad for white collar business and professional people. Bad because their unnatural mode of living involves too much inactivity, sitting repression of emotions and not enough physical activity, work, play, exercise to "blow off steam," relieve tension, equalize circulation and promote good metabolism which is necessary to burn up surplus fuel and dispose of by-products of incomplete combustion.

The grandstand or the bleachers, the balcony or the loges, the golf club gallery or behind the wheel of a car is no place for a business, professional or "brain worker" of any kind to spend his or her afternoon or evening off. Far better for one who lives by his wits to do something for recreation, anything he or she likes to do, whether it be playing a game or polishing the car, no matter what, as long as it is something to watch others do.

Speaking of relaxion, have you ever felt all tense or tightened up when you go to bed and unable to get to sleep? Well, that is a good indication, as the doctors say, for an exercise in relaxation, not just once but every night when you put out the light call it belly breathing and I mean belly (bellows), I warn you, so you will not ask about "stomach" or "abdominal" breathing. On written request, if you provide a stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll send you the pamphlet which gives instructions for this exercise in relaxation—but no clipping, please.

You can scarcely realize how relaxing this natural breathing exercise is, until you have tried it or rather until you have adopted it into your scheme of life. Many readers, clients, followers, pupils, heck, there ought to be a name for people who are gullible enough to believe and accept some of the crazy teachings in this column—many subscribers, customers, correspondents have reported that sometimes they become so completely relaxed that they are actually asleep before they have completed the half dozen inflations of the belly (bellows).

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Damaged

Please explain what you mean by "damaged heart." (C.B.)

Answer—I might attempt to explain it in a sentence if you mentioned the context in which I used the term. It will do you n harm to read the booklet C-V-D—ask in writing for it and inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Efficiency of the heart may be damaged, lowered, impaired by malnutrition, say prolonged shortage of calcium or vitamin B1 in the diet; or by anoxia from carbon monoxide polluted air; or by stagnation of blood in the great splanchnic pool due to unnatural breathing.

Cancer

Please send me whatever literature you have on cancer.

(L.E.C.)

Answer—I have none. Good source of cancer pamphlets is the American Society for the Control of Cancer, 350 Madison Ave, New York 17, N.Y.

The Women, God Bless Them

My physician (a woman) thinks all of your advice is downright sensible, in fact I am writing this letter at her suggestion.

(L.O.)

Answer—Thank you. Every little while I do get a pat on the back.

Give Us The Old Dime Novels

Granddaughter, 7, sucks her thumb constantly as she listens to exciting children's serials on the radio. Please express your opinion of such programs.

(W.H.)

Answer—Compared to them the dreadful dime novels (which cost 5 cents) of our happy childhood were harmless. There was never a suggestion of sex in any of the "dime novels" I read—and I usually had one hidden inside my geography or under the pillow. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Thumb Sucking.

WORLD PICTURE GLOOMY DURING RECOVERY YEAR

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Europe in 1947 became a gigantic chess board upon which the United States and Russia manoeuvred for advantage in a "cold war" of conflicting ideologies.

Against that grim background, the war-weakened countries of Europe struggled for economic recovery, hampered by internal violence and disorders which were markedly bitter in France and Italy.

These were the outstanding developments of a year which saw Hungary swing into the Communist fold, independence granted to India and promised to Burma, and adoption by the United Nations of a plan to partition Palestine, in 1948.

In March the Truman doctrine of economic support and military advice for Greece — only Balcan country not in the Russian orbit— and for Turkey war outlined by the United States president. Two months later Congress authorized expenditure of $400,000,000 for this purpose.

This was followed by the Marshall plan for European economic recovery. As proposed by State Secretary Marshall in July, it called for large-scale, long-term American aid for those countries prepared to make special exertions to rehabilitate themselves. Russia and her satellites studied and rejected the proposal. But 16 countries drafted a comprehensive four-year plan involving assistance to the tune of $22,400,000,000 from the western hemisphere — most of it from the United States. Congress still has to act in this project.

Russian Counter-Moves

Moscow blasted the plan as "dollar imperialism" by which the United States sought to dominate Europe and countered with its own moves for tightening commercial and political ties in Eastern Europe.

Recovery in France and Italy was hampered by autumn strikes and demonstrations sponsored by the Communists with the apparent objective of wrecking the recovery plan in advance. The coalition governments of the two countries quelled the disturbances by firm steps, including use of troops, but indications were that the Communists would make new disruptive moves early in 1948.

Hungary was swept into the Russian camp May 31 when a Communist coup ejected Ferenc Nagy as premier. Pro-Communist Lajos Dinnyes succeeded him and the Communists became the strongest party in the country in elections held Aug. 31.

Guerrillo warfare continued sporadically in Greece between insurgent leftists and the rightist regime, which was in the saddle with British and American backing.

Britain's fight for economic survival was hampered by a rapid drain on her dollar resources. Inflation in the United States pared the purchasing power of her $3,750,000,000 loan, of which all but $400,000,000 had been drawn by December. A bitter winter and spring floods which drastically retarded the producton drive and a summer drought which cut into domestic crop yields, intensified her problem.

Holy Land Violence

Arab - Jewish strife flared in Palestine in December, in the wake of a decision by the United Nations general assembly to partition the Holy Land into separate Arab and Jewish states. The proposal involved surrender of Britain's mandate and British withdrawal in 1948. Welcomed by most Jewish elements as the best solution, it was bitterly opposed by Arab countries which announced their determination to fight to the bitter end.

Britain's regime in India came to an end Aug. 15 as the great sub-continent was split into the new dominions of India and Pakistan under a plan devised by the Attlee government and accepted by Hindus and Moslems. Burma was to become independent and to quit the commonwealth in January.

Civil war continued to crack China with Communists controlling most of Manchuria and vast areas elsewhere while the Nationalist administration struggled with one hand to control inflation and with the other to combat the Communist armies.

Britain, the United States, Russia and France wrangled through weeks of inconclusive meetings over the future of defeated Germany. At foreign ministers' conferences n Moscow in the spring and in London near the years' end they failed to reach agreement on unification of the country or on peace terms for their adversary.

GIRLS CLAIM HEAVENLY VISITATION

With arms outstretched, four little French girls pray before a statue of the Blessed Virgin in the Church of L'le-Bourhard, near Chinon, France. The youngsters, Jacqueline Aubry, 12; Jeanne Aubry, seven; Laura Croizon, eight, and Nicole Robin, 10, say that they have seen a likeness of the Virgin Mary a number of times. Although residents of the area are showing interest in their report, church authorities are silent.

Parts of Small Arms Plant Shipped From Canada to China

Ottawa, Dec. 30 (CP)—The component parts of a small arms ammunition factory have been shipped from Canada to China as part of the $10,000,000 deal between the two countries for Canadian military equipment, it was learned.

Previously, it had been disclosed that Mosquito fighter-bombers, ammunition for these aircraft and landing ground equipment were included in the arrangement, which has developed from the 1945 mutual aid agreement.

This equipment for making small arms ammunition includes machine tools of various sorts, some power tools and presses.

When assembled, this factory will be able to produce .303 ammunition, used principally today in the British Lee Enfield rifle and in certain medium machine guns. It also will be able to turn out nine millimetre bullets for Sten guns.

It is understood that the equipment for this factory left Montreal aboard the Canadian ship Cliffside Nov. 10.

A report from Singapore said that the Cliffside arrived in Singapore on Christmas Day, with of ammunition, it is learned, is .50 its cargo also including 2,500 tons calibre bullets for the Mosquito's cannons.

The Cliffside was the first ship to leave Canada with the initial shipment of arms and equipment to China.

On Nov. 30, another Canadian ship, the Gulfside, cleared Montreal for China with a second cargo of war materials.

Floods Harass European Areas

Paris, Dec. 30 — (AP)—Floods harassed France, Germany and Holland today after four days of heavy rain and spring-like warmth which melted snow in the foothills of the Alps and Vosges mountains.

Towns were isolated in Alsace and potash miners there were forced from their pits. The Moselle and Moire River valleys were flooded.

The Throne River rose 90 inches in 24 hours at Breisach, Wurttemburg, backing up streams that brimmed over into the Black Forest region. Rail, river and highway traffic was dislocated in many parts of Western Germany.

Dutch farmers fled with household goods and Christmas trees when flood waters poured thru a 60-foot break in a dike in the Eastern Dutch province of Overijsel.

No drownings were reported and property damage was believed small.

Italy had sunny, warm weather, but reported no floods.

BABE'S CRIES SAVE PARENTS

Toronto, Dec. 29—(CP)—Firemen said today that the cries of seven-months-old Ronnie Gunning saved his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Gunning, and two-year-old Sharon Kelcher from possible asphyxiation when fire broke out in a west-end MacDonnell Avenue house.

Thick smoke from a fire burning up the walls from an overheated pipe in the living room had filled the house when Ronnie's cries awakened his parents. As Mrs. Gunning took Ronnie to safety, her husband rescued the Kelcher child, who had been left in the Gunnings' care.

Famed Locksmith Dies in New York

New York, Dec. 30 — (AP) — Charles Courtney, 67, master locksmith who participated in a number of deep sea adventures and nearly lost his life in salvage operations on the British cruiser Hampshire in the North Sea in 1933, died Monday.

He made several trips to Europe on salvage missions, on each of which he was sworn to secrecy. One high spot came when he and two divers were caught by an undersea current and held prisoner 30 minutes against the side of the wrecked Hampshire, which had carried Earl Kitchener to his death in 1916.

Courtney suffered a broken left hand, a wound in his side and his hair turned grey. He went to Europe on other centures to open old chests for former European ruling families.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg (Special.)— The Oddfellows Hall was the setting on Thursday evening for the annual Christmas concert of Thomasburg Public School and a very interesting program was given by the pupils, after which Santa Claus came and unloaded the Christmas tree.

On Monday evening the ladies of Crescent Rebekah Lodge entertained their families at a Christmas party in their lodge rooms.

Mrs. William Holbert left recently to spend the Winter months in Kingston with her daughter, Mrs. Elwood Kerruish.

Mr. Claude Thompson of the Wooler Continuation School teaching staff, is spending his Christmas holidays at his home here.

The public school pupils and their teachers, Mrs. Bray and Miss Ketcheson, are enjoying the Christmas season, school having closed on Friday.

Many friends and relatives were in attendance at the funeral of the late Mrs. William Phillips on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stephen and children, spent the weekend with relatives in Toronto .

FROM NEW ZEALAND TO BRITAIN BY SAIL

The British four-masted barque Pamir, 2,796 tons, sailed up the English Channel at the end of a voyage from New Zealand. Though outwardly an 18th century ship, she is fitted with wireless, electric light and refrigeration. She carried 64 cases of Christmas gifts among her cargo of wool and tallow.

Revivals Feature Broadway's 1947 Footlight Parade

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 30—(CP)—The year 1947 on Broadway was short on new talent and long on revivals, but it gave theatre-goes some memorable tragedies and showed a continuing trend toward the serious musical.

Notable among the new plays was "A Streetcar Named Desire," an eloquent and arresting study by Tennessee Williams on the moral breakdown of a gentlewoman in the southern States. Splendid direction by Elia Kazan and superb acting by Jessica Tandy in the lead role, supported by a flawless cast, made this December arrival by the author of "The Glass Menagerie" one of the year's outstanding productions.

In the realm of great tragedy there was Judith Anderson's electrifying and passionate performance as the central figure in "Medea," Robinson Jeffers' adaptation of the old Greek drama of revenge, and the splendid Katharine Cornell production of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" with Miss Cornell and Godfrey Tearle as the celebrated lovers.

"The Flies," Jean-Paul Sartre's modernized version of the tragic Orestes theme, was given a brilliant and moving production last May by students at the Dramatic Workshop of the New School.

"All My Sons," an engrossing drama about a wartime profiteer, drew two of the awards given by the New York theatre to 20 men and women who made outstanding contributions to the dramatic season 1946-47. One went to its author, Arthur Miller, and the other to its director, Elia Kazan.

Musical Hits

In the vein of the serious musical, there was a fine adaptation of Elmer Rice's sombre "Street Scene," sung by a talented cast mostly recruited from opera. Kurt Weill wrote the music and Langston Hughes the lyrics for the production which had 148 performances last winter and spring before becoming a victim of high operating expenses.

Among the few notable original works to reach Broadway during the year was a twin bill of musical plays, "The Medium" and "The Telephone," by Gian-Carlo Menotti. The former was an absorbing horror play about a fake medium and the latter an amusing one-acter in which a constantly-ringing telephone prevented a young man from proposing marriage to the girl he loved.

Musicals in the hit category included "Finian's Rainbow," a successfully-blended mixture of fantasy, comedy and mild political satires; "Brigadoon," a tuneful, romantic fantasy in a Scottish highland setting, and "Allegro," the solemn story of a young doctor's life, produced by that notable team, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein.

In traditionally light musical vein there were an uproarious revival of Victor Herbert's operetta, "Sweethearts," galvanized almost out of recognition by comedian Bobby Clark; "High Button Shoes" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," the last two directed by George Abbott.

The year also saw stylish revivals by Maurice Evans of Shaw's "Man and Superman" and by John Gielgud of Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" and Congreve's "Love for Love." Both the Gielgud offerings were seen in a number of Eastern Canadian cities. Donald Wolfit and his British repertory company appeared here and in Eastern Canada in a series of Elizabethan plays.

Minister Receives Threatening Letters

New Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP)— Rev. Stanley Wellington of Beulah Baptist Church, who has been campaigning against alleged gambling resorts in this community 10 miles west of Toronto, told his congregation Sunday night that he has received threatening letters.

One letter from "a self-styled gambler and bootlegger," he said, told him to get out of town. A second letter warned him that "sometimes nosing into other people's affairs causes murder."

The pastor said he was ignoring the letters but he was not dropping his campaign. The Council of New Toronto, he said, "will be seeing me very soon and I will not be alone. I have a body of citizens behind me."

Veteran's Death Is Under Probe By Investigator

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 30—(CP) — The presence of a special investigator in connection with the death of Thomas W. Rogers, 33-year-old war veteran, indicated the possibility of police suspicion of foul play.

However, police Monday would make no statement on any developments in the probe. Special Investigator T. R. Wright of the Provincial Police Criminal Investigation Bureau arrived from Toronto Sunday to work on the case.

Rogers died at his home last Wednesday after complaining to his wife of having suffered a beating. An autopsy disclosed a fractured skull and a brain hemorrhage.

Mr. Grant Helliwell of Queen's University, is spending the Christmas vacation with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. V. Helliwell.

Wholesalers Want Ban on Imported Vegetables Lifted

Leamington, Ont., Dec. 30—(CP) — Representatives of Growers' Associations and Wholesalers indicated Monday that they would approach Finance Minister Abbott soon to ask for a temporary let-up of the embargo on import of United States vegetables.

Growers believe that scarcity of fresh vegetables until next May when the early Canadian crop is available will be of no advantage to them.

The wholesalers say they cannot exist profitably through the winter months with only the citrus fruit imports allowed on the quota and the few tomatoes from Cuba.

The proposal would allow the full year's import quota to be brought into Canada during the next five months. Then when the Canadian growing season arrives, it is proposed to cut off American imports completely.

Growers explain that they did not store any late crops because they had no warning of the austeriey plan announcement which came Nov, 18 and set a quota on import of vegetables from the U. S.

BATTLE MORE TENSE

Peiping, Dec. 30 (AP) —The crucial battle for Mukden became more tense today as Chinese Communist regulars, attacking in strength, battled to points only six and eight miles from the city proper. The sounds of cannonading could be heard clearly in the isolated city, despatches said.

Man Held After Constable Beaten

Chatham, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Constable Douglas Reynolds suffered severe head injuries Sunday night when beaten and left unconscious outside a Main Street restaurant.

Police said James Whaley had been arrested a short time later in a rooming house and will be charged with assault.

Reynolds was taken to hospital where he was reported suffering from concussion and possible skull fracture.

Police said they believed Reynolds was questioning Whaley when Whaley struck him and knocked him down and that when the officer rose to his feet, Whaley knocked him down again. Two men accompanying Whaley then were said to have led him away, leaving the injured officer on the sidewalk.

Farmer Held After Wife Found Dead

Watertown, S. D., Dec. 30 — (AP) — William Overland, 52-year-old farmer, was held without charge Monday after State's Attorney R. F. Manson reported Overland had admitted beating his wife and leaving her on a snowy road where she froze to death.

Manson said the 45-year-old woman's body was found Saturday but that Mrs. Overland had been dead since last Monday night. The coroner's autopsy report said she froze to death and that body injuries had been a contributing cause of her death.

WEDDINGS

KNOX—JUBY

A quiet wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized at seven-thirty o'clock on the evening of Friday, Dec. 19th., in Toronto, when Orlene, youngest daughter of Mrs. C. R. Juby, Toronto, became the bride of Wilbert Best, only son of Mr. Wilbert Knox, of this city.

Mrs. P. Frederick, was her sister's matron of honor, and Mr. Clifford Juby, brother of the bride, ably performed the duties of groomsman.

Rev. J. Arthur Steed was the officiating clergyman.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox will take up residence in Belleville.

EMMONS—MCWILLIAMS

Marmora— At Princess Street United Church, Kingston, at 11 a.m , on Monday, December 22, a wedding of local interest took place when Rev. W. J. Fiddes united in marriage Agnes Gertrude McWilliams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Vilneff, of Marmora, and W. J. Byron Emmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Emmons, of Kingston.

The bride was attired in dove grey crepe, with drape effect and sequin trim. Her corsage was of mauve chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid was Miss Jean Burfield, of Peterborough, who was gowned in navy blue sheer and wore a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Lawrence Emmons, of Kingston, was groomsman.

For the wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Emmons visited Marmora, Peterborough, and Oshawa, the bride's travelling ensemble being a grey coat, with silver fox collar, and black accessories. They will reside in Kingston.

The guests included immediate relatives and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibson of Kingston.

Expose of Communism Will Feature Address

The Women's Canadian Club of Belleville has been successful in securing Mr. John Hladun, now living in Toronto, as the speaker to be heard at the open meeting next Tuesday in the Sunday School Hall of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mr. Hladun will speak on "They Taught Me Treason", being an expose of Communism in Canada. His articles have appeared recently in different issues of MacLean's Magazine, describing his life as a member of the Communist party, and his conversion while attending a university in Russia.

Mr. Hladun is a Canadian, born of Ukrainian parents, in Winnipeg. He is young, has a pleasing personality and a keen desire to tell other Canadians of the menace of communism. It is expected many citizens will take this opportunity to obtain first hand information of the truth about, and the danger of Communism.

At Tuesday evening's meeting donations of cash and clothing will be received by members of the Club, to be sent to Dr. Hitschmanova as relief for her people in Europe.

Red Cross Visiting Homemaker Service Planned

The Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross plans to inaugurate in the near future, a peacetime service similar to that which has been operating in several other Ontario cities for several years. It is known as the Red Cross Visiting Homemaker Service.

When illness strikes, and the mother has to go to hospital, or must remain in bed at home, the Red Cross Visiting Homemaker moves in to take charge of the household; to care for the children; to plan, buy and cook nourishing food and to keep the house clean and tidy. Thus, the Homemaker provides a real service to the family, by relieving the mother of worry over the household so that she may more quickly recover; and by allowing the father to continue his regular occupation, free from anxiety about his wife and family. This is a service within the means of all families.

Women, who have homemaking ability, and a desire to use it where it is greatly needed and will be appreciated, are invited, through an advertisement in today's paper, to apply for the position of Homemaker.

Should Like Children

For a Homemaker's job, a woman should possess a good disposition, with a genuine liking for children; she should be able to do plain cooking economically and well, and to give (under professional instruction) simple bedside care to the mother, if she is sick in the home. The work will usually involve a working day from 8.00 a m. till 5.00 p.m , or from 8.30 a.m. till 5.30 p.m. The usual maximum period of service in any one home will be two weeks.

Any capable woman, who can take over and manage a home where a mother is ill, and who is interested in this service, may obtain further information regarding suitable remuneration and other details by telephoning 2211-W and application forms will be supplied and an interview arranged.

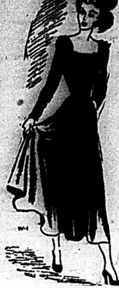
Modified Ballerina



For the cocktail hour

By VERA WINSTON

ALTHOUGH CLASSIFIED as a ballerina type of dress, there is a much more suave look about this model than there is in the usual ballerina. This dress achieves a different look from the flattering bodice which uses cowl drapery to mark the low square neckline. The shoulders are softly emphasized by three little folds, and the skirt swirls below a slim waistline. Midnight blue crepe is the fabric, which is always flattering.

Assists Helping Apps to Stay On Top Scoring Race

Montreal, Dec. 30 (CP)—Syl Apps hasn't scored a goal in a month, but the steady rate at which the veteran Toronto playmaker has been piling up assists finds him on top of the National Hockey League scoring list for the fourth straight week.

Official statistics released today show the 32-year-old centre ice ace with 13 goals and 18 assists for 31 points, three more than runner-up Buddy O'Connor of New York who has 12 markers and 16 assists for 28.

Tied for third spot are Detroit's prize snipers, Ted Lindsay, and Jim McFadden, and Elmer Lach of Montreal, each with 27 points. Next in line with 26 points are the Bentley Brothers, Max of Toronto and Doug of Chicago.

Doug Bentley was the big gamer in an otherwise lean week for N.H.L. marksmen, picking up five points in three games

Grant (Knobby) Warwick of New York picked up two counters to tie Lindsay for leadership in the goals column with 16. Apps is off by himself in the assists department with 18 helpings.

Goalie Bill Durnan of Canadiens, four-time winner of the Vezina trophy, has been displaced as leading netminder by veteran Turk Broda of Toronto. Broda has allowed 67 goals in 29 games for a goals-against average of 2|31. Durnan is close behind with a 2.34 average, and also tops the circuit in shutouts with four.

Aggressive Bill Barilko of the Leafs continues to lead the penalty parade by a comfortable margin with 95 minutes spent in the cooler.

Here's That New Hockey Rule, Lads

There has been some difference of opinion among local hockey master-minds and referees anent the rule change made recently by the National Hockey League and other professional loops, and adopted by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

According to W. A. Hewitt, chairman of the CAHA Rules Committee the regulation provides that, "if a player in the zone from which a pass is made is preceded by the puck into succeeding zones, he may take possession of the puck, except where the 'icing the puck' rule applies."

The above rule replaces the one which had required all passes originating in the defending zone to be completed at the centre-ice red line.

US Olympic Team Has Run Into Another Hazard

Boston, Dec. 30. (AP)— The United States Amateur Hockey Association's Olympic team has run into another hazard.

The State Department at Washington yesterday refused to issue a passport to the first player who applied until approval had been given by the United States Olympic Committee which has ruled the Amateur Athletic Nnion instead of the A.H.A. should select the team.

Vice President Walter Brown of the A.H.A., asserting that such approval was unnecessary, immediately wired Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts asking him to intervene with the State Department.

Jack Riley ,former Dartmouth captain, was the athlete rebuffed He reported to Johnny Garrison, former Harvard star and 1936 United States Olympic hockey player who is coaching the A.H.A.-sponsored team.

Garrison had instructed the members of the squad to apply individually for their passports. The team has booked passage on the Queen Mary which is due to sail to Europe Januaryr 9. The Olympic hockey games are scheduled for the last week in January.

The A.H.A. has received an official entry blank from the Swiss Olympic Games Organizing Committee which rejected the A A.U. in favor of the A.H.A.

In his wire to Saltonstall, Brown said:

"We are in a dispute with the American Olympic Committee as to representation in the hockey games but this fact should not prevent the issuance of passports to the boys chosen by the A.HA.. . . . "

He contended there is no need for telegraphic "or any other kind (of)" approval by the Olympic Committee for a player to compete.

Leafs Answer "Cry Babies" To Rangers' Charges

Toronto, Dec. 30. (CP)— So Coach Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers accuses the Toronto Maple Leafs of "illegal hockey." Boucher thinks the Leafs are the worst team in the league for holding, tripping and interfering."

"Cry-babies," is the answer of Coach Happy Day of the Leafs. "We don't squawk. The rules are the same for everybody."

The Boucher charges were made to newspaper men in New York after the Leafs and Rangers tied 1-1 in Sunday night's game. Boucher said he thought Leafs were coached to do their dirtiest when the referee's back is turned.

It was a rugged struggle that night in Manhattan, with Referee George Hayes awarding 15 minor penalties—eight of them to the Rangers. Fisticuffs threatened on several occasions. Most damaging of the encounters was when Howie Meeker of Leafs and Tony Leswick of Rangers started a personal feud. In the first round Leswick's stick crashed Meeker's forehead. In the second, Meeker picked up Leswick and threw him to the ice, with Leswick's head hitting the crystal and leaving him a dazed hockey player.

Returned to Action

A sympathetic sports writer with the team, Allan Nickleson of The Toronto Globe and Mail, quoted Meeker as saying at this point: "I had my fist back ready to give it to him but then I saw the glazed look in his eyes and I didnt' hit him."

Leswick returned to action after treatment, with a great bandage over his head, and Meeker was quoted as saying: "He managed to raise another bump on the back of my head with his stick."

But as for Boucher: Conn Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, says: "Now I know where that big snowfall came from. The Rangers are throwing snow."

And for the untutored, that's a term used by hockey players to describe a charging opponent who decides at the last moment to stop and in so doing throws a cloud of snow from his whirling skates.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Dec. 30 — (AP) —A bunch of the guys were sitting around discussing last Friday's snowbound pro tennis match when someone remarked: "Bobby Riggs has had the advantage of playing against first class opposition in every one of those 100 matches against Don Budge. I think he's a vastly underrated player." . . . That may sum up the whole situation and bear out this department's contention that a tennis pro should have the advantage over the newly-converted amateur regardless of previous records . . . the pros, of course, don't have the competitive edge that comes from battling for a title in every tournament . . . On the other hand, the amateurs knock off a lot of pushovers and then run into real opposition only in the last couple of rounds . . . It stands to reason that the guy who has to meet a champion in every match should have the edge over the one who faces real tough opposition maybe once a week . . . but our dough still will be on Kramer once big Jake really finds the range. He's that much better than the men he's been playing.

Sports Before Your Eyes

The indoor track season, which gets under way Saturday with the Metropolitan championships, will be notable because of the absence of important talent. The foreign runners will be concentrating on preparations for next summer's Olympics . . . the first official Olympic trial of 1948 is scheduled for New Year's Day when outstanding soccer players of New York's Metropolitan district will show their stuff.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor,

Tonight the buzzing Hornets of the Belleville City and District League swing into action against the fast-stepping Napanee sextette in the second quarter-finals series of the loop. In the second game of the double-header the Stirling squad will match hockey sticks and wits with Ed. Haynes' Blithe Spirits from Cobourg. Two will fade into hockey oblivions and the victors will go into the semi-finals.

• • •

Hornets, whom, it is rumored along the rialtos of sport may drop out of the Intermediate "A" race because of lack of a sponsor, will be at full strength for the important tilt against Walt Gerow's Gibbardville gang, and this affair should be productive of some fast hockey. Stirling who have been clipping at a fast pace in the last two games will also have all their power out there in an effort to send the Cobourg hockey edition of the "Galloping Ghosts" into the discard. But the Haynes puckists will have plenty to say about that, so look out for fireworks.

Convener Sam Curry, of Tweed had his Ontario Minor Hockey Association group managers in conclave over the weekend and the outcome was a highly successful meeting. Stirling, Tweed and Madoc have filed entries in the Juvenile "C" groupings while Belleville Merchants, Trenton, Madoc, Tweed and Stirling will battle it out in the Midget "B" and "C" groups.

• • •

In the schedule published yesterday there were two typographical errors. The Belleville Merchants and Trenton squads are classified as Midget "B" teams and not "C" as was published and will playoff for the right to go on into the "B" playdowns. Stirling, Tweed and Madoc will enter playoff series to decide their representative in the "C" playdowns.

• • •

The boys ironed out a lot of wrinkles at the weekend gathering which included the schedules. This was a lengthy chore in view of the fact that there are enough hockey leagues, or there will be, operating in this district to start an Olympic series of their own. There will be Senior "B", Intermediate "A", Junior "B"; the Trent Valley Hockey League; the Hastings County Rural League, and the Juvenile and Midget groups from the county. Add to that a couple of leagues of midgets and juveniles from the city service clubs, and you know why sports writers generally end-up in a straight jacket, or found wandering on the streets at 3 a.m. mumbling to themselves.

But to get back to the vocal jamboree. The minor loop moguls decided that home teams would furnish the officials. There was a little discussion on this point but the majority ruled in favor of the home-brew arbiters.

• • •

In the Juvenile "C" series the second and third teams will play a two-game goals-to-count series with the winner meeting the group leaders in a best two-of-three games series for plyadown honors. Belleville and Trenton Midget "B" squads will play off in a two-of-three game series with the leading team having the choice of venue in event of a third game. The winners will likely be drawn against the Belleville service clubs entry in the first round of the OMHA playdowns.

"Junior Hockey Appreciation Night" has been set aside for Friday, January 9th, when the Galt Rockets, junior "A" championship aspirants will be the guest here of their smaller siter club the Belleville Rockets. The game will mark the first appearance of the Galt squad in Belleville also their famous coach Alfie Moore, who used to be some punkins as a goalie in the past.

Present at the gabfest besides Convener Currie, were Percy Bossen, Trenton; Bobby Strachan, Belleville Merchants; C. A. Wells, Stirling representing the juvenile squad of that village; R. A. Hermiston, Stirling, representing the midgets also Cliff Halton and John Munro of Bill West's bailiwick. President Newton Wilbur, Coach Cy Barriage and executive member Frank "Duke" Smith of the Belleville Merchants club also lent an attentive ear to the proceedings.

And speaking of the Belleville Merchants Midgets, that well-known young man-about-town Bill Lindsay has been added to the club executive. Bill, as the boys know is the assistant leader in that Bridge Street "cheer" section and will be a welcome asset to the Merchant's master-minds. He has long been interested in sports especially where the younger fellows are concerned. Of course the fact that he is an ex-artillery B. S. M. helps a lot, even friend Perdue will agree to that In any event Bill will take an active part with the club exec. and that should be good enough for anybody.

The inside workings as to how the big gambling syndicates prey on college athletes is brilliantly illustrated in the motion picture, 'The Big Fix" now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The film shows how these parasites do their nefarious work, sparing nothing and stopping at nothing to achieve their ends. The story is excellent and is based on the basketball scandals that rocked American colleges a year or two ago. In the picture is seen the dean of American sports writers, Grantland Rice.

Twas an after - Christmas session and some of the boys were standing around in the composing room after the baby had been put to bed.

"The Mighty Atom" reclined his 105 pounds against a Ludlow, stretched to his full height of five feet 1 inches, that includes boots, and remarked through a haze of flat - fifty fog that rose like a miasmic vapor, "Forty-four years ago today, there were only two automobiles in this village. They were owned by men named Casper Wills and Adolphus Burgoyne."

"Casper" reminisced the M.A. expertly expectorating at a cuspidor fifteen feet to the starboard, "owned a sash and door factory where the Big 'A' Company now operates while Adolphus was a hack-driver, taxi owner to you birds, only his jalopies were nag-drawn buggies."

• • •

"Yep" went on the M. A., "them were the days. The boys with the cars steered 'em with a one-piece handle, went hell-for-leather at a breakneck clip of fifteen miles an hour on the level and then had to get out and push the contraptions up a grade that wasn't over three inches to seventy feet."

"Eggs were a dime a dozen in those days, and if you liked 'em hard-boiled you could go into any of the nineteen saw-dust floored beer and licker bistros that lined the main stem and get one for nothing with a glass of beer."

• • •

"People were better in those days than they are now" the M.A. went on. "The carters of the turn of the century, the lads who used to haul people and goods around the town with their Dobbins and wagons, even had the real Christmas spirit. Seeing a friendly drunk in charge of a policeman, they would halt the dray, ask the limb of the law to look the other way, load the inebriate in the wagon and tote him home."

• • •

"Horse - drawn street - cars wangled their way up and down the main streets. The Belleville Kilties Band was in its heyday and at times the streets were so muddy, the Kilties on parade looked like a flock of women with long skirts, as they plugged through the mire. The gals wore the 'New Look' too, in fact the "Old Glance" hadn't come into being yet. The boys wore high collars and tight pants, derby hats, and raccoon coats. Whisky, grade "A" was ten cents per snort, and the 'squirrel type' was a nickel a glass. You could buy it for a dollar a gallon in bulk. Wages were low compared to the present day, but the cost of living was within reason. You could live for next to nothing and die a lot cheaper that in 1947."

Galt Rockets Hand Stratford 5th Straight Loss

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Rockets blasted Stratford Kroelers into their fifth straight loss with a 5-2 decision in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A fixture at Stratford last night. The last junior game of 1947 gave the fourth-place Rockets their 11th victory in 21 tries.

Hamilton Tigers took a firmer grip on second place in the senior race when they defeated the fourth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 4-3 at Hamilton for their 13th triumph in 20 starts.

Playing Coach Flash Hollett of the Dutchmen will be out of action for at least a month—he was stricken Sunday with an internal hemorrhage brought on by ulcers. Captain Dick Behling and Lloyd Roubell handled the team last night.

The sixth-place Hamilton Patricias are having a tough time of it too. Their netminder, Jack Eley, quit the club Sunday. His reason for leaving was not given. He played with Fresno, Calif., on the Pacific Coast last season.

Fred Porter of Niagara Falls, who played in St. Catharines last season, will replace Eley. Porter joined Tulsa of the United States Hockey League this year and saw action in one game.

Always Outscored

The fifth-place Stratford squad was outscored in every period. Galt led 1-0 in the first 2-0 in the second and took three for two in the third.

Leading the point-getters was Harry Marchand, former Windsor boy now with Galt, who assisted on three goals. Bob Robertson, former Stratford player on the Galt defence for the last two seasons, notched a goal and assist. Joe Beda, Stratford rearguard, led his team with two assists.

Galt goals went to Sam Mulholland, Art Gualazzi, Bob Robertson, Lyle Gibson and Harry Pidhirny. Stratford counters came from Ken Mcardle and Dunc Daniels.

Both Score Twice

At Hamilton the first period saw both teams score twice with Tommy Smelle getting the opener for Tigers at the 4:20 mark. Johnny Blute scored at 6:10 to tie it up and Sparky Weller gave the Dutchmen the lead at 8:45. The visitors retained that edge until late in the frame when Johnny Conick tallied the evener.

Johnny Conick scored the only counter in the middle frame. Teams took one for one in the final stanza, Johnny Blute again scoring for Kitchener and Ab Conick for Hamilton.

Tigers play a return engagement with the Dutchmen at Waterloo in the only senior game slated for tonight. There are no junior tilts scheduled.

Halifax, Dec. 30 (CP) — In sport, most arguments are waged over purely hypothetical questions such as who was the greatest left-hand goalie or whether black horses can run faster than brown ones. But fans in Halifax just had bitter verbal brawl and they emerged unequivocally the winners.

Their gripe was against the Halifax Forum Commission, made up of the Mayor and several Aldermen, and concerned a ban on radio broadcasts of Maritime Senior Hockey League games from the rink.

The commission said the Forum could pour more money into its depleted coffers if it put the squeeze on the broadcasts because it would get more cash customers.

The way it was, everyone stayed home and listened to their radios, complained the commission.

With what amount of confidence they launched their project is still unknown but the day after the decision was handed out that confidence must have taken a terrific beating. An onslaught of protests flooded the mayor's office from every station of the district.

Spearheading the attack with columns full of freshly-sharpened darts was Ace (Halifax Chronicle) Foley, who could get his mind on little else while the ban was in force.

"Think of the shut-ins," said Ace. "The disabled war veterans at Camp Hill Hospital who are unable to go anywhere but who never miss a hockey broadcast."

The number of fans who listen to radio accounts couldn't possibly jam their way into the forum, which seats less than 7,000 and stands only a minor amount said Foley.

The way to get lettuce into the box office was to speed up the brand of hockey being palmed off in the Forum this season.

Halifax Crescents at that stage of their league schedule were trotting along doggedly in a tired third place, without much hope of climbing higher.

Ace made a prediction based on what had happened to rinks that had tried both broadcasting and silence:

"It won't make any difference to the attendance, anyway."

The Forum didn't give his forecast much chance to be tested. They lifted the ban after one game had gone without the commentary of the man in the gondola.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

For crying out loud there is no wailing like that of a bridge player. The voice of the turtle is hushed by his constant bawling. If he is not losing a trick, one is being taken away from him.

In a recent title match came this deal:

NORTH
♠A 6 3
♥8 6 3
♦A J 2
♣K 8 6 4

WEST	EAST
♠5 4	♠10
♥K 9 7	♥Q 10 5 4 2
♦Q 10 8 5	♦K 9 6 4 3
♣J 10 9 3	♣5 2

SOUTH
♠K Q J 9 8 7 2
♥A J
♦7
♣A Q 7

At one table the bidding went like this:

South	North
3 S	4 NT
6 D	6 S
7 S	Pass

An opening of three in a major suit shows a practically solid sylt of at least seven cards. This suit was not quite solid enough. But it is worthy of such a bid by expert standards.

Besides such a suit is made a promise that the hand contains at least one sure outside trick. All of which combines to take eight tricks with that suit as trump.

In response thereto, partner bids game in that suit with one or more tricks. Beginners should have two. This difference is due to the fact that an expert may squeeze out an extra trick.

If responder has two sure tricks he should invite a slam. How is this done? By bidding anything except four in the bid suit. And And if he can ask for aces and kings, he should do so.

Four no-trump is the ace and king asker. Six diamonds is Kibitzer convention reply for showing two aces and one king. The four no-trump bidder decides the final contract. But in this case south bid seven.

Opening lead from west was the club jack. There is a possible loser, the second heart round. But the declarer can take all 13 of the tricks against any-

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 30 (AP) — Movie experts, who can whip up a hurricane or an earthquake with no great difficulty, are having a dickens of a time creating a mermaid.

The creature is needed out at Universal City for a film called "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid" and U-C's makeup men, headed by Buddy Westmore, have been having quite a to-do about it.

"We started out with two weeks and $500 to do it with," said Buddy. "So far we have used 12 weeks and $14,000."

Their difficulties stem from the desire to please (1) Historians; (2) Censors; (3) Admirers of mermaids. Here's how it turned out:

(1) Much reseach was performed on old prints to determine the historical conception. It was discovered that traditional mermaids were three-fourths fish, possessing a tail 12 feet long. This unglamarous possibility was discarded and historians were thrown for a loss.

(2) Censors were no small problem since mermaids are well known for eschewing upper garments. The suggestion that the normal arrangement be reveersed, with the upper half fish-like and attached to human legs, was rejected. It was decided to screen the mermaid's charms with floating seaweed and midway through the film Mr. Peabody will buy a swimming suit to for her.

(3) Mermaid lovers are the victors. The piscatorial lines have been neglected for a curvaceous, human-like form which would evoke a whistle from even the most ardent fish-haters.

CHAPTER 9.

"Others heard it. Can you suggest what he might have meant by it?"

"I can think of nothing that would explain it. There was no man near him that I know of, and it seems to me he merely spoke aloud something that was in his thoughts."

"You are staying here, Mr. Haskell?"

"Yes I came for the tournament. There are several guests. I supposewe shall all go home today."

"Today? Oh, yes, its already half-past four!"

"Can you not postpone this inquiry until later in the day, and let these weary people get some rest?"

"After a very few more questions, I will do so. Mrs. Forrest, will you come over here?"

"Yes, Mr. Mitchell," and Jean rose and with an assured air crossed the room and sat down near the District Attorney.

"I am sorry to distress you, but I must ask you a few questions."

"Certainly; do so."

But Mitchell found it very hard to begin.

At last, he said "Will you tell me, Mrs. Forrest, what, in your opinion, caused the death of your husband?"

"I can't do that, Mr. Mitchell. Doctor Gregg, who was my husband's physician, said that he himself could not tell. We are awaiting the report from the hospital."

"Do you know what caused the cut in Mr. Forrest's neck?"

"It would seem that it must have been made by foil, as I can see no other possibility. The explanation would be that Mr. Forrest had some sort of convulsion, and fell forward on the tip of the foil. But I cannot state this as a fact, for I did not see him do anything of the kind."

"You drew your foil out at the last?"

"Drew it out is not the right word to use. We do not puncture when we practice."

"But this cut is there on Mr. Forrest's neck, and I can suggest no way it could get there except by your foil, can you?"

"Oh, yes. But I must understand your attitude. If you are accusing me of purposely stabbing my husband, it is your duty to say so; in which case I should refuse to answer you without counsel. But if you are questioning me, as you have the others, with the intent of finding out the facts of the matter, I shall be glad to help you."

No one dared feel sorry for Jean. She looked like a Goddess of Justice herself, and seemed far more comptent to question Mitchell than he to question her.

Though immobile and unexpressive, her beautiful face was touching in it's gentle calm and its proud dignity.

Mitchell made the only answer possible. "Certainly, Mrs. Forrest," he said. "I am asking you only for information that will help me to help you. As I understand it, you and Mr. Forrest were having a bit of practice for the coming tournament."

This was not a question, so she made no reply.

"Did you practice like this often?"

"Every night we have been in the habit of fencing for fifteen minutes, lest we lose our form."

"I see. How long have you been married, Mrs. Forrest?"

The beautiful eyebrows went up a trifle, as if at the irrelevance of the question, and the reply came coldly.

"About two years."

"Your union was a love match?"

Jean's impulse was to resent this in plain words, but she chanced to catch Sayre's eyes, and changed her mind.

"Very much so," she said with a brief but charming smile.

And then sadness returned to her face, and Mitchell obeyed his impulse from troubling.

"I think," he said, "I will now excuse you all, and ask you to meet me here at eleven o'clock. None of you will be permitted to leave the house, and I must ask you to be here promptly."

"I suppose, Mr. Mitchell, Austin said, "it is my duty to take my brother's place in any matter that calls for such authority."

"This is outside my jurisdiction, Mitchell replied, "but I am safe in saying you should do that tonight. Later, I assume, you will have a conference with Mrs. Forrest and with Mr. Forrest's lawyer."

"Don't bother your dear head about it, Jean," Austin said, gently. "I will relieve you of all business details."

"Thank you, Austin, but I shall, of course, be at the conference. I trust you will be able to get some rest before we must meet here again." And in our own inimitable way, Jean gave a gesture of good night, which included all present.

Jean walked across the hall to her own rooms, and on entering she found Rhoda there.

"I made bold to come to you, madam, because I did not wish to ask of the servants," Florimel's nursemaid said.

"You did just right, Rhoda. I sent Mimi to bed long ago. You know what happened?"

"Molton told me his master is dead," Rhoda said, as if unwilling to believe it without Jean's corroboration.

"Yes, Rhoda. Some kind of accident happened, or he was ill. Mr. Forrest is dead."

"And we'll bring the baby right back here, ma'am!"

Jean was startled, but it was because she heard Rhoda give voice to what she had been thinking.

"We will see to that in good time, Rhoda. Yes, we will have her back here; she cannot disturb Mr. Forrest now."

Nor Miss Fane. Will the lady stay on, ma'am?"

It was only at high-pressure moments that Rhoda overstepped her privileges, but just now she forgot all her duty in her intense desire to know what changes would be made.

"I don't know yet, and you must not ask questions. And don't chatter with the others. I have grave responsibilities now, Rhoda, and I want to feel sure of your loyalty and help."

"Yes, Mrs. Forrest, and now I'm going to tuck you into your bed. You must sleep late in the morning— as if it were not morning now!"

"Tell Mimi to come to me at seven, not later. I have much to do, and I am too weary to do anything now."

"Seven o'clock, ma'am! Please make it eight!"

"No, seven and prompt. Good night, Rhoda."

The nurse went off, shaking her head at thought of the problems that would beset her loved mistress. But in her heart of hearts, Rhoda felt a great joy that Vivian Forrest was no longer in the land of the living.

District Attorney Mitchell was well pleased that at last he was about to go home and to bed. But, also, he felt that things were not going right.

He had a few words with Austin, after all the rest had left them. He said, a little petulantly, "I do hate to begin an inquiry after midnight; it's sure to last over the next day."

"And more days," Austin prophesied. "There's a lot more to this thing than just the death of Vivian."

"Meaning just what?"

"Oh, the estate, the property and all that."

"Forrest left a will?"

"Probably. But there will be claims. However, that's outside your field."

"Yes I say, Forrest, what did the little popinjay mean by menagerie at Troy?"

"Didn't you catch on? Do you know French?"

"Doesn't sound like French to me."

"Well, it is. Esmeralda is far from being a scholar, and what she said is her rendition of menage a trois."

"And what does that mean?"

"In this case, I think it meant that the big idea was to have Jean and Esmeralda both live here—and Vivian, too."

"For heaven's sake! I never thought Vivian was as bad as that!"

"He was pretty bad. He led Jean an awful life. She bore it all because of the child. Now, see here, I've told you this with a reason."

"What is it?"

"Just because I feared you might hear these things from somebody else, and suspect Jean of—being careless with her foil."

"No,—I didn't think of carelessness—"

"But you thought of intention! Well, just put it out of your mind. She's incapable of anything of the sort—"

"Accident, maybe?"

"No, it was not an accident."

"But, look here, man, the foil pierced his throat, didn't it? Who else had a foil in use?"

"All the same, Jean did nothing wrong. Remember that. Could there have been some hocus-pocus going on with that little flip actress?

"She doesn't fence, they say."

"I don't mean fencing. See here, Vivian fell down, yes, but who knows that he wasn't stabbed before he fell? Mightn't Esme have run across the room, stabbed him herself, and then sat down beside him, her white gown all over blood stains?"

"Are you a Conan Doyle? You're no near Sherlock Holmes, but as a fictionist, that sounds pretty fair. How do you get imagination like that?"

"Don't be silly! It's no harder to imagine that than to imagine Jean's killing Vivian! Jean, of all people! But you don't really think it's murder, do you? Why, that would mean detectives and evidence and inquest and trial and all sorts of horrors!"

"You read your thrillers, don't you? Now, it's all right here. The autopsy will reveal what it was that killed Vivian. We don't know, and there is no use trying to guess; we must wait for the report from the hospital. If you'll give me a shakedown here, I won't go home. It's after five now, almost daylight. Guess I'll bunk here."

Before Austin could stop him, Mitchell had flung off his coat and shoes and thrown himself on a big soft couch.

"Clear out," he said, as Austin spoke. "Good night."

Leaving him there, Austin went away. In the hall, he paused, thinking he heard a sound.

He looked around but saw no door open, and heard nothing more.

He started again, and then he saw a faint line of light.

He went toward it. The light went out, but the door opened a bit more and Esme's voice whispered, "Come in."

Austin went in.

Exactly at seven Mimi appeared. She found her mistress awake and alert. The two understood each other perfectly, and when Jean saw that the maid was just an animated question mark, she said firmly but not unkindly. "We will not speak of the tragedy, Mimi. Go on with your work as usual."

HENRY WALLACE AS INDEPENDENT FOR PRESIDENCY

Campaign on Platform "Peace and Prosperity"

Chicago, Dec. 30 — (AP) — Henry A. Wallace said last night: "I shall run as an independent candidate for president of the United States in 1948."

He announced he will campaign on a platform advocating "peace and prosperity" and said both Democrats and Republicans 'stand for a policy which opens the door to war in our lifetime, and makes war certain for our children."

Asked if he hoped to be elected as an independent, Wallace replied "There's always hope."

Wallace made his announcement in a radio address. A former Democratic vice-president and former cabinet officer under two Democratic presidents, Wallace thus bolted the Democratic party which he had joined despite the background of a staunch Republican family.

He also ended speculation about his political plans, speculation that had been started when he resigned as secretary of commerce at the request of President Truman. The resignation followed Wallace's opposition to then State Secretary James F. Byrne's policy of a firm hand in dealings with Russia.

At the same time, Wallace announced that he had resigned as editor of the New Republic, a weekly publication, but said he will continue as a contributing editor and will write a weekly page for the magazine. He became editor of the New Republic after resigning from the cabinet.

Wallace's announcement brought a statement from Senator Glen H. Taylor (Dem. - Idaho) that he is considering the possibility of running for vice-president on a ticket headed by Wallace.

Vice President in 1940

Wallace, who was elected with President Roosevelt in 1940 and then dropped in favor of Harry Truman in 1944, said "thousands of people" had asked him to "engage in this great fight."

The Progressive Citizens of America and the New Progressive Party of Chicago had suggested that Wallace enter the race. In addition, a Wallace spokesman said that persons from 18 States and the District of Columbia had made a similar request yesterday. The decision of the P.C.A. to endorse Wallace last week caused resignation of two of the organization's top officers.

Senator William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) said Wallace's campaign "will have a considerable adverse effect on the Democratic party not only in California but also in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and possibly one or two other states."

At a press conference following his broadcast, Wallace said he would withdraw from the presidential race "should either of the major parties become definitely a peace party before the election." He also said the new party, as yet un-named, "would support Progressive Democratic candidates for Congress."

On foreign affairs, the issue which caused his departure from President Truman's cabinet, he said:

"I fight the Truman doctrine and the Marshall plan as applied because they divide Europe into two warring camps...

"We are restoring western Europe and Germany. Because we want to hem Russia in. We are acting in the same way as France and England after the last war, and the end result will be the same—confusion, depression and war..."

Labor Leaders Call For Courage And Work in '48

Ottawa, Dec. 30 (CP)—Hopeful messages for the New Year came today from Labor leaders in Canada as the old year creaked out and the leaders called for courage and work to make 1948 a better year than 1947.

Labor Minister Mitchell pointed to the good year 1947 has been in Canada in comparison with other countries and called for amicable relations between labor and management and increased production.

Percy Bengough, President of the Trades and Labor Congress, called for more teamwork on the part of all Canadians to "make our democratic way of life work. We don't feel that it is working effectively as long as we have fear and want—still the lot of many Canadians."

A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labor, called for faith in the future as a fundamental in the battle for world peace.

Mr. Mitchell, noting the high employment levels of 1947 and the abundance in Canada of good food, some of the pleasures of life, and freedom, said Canadians could well be thankful for the past.

In the New Year "above all, we must have unity and I want to emphasize particularly the importance of amicable relations between labor and management."

Mr. Mosher, looking to "some definite advance toward the attainment of world peace," said workers were becoming "more concerned with education, realizing the vital necessity of educated people if democracy is to be strongly established."

Mr. Bengough said Canadians could be proud of being citizens of Canada but not of the way in which the sick and aged had been looked after. "There is no insurmountable barrier in the way of a full and comprehensive scheme of health insurance and less in the way of establishing laws that will guarantee full protection to our aged citizens."

FEMALE LYNX SHOT

St. Thomas, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Believed by local hunters to be the first seen here in 30 years, a 38-pound female lynx was shot by four rabbit hunters in nearby Yarmouth township Saturday. It took three shots to kill the lynx.

ONE SENTENCED TO DEATH

Warsaw, Dec. 30 — (AP) — A military tribunal in Rzeszow, southeastern Poland, Sunday sentenced one defendant to death and seven others to four to 15 years in prison for spying on behalf of foreign powers and for other anti-government activities.

FAMILY LOSES THREE IN COLLISION

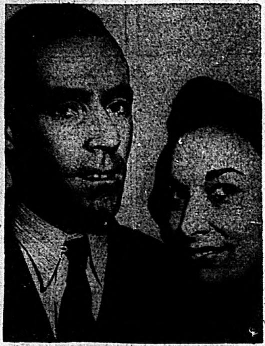
Youngest in the party, Albert Bourdeau, 16, was one of crash victims.

Killed with son and grandson was Dominic Bourdeau. The train was running late.



Only survivor of the train-car crash which killed four near Tilbury, Ont., is Henry Thibert, seen with his bride of a month. His brother, Alex, 33, and three members of the Bourdeau family were instantly killed in the Saturday accident.

Hundreds of bags of flour were moved from adjoining premises of the Wonder Bread Co., into which water seeped. Hurrying out the flour are, from left: James Briggs, William Searle and John Hamilton, sales manager.

Chronic Drunk Made That Way By Metabolism

Chicago, Dec. 30 (AP) —You won't become a chronic drunk unless you're physically made that way, Dr. Roger Williams of the University of Texas said today.

He suggested that alcoholic addiction may be due to a particular set-up of enzymes and harmones and other substances taking part in the body's metabolism (the process of tissue change).

That is, the barfly's individual metabolic makeup pre-disposes him to addiction; whereas the sober-as-a-judge individual has a different type.

"According to this hypothesis," William told the 114th. meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, "environment factors are potent and indispensable for bringing about alcoholic addiction, but they do not do so unless the person involved possesses the type of metabolic individuality which pre-disposes toward addiction."

Must Stop Serving Sharp at Midnight On New Year's Eve

Montreal, Dec. 30 —(CP)— All bars in liquor dispensing establishments in Montreal will stop serving drinks at 12 o'clock sharp New Year's Eve and will remain closed until 1 p.m. the following day, which will be treated as a Sunday, Edouard Rivard, chairman of the Quebec Liquor Commission, said Monday.

Food may be served after midnight, the Liquor Commission chairman said.

Newspaper files show that this is the first time in the recorded history of the city that the law treating New Year's as a religious holiday, with a midnight closing, has been enforced.

Rivard said that there will be no confusion about closing as there was Christmas Eve. At that time customers and club owners alike were in a daze as a last minute change in instructions forced establishments to shut down completely.

They originally had been ordered to close at 11:30 Christmas Eve and re-open at 1 a.m. Thursday.

HOPE VIRTUALLY ABANDONED FOR MISSING FIVE

Six of Eight Crew Members of Crashed B-29 Back to Safety

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 30—(AP)—Six of eight crew members of a crashed B-29 were back to safety today through the heroism of two Alaska bush pilots, but five other men are still missing and feared dead in the frigid wastes of Seward Peninsula, 95 miles to the north.

The bodies of two men, thought to be members of the three-man parachute team that leaped to the aid of the stricken fliers Saturday night, were believed to have been sighted less than 500 yards from the crash scene. A driver and dog team will attempt to locate them today.

An intensive search also will be continued for the pilot of the Superfortress, Lieut. Vern Arnett, and the navigator, Lieut. Frederick Sheetz.

Neither has been seen since they set out together Christmas night, 48 hours after their big ship plowed into the side of a low hill. They told the rest of the crew they would seek aid at the Eskimo village of Shishmaref, 50 miles north.

The daring rescue was performed by Frank H. Whaley of the Wien Alaska Airline and William Munz of the Munz Airline, both of Nome.

Flying in 40-below zero weather they set their small, single-engined planes down in a hazardous landing on the crest of a hill close to the crumbled bomber. They quickly loaded the six weak airmen into their ski-equipped craft, make a dangerous take-off from the snow-covered slope and returned to Nome without mishap.

Their aid was enlisted by the United States Air Forces after military rescue operations Saturday night and Sunday met with misfortune.

The driver of the dog team, Charles O'Leary, flown into the crash scene yesterday, was ordered to remain at the disaster site and search for bodies of the medical aid trio.

Nome air base authorities said all six of the survivors were in good spirits and fair health despite spending nearly six days and nights in the sub-Arctic where temperatures hovered between 30 and 40 degrees below zero. One of the men suffered a broken leg and another is being treated for a frozen face.

"The men had been given a few seconds warning and were braced for the impact, so fortunately none of us was badly hurt. After everyone got out the front of the plane began to burn and was destroyed, along with the bulk of our emergency supplies.

"Fortunately we had some food and medical equipment in the back end and got by all right until we were rescued. We threw a canvas tarpaulin over the tail end of the plane and managed to build a fire which kept going intermittently."

MRS. ANNIE KING 108 YEARS OLD

Brantford, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Mrs. Annie King, one of Canada's oldest residents, marked her 108th birthday Sunday. Her eyesight and hearing are still fairly good and she still gets the noon-day meal for her 64-year-old son Francis.

N.Y. Film Critics Announce Awards

New York, Dec. 30 —(AP)— The New York film critics at their 13th annual session yesterday voted "Gentlemen's Agreement" the best film of the year.

The selection was made by a vote of 9 to 7. The seven cast their ballots for "Great Expectations."

Other selections included:

Best actor, William Powell for his work in "Life With Father" and "The Senator Was Indiscreet." In this selection Powell received 10 votes to six for John Garfield in 'Body and Soul."

Best actress, Deborah Kerr for her work in "The Adventuress" and "Black Narcissus." She received 12 votes.

Best foreign film, the Italian picture "To Live in Peace," won with 12 votes.

YUGOSLAV MAIZE FOR EGYPT

Cairo, Dec. 30 — (AP)—Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashi Pasha told a press conference that Yugoslavia would sell 8,000 tons of maize to Egypt by mid-January. Announcement also was made that the Egyptian minister had approved allocation of $8,260,000 for the purchase of British army surplus equipment.

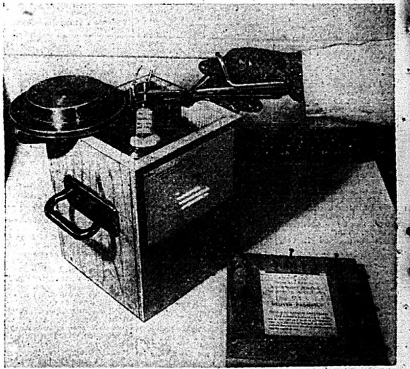
NO TRESPASSING
NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA
ATOMIC ENERGY PROJECT
SECURITY ENFORCED BY ARMED GUARDS

Soldier stands guard outside the National Research Council $20,000,000 atomic energy plant at Chalk River. Two years of experimentation there have opened new avenues in the realm of physical, chemical and biological research. While newspapermen still are barred, photographers of the National Film Board were recently allowed to take pictures of part of the plant and some of its equipment.



Man's greatest tools for investigating the mysteries of his universe, radioactive isotopes are placed in a heavy metal container at the $20,000,000 Canadian atomic energy plant at Chalk River for shipment to scientific researchers. Because of dangerous radiations, worker wears rubber gloves, uses tongs. Express employees get special instruction in handling. Termed "atoms with a tail light," radio isotopes can be detected throughout complicated chemical reactions and biological cycles and tagged as "tracers" in a system of "tagged" atomic research. Isotope of an element has same chemical properties, but different atomic weight.

Since new currency and import restrictions came into force Nov. 17, Canadian customs inspection at border points has stiffened noticeably. Ignorance of regulations rather than deliberate attempts at smuggling is blamed by customs officials for the large number of seizures in recent weeks. To the array of seized goods (above), Customs Inspector John Booth adds a woman's fur coat, now on the prohibited list. Such articles as cigarets, fruits, shoes, liquor, dime novels and toy games are but part of goods seized recently on Niagara border. None can now be imported.

Toronto Hotels Not Sure About Liquor Sales

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Liquor on New Year's Eve in Toronto hotels and night clubs is going to be a problem in more ways than one.

The establishments had already received formal notices from the Liquor Control Board that regular hours of sale would prevail New Year's Eve, which meant that sale of liquor could continue until 2 a.m. That's the regular closing hour every night except Saturday when it is midnight.

Then some thoughtful soul pointed out that New Year's Day in Toronto is a civic election day, and that provincial law forbids sale of liquor on election days.

That started a scramble to find out when an election day officially starts. Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Liquor Licence Board, who should know, said flatly last night midnight is the legal closing hour and anyone who wants to go by the technical ruling that liquor sale continues until 2 a.m. is welcome to test it in the courts.

Most Toronto night spot proprietors now are already in a state of confusion that will easily match that of their customers.

Inspiring Christmas Carol Service In St. Paul's Church

Marmora. — The festival of Christmas was observed at St. Paul's with a carol service at 11 p.m. on Christmas eve followed by a choral celebration of Holy Communion. The church was beautifully decorated for this largely attended service. In addition to choice chrysanthemums in memory of the late Mr. William Nuttall and Mrs. H. M Jones adorning the altar and organ, evergreens were used to good effect in the decorative scheme. These were tied to the seat ends with red ribbon and placed on window sills, with two Christmas trees at the east end of the nave, giving the interior of the church a seasonable appearance. The rector, Rev. J. M Brownlie, officiated. During the carol service, the choir rendered the Anthem, "When Jesus was Born", (Caleb Simper). The opening solo was taken by W. J Cottrell and the duet part by Mesdames P. Gray and S. Higginson. The special lesson from St. Luke's Gospel was read by the lay reader W. J. Cottrell. During the offertory in the Communion service, another of Caleb Simper's anthems, "His Name Shall be Wonderful", was sung by the choir with Mrs. P Gray as soloist. The rector delivered an impressive discourse on the "Incarnation".

SANTA VISITS MARMORA

Marmora. (Special.)—With a decorated sleigh and team, Santa Claus rode in state from the Town Hall, on Tuesday afternoon, to the special platform erected for himself and assistants on Forsyth Street. Eleanor Stringer, 19 (left) of West Montrose, was held prisoner by Pat Letson, 55, through Saturday night in the house where he had shot and killed his three cousins, Hugh, Percy and Wilson Letson, and Hugh's wife, Mary. Miss Stringer is seen holding her scarf soaked with blood from a cut in her head received when the murderer grappled with her. Pat Letson later took his own life. At right is a view of living room in the Letson home. One body was found on the settee, two others near doorway at left.

U.S. Problem in Dealing With Japan Complicated By Failure of Allied Unity

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 30 (CP) — The United States, which largely engineered the defeat of Japan, now faces the problem of what to do with the conquered country and the problem is complicated by the failure of Allied unity in Europe.

Appeasement of Russia, designed to quicken Soviet aid in the war against Japan, has kicked back to bedevil attempts to bring peace to Europe and seems certain similarly to bog down a far east settlement.

Since it now seems certain that the major Allies must proceed to do what they can to make peace in Europe without the co-operation of Russia, observers here say the administration is resigned to a similar situation in the far east.

Canada has a fixed right to participation in the Japanese peace treaty-writing job and has membership on the far eastern commission which has been directing the administration of that country since the surrender.

The Russian idea that the peace should be made, at least in its preliminary stages, by the Big Four—Britain, Russia, the United States and China—would preclude Canada from the preliminaries.

However it appears likely because of the dismal failure of the Big Four (with France in place of China) to make progress with a European settlement, that the Russian plan will be rejected.

Russia has refused to go along with a United States proposal to start work on preliminaries to a Japanese peace conference with all those 11 countries which contributed and are on the far east commission represented. Russia wants the Big Four to handle it.

The Soviet government also has stymied efforts to agree on allocation of reparations payments which may be collected from Japan.

Economists in Congress and elsewhere are anxious to get Japanese industry and trade back on a more normal basis and the administration expects to hear some pointed questions when the members come back to work early in January.

Gen. MacArthur, who has been a sort of beneficent dictator of Japan since he took the surrender, has not been in the United States in 10 years.

Most people here agree that he has done a remarkable job but there is a general belief that he wants to see arrangements made that will permit him to come home next spring.

DEPICT PIONEER DAYS

Vancouver, Dec. 30 — (CP) — The Vancouver News - Herald in a newspage story today said a $1,000,000 technicolor picture depicting pioneer days in Canada would be filmed near Vancouver early in January. The newspaper said the picture's stars, John Wayne, Clair Trevor and Jack Holt, would arrive in the city early next week.

GAS AND STOMACH DISORDERS MADE HER NERVOUS, RUNDOWN

Had Throbbing Headaches and Dizzy Spells—Always Tired, Couldn't Sleep. Got Prompt Relief by Taking Syntona.

"For several years I was troubled with nervous, upset stomach and I cannot tell you how grateful I am for the good results I got by taking a few bottles of Syntona," said Mrs. Vera Brown, 376 Ridout Street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Even the lightest foods used to cause gas, sour acid risings and awful attacks of heartburn. I would feel bloated and short of breath. Often, I got dizzy spells and throbbing headaches and I just had no appetite for my meals. I felt extremely tired and so very nervous that I was irritable and many night couldn't get to sleep for hours after going to bed. My complexion was sallow and my skin was rough and pimply.

"Having tried many things without benefit I was very discouraged. But when a friend told me about Syntona, I got some, and began to feel better even after taking it the first few days. This gave me new hope, so I continued taking Syntona and the results have been just marvellous.

"The stomach distress is relieved so I can eat all my meals now and have no trouble afterward. I am free of gas, headaches and dizziness and my nerves are calmed down so I have no trouble getting to sleep at night. My skin has cleared up and whereas I used to be so tired and irritable, I now feel fine and I cannot praise this medicine highly enough."

If you suffer as Mrs. Brown did, why not give this pure herbal compound a chance to help you, too? Syntona is pleasant to take, it contains no harmful drugs, and the results are quickly felt

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

College Students Favor Holding Beauty Contests

Winnipeg, Dec. 30 —(CP)— University professors and students are agreed on one thing — there must be culture in college.

But they're not so unanimous as to what should constitute culture. Take co-ed beauty contests, for example.

Last spring some Western university presidents suggested that while there might be culture in such displays . . . they didn't quite taken in the classical lines university students were supposed to follow.

Today Western delegates to the 11th annual conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students are on record —unofficially — as disagreeing with the presidents.

They have no resolution on the agenda favoring continuation of such beauty contests as sponsored by the University of British Columbia last spring. But at a session immediately preceding the convention, now in its second day here, the delegates suggested that skipping beauty contests would be as bad as skipping lectures.

The pros and cons of co-ed parades was first debated in Western Canada last spring when University of British Columbia at Vancouver staged a contest to determine the university co-ed queen of the West. Reason for the contest: a drive to raise funds for the university's memorial project.

Everything was maintained on classical lines — even to the contestants being judged in evening gowns instead of the customary bathing suits.

But the university presidents did not appear impressed.

France Refuses Gas Rations to Red Party

Paris, Dec. 30 (AP)—Interior Minister Jules Moch told the National Assembly he had refused gasoline rations to the Communist party "because the republic has a right to defend itself."

All French political parties have been receiving special rations of motor fuel. Communist Deputy Fernand Grenier asked why the Communists were crossed off the list.

"Your men stole enough gasoline from the factories they occupied during the strikes," Moch said.

Geologists See Western Canada As Virgin Oil Soil

Ottawa, Dec. 30 — (CP) — A flat prediction that the Western Canadian plains may become the site of "hundreds upon hundreds" of rich oil fields as yet undiscovered was on the record of an international gathering of geologists today.

This forecast came from Dr. A. I. Loversen, Professor of Standford University of California, who told nearly 600 Canadian and American geologists last night that it is "inconceivable" that this should not be so and added that the same reasoning applied to Mexico.

Addressing the first joint annual meeting of the Geological Association of Canada and the Geological Society of America, he added:—

"Deposits such as the Athabasca oil sands of Canada or the Golden Lane and Poza Rica fields of Mexico give a measure of the possible size of some of these undiscovered fields. Not until thousands of additional test wells have been drilled throughout both regions can we say that the exploration of these areas has been completed."

Dr. Levorsen, who spoke as retiring president of the American Society, said heavy current demands for oil and the fact production in the U. S. is running so close to capacity "gives legitimate ala mrabout our ability to continue to supply adequate amounts of petroleum during the decades ahead."

James Gilluly of the University of California, Los Angeles, was elected president of the American Society while Dr. J. W. Ambrose, Professor at Queen's University, Kingston, was re-elected president of the Canadian Association.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie was carving his initials in his hockey stick with his Scout knife, and I started to make things with my modeling set, and I thawt, G, if I can only make him think this modeling set is a super swell thing to have, he might swap me his Scout knife for it, maybe.

And I said, Oh boy, if you want to make me happy forever, just give me a modeling set, and Artie said, Well what's a matter, you've got one haven't you?

Sure, that's just what I mean, I'm sattisfied, I said, and Artie said, This Scout knife is good enough for me. When you carve in things with a Scout knife, they stay in, because they're permanent, he said.

Sure, and if you carve them in wrong, they're still permanent, and there's no way to get them off your conscience, I said. If I make something with this modeling set and it terns out hecky looking, I can squeeze it together again and start all over, I said, and Artie said, That's too cintchy for me. You've got to be perfect every second when you carve things with a Scout knife, and that's what keeps it so intristing. That's the best thing I like about it, he said.

Give me this modeling set, that's all I can say, I said. I can make things with it and listen to the radio at the same time, or even look at the comics, just the same as if I was doing my homewerk for school. That's my idea of having fun without strain or worry. G roozalem, I didn't realize how swell it really was. I was going to offer to swap it for your Scout knife, but not now. No sir, nuthing doing, I said.

That's just a way I feel about this Scout knife now, Artie said. I was thinking about trading it, but now I've talked myself into keeping it, he said.

$100,000 FIRE IN HAMILTON

Three-alarm fire in Hamilton did damage of nearly $100,000 when flames gutted the building and destroyed stock of the L. and G. Paper Co. One fireman and one bystander were injured. A fireman directs a stream of water into the building. Only the walls stand today.

You get LESS in ALUMINUM

LESS WEIGHT. Take an Aluminum baby carriage for instance. It's light. Weighs less than a carriage made of other metals. There's no dead weight to trundle around. And it's a lot less cumbersome to handle on stairs.

Aluminum is strong, good-looking, definitely rust-proof. The baby carriage is typical of the many beautiful things made of Alcan Aluminum which are available today to serve the Canadian home.

More than 600 independent Canadian manufacturers make Aluminum products.

Politics Rather Than Romance Caused Abdication

Michael Angered by Govt. Plan to Aid Greek Reds

By TOM WILLIAMS

London, Dec. 31 (AP)—Politics rather than romance was behind the abdication of King Michael of Romania, in the opinion of most observers here.

Dimitri Dimanesco, former Romanian embassy official, said the Romanian government had refused to allow Michael to marry Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, but that this was a "purely secondary consideration."

Some of the press on the continent, however, leaned to the view that Michael's love for the Danish Princess was the principal reason for his decision.

British court circles said Michael was debating abdication with his mother, Queen Helen, during their recent visit to London for the wedding of Princess Elizabeth to Prince Philip, and may have decided even before leaving on his course.

"He did not want to go back," a reliable source reported, "and his mother did everything possible to dissuade him from going back. But he made a noble gesture. It would have been cowardly not to return.

The London Star said Michael conferred here with both Foreign Secretary Bevin and former Prime Minister Churchill and received sympathetic advice "on a personal basis."

Dimanesco, who said he resigned as counsellor at the London embassy because he would not subscribe to his government's "Communist ideas."

Dimanesco said "the real reason for Michael's action was that while he was in London for the wedding of Princess Elizabeth certain steps were taken by the government behind his back and without his knowledge."

He said the king had learned a new minister "intended to send Romania troops to help the Communists in Greece."

BRITISH SCHOOL CHILDREN WILL GET TO KNOW THOSE IN U. S.

London, Dec. 31 —(Reuters)— Six teen-aged British school children will spend six weeks in New York beginning Jan. 23 to get to know American children of their own age. The children, chosen by the Council for Education in World Citizenship of the British United Nations Association, will stay with ordinary New York families with a host or hostess of equal age and sex, attend the same schools as their hosts and exchange views with their New York fellow pupils about British and American schools.

SNEAK THIEF GETS $1,090 FROM GROCETERIA

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—A sneak thief who entered the store just at closing time last night escaped with $1,090, the day's receipts, from a Loblaw's groceteria on Midtown College Street. The money had been placed in a bag under a counter while employees were cleaning up, but when they came for it the money was gone.

PRESIDENT WILL NOT COMMENT ON WALLACE'S ACTION

Former Vice-President Has Six-Months' Jump on Other Candidates

Washington, Dec. 31 (AP) — With a shake of his head, President Truman replied no comment today when asked about Henry A. Wallace's candidacy for President of the United States.

Reporters sought several times at Truman's press conference to get his reaction to Wallace's third party move. But the President would not comment on Wallace's action, or on what his former Commerce Secretary had said in criticism of the administration.

But outside the White House, the capital still was buzzing over Wallace's independent bid for the presidency.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) told reporters he believes one result will be a return of Democratic Party machinery to "regular" control in key political states.

Sparkman, who headed the congressional speakers' bureau in the 1946 campaign, said he believes Wallace's third party campaign will have the "healthy effect" of increasing Democratic Party activity.

As an example, Sparkman said he thinks the Democrats relied too strongly on American labor party help in New York in the past. The A.L.P. may endorse Wallace, but in doing so would lose a large segment of its strength by the departure of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers who oppose a third party.

Wallace, meanwhile, continued his way on a presidential campaign which, officially at least, has a six-months jump on either of his major party rivals. They will not be chosen until later in the year.

As a starter the former vice-president laid down at Milwaukee last night a seven-point "Wallace plan" for economic recovery in Europe which would give the United Nations control over rehabilitation efforts.

Countries "possessed of the means" would finance a five-year program and no political or economic conditions could be attached to the grant of funds. None of the money could be used to buy military supplies, as the United States now is doing in Greece and Turkey.

Additionally, the German Ruhr would be placed under control of the Big Four, giving Russia a hand in an area where it now has no direct control.

Where any third party ticket would get its official start, however, remained in doubt. Some pointed to the organization meeting of the Progressive Citizens of America, scheduled for Jan. 16 in Chicago, as a possible base.

MARSHALL 'MAN OF YEAR'

New York, Dec. 31 — (AP) — State Secretary Marshall today was named "man of the year" by Time, weekly news magazine, which called him the "man who had the biggest rise in fame during the year, and who, more than anyone else, changed the news for better or worse."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Dec. 31 —(CP)— Synopsis: Occasional light freezing rain is occurring in some sections Southwestern Ontario this morning and occasional light snow in some sections of Northern Ontario. A weak disturbance in southern Michigan is causing general cloudiness throughout all but the extreme northern part of the province. The current cold spell in Ontario shows little sign of breaking except in Southwestern Ontario where the temperatures are rising slowly. Temperature in the Windsor areas has been near 30 throughout the night. Little change in weather is expected during today. Occasional light snowflurries are probable on Thursday in most sections of the province but no measurable amount of snow is expected. A storm developing in the southwestern states is not expected to affect Ontario until early Friday morning.

Tale of Fly's Fantastic Demise Wins Title for Champion Liar

Burlington, Wis., Dec. 31. (AP) —A stratospheric story about the demise of a fly in an Oklahoma pool room today won for a Texan the title of world's champion liar, annually bestowed by the Burlington Liars' Club.

John Hopley of San Antonio, Tex., told the harrowing story about the last minutes of the fly. It happened in Dude McCook's pool room at Enid, Okla., as Hopley and his friend, Charley Skorpea, were playing for the championship of Boggy Creek Bottoms, according to Hopley. With Skorpea about to shoot, a fly landed atop the eight-ball and Charley said 'I'm going to kill that fly."

"Time stood still", Hopley related, "while the boys booked bets on whether he would or not. The fly also stood pat. Everybody in the house expected Charley to loft the cue ball so it would light on top of the insect and exterminate it.

"When they got all their bets made, Charley chalked his cue—a 47-ounce, solid oak Brunswick—and knocked the eight-ball out from under that fly so fast that it fell on the table and broke its back."

Hopley was declared the winner in a close four-way finish. He succeeds to the champion liar title now held by Antanagio Garza, also of San Antonio, who won last year with a tale about a fish that fought so hard it worked up a sweat.

Other finalists included:

C. E. Woodruff, Napa, Calif., who told of cutting a huge pine through in Michigan about 1900. The tree wouldn't fall, so Woodruff gave up. Last year, back in Michigan, Woodruff found the pine still was standing, but the stump had rotted away.

O. M. Hagen, Fairmont, Minn., who related how a deer walked safely past a stand of hunters because it bore a sign advising nimrods: "Don't shoot. I have enough points for a discharge." The deer, Hagen pointed out, was a buck private.

And Bill Powell of the Fairmont, W.Va., Elks Club, who advised that Booth Creek, a 20-foot-wide stream near his home, is filled with bass and sunfish so large that they cannot turn around in the creek. They are forced to go to an old over-shot waterwheel, used to run a mill, where they go around the wheel and change directions.

MICHAEL APPLIES FOR PASSPORT TOLEAVEROMANIA

Report Not Confirmed Former King Arrested

Bucharest, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Romanian Royal family of ex-King Michael applied today for 60 passports to leave this newly-proclaimed Democratic Republic.

Michael, who abdicated in a surprise move yesterday, came back to Bucharest with his mother former Queen Helen, from the Royal Castle at Mt. Sinaia, where they spent the night.

He probably will leave for Switzerland Friday.

The 26-year-old former monarch conferred for an hour with Dr. Petru Groza, premier of the Communist-dominated government.

Groza said in an interview with foreign correspondents that Michael was free to come and go as he pleases. He said that if Michael wants to go abroad he probably has personal reasons, hinting at the reported romance of Michael and Danish Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma.

(Official Swiss sources said they expected that Michael would enter Switzerland. Princess Anne said in Copenhagen that she had received no direct word from Michael since he quit the throne. She went back to Denmark after a trip with Michael and his entourage recently from London to Switzerland).

Michael planned to return to Mt. Sinaia to spend New Year's Eve with his mother.

The Chamber of Deputies met in full strength this morning with the full cabinet to witness the final swearing in of the newly-established presidium. After the ceremony the chamber adjourned until Jan. 20.

Workmen hoisted a large red billboard bearing the words "Long Live the Popular Romanian Republic" over the place at the lobby entrance which formerly bore the royal coat of arms.

Street cars and buses carried stencilled slogans: "Long Live the Popular Republic."

Swear Allegiance to State

By noon the army had sworn allegiance to the new form of state. The new oath demands that the taker defend the regime against enemies both inside and outside the nation and "to keep service secrets." Civil servants took a similar oath.

Parliament is to draft a new constitution.

Groza said the developments in Romania went smoothly "but, of course, we have worked and thought for this achievement." "If there was an element of surprise, it was for those who did not expect it or did not want it to happen. It came neither too soon nor too late and harms neither friend nor foe.

Groza said the former Queen Mother "will accompany her son on the trip abroad" and that other members of the Royal Family are free to stay if they choose.

The premier told reporters all Crown domains reverted to the state, but it was learned that a certain allowance from their incomes will be allotted to the King.

Bucharest commercial circles said that while in Switzerland, Michael invested in United States and Swiss securities.

Causes and Effects Of Canada's Financial Difficulties Analyzed

New York, Dec. 31 (CP) — Canada's misfortune in her attempts to solve her financial crisis created by a shortage of United States dollars is that her overseas customers "are still on the charity list," says Fortune Magazine.

In an article in its current issue, titled "Austerity to the North," Fortune deals exhaustively with the causes and effects of the Dominion's fiscal difficulties. For the reasons why Canada's "almost radiantly health economy" is in trouble, it lists:

1. "An element of plain miscalculation." The government had over-estimated Europe's rate of recovery" and its own capacity to help the process along."

2. The government also had "hedged too strongly against the dangers of unemployment at home" by ensuring foreign markets for Canadian industry through long-term credits.

3. "Canada also had a conscience." The Dominion, in an effort to help Britain recover, sold its wheat at too low a price.

Agricultural is listed as one of Canada's weak industries, Fortune saying in this connection:

"The hard fact is that many of its farmers could not survive U.S. competition in a tight market. In an even race, Kansas wheat farmers might put the generality of Canadian wheat-growers out of business.

"The indifferent position of its agriculture is partly Canada's fault. To a far greater extent than is commonly realized, the efficiency of the U. S. farmer is the result of the superb technical and scientific guidance that he receives. Many of the Canadian provinces have lagged badly in this respect.

"Canada's leading agricultural college, that of Ontario (at Guelph), was once world famous. It has been allowed over the years to degenerate into an inert and inbred political arm of the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Genuine scientific work has never replaced the elementary empricism of the early 'experimental farm.' The price of such neglect has been high."

Of the future and the Dominion's prospects for recovery, Fortune says:

"The near future is dark. The middle distance, meaning the next two to five years, is much brighter. What happens beyond that depends on whether Canada decides to gamble on European recovery or to link its economic future, as never before, with that of the U. S. and get help in doing so."

The "lasting solution" to Canada's financial problem is to sell more goods to the United States and other countries with a "reliable source" of dollars, Fortune continues, but notes that this would mean competition with the highly-developed industry of the United States "in the latter's home park." In established industries such as mining and newsprint her position is sound but in others she is "very weak indeed."

Story of Calendar One of Oddest In Whole History of Mankind

By E. M. CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

To the bushlands, bachelors! Let benedicks sneer—for Leap Year Day draws too danged near!

And while you tear up the tundra fleeing posses of pursuing gals, pause for a briefing one one of the wackiest calendar hijinks in the history of man:

February, as you know, is an undersized Disney Dopey that is always missing step ever four years when for some reason, lost in antiquity, it gives spinsters high-octane brashness, book-keepers headaches and time-keepers the old razzle-dazzle

However, sober authorities say that Julius Caesar, a mean master of the Echelon blitz and bare-kneed wooer of Cleopatra, not only liked to revamp maps but thoroughly enjoyed shoving Pop Time around.

Before his day, the Egyptians originated the solar calendar of 365 1-4 days—this, of course, between throwing up pyramids, Sphinx and obelisks every second rural stop. Meanwhile, the Romans favored a solar calendar, too. But they were not above juggling its months for political ends

And that's when Dictator Caesar came on the scene. He noted with distaste that a three-month difference existed between the solar and the actual civil calendar the politicos had developed.

Calling in his astronomers, he did a repair job in 46 B.C. and named it after himself—the Julian Calendar. It decreed that every fourth year —Leap Year—would be 366 days long and the rest 365. You see, he wanted a year with 12 months — including July, named after himself—but the number twelve didn't divide evenly into 365. So he staggered the months.

He gave the odd months (January, March, July, September and November) 31 days each, and the even 30. Hah! But he was fooled! It came out 366, one too many That's when February took a beating and got clipped 24 hours every normal year. That gave it 29 days.

Then along came Julius' nephew, Augustus—who also

Story of Sighting Sea Monster Probably Wounded by Ship Told by Master of Vessel

The following story was written by the captain of the S.S. Santa Clara at the request of the Associated Press and radioed to New York following the ship's report to the United States Coast Guard that it had struck a "sea monster" in the Atlantic off the North Carolina coast.

By J. FORDAN
(Master of the S.S. Santa Clara)

Aboard the S.S. Santa Clara, Dec. 31 —(AP)— (By Radio) — On Dec. 30, 1947, the Grace Line steamer, Santa Clara, was cleaving through sunlit calm blue seas 118 miles due east of Cape Lookout, en route from New York to Cartagena.

The Santa Clara had just crossed the Gulf Stream when William Humphreys, chief mate, John Rigney, navigating officer, and John Axelson, third mate, assembled on the starboard wing of the bridge to take the noon sight at 11:55 a.m.

Suddenly Axelson saw a snakelike head rear out of the sea about 30 feet off the starboard bow of the vessel. His exclamation of amazement directed the attention of the other two mates to the sea monster, and the three watched it unbelievingly as, in a moment's time, it came abeam of the bridge where they stood, and was then left astern.

The creature's head appeared to be about 2½ feet across, two feet thick, and five feet long. The cylindrically-shaped body was about three feet thick, and the neck about 1½ feet in diameter.

As the monster came abeam of the bridge it was observed that the water around the monster, over an area of 30 or 40 feet square, was stained red. The visible part of the body was about 35 feet long.

It was assumed that the color of the water was due to the creature's blood and that the stem of the ship had cut the monster in two, but as there was no observer on the other side of the vessel there was no way of estimating what length of body might have been left on the other side.

From the time the monster was first sighted until it disappeared in the distance astern, it was thrashing about as though in agony. The monster's skin was dark brown, slick and smooth. There were no fins, hair, or protuberances on the head, neck, or visible parts of the body.

"VIRUS X" IDENTIFIED

San Francisco, Dec. 31 —(AP) —The so-called "Virus X," which has made 200,000 ill in Los Angeles in the last few days, has been identified as "Type A" influenza, one of the most common and milder forms, Dr. Wilton Halverson, state director of public health, said yesterday.

HARD-DRIVING GREEKS WITHIN SIGHT OF KONISTA

1,000-Man Garrison Still Holding Out

Athens, Dec. 31—(AP)—Hard-driving Greek army relief forces pressed within sight today of embattled Konista, where a weary 1,000-man garrison has been holding out since Christmas Day against furious attacks by an estimated 5,000 guerrillas.

Military authorities in Ioannina said the juncture of the relieving forces with the garrison could be expected about noon.

Athens press reports said the rebels encircling the city had launched a last desperate assault on Konista and were being pounded by artillery fire.

The bulk of the Greek reinforcement units were reported to be within a mile of strategic Bourozani Bridge, 11 miles west of Konista. It was predicted the rebels would blow up the bridge in their retreat, but army engineers already were said to be bringing up fording boats and bridge parts.

Authoritative military sources repeated their belief that the danger to Konista was past and disclosed that Greek forces in Epirus numbered 12 battalions of slightly more than 5,000 men. The war ministry said earlier that rebel resistance at Konista was "petering out" and military observers then said the city was virtually out of danger.

Chiang Charges Red Menace From Within, Without

Nanking, Dec. 31 — (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek charged today that China's "present Communist menace comes as much from without as from within" — plainly implying that Soviet Russia is helping the Chinese Reds.

"Unless checkmated," he told his people in a New Year's radio message, "it will cause the downfall of our nation, make unity impossible and reduce our people to serfs."

The reference, first from so high a source directed at oft-reported but unconfirmed Russian help, was the Chinese leader's only mention of any foreign influence in China's Civil War.

In Peiping yesterday, Soviet Consul-General Sergei Tichvinsky denied a Chinese general's accusation that Russia is supplying light arms, communications equipment and advice to Chinese troops. Tichvinsky said his government recognizes "only one government in China — the National government."

NEWSPAPER'S NEW NAME

Kitchener, Dec. 31 (CP) — The Kitchener Record today announced a change in its name. The newspaper renchforth will be called the Kitchener-Waterloo Record in recognition of the incorporation of the town of Waterloo as a city. Waterloo, adjacent to Kitchener, takes on its new status tomorrow. The two cities have a population of approximately 50,000—40,000 in Kitchener and 10,000 in Waterloo.

All Countries Warned to Keep Ships, Planes Out of A-Test Area

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Dec. 31 — (AP) — The United States put all countries on notice today to keep their ships, planes and people out of the Eniwetok atomic weapons testing area, starting one month from now.

The State Department was busy relaying to embassies and legations a formal warning from the Atomic Energy Commission. In something of an understatement, the notice said "hazards" will exist in a 39,000-square-mile area surrounding the Pacific atoll beginning Jan. 31 and "throughout the calendar year 1948."

The total area is roughly half that set aside for the Bikini atom bomb experiments of 1946. However, the commission's announcement said that "if necessary, warnings of any hazards outside the designated danger area will be given in the event that such dangers are created by activities conducted within the danger area."

This was taken to mean that the 39,000-square-mile area is a basic zone, to be expanded temporarily as tests are conducted. Winds and currents, which might carry radioactive clouds or water, generally move westward from the Marshall Islands through most of the year.

The possibility of any long-range-peeping at the tests is pretty much confined to ships or submarines. Airplanes of any foreign power would have to travel so far to reach the area that it is unlikely that method of unsactioned observation might be attempted Surface ships are conspicuous. And that leaves submarines.

Officials are not ready to say what methods of preserving military security, aside from the tight control of persons travelling to Eniwetok on official business will be used.

The most obvious method is the close and constant surveillance of the area by naval and air patrol with ships and aircraft equipped with radar and underwater listening devices to spot the approach of unauthorized vessels or planes.

12 Convicts Flee Colorado Prison, Two Are Killed

Two Desperadoes Wounded, Four Captured by Posses

By RICHARD O'MALLEY

Canon City, Colo., Dec. 31 — (AP) — One more convict was killed and another was wounded today as armed men pushed through snow and sub-freezing cold in search for desperate prisoners still at large after a bloody escape from the Colorado State penitentiary last night.

The score stood: two convicts shot to death, two wounded, four recaptured, four still at large.

Orville J. Turley, 54-year-old Denver murderer, was slain and Richard F. Hellman, 24, a kidnapper, was wounded in the head and arm when officers poured a hail of fire into a trailer house nine miles east of Canon City.

Earlier, John Klinger, 43, a robber, was shot and killed by police in downtown Canon City. R. L. Freeman, 23, a Pueblo, Colo., kidnapper, was wounded in the leg before surrendering in the mountains.

Woman and Guard Wounded

A woman and a prison guard were seriously wounded and four other guards were mauled brutally after the dozen incorrigible convicts broke to freedom from cell block No. 6 — the isolation section for the worst prisoners.

Road blocks were set up on all highways radiating from Canon City. With freshly-fallen snow to aid tracking and chilling cold certain to drive the remaining convicts at large to seek warm cover, prison authorities were confident the quartet would be rounded up soon.

One of the recaptured felons, A. B. Tolley, 21-year-old slayer, told reporters he and another prisoner sawed their way out of their cells and then freed the others. "Them saws are all over the joint," he declared.

Heroine Batters Prisoner

Werner Schwartzmiller, 35, sentenced for assault to commit murder, was recaptured after a courageous farm housewife battered him with a hammer when he and two other prisoners forced their way into her home. The other two escaped.

London to Protect Citizens Against Drunken Drivers

London, Ont. Dec. 31—(CP)— A special detail of city constables will be on duty tonight to protect pedestrians and other motorists from drunken drivers, Chief Constable A. E. Knight said today.

Chief Knight said that no one was injured in traffic accidents in London at Christmas and declared no one was charged with driving while drunk. "We want to keep our record clean."

MOLOTOV BLAMES U.S. FOR FAILURE OF BIG FOUR TALKS

Claims Efforts of Russian Delegation Kept Conference From Being Fruitless

London, Dec. 31 (AP) —Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow today threw the blame for collapse of the London foreign ministers conference on the United States and declared that only the efforts of the Russian delegation kept the conference from being entirely fruitless.

His statement, given to the Russian Press a press conference and broadcast by Moscow radio, was largely an echo of what he said at the London Big Four meeting which ended Dec. 15 after 17 sessions without agreement.

He charged that the American delegation "undertook to disrupt the entire work of the London Conference" because "for some reason" the United States was anxious to delay settlement of Germany's future.

State Secretary Marshall, in a broadcast report to the United States Dec. 19, blamed Molotov for the failure of the London conference, asserting that the Russians displayed "no apparent will to reach a settlement."

Although Molotov agreed that the conference was a failure, he denied that it was fruitless.

"This session, chiefly through the efforts of the Soviet delegation, adopted a number of decisions in which progress was made in co-ordinating the attitudes of the four governments in regard to the procedure for the preparation of a peace treaty with Germany," he declared.

"For some reason, this is now being passed over in silence. Consideration of this matter was not, however, completed, since the American delegation hurriedly undertook to disrupt the entire work of the London Conference.

"The London Conference ended in failure. Quite a few attempts have been made to charge the U.S.S.R. with responsibility for this. Nothing came of it. Responsibility for the failure of the London session rests with leading circles of the United States of America. In this case again Mr. (Foreign Secretary) Bevin (of Britain) and M. (Foreign Minister) Bidault (of France) followed Mr. Marshall."

The reason why the United States wants to maintain the "present unsettled conditions" in Germany as long as possible was that "when a state of war has not yet been terminated, one can without any scruples dictate to Germans any recipes for treatment of the German economy, imposing upon these Germans any obligations in payment for this so-called aid."

This was an obvious thrust at the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe, which the Communists are dedicated to defeat. Marshall in his Dec. 19 report, commented that Molotov's statements in London seemed to indicate that he regarded the conference "as an opportunity for propaganda declarations which would be pleasant to German ears."

Drive Carefully Tonight Rather Than be Sorry

With light snow forecast for this afternoon and evening, Chief of Police Walter Probert today appealed to Belleville and district motorists to drive with an extra caution over the New Year's holiday when possibly more vehicular traffic than usual will be on the roads and city streets.

"Tonight is New Year's Eve and a time when celebrants may get a bit over enthusiastic with possible serious results unless extra care is used on the streets and highways," pointed out the chief.

"My warning to motorists is that if they drink they should not drive while if they intend to drive for their own protection and for the protection of others they should leave drink definitely alone."

To place a curb on drivers who by their driving give the slightest indication there may be drink involved, Police Chief Probert stated that the local police department would be at full strength on New Year's Eve, and constables will have definite instructions to take the keys away from all drivers where there is a suspicion of drink.

"By keeping a close check on drivers we hope to prevent accidents which otherwise might occur."

Thomasburg

Union Cemetery At Thomasburg 100 Years Old

The Union Cemetery at Thomasburg is one hundred years old. In the spring of the year of 1847 the late Mr. Thomas Nichol, one of the first settlers of Thomasburg, and one of the men from whom the village got its name, gave a plot of ground at the north side of where the Anglican Church now stands for a union cemetery for the community. The first burial was made during that year, a boy of eleven years by the name of Adam Bird, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Bird. As the years passed this plot soon filled up with graves, then an adjoining piece of land to the west of the church was added and later a piece to the south, this too is quickly filling up. To beautify the cemetery a cedar hedge was planted along the west and an attractive gate was erected at the entrance.

Jack-Lighters in Quebec Play Hide-and-Seek With Game Wardens

By WILLIAM STEWART

Quebec, Dec. 31 —(CP)— The men who lure moose and deer to slaughter with dazzling electric light beams played bushland hide-and-seek with Quebec game wardens during the last year but official reports are expected to show more of these "jack-lighters" than ever before.

During the hunting season, the 157 wardens and their 61 assistants patrolled thousands of square miles of Quebec applying tighter regulations than existed before 1947.

Hunting at night—the prowling time of the jack-lighters — was forbidden. Automatic rifles were banned and wardens were authorized to seize gear they thought hunters might use for jack-lighting.

Flashlights that might have served as makeshift jack-lights were neutralized with blue paint across the lenses. All traffic in the meat of big game was prohibited, and firearms, hunting gear and dogs were ordered out of bush and mining camps in big game areas.

Conservation Program

The stricter regulations were part of a campaign of game protection and conservation undertaken by the government and supported by Quebec's Federation of Fish and Game Associations, with its 200 member clubs, which seeks even more drastic regulations.

Amendments to hunting and fishing laws to tighten them further may be introduced at the Quebec Legislature session opening Jan. 14.

Some results of the campaign have started to appear in the last three years. From 800-odd cases of violation based on evidence supplied by wardens in the fiscal year of 1944-45, the number jumped last year to more than 1,800.

Reports that will be completed by the end of March and cover the 1947-48 fiscal year are expected to show a fresh increase which officials of the Fish and Game Department credit to growing competence of the warden service apart from the fact there are more hunters and fishermen in the Quebec bush than ever before.

Jack-lighting, one of the most serious forms of illegal fishing, is carried on for profit by men who stalk deer and moose at night when the big game feed.

Easy Kills

Strapped to their heads with elastic webbing, powerful lights leave hands free to take a bead on game dazzled stockstill. The kill is easy and there is always a market for the carcass.

Game wardens interfering with the profitable business often find that rural jack-lighters try to lead them into trouble. The jack-lighters will tie a lamp to the horns of a fierce farm bull hoping the local warden will mistake it for a night hunter and pounce on it with unexpected results.

The wardens' search for lights in hunters' cars is also defeated sometimes because jack-lights have been hidden around remote camps during the fishing season and don't appear with hunting gear carried into the bush.

Department officials, mindful of the fate of the once-populous caribou, found today in only a few Quebec localities, admit that to eliminate all illegal hunting and fishing in a territory the size of Quebec would take an army of wardens.

The Federation of Fish and Game Associations, intensely conservation-minded, feels that widespread results probably will depend on convincing the next generation of Quebecers that without caution Quebec won't last much longer as a sportsman's paradise.

Plenty of New Year's Eve Attractions Planned in City

Judging by the number of amusements spots catering to the New Year's Eve crowds there will be no lack of opportunity this evening for the New Year celebrants from Belleville and district to let down their hair and make whoopee as the old gentleman with the white whiskers and scythe writes finis to the year 1947.

In addition to the special New Year's Eve programs offered by the three theatres in the city, there are at least eight big parties scheduled where there will be dancing, floor shows and what have you until the wee small hours of the morning.

Invitation New Year's Eve parties that are scheduled are at the Belleville Club, a party which annually attracts a capacity crowd, to see the old year out and the new year in; also there is the invitation party at the local Armouries which is being sponsored by the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment (SP) R.C.A. (Argyll Light Infantry). A Toronto orchestra will provide the music for this party which will be attended by officers of the regiment and their friends.

Other invitation parties will be held at the Belleville Shrine Club and at Tobe's Over the Bay where members of the Kinsmen Club and their friends will dance the old year out.

For those who did not receive invitations to the four private parties in the city, there are four public dances, although in one or two instances because of limited accommodation only a specified number of tickets are being sold.

Club Commodore are staging a special New Year's dance and will feature Miss Arlene Thompson of New York, as vocalist. Club Cedars at Cannifton are also holding a special party at which there will be door prizes and floor show complete.

Then there is the Knights of Columbus party being staged at St. Michael's Academy where Ken Good and his Redcoats of Toronto will provide the music for dancing. And last but not least is the Club Vanity Fair where the Trent Valley Ramblers will hold their special New Year's Frolic.

For those who wish to see the old year out in a possibly more quiet manner there are the theatre parties where special New Year's Eve shows are being staged. But even here there will be caps and horns as well as other noise makers to suitably greet the New Year.

And just in case the little matter of price enters the thoughts of the would-be celebrant. For Mr. John Citizen to take his wife or lady friend out for the evening it will cost anywhere from $3 to $10 per couple if he takes in a dance, or possibly a lesser amount if he decides on a theatre party.

How Owner of $1,200,000 Acquired Such Sum Mystifies Mounties

Montreal, Dec. 31 (CP)—Some $1,200,000 in Canadian Victory, government and United States bonds, housed in a trust company's storage vault, posed a question for Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The police said they knew who owns the bonds; that they all appeared to have been legimately purchased. But the question they want answered is how the owner came by them.

Authorities gave out no name for the owner but said the trust company's box had been rented for the bond's storage under a fictitious name and added that presence of some $600 in United States currency in the box was cause for further explanation.

Mystery of Accumulation

Police said they would like to hear how the man who rented the vault was able to accumulate such a large amount seeing that the business he was originally in—that of a drygoods merchant—had been shut up by government order after two convictions for infringement of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations.

Under present foreign exchange restrictions no Canadian may hold more than $10 in United States currency.

The bond cache was uncovered in an RCMP search for stolen bonds but at this point police emphasized their only interest, was in how the bonds were acquired, and whether the owner complied with all regulations in the matter of declarations, taxes and such. Invoices showing the bonds purchase were found with them.

The raid on the safety deposit box was carried out under authority of a search warrant obtained 10 days ago when RCMP had put together information gleaned, they said, "from several sources."

The seizure was made after "lengthy investigation," said Inspector J. W. Brady of the RCMP. Quebec Provincial Police and Canadian Government authorities co-operated with the RCMP and the matter now has been referred to authorities in Ottawa whence new instructions are awaited.

Commissioner S. T. Wood of the RCMP said at Ottawa the person who hoarded the bonds is a resident of Montreal. "So far as we know only one individual is involved."

He said police were attempting to find out whether the hoard might be linked with wartime black market activities.

Foreign Exchange Control Board officials said their enforcement section had ordered a "suspension" of the safety deposit box. By this move the box can only be opened in the presence of an exchange control inspector.

For some time past they had reason to suspect there was American currency in the box which should have been turned over to the bank. With this in view a suspension order was recently sent to the Montreal Bank.

The Revenue Department was also participating in the investigation and was attempting to establish whether any income tax had been paid on the bonds.

Walter Letson Fired Two Shots At Himself

Kitchener, Ont., Dec. 31—(CP) — Autopsy on Walter (Pat) Letson, who committed suicide Sunday after slaying four relatives with a shotgun, revealed Letson fired two shots at himself, Crown Attorney W. P. Clement disclosed last night.

Mr. Clement said "Apparently the first shot only grazed part of his arm. The second one must have been instantly fatal." The Crown Attorney added: "The fact that Letson fired two shots at himself is the only unexpected thing that the autopsy revealed. It doesn't look as if an inquest will serve any useful purpose."

ERROR RECTIFIED

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP) —The Ontario Motor Vehicles branch has rectified an error which went unobserved literally by millions. The new motorcar licence plates for 1948, going on sale Jan. 2, bear at the top the usual small Royal crest. But this time it's the King's crown. The Queen's crown had been used previously.

The plates have white lettering on a blue background, and for the first time since the early war years motorists will get plates for front and rear, instead of only one plate for the rear of the car.

12 CONVICTS

Warden Roy Best described those who broke out of the penitentiary as "all bad hombres—the worst we have in prison."

Mrs. Minnie Higgins, 52, wife of a prison farm caretaker, was reported in critical condition from loss of blood from deep head wounds suffered when two of the felons appeared at her farm seven miles east of Canon City and bludgeoned her into unconsciousness.

Best said the two convicts, one of whom was wearing a prison guard's uniform, had escaped after officers reported at first they had surrounded the pair in the farmhouse.

The prisoners lashed out against Guard A. C. Clark when he unlocked the cell block and stepped in at 5:30 last night. Knocking Clark insensible with an iron pipe, the convicts turned on four other guards as they ran to his aid.

All were battered severely about the head and one was reported in serious condition. The three others were then forced to go with the prisoners to the prison's north gate.

Tower Guards Hold Fire

Tower guards along the north wall held their fire for fear of harming their fellow workers and the convicts battered open the gate, fleeing under cover of a blinding snowstorm.

Within minutes after the break, police received reports of four cars being stolen. However, all were recovered within a few hours in the vicinity and the fugitives were believed to be on foot now.

From one car, the convicts obtained a revolver and a quantity of shells.

Guard Chet Yeo was wounded in the head and rancher A. M. Smith was wounded in the right arm during a shooting affray that led to the recapture of George Trujillo, 23, and Billy New, 21, Denver thieves — the only convicts among the group serving comparatively mild sentences.

John Klinger, 43, convicted robber, was slain by police shortly before midnight in downtown Canon City about 10 blocks from the penitentiary when he tried to flee from city police officers.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange closed the year on a half session of moderately active trading today with stocks generally on an upward trend. Industrials were firm on good newsprints, foods and oils. the western oils continued the advance started earlier in the month while mining stocks were indecisive and closed about unchanged.

Newsprints moved up fractionally except for Powell River, up 1 3/8. Utilities were mixed and steels about even but foods were ahead on gains in fractions for six issues and down for one. Oils showed strength with B. A. Oil, Canadian Oil, International Petroleum and McColl ahead fractions.

Speculative in golds were a little better but producers were mixed. Hollinger added 1/8 among senior golds while better juniors were Amalgamated Larder, Berens, Delnite, Giant, Keno Hill, Lake Wasa, MacLeod, Marcus, Perron, Powell and Sylvanite.

Base metals were firm at opening but small profit taking cut gains. Smelters touched a new high but evened off to close unchanged.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Grade A hog prices advanced 75 cents at Stratford bringing the new price up to $23.85 delivered to farmers and $24 to truckers, while at Hull prices remained unchanged at $24.25 delivered while unquoted off truck, in markets reporting this morning.

PICTORIAL REVIEW OF PERSONALITIES IN THE NEWS

A. S. Panyushkin H. C. Moncado J. M. Brewster

Alexander Semonivich Panyushkin, new Soviet ambassador to the United States, is shown above after he arrived in New York. He replaces Nicolai V. Novikov, who was recalled to Moscow for "reasons of health." Photo in the centre shows Hilario Comino Moncado, self-styled general, supreme president and commander-in-chief of the Filipino Crusaders World Army, Inc., addressing a recent giant rally in Manila during his unsuccessful campaign for election to the Philippine senate. Moncado, one of the most colorful and criticized personalities in the Philippines, is a militant politician-evangelist, and considers himself 99 per cent divine. He is said to be a millionaire and owns a fabulous estate outside Manila, where he houses and teaches his great host of followers, which includes many primitive Igorots, the wild Filipino head-hunters. He also claims to have graduated from several American colleges, and membership in clubs and civic organizations throughout the U. S. Capt. John M. Brewster, right, of the U. S. Navy Medical Corps and executive officer at U. S. Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., claims that he has found a cure for the common cold. His cure is a drug called benadryl, originally developed to combat allergies. He explained that benadryl is an anti-histamines, such as phenylene, have also given good results.

Boys Parliament Against Restricted Immigration

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—Unrestricted immigration from all parts of the world, rather than from Britain alone, was one of the suggestions presented yesterday to the Ontario Older Boys Parliament in a report analyzing the Ontario immigration plan.

The report, submitted by the parliament's committee on national affairs headed by Ronald Kay of Toronto, saw the Ontario plan as "a beneficial experiment" to be used for the formulation of a federal immigration system.

Without such a federal plan, the report said, the Ontario plan might tend to "over-develop" Ontario at the expense of the other provinces.

The parliament, sponsored by the Ontario Boys Work Board, an organization representing six denominations of Protestant churches and the Young Men's Christian Association, is holding its 27th annual session here this week with 85 members from all parts of Ontario and three from Quebec.

The question whether teenagers are interested in church was investigated by the parliament's committee on religious issues, headed by Gerald McCaul of Deseronto. The committee found that youngsters in many cases are not interested in church—particularly in Sunday services.

Good example by elder church members, special church services in which teen-agers may participate, and "song services," consisting of familiar hymns before the regular Sunday service, were among methods suggested by the committee for arousing young people's interest in church.

The parliament's premier is Gordon Dollar of St. Thomas, a veteran of four annual "parliamentary" sessions. His minister of state is Gordon Bean of Toronto, supported by finance minister Donald Hill of Kingston, and minister of Boys' Work Val Van De Wall.

Complete "opposition," headed by Ross Anderson of Brighton and "front - benchers" Bruce Braund of Peterborough and Bill Bell of Sault Ste. Marie, the parliament is presided over by Bill Lederman of Kitchener, who already has served as premier and as leader of the opposition. This "parliament" is his seventh.

Toronto Expects Large Vote Out On Election Day

Toronto, Dec. 31 —(CP)— The size of the vote was one of the most interesting questions today as all concerned finished preparations for Toronto's annual civic elections New Year's Day.

Canada's second largest city has a population estimated at 700,000 and of these close to 400,000 are eligible voters. In 1944 there was a turnout of 39 per cent of the voters. In 1945 it was 29 per cent; in 1946 25 per cent, and a year ago it was 30 per cent.

This year may be different. An opinion poll a few days ago indicated that 65 per cent of those questioned would vote.

They'll vote for a mayor and a four-man board of control, with a city council consisting of two aldermen from each of the nine wards. In addition there's the board of education, two members from each ward, and tomorrow also comes the separate school board vote, held every two years, with one from each ward.

Mayor Robert Saunders was considered a cinch for re-election for a fourth consecutive term. A year ago he got 93,220 votes compared to 9,402 for Francis P. O'Hearn and 3,201 for Murray Trevor Dowson. This time Saunders is opposed only by Ross Dowson, candidate of the "Revolutionary Workers Party of Canada."

For the board of control, there are seven candidates and one of them, Stewart Smith, has been target of an anti-Communist campaign. Smith, a former member of the board, was defeated in his bid for re-election a year ago.

Of the 32 aldermanic candidates there were three known Communists, and four among the 31 candidates for the board of education.

While the grown-ups argued and campaigned over the Communist issue and the two money by-laws that are on the ballot, the city's school children were busy. Mayor Saunders said some time ago he would award a "Junior Citizen's Badge" to all students who wrote him to say their parents voted.

Some kids couldn't wait. They've already deluged the mayor with letters that say: "My parents are definitely going to vote. Please send me my button."

Trans-Canada Air Lines Had Successful Year

Montreal, Dec. 31 —(CP)— Trans-Canada Air Lines added more than 1,200 miles to its air routes during 1947 and passenger traffic increased by 50 per cent, W. F. English, vice-president in charge of operations, said in a year-end statement today.

More than 16,250,000 miles were flown and the volume of air cargo also increased by 35 per cent but mail loads were only slightly larger.

This lack of noticeable increase in air mail added to heavily increased operating expenses, due not only to the expansion program but to rising costs of materials and higher wages rates and had an averse effect on the company's net earnings.

Mr. English said that the opening of a new line between Toronto and Winnipeg across Lake Huron to Sault Ste. Marie and across Lake Superior to Port Arthur considerably shortened the trans-continental line.

Kapuskasing, Porquis and North Bay were linked with Toronto by three round trips a week.

Mr. English praised the Canadian-built North Star 40-passenger planes which were put in Trans-Atlantic service this year and which will be used on domestic lines in 1948.

In domestic service, Trans-Canada carried 40,000 passengers in 1947; 2,500,00 pounds of mail and 1,500,000 pounds of cargo.

Over the Atlantic, 15,000 passengers were carried; 140,000 pounds of mail and 230,000 pounds of cargo. Charter flights were operated across the ocean to bring immigrants to Canada; some of this work was let to a sub-contractor.

With only one extension planned, a line to Bermuda and the West Indies, T.C.A. in 1948 will devote its attention to enlarging airports and improving airways and will help to plan and install instrument landing facilities at main Canadian airports.

Freezing Rain Coats Highways

Toronto, Dec. 31 —(CP)— A freezing rain sheathed most southwestern Ontario roads with ice today and brought warnings from Provincial Police and highways officials against all but essential driving.

Weather forecasts said conditions would remain much the same tomorrow, with light snow at night. Highway crews are continuously sanding highways to reduce the hazard.

Mist and rain fell today on the Hamilton - Dundas - Brampton zone and most of the area north of Lake Erie received rain last night. Sleet fell in the Walkerton-Dundas - Wingham section early today and foggy mist was reported over Essex, Lambton and Kent counties during the night.

The same conditions are likely to spread as far east as Belleville.

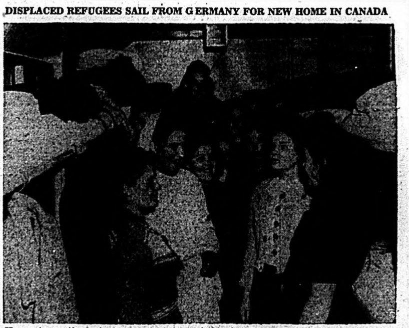
DISPLACED REFUGEES SAIL FROM GERMANY FOR NEW HOME IN CANADA



Happy to see the last of Europe are these girls, displaced persons, pictured aboard the S. S. General Sturgis. They are Canada bound and have been offered jobs as domestics and ultimately Canadian-citizenship. The ship sailed from Bremerhaven, Germany, with 109 potential domestic workers, 495 general construction workers, 82 garment workers and 170 close relatives of Canadian citizens. The nurse, shown in left foreground, is a registered nurse. She volunteered to help care for the other passengers on the trip.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

The last day of the year bears its quota of news favoring business and industrial stability as well as items of potential danger to the economic structure.

Important to Canadian price levels is the report from Washington that wholesale prices in the United States moved nearer to the all-time crest of May, 1920, and government economists say they can find nothing to indicate that 1948 prices will stop there. Further indications of spiraling prices come from London with reports that the Danish - United Kingdom trade conference, opening Monday, may result in higher prices for essential food imports.

The United States anti-inflation bill calling for "voluntary" controls for industry in the fight against rising prices, signed yesterday by President Truman, sets into motion machinery which, it is hoped, will prevent severe price jumps. Significant for the Canadian distilling industry is Washington's proposal to limit the use of grain by distillers. This, in conjunction with the Geneva trade agreements which reduce the United States import duties on liquors, opens possibilities for greater Canadian exports to the United States.

Growth of the Canadian newsprint industry and promise of further capacity expansion is seen in a survey which estimates a record of more than 4,396,000 tons for 1947 and increased capacity at an average of approximately 100,000 tons a year over the next three years to reach more than 4,650,000 tons in 1950. The estimated production for 1947 reports an increase of approximately 1,137,000 tons or, 34 per cent within two years.

Building contract awards in Canada for 1947 totalled $718,137,100, an increase of $54,700,000 over 1946. Heavy increases were noted in engineering and commercial construction but housing and industrial building were both lower than during 1946.

Markets generally were firmer yesterday with New York, London, Toronto and Montreal showing moderately good advances in the industrial sections. Base metals in Toronto reflected optimism in the industry's future earnings with prices moving sharply upward.

The New Year Comes

New Year's Day nominally brings to an end that season of merriment and festivity which leaves its cast and influence upon many a succeeding week. Such a height of human interest as the Christmas and holiday season reaches cannot be left all at once and many people will linger about the events of the past few days and treasure them long in memory. It is like no other experience in life and it grips and intrigues man and woman and child. Its lessons have potentialities of the greatest consequence in the lives of individuals, groups, communities, nations and a large share of mankind. It has been said that its influences should not be allowed to lapse, but they do not fade, though it is difficult for mankind to remain on that exalted plane of pure emotion and spirit of good will. It leaves an influence so deep that there is never any doubt that every succeeding Christmas will carry the same spirit.

Christmas shows man acting as he would act for such is the impulse of his faith that especially at this time of family gatherings and visits of Santa Claus to the children, he cannot do otherwise than he does —give expression in word and deed to his deepest and richest feelings. So important to the people is this time of all times, leaving treasures of memory for life.

Again in this December of 1947 it has enriched lives beyond their fondest hopes and as the season recedes with the coming of the New Year, there is a longing lingering look back at all that Christmas season means and there is the look forward to the following December when again such festive scenes will pour their riches upon everyone.

New Year's Day comes with a new number, 1948. It brings to an end the celebration as it points the way down from the heights of human emotion, which cluster about this time, through the long twelve months of a new year. But New Year's Day still carries with it the spirit of festival, that long festival, which has rightly absorbed so much human interest and shed such blessings upon human lives. Only slowly does one pass into the new scenes with its new experiences and its events, its problems and solutions.

But the New Year will soon become familiar and it will build up to another Christmas and the following year to still another Yuletide and so on and on is the influence of these days and nights dwelling in human hearts.

Postal Service in Holidays

No small part of the pleasure which comes at Christmastide and the rest of the festive season lies in the holiday mail which everyone receives. The pleasure is very much enhanced when everyone posts his or her holiday mail in ample time according to the timetable sent out by the post office some time before the Christmas rush. That was done this year and that small proportion who did not mail early derived the benefit of others' early mailing in having their letters reach the destination on time.

The mail is one of the big undertakings at the holiday season. It is a big job at any time but with the additional immense volume of one-cent letters containing cards, together with the heavy loads of other Christmas mail, the resources of the Postal Department are put to the test. In this with the co-operation of millions of Canadians who heeded the advice to mail early the Post Office and all the post offices in Canada have done a magnificent work.

The assistants who were called in to aid in the distribution of the mail did well and the regular staffs of the post offices across the land won the unstinted praise of all.

It was a magnificent performance of duty on the part of all concerned and helped to solve one of the problems of handling Christmas business and to spread Christmas joy.

Everyone feels a debt of gratitude to all in the postal service for the fine job which was done in 1947.

King Michael Leaves Throne

King Michael of Romania has abdicated and the cabinet of that country which is under the influence of Communist domination has declared that country as "Popular Democratic Republic." Young King Michael, who is 26, has had an unsettled career on an unsteady throne. He came to the exalted office twice, first as a child of six years when his father King Carol renounced the throne over his friendship for Madame Lupescu, a regency reigning until King Carol thought over the abdication and resumed the throne. During the late war Carol left Romania as the Nazi-associated iron guard emerged. King Michael returning to power, overthrew the dictatorship of Antonescu.

Communist influence at work in Romania is seen behind the abdication. Romanian history has been one of stormy events. King Michael was the last ruler of those nations now in the Communist sphere of influence.

Michael is the fourth of the East European kings who have lost their thrones as a result of upheavals during or following the recent war, the others being the kings of Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. Just this week another king who lost his throne Victor Emmanuel of Italy died in exile in Alexandria, while his son, Humbert, who followed him on the throne, is also in exile.

Since the First World War the toll in monarchs in Europe has been heavy, among them the Emperor Nicholas of Russia who lost his life at the hands of the Russian revolutionists in July 1918, Emperor (Kaiser) William the Second of Germany who fled to Holland at the close of that war and Charles VIII Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary who abdicated in 1918 after a two-year reign.

Preserving Eggs

Dr. Gustav Egloff, who has been experimenting with eggs, told a meeting of the American Chemical Society the other day that science has a brand new idea for preserving eggs. According to Dr. Egloff, if eggs are coated with a thin layer of plastic, they will maintain their freshness without refrigeration for as long as a year.

Actually this isn't such a brand new idea, and we feel we must rise in defence of the resourcefulness and craftsmanship of all hard-working hens. Long before science assumed its present arrogant status, hens had been laying eggs with a thin preservative coat over the shell.

The trouble is that the egg-eating public, reluctant to eat eggs that look as if they have come from a hen-roost, have demanded that the hens' scientifically prepared product be washed, thus removing the preservative coat.

Chickens aren't such dumb clucks! As one old hen put it the other day, preserving an egg with a protective coat is a minor operation. Laying it is the tricky part.—Hamilton Spectator.

Nile Loses Fertility

For centuries the Nile River has flooded its valley and then receded, leaving rich deposits which made the land highly productive. This fertility largely accounted for the early civilization there and for continued food production supporting millions of people. It used to be said that valley farms were so rich that fertilizer would not increase production.

Yet American soil experts who have been in Egypt this year find that the annual flood no longer is a fertile visitation. The lands along the upper reaches of the Nile have been so badly eroded that they can't furnish rich soil to be washed downstream. Commercial fertilizers now increase yields in the valley by 40 percent.

Dwellers along the Nile were a long time learning the lesson, but they know now that unless the soil is protected it can't support people forever, says The Minneapolis Star.

A man may be as much a fool from the want of sensibility, as from the want of sense.—Mrs. Jameson.

Never despair; but if you do, work on in despair.—Burke.

NEW YEAR THOUGHT

How to have a happy years?
Wish I knew,
In this world of doubt and fear,
What to do.

Time is granted day by day.
Nothing more!
Sun will rise and slip away,
As before.

Neither more nor less allowed
Through the year
To the humble or the proud
Living here.

All the days will come and go
In their turn,
But what happiness we'll know
We must earn.

How this year shall we review
When it ends?
On the way we live it through
That depends.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When was indigo introduced into America?

In 1738 Colonel George Lucas, lieutenant governor of Antigua in the West Indies, left his plantation near Charleston in charge of his 16-year-old daughter Elizabeth. Eliza Lucas had a "green finger" and, with her father's help decided to find a profitable "cash crop" to utilize their flat lands to pay off the mortgage.

Col. Lucas sent her seeds of various kinds from the West Indies and she and her farmers began to experiment with them. They tried flax, hemp, cassava, alfalfa, ginger root and other plants, and even planted mulberry trees and revived silk culture in South Carolina.

Eliza and her farmers had the best luck with indigo plants. She produced her first successful indigo crop in 1742, but up to that time she did not know how to prepare it for market. Two years later she was married to Charles Pinckney, a wealthy widower twice her age. He learned from French prisoners at Charleston how to prepare raw indigo and he and his wife urged their neighbors to try the new crop.

Indigo cultivation spread so rapidly that four years after Eliza Lucas produced her first crop the British government offered producers a bounty of sixpence a pound. It was included among the "Enumerated Articles" that the Navigation Acts required the Colonists to export only to the mother country.

By 1775 the South was exporting a million pounds of indigo a year and indigo ranked next to rice and tobacco among South Carolina staples. When Benjamin Franklin went to France as American minister he took with him a cargo of indigo to pay the expenses of the mission. When colonial currency became worthless during the Revolution cubes of raw indigo were used for money.

The demand for indigo continued after the Revolution. The tariff act of 1789, the first substantive act of Congress under the Constitution, protected the indigo industry by imposing prohibitory duties on the raw product.

Eliza Lucas, who started the indigo industry in the United States, became the mother of Charles Cotesworth and Thomas Pinckney, Revolutionary soldiers, statesmen and diplomats. When President Washington visited Charleston on his Southern tour in 1791 he called on Eliza Lucas Pinckney, who had been a widow for more than 30 years. At Charleston, Washington noted in his diary that the "principal exports from this place is Rice, Indigo, and Tobacco." Mrs. Pinckney died in 1793 at Philadelphia and President Washington, at his own request, acted as a pallbearer at her funeral.

Increased production of cotton in consequence of the invention of the cotton gin began gradually to supplant indigo as a cash crop in the South. Less and less indigo was grown until this natural dyestuff was superseded by chemical dyes first made in Germany from coal tar and put on the market in 1897. A few years later the growing of indigo in the South was abandoned completely. Today not a single ounce of vegetable indigo is produced in America. "Indigo Branch" is the name of a stream in South Carolina, indigo plants growing wild like weeds in the field, and a few old mansions built by families who made fortunes growing indigo, are about the only reminders of the industry started by Eliza Lucas.

17th Century House Will Become Museum

Montreal, (CP)—A house built in 1680 by Charles LeMoyne and Jacques Le Ber, pioneers of Ville-Marie, now Montreal, on a piece of land facing the St. Lawrence river, will become a public museum of suburban Lachine.

The house, a typical old French structure with a V-shaped roof coming well over the walls and supporting three frontal dormer-windows was acquired by the municipality two years ago upon the advice of Mayor Anatole Carignan. Work was undertaken to preserve the historic monument to be known as Manoir Lachine.

Situated at the entrance to the city, on La Salle Boulevard, the house will become a museum for numerous old-time pieces of furniture, paintings and other historical souvenirs.

Letter to the Editor

Belleville Became City 70 Years Ago

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Seventy years ago on the 31st of December 1877, the town of Belleville became the city of Belleville pursuant to a statute passed by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario.

It may be interesting to the citizens to recall the names of some of the members of the last town council and the town officials and also members and officials of the city council of Belleville. They were as follows:

1877, Mayor, W. A Foster.

Aldermen, Foster Ward, F. Ridley, D. Brennan; Samson Ward D. Price, N. Lingham; Ketcheson Ward, J. H. Hambly, W. P. Holden; Baldwin Ward, C. F. Smith, R. S. Patterson; Bleecker Ward, S. Hambly, J. Meagher; Coleman Ward, J. St. Charles, A.N. Pringle; Murney Ward, G. H. Pope, J.N. Yeomans.

Police Magistrate, A. Diamond.
City Clerk, R. Newbury.
City Treasurer, R. Tannahill.
City Assessors, T. Rutherford, J. A. Northcott, P.P.
Chief of Police, A. T. Petrie.
Solicitor, L. H. Henderson.
Surveyors, R. Taylor.
Collectors, D. Ockerman.

The first members of the city council for 1878 were:

Mayor, A. Robertson.

Aldermen, Foster Ward, W. A. Foster, D. Brennan, F. C. Ridley; Samson Ward, N. Lingham, H. McInninch, D. Price; Ketcheson Ward, M. Jellett, E. D. Sherwood, W. Diamond; Baldwin Ward, R. S. Patterson, D. B. Robertson, John Boyle; Bleecker Ward, Thos. Holden, A. A. Farley, S. Hambly; Coleman Ward, I. Diamond, A. E. Proctor, J. St. Charles; Murney Ward, N. B. Falkiner, A. L. Geen, J. Wickett.

Police Magistrate, A. Diamond.
City Clerk, R. Newberry.
City Treasurer, R. Tannahill.
City Assessors, T. Rutherford, A. E. Proctor, M. Graham.
Chief of Police, H. McKinnon.
Solicitor, L. H. Henderson.
Surveyors, R. Taylor.
Collectors, D. Ockerman.

In the Legislature for the Province of Ontario were the following, County of Hastings.

East Riding, N.S. Appleby, Con.
West Riding, T. W. Wills, Con.
North Riding, Dr. G. H. Boulter, Con.

The Legislature of the Dominion of Canada, County of Hastings.

East Riding, John White, Con.
West Riding, James Brown, Lib.
North Riding, M. Bowell, Con.

His Honor Judge George Sherwood was the presiding County Judge at that time. Charles L. Coleman was the County Crown Attorney. The Sheriff of the County of Hastings was George Taylor and the Local Master of the Supreme Court of Ontario was Lt. Col. S. S. Lazier.

Practically all of the men whose names are mentioned above are now dead and many forgotten. All of which proves that "The Path of Glory Leads But to the Grave."

Alleged Murderer Held by Police

Montreal, Dec. 31 (CP)—Provincial Police said last night, that Roland Asselin, 37, of Coteau Landing, Que., near the Quebec-Ontario border, has been arrested as the alleged murderer of a man who was first thought to have committed suicide 13 months ago.

Asselin will appear today at the third coroner's inquest into the death of Ulric Gauthier, 35, a rich resident of St. Telespore, near Coteau, who was found dead at a lonely crossroads Nov. 10, 1946 with a bullet in his head.

After his arrest, police said Asselin made a statement in which he claimed he shot Gauthier in self defence when the murdered man pulled a gun while they were driving together along the lonely country road.

Asselin said in his statement that Gauthier was drunk when he had drawn the gun.

While an investigation by police showed foul play might have been cause of the man's death, a first coroner's jury disagreed on the verdict while a second returned the verdict of suicide and the case was closed.

A few weeks later, Gauthier's wife committed suicide by hanging herself in her home. Detectives investigating Mrs. Gauthier's suicide found a handwritten plan showing the wooden area where her husband's body was found.

Detectives Ubald Legault and Paul Coulombe then opened another investigation into Gauthier's death. The inquiry lasted nine months and scores of persons were questioned until the list of suspects was narrowed to Asselin, the last person seen with the dead man.

Police claim the handwriting which drew the plan of the crossroads which was found in Mrs. Gauthier's papers after her suicide was that of Asselin.

ARE YOU A SUCKER FOR "SHOTS"?

Last Sunday a woman aged 50 told us that her friends considered her a little queer because she didn't take "shots" — for what? Why, she was 50, wasn't she? The woman said she has never felt better, physically and mentally, than she does now, and she does all her own housework including the laundry and takes a long walk every day. She has an annual health examination by her physician, who has never suggested that she needs "shots".

If you ask me—of course you don't, but let's pretend you do—I'll say the woman's friends are not only queer but downright gullible.

In the past few weeks I have received scores of queries (no pun intended) from men and women who evidently believe that anything administered by injection under the skin, into muscle or into a vein works magic above and beyond the effects the medicine, vitamine or hormone has if taken in the ordinary way.

Here I must say that for some of the hormones, notably insulin and male and female sex hormones, injection under the skin is the only way or the best way to administer them.

But for drugs, medicine, particularly such minerals as calcium and iron, and vitamins, it is only in exceptional circumstances that injection can produce results that the ordinary way of administration will not produce.

This is not to say that injections of such drugs, medicines, vitamins or minerals are never necessary—in some emergencies and in cases of grave illness injections may be the only way to get the full effect of the medicine vitamin or mineral. But I tell you, folks, if you run to the doctor's office every little while for a "shot"—especially one administered by the office girl or near-nurse whose professional service and time is worth, say, 15% of what the doctor charges you for the "shot"—you are indeed suckers, in my opinion.

Take calcium, for instance. Except in such emergencies as arachnoidism (bite of the black widow spider) or severe colic, when injection of calcium into the vein is necessary for prompt relief of the distress, there is no physiological reason to think that injection of calcium can produce any effect that taking calcium by mouth will not produce — provided, of course, that you get enough vitamin D to insure assimilation and utilization of calcium in food or medicine. After all, the digestive apparatus is designed to assimilate calcium from food anyway, if the food you eat contains enough to satisfy the body's requirements.

Iron ditto.

Here is an instance of the racket a real doctor described. He had volunteered to carry on the practice of another doctor while the latter was away for a few months. One patient came to the office three days a week for "shots". The absent doctor had not informed the locum tenens about the patient, so he asked the patient what the doctor had been treating her for. She didn't know. Well, what had the doctor told her about it? She couldn't remember—in fact she hadn't seen the doctor for two or three months — he was always busy when she came in and so the office nurse gave her the shots. The locum tenens said he felt like a rat but in the circumstance he had to continue taking the woman's money till the absentee doctor got back. He urged me to sound off about the disgraceful practice of keeping gullible customers coming to the "clinic" for "shots", at great expense for no good reason.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Praise from Sir Hubert

One of my patients brought me your booklet "The Calcium Shortage" — I find I have been wrong about your column and yourself. Hereafter I'll have more respect . . . (———M. D.)

Answer — Thank you, Doctor, After all, it is not what Morris the Fish would have you think I am . . . Readers interested in chronic headache, hives, allergy, asthma, migraine, eczema, cramps in legs at night, hay fever, hyperesthetic rhinitis, angio-neurotic edema, growing pains, hot flashes, chronic rheumatiz, etc., send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope, but no clipping, for the booklet, The Calcium Shortage.

Ow-Wow-Wow!

Is the shock of cold water after a hot shower detrimental to the system? Does it throw a strain on the heart? (P.L.)

Answer—If you enjoy it there is no objection from the health point of view. But if you sprinkle any cold water on me after a warm shower you won't live to regret it.

One ovary and both Fallopian tubes removed at operation two years ago. A doctor advises that this will age me in appearance and says I should have regular shots of female sex hormones—I am 28 and so far no one has noticed old age creeping upon me.

(Mrs. C. A.)

Answer— The intact ovary will keep you supplied with all the female sex hormones you need.

THIRTEEN CARS DERAILED

Lake City, Minn., Dec. 31—(AP) — Thirteen cars of the Milwaukee Road's Pioneer Limited, a passenger train bound for Chicago from Minneapolis, were derailed 3½ miles south of here today. Apparently no one was injured.

The road's chief dispatcher said all the cars remained upright. Only the locomotive and a mail car remained on the rails.

Lake City is about seventy miles southeast of Minneapolis.

Happy NEW Year

To the Citizens of Belleville :

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL is the wish of the B. I. G. Stores, along with a hearty Thanks for the very generous portion of your grocery business accorded us the past year. Your friendly B. I. G. Association was formed in 1947 in order to sell you quality groceries at lower cost. Each one of the B. I. G. Stores is locally owned and operated, and the proprietors, realizing that the higher cost of living presented a definite problem to all, associated themselves together to provide this lower operating cost, which is passed on to the consumer in reduced food prices.

We realize that there are many things we still can do to provide better shopping facilities, more efficient operation, and still lower food prices, and we pledge ourselves to work to this end.

Despite the ever increasing cost of living and the unsettled International situation, we face the future with courage and the conviction that these situations will gradually adjust themselves for the general good of all.

We have watched with interest the general unfolding of the industrial expansion plans for the City of Belleville, which, according to the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, presents the greatest industrial expansion of any City in Canada, comparable in population.

New factories opened in Belleville since January 1947 and Industrial plants under construction will mean several thousand more jobs when these plants are in full production. Plant expansion of present Belleville factories will add materially to the number of people gainfully employed in our city.

Plans are now being developed for several large Housing projects for 1948, which we expect will be announced early in the year, and these new homes will help to alleviate the present shortage and provide living quarters for workmen who move to Belleville.

We realize that all these expansion plans will mean that all city services such as sewerage, schools, hospitals, etc., will have to be expanded, but we are confident that our civic authorities will face these problems with courage, and work out a solution that will keep our city abreast of its expansion, without placing a burden upon the present tax payers.

In closing we would like to stress the importance of taking a personal pride in your city. Try to spend your money so that it can be circulated in your own city, and a portion of this money will return to you. When you buy at the B. I. G. Stores, your money is used by local men to pay local taxes, make local improvements, men whose families live here, and the men who want to work with you in building Belleville into the Metropolis of Eastern Ontario.

THANKS AGAIN, AND HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL.

Your B.I.G. Store Proprietor

HOW SMART ARE YOU?

How smart are you? In January's Reader's Digest are 3 of the sort of problems psychologists use to determine aptitudes and abilities. Try these tests. They're fun to do (if you don't worry too much how you come out) . . . and may help you find out if you're as smart as you always thought you were.

New help for women's change of life. Science has known that female hormone deficiency causes much of the physical and mental upset that besets the menopause — but relief has meant costly, risky injections. Paul de Kruif brings news of two tablets that promise miracles to many women in the "change".

Paul de Kruif

I'm raising my daughter to live alone. If you know how to live alone, you'll never have to, says David Cohn. He shows how—by learning to get pleasure from simple things—you become happy within yourself . . . and how this inner strength makes you a delight to others, a better mate and parent.

(Condensed from Woman's Home Companion)

The way back. When his son and later his wife committed suicide he cracked mentally, blaming himself. Doctors said he'd never recover. In this true story the "lost" man describes his retreat from the world of reality. Read how one sentence miraculously brought him to his senses—and a new, useful life.

Fun with the dictionary. Ever play synonyms? (I start with "reprove." You come back with "rebuke" or "scold", for instance). Gelett Burgess tells how you can not only get some good games from your dictionary, but how learning exact use of words helps you talk and think more accurately.

In this issue—40 articles of lasting interest, selected from leading magazines and current books, and condensed to save your time.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking and ma was just thinking, saying, I wisht the telefone would ring, William.

Shall I call the operator and tell her to give us a ring? pop said, and ma said, I'm expecting a call from Maud Hews. I made a New Year resolution to be unselfish, and it was certainly put to a successful test downtown this afternoon. Really, William, I mean really, I feel proud of myself, she said.

Allow me to add my congradulations to your own, pop said. Tell me more, he said, and ma said, Well, Mawd and I went shopping for a new hat, and there wasn't a thing at Hookbinders that either one of us would of worn to our werst enemy's, so we tried Madame Merfy, and after we'd looked at a duzzen hats we both agreed that the ferst one was the only one werth a second thawt. It really was the best looking thing and we both wanted it in the werst way, but I thawt of my New Year resolution and I told Mawd I wouldn't dreem of taking it if she really wanted it. But it always takes Mawd hours to decide anything, even after she's made up her mind, so to add coals to Newcassel I told her I'd give her until this evening to let me know. Of course I know she'll take it, and my last hope will be dashed, but at least it will be a proof of my unselfishness, ma said.

Which just then the telefone rang and ma quick answered it, saying, Oh, I've been waiting to hear from you, Mawd. Of course I know what you're going to say but I'm resigned to my fate. What? You've decided not to take it? Well, this is serprising, I must say, she said.

And she talked some more and hung up, and pop said, Well, my dear, it looks as though you're going to eat your cake and have it too. You're a lucky woman, he said, and ma said, Dont be silly. Do you suppose I'd buy a hat after Mawd Hews rejected it? She has sutch excellent taist that I'm sure it cant be all I thawt it was, she said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

REFEREE ATTACKED

Toronto, Dec. 31 —(CP)—Referee Pearcy Allen was victim of an attack that knocked him unconscious and sent him to hospital for first-aid treatment last night during a Toronto Hockey League game between Mahers and Stoney's.

In the second period Bert Turney of Stoney's flew at the referee during a brawl on the ice in which several players of both teams were engaged. The official was knocked unconscious and taken to hospital, where x-rays were taken of a neck injury. He was able to return home later. Turney was suspended.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We feel for a partner who freezes whenever he monkeys with squeezes. The nerves in his head turn to putty or lead with the very first card that he seizes.

West led a club when south was declarer at seven spades in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 6 3
♥8 6 3
♦A J 2
♣K 8 6 4

WEST	EAST
♠5 4	♠10
♥K 9 7	♥Q 10 5 4 2
♦Q 10 8 5	♦K 9 6 4 3
♣J 10 9 3	♣5 2

SOUTH
♠K Q J 9 8 7 2
♥A J
♦7
♣A Q 7

Is it possible to take all 13 tricks? Yes. Despite anything the opponents may try to do to prevent it. At first it looks as if the second round of hearts may be lost. But this can be overcome.

Trick one is taken by the south ace of clubs. Either opponent may have four clubs. If so, the fourth dummy club is not a normal dumping ground for the losing jack of hearts.

Five trumps are run. Club queen and diamond ace each take a trick. Dummy diamond deuce is ruffed by south. This leaves only four cards in each hand. Review which cards they will be.

South has left a trump, the heart A J, a small club. In north is saved a small heart, diamond jack, club K 8. West clings to K 9 of hearts, club 10 9. East hangs onto heart Q 10, diamond K 9.

Here the last trump is led by south. West dare not heave a club. If he does, dummy K 8 of clubs will be good. Heart ace will then be the 13th trick for the grand slam. So, west throws heart nine.

When this happens, dummy throws club small. East is now in a hot spot. He must not let go of a heart. If he does, the south ace and jack of hearts will be good. So east fires a diamond.

South now leads a club and wins with dummy king. What will east do on this? If he gives up a heart, the south ace and jack of hearts are good. Throwing diamond king makes dummy diamond jack good.

You have now seen the Vienna coup with a double squeeze finish. If you are woozy by now, your neighbor may be eligible for an asylum. But aren't we all.

ONE KILLED IN CRASH

Oxford, Pa., Dec. 31 — (AP)—One person was killed and at least 12 others injured early today in a bus-truck crash on the ice-covered Baltimore Pike three miles east of this Southeastern Pennsylvania community.

State police said that a sailor, not immediately identified, was killed, and a dozen others, including his wife and baby, hurt as a Greyhound bus bound from Baltimore to Philadelphia skidded on icy pavement in attempting to avoid a large truck trailer that had jack-knifed across the road.

DEVIL'S WORK

By Carolyn Wells

CHAPTER 10

Soon Jean, dressed for the day, sat at her desk in the boudoir; busy with mail and telephone. She had on a simple white gown, having already decided to wear white in the house and black at other times.

Her untouched breakfast was on a small table at her side, and she awaited Esmeralda, to whom she had sent a request for an interview.

The girl came, looking the picture of uncertainty and hesitation.

"Good morning," Jean said, graciously but without friendliness. "Sit down please. I am making some plans. I assume you will be leavingas soon as the police will let you."

"Y—yes," Esme returned, angry at herself for stammering. But she could not help it.

She was always ill at ease in Jean's presence, and now the gentle dignity of her hostess made her feel positively cheap.

"It is impossible to say how soon they will be leavinghrddl soon they will be willing to let you go, but I am going to ask a favor of you, while you are here. Will you mind taking some other rooms, and letting me put my baby back in her original nursery?"

Jean's sweet smile and sad voice touched Esme's trashy little heart, as Jean intended, and the girl raised tearful eyes, saying, "Indeed I will!"

"Very well, then; you may select any occupied rooms you like."

"All right," and Esme's true self asserted its presence. "All right, Mrs. Forrest. I will move into Vivain's rooms."

She watched Jean's face closely, to see her color rise, but Mrs. Forrest merely said, in the coolest way; "Certainly, you may have his bedroom and dressing room and bath. But the study is still in the hands of the police. You will went to look after your belongings. I will send Jansen to attend to the moving.

With a nod of unmistakable, dismissal, Jean took up the house telephone and Esme went to her rooms.

A few messages put the matter of moving into the hands of the butler and housekeeper, and a message was sent to Rhoda to bring Florimel home.

The last errand was accomplished first, and Jean took her baby in her arms while Rhoda stood by, alternately smiling and sniffling.

"Oh, Mrs. Forrest, how good to be back here!" she cried, happily.

"Yes, Rhoda. Now, I must go downstairs in a few moments. You look after the settling in, and see to it that all Miss Fane's things are out of the nursery, and Florimel's put in place. Jansen will move everything, but it needs supervision."

"I will attend to it, Mrs. Forrest, and only to glad to do so."

Knowing it would be all right, Jean gave the child one last caress and went downstairs.

Austin met her in the hall, his expression one of displeasure.

"So you've put Esme out of her room already!" he said, and if his tone proved his resentment. Jean's voice equally proclaimed her attitude.

"Yes," she said, calmly. "It's delightful to have Florimel back in her rightful place. I missed her very much. It is time now to go in to the District Attorney?"

"Yes I think so. Come along."

But Jean said, turning around, "Go ahead, I thought that was Brandon's step. I want to speak to him."

Sayre came to her, and took her hand without a word.

A long glance passed between them, and Jean said, "Shall we go in?"

"Not together," he returned. "You go on, and I'll follow in a few minutes. And, Jean, don't say much. Remember, won't you? Answer questions with as few words as possible. Mitchell is quick at reading minds, and sometimes your thoughts are very readable."

She looked troubled. "But I don't understand," she said.

"Never mind, do as I say, anyway. It is imperative. Go on, Now."

He turned away, and with an odd feeling of bewilderment, Jean went into the study. They were all there, except Sayre and Haskell, and they came at once. Dr. Gregg was present, as Forrest's personal physician.

Mitchell was accompanied by the Medical Examiner Peterson, and also by Inspector Eastman and Sergeant Bray.

Jean's heart sank at the sight of the policemen, for Mr. Mitchell had been so polite and well-mannered, and she feared the others might be more blunt of speech.

"We find this a somewhat mysterious case," Inspector Eastman said, "since we are not able to decide exactly the cause or rather the means of causing Mr. Forrest's death. Mrs. Forrest, was your husband in the habit of using morphine, medicinally, or—in any way?"

"If you mean, was Mr. Forrest a drug addict, I can say no," Jean replied, in a clear, terse manner, "but if you mean he took it occasionally, I cannot tell you. I don't know."

"You never noticed the effect of such a habit, then?"

"I don't know what the effects would be, but I never knowingly saw anything to indicate that he was in the habit of taking drugs.

"Yet a considerable amount of morphine was found in his body after death."

Jean kept silent. She had determined to follow Sayre's advice to make no responses except to an actual interrogation.

"You have no knowledge that would account for this?" Eastman went on.

His upward inflection made this a question, and Jean answered with a clear, plainly "No."

Peterson could keep quiet no longer. He said to the inspector, "There is no necessity to learn how morphine might have been introduced into a man's system; the point is to learn how it could be morphine when it showed none of the effects that morphine always must and does show."

"Strange things happen to our traditional—and—hidebound—notions, Doctor Peterson," Inspector Eastman said, in a superior way. "Since we found the morphine, we are obliged to admit that morphine can be taken without the result of tightly contrasted pupils. This you find hard to admit, but how can you doubt the evidence of your senses?"

"By assuming that there is some point, that we do not yet know—some detail of this case that we have not yet discovered."

"Very well, Doctor Peterson, I trust that you will soon find it out. The other possibility is that Mr. Forrest was killed by a thrust of a foil or similar weapon. We found a small cut on his throat, which, though not large enough to have been a fatal thrust, yet did continue down the side of the trachea and pierce the heart. Did you give him such a thrust when you were fencing with him, Mrs. Forrest?"

"No," said Jean, "not knowingly."

"Can you then explain the injury to your husband?"

"I cannot, and I see no reason why I should be asked to do so. That is your work, as I understand it."

"This investigation is certainly our work, and we hope for and expect help from the ones we are working for."

"You shall have all I can give you," Jean returned in such a sincere voice that Eastman regretted his brusque speech.

"I am told," he went on, more gently, "that Mr. Forrest's last words were, 'He did it. I knew he would!' Have you any idea to whom he was referring?"

"I have not. If he said 'I did it! I knew I could!' I would understand. For he has been trying to make a certain thrust in a certain way, and only recently had attained proficiency."

"It is possible that he said the words as you suggest, Mrs. Forrest, but that they may have a different meaning. Did you hear him say them?"

"No, I had left the room. I was told what he said."

"You left the room abruptly?"

"No; it was our habit to fence for fifteen minutes, and we always stopped when the time was up."

"I see. Can you tell me just how your husband stood as you turned away and left the room?"

"He was standing, looking at me. Knowing our tilt was over, he said nothing and I went away."

"You say he stood upright when you last saw him?"

"Yes, Inspector, that is the truth."

"You gave him a slight wound in the throat, with your foil?"

"It may be that I did; but neither of us noticed it."

"Of course not," put in the impatient Gregg. "As Forrest's physician, I am in a position to state the facts of this case. There was morphine in that man—enough to kill him—and that is what did kill him, and not a little scratch of a foil."

"But we are told by Doctor Peterson," Eastman insisted, "that death from morphine poisoning could not take place without resultant contraction of the pupils to pin points. We can discover symptoms, and not results, but we cannot believe in miracles. Could a change have come to his eyes after death?"

"Don't be silly!" said Peterson.

"Then," went on Eastman, "if we eliminate morphine poisoning, we must assume death by a sword thrust."

"Don't keep saying sword," Austin put in. "If you knew anything about fencing, you'd know that a foil may sometimes round itself; a man may give himself a puncture quite unintentionally. And, as you say, Mr. Forrest was suffering from poison in his system, his foil could have slipped and he was unable to right it. I saw him as he trembled and fell, and I can tell you the man was suffering, though trying desperately to ignore his illness."

"You mean that something else ailed Mr. Forrest beside the thrust of the sword—or, I should say, the foil."

"I mean exactly that, Inspector. Now, as Doctor Peterson declares that death from the effects of Morphine poisoning could not take place without the consequent contraction of the pupils of the man's eyes, and as all of us here, who are fencing experts, declare that the slight cut on my brother's neck could have killed him, wouldn't it be wise to see some other cause for the tragedy?"

"If you can suggest any other cause, Mr. Forrest, we shall be glad to investigate. But our already comprehensive inquiry has shown no other evidence. Mr. Mitchell—"

He turned round to see the District Attorney just coming in from the hall.

"Where have you been?" Eastman continued.

"I was called away on an errand, an important matter. What is it you want to say to me?"

"Only to ask you if you can suggest any other cause of Mr. Forrest's death than the two we have already discussed. Either morphine poisoning or a stab from a fencing foil."

"So far as I can see, it must have been one or the other. Do you not agree, Doctor Peterson?"

"I do not agree to the morphine death theory, Mitchell. As to the other, I reserve my decision for the moment. I wish to learn some further results of the autopsy. The work was hurried, and must be checked up."

"Then Doctor Peterson," said Eastman, "so far as you know now you believe Mr. Forrest's death to be a consequence of a foil thrust by Mrs. Forrest?"

"You must have heard me say, Eastman, that I do not say that as yet. What we find out later may give us an altogether different outlook. Also, I would call your attention to the fact that even if death resulted from a foil thrust, it need cast no aspersion on the fencer. We all know that Forrest was ill, and that his strength was ebbing from him. This would mean that he was not able to resist the thrust, or to parry it, or whatever the exact technical term may be. I am not a fencer, but I know more or less about the details, though I am not proficient in the language of the fencer.

"You, see a fencing bout was in progress. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest were both not only good fencers, but were punctilious in their regard for the rules. Neither would have made a wrong or unauthorized movement.

And if Mrs.Forrest made a lunge, it would have been entirely correct, and Forrest would have understood it and parried it. The fact that he did not parry it proves that the man was not himself, and so, instead of defending himself, he fell forward, as we know he did, and thereby put his weight upon Mrs. Forrest's foil sufficiently to cause that cut on his neck. We cannot go further on our decision until we know what it was that made Mr. Forrest ill. You are his physician, Doctor Gregg. Can you enlighten us?"

"Only to the extent of saying that while Vivian Forrest had no definite disease, he could not have been called a well man. He led what may be called a hectic life—late hours, strong drink, lack of moderation in many ways—and though no one of these things would kill him, the combination of them does not make for long life."

"Was his heart affected?" Eastman inquired.

"Affected is a meaningless term. Forrest's heart was overworked, and naturally showed strain. You have heard of 'old man's heart.' Well, his heart was old before its time. Only a few years over thirty, Forrest had the heart of a man twice his age. I have given him morphine for it, among other things, but I can tell you from my own knowledge that he was not an addict, nor did he take any except on my prescription. I would have known it if he had."

"But, Doctor Gragg," said Mitchell, with an air of patience, "you know that a quanity of morphine was discovered at the autopsy. Did he take that on your prescription?"

"He did not. Nor did he take it of his own accord. That morphine was given to him without his knowledge."

"And you think Doctor Gregg," Eastman said, "that it was the action of that poison that so weakened Forrest that he could not give his usual riposte to the foil thrust, and so fell—"

"I don't only think it, I know it!" Gregg interrupted him. "I am not a fencer myself, and though I was not here when he died, I can see clearly, from the various descriptions of his condition I have listened to, that Vivian Forrest died from that morphine—eyes or no eyes."

"It is a fine thing," Peterson said looking at Gregg, disdainfully, "to be able to toss away an ago-old bit of knowledge with such an easy air of authority. I envy your broad-mindedness, Doctor Gregg."

"I didn't suppose your narrow mind could discern it," replied Gregg, urbanely.

"I'm just kicked around from pillar to post!" declared Esme, but she said it with one of those enchanting smiles of hers that made her look very kissable, in spite of her exaggerated make-up.

"What do you mean?" asked Jean, her hostess instinct aroused.

"Why, the police people wouldn't let me move into Vivian's rooms until I told them you said I might. They've locked them up and nobody can go in, either in the study or the other rooms. But I made them let me in; Oh, I don't care now, slammity gal!"

"What Esme?" asked Austin, "what did you say?"

"Don't you know? That's a French phrase, Vivian taught me. It means it's all the same, or it doesn't make any difference."

"Oh Austin laughed . "But it sounds different when the French say it."

"Yes, that's what I said. Vivian taught me a lot of French. He taught be juttame. That means I love you."

"Well don't love me in French, please."

"I won't darling; but that's just the way Vivian said it."

"I hardly think so," said Jean, smiling a little. "Vivian spoke excellent French."

"Well, you ought to know." Esme said, carelessly.

They were at luncheon, but only a handful of the guests were present.

After severe questioning, the police and District Attorney Mitchell had allowed many of the guests to leave Forrest Fell and go to their homes, and most of them were glad to go.

There remained only the ones who had been in the study at the time Vivian Forrest died.

These, too, had been persistently questioned by the police, but it had been decided to try to discover more direct evidence before going on.

Both house and grounds were guarded, but the guards kept discreetly out of sight as much as possible.

There was much to be done, and as the guests expressed their desire to help, Austin portioned out the necessary tasks.

Haskell, who was graceful of speech, agreed to write the letters to the men members of the fencing club telling them of the necessity for cancelling the tournament, and Suzy wrote to the women.

Brandon Sayre took on himself funeral, which would take place on Saturday.

Esme was given no task to do, for she showed no ability for handling anything there was to be done. She hid her relief at this by pretending to grieve because she could not help.

Jean's sensitive heart was touched and she bade the girl go to the gardens and gather flowers for the rooms.

"Usually," she said, "Rugg or the maids look after this, but today they are all so busy, you know. Are you all moved, comfortably?"

"Oh, yes—I say—do you want me to stay here?"

They were standing alone in a side hall, and Jean looked at the pert, childish face curiously.

She thought; How could Vivian, with his perfect taste and his love of all that was fine and true, stoop to this common, uncultured girl, beautiful though she was.

And Esme, who was no fool, read her thoughts.

"You don't want me, I know," she said, "but, you must know, that I can't go away—the police won't let me. If they would, you'd see me scoot, I can tell you!"

"Let's leave it at that," said Jean, wishing she would go away. "Let us agree that since you can't go, you must stay, and we'll both have to make the best of it."

"All right, then; and when I do go, you will have had the surprise of your life!"

Jean looked after her as she went off and wondered what she meant. She didn't wonder long, for Brandon Sayre came to her.

"I've been waiting round the corner for that little pest to leave you alone. I couldn't help hearing your conversation. Jean, how could Vivian take up with such riffraff?"

"Never mind her, Brandon, let's talk about me."

"Nothing I'd rather talk about. Come, let's go outside, and we won't go where the nuisance is picking her flowers."

"No, we'll go off toward the brook."

Side by side, they walked the garden path, across some lawns and came to the brook, which was rippling its way as gaily as if there was nothing but happiness in the world.

On they went to a little glen, through which the brook ran, and where a rustic seat awaited them.

Sayre had promised himself he would say no word to Jean of his love for her while her husband was above ground. He spoke of her child, and was glad to see her eyes shine with joy as she talked about little Florimel.

Suddenly she changed the subject. "Brandon, who killed Vivian?"

"I am not sure, dear, that he was killed."

"Oh, yes, he was. Aren't there poisons that work slowly? Mightn't he have taken the poison some time before he died?"

"Yes, there are such drugs. But the doctors would have found that at the autopsy, you know."

"Maybe not. When they found all that morphine himself. He had been bothered with stomach pains, he feared ulcers, and he tried to cure himself with drugs."

"Why didn't he consult Doctor Gregg?"

"He did, but the doctor gave him only small quantities. He said the doses were not large enough, and so he took more and more."

"But this is serious. Why didn't you tell of it?"

"I wanted to ask you first. Do you think I ought to tell Mr. Mitchell?"

"Yes—no. I don't know, dear. Don't do anything in a hurry. Let me think it over."

"Why is it so serious? Will they think—"

"Never mind what they think! Forget it now, and we'll speak of it some other time. Now, I want to look at you—oh, Jean I haven't seen you for so long, I mean seen you where I could dare to look at you as I have longed for two years to look!"

He put his hands on her shoulders and gazed into her eyes.

"Dear," he said, still watching her face, "Have you kept on loving me all the time?"

"All the time, Brandon. May God forgive me."

"There is nothing to forgive. But, tell me, do you realize that you are in danger?"

"Danger? about Vivian?"

"Yes. I was uncertain whether to speak of it to you, but I must. Jean they are going to suspect.

"Are they?"

"Why do you speak like that? Why do you drop your eyes? You are not afraid, are you?"

"Oh, I am, Brandon; I am most terribly afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

"Of the—the police—some one is coming! Oh, what is it, Rugg?"

Rugg was not solemn-faced, as butlers are usually said to be. In fact his rather good-looking face bespoke a merry temperament, though sobered now by sorrow and uncertainty.

"A gentleman to see you, madam," he said to Jean, giving her a card.

"Monsieur Paul Isabey," she read aloud, in surprise. "Why he's the dear old man we knew in Paris. Tell me, Rugg, did he seem to know of Mr. Forrest's death?"

"No, Mrs. Forrest, he did not. He asked me what was meant by the flowers on the doorbell. And I told him."

"Strange," Jean said, "that he should come. He wrote that he could not get here until next week. Where did you put him, Rugg? Is any one with him?"

"I put him in the small reception room, madam; I left him alone.

"Go back to him, Rugg, and tell him I will be with him in a moment."

"Who is he Jean?" Sayre asked the question as if he had a right to do so.

" He is our French fencing master. A delightful man. We looked forward to his visit with pleasure. Now—I wonder why he came sooner than he expected."

"Let us go back to the house; you must not keep him waiting."

She said almost nothing as they crossed the lawns. Nearing the house, she said, "You go round the other way, Brandon. I want to go in alone."

"Very well," and with a smile he left her.

She went up the steps and into the house, and straight to the room where her guest waited.

"How do you do, M'sieu Isabey," she said, cordially. "I am so very glad to see you. We didn't look for you until next week."

"Ah, yes; a sudden change of plan made it possible for me to come today. I trust I have not incommoded you."

"Oh, no, indeed. But—you know of the sorrow that has come to us?"

"It is my husband who is dead. You remember Vivian?"

"My poor dear child!" He turned to her, taking both her hands in his. "My heart bleeds for you. That fine, that beautiful man! How is it that death came to him?"

"M'sieu, you will grieve me. We were fencing, my husband and I, practising for the tournament, and—I cannot tell it calmly—he had sort of a stroke—a seizure, and he died in a moment."

"But—the doctors?"

"Came quickly, but too late. And—this I must tell you, the—police are making inquiries."

poor child! What are you not suffering!

"Yes, yes, but I do not think there is a case for them; it is only a small uncertainty that must be looked into."

"Ah, that is good! It will be soon aranged. And you are al-one?"

"I have my baby, my little girl."

"Ah, that is fine! And you have guests here."

"Yes, a few. More were here for the tournament but some have been permitted to go home."

"It is that you wish me to stay a day or two, or do you prefer that I go at once?"

"I am pleased to have you stay for a little. Oh, M'sieu, we so hoped to have you here at the tournament. We had planned great festfvities."

26 Men Rescued From Drifting Floes In Lake St. Clair

Stoney Point, Ont., Dec. 31 — (CP) — Twenty-six men were rescued by rowboats from drifting ice-floes on Lake St. Clair yesterday after a sudden breeze broke up the ice packs on which they had been fishing and sent them out into the lake.

Charles Aubrey of Belle River, 27th of the fishermen, paddled his way to shore on a cake of ice while five men from shore used their rowboats to save all the rest.

Aubrey was with Game Warden Edward O'Neil of Belle River and others who were about half a mile from shore before they noticed the ice was moving.

"I knew what had happened before we had moved very far," said O'Neil, "because when all the tip-ups tip at once that's no fish." He was referring to the poles on the ice to which the lines are attached.

This party however had about half a mile to go over the ice before they reached the shore end and found a channel 400 yards wide had opened. O'Neil shouted to men on the shore side who went for hepl.

William Thomas and his sons Grant and Wilbur, with Wilfred and Leo Labute, set out in rowboats to round up the fishermen.

Another large group of fishermen were on the ice about 10 miles distant when it broke away and moved out into the lake. They were taken off by Roland Cote of Puce, Ont.

Most of the fishermen were from Detroit.

STORY OF

wanted a month named after him. His month, August, he ordered, should have as many days as July. He swiped one from February, too, leaving it with 28 days August now has 31 days. (Getting dizzy?)

Pulling himself together, Augustus moved to prevent three 31-day months from falling together in a row: he changed September and November to 30-day months, October and December to 31 days

Many years later, Pope Gregory XIII discovered the earth made its normal trip around the sun 11 minutes and 14 seconds faster every 365 1-4 days. This meant the world's clock was losing three days every 400 years. Not a whit put out, the Pope dropped ten days from the calendar, between Oct. 5 and Oct. 14, to make up for lost time. To head off future losses, he cut the number of leap years in a 400-year period from 100 to 97, by making the last leap year of each century a common year—except where the century is divisible by four

Oh, yes—about the tradition that in leap year women woo and are not wooed: frankly there's no satisfactory explanation.

District Police Alerted After Suspects Spotted

London, Ont., Dec. 31 — (CP) — District police were warned late yesterday to be on the alert for three men spotted in Stratford, and wanted in connection with last Wednesday's $9,000 armed robbery of the Glencairn-Dufferin branch of the Dominion Bank in Toronto.

The Toronto bank was robbed by three masked gunmen who forced four employees and two customers into the cellar, then grabbed the money from the vault.

A general alarm was radioed throughout Ontario yesterday when Constable Jack Douglas reported seeing in Stratford an automobile in which were three men answering descriptions given by the holdup victims.

The car sped away as Douglas went to summon reinforcements.

The constable said he believed a woman was with the trio. The car, a 1941 (Chevrolet) model, bore a licence plate so bent that it could not be read from the distance.

Charley Burley Wants Promoters To Help Him

(By The Canadian Press)

Veteran middleweight Charley Burley still rated by the National Boxing Association as an "outstanding boxer," noted wistfully today that he works as a garbage collector in Pittsburgh.

"It's nice, it's really nice that they still think so much of me," remarked the dusky fighter who is married and has two children. "But, gee, I wish somebody would give me a chance to prove it in the ring . . . the only bouts I can get are against the wolf at the door."

Burley admits to 11 years of fighting and 30 years of life and as a professional has been rated at or near the top of the welterweight and middleweight divisions every year and with the same consistency has been snubbed by the top-drawer cauliflower set.

Big Jack Kramer performed in near perfect style last night at Cleveland and defeated Bobby Riggs, king of the professionals, 6-4, 6-4, to annex his first victory in the third match of their transcontinental tennis tour.

Featherweight champion Willie Pep, 132, of Hartford, Conn., last night gained an eight-round technical knockout decision over Maurice (Lefty) LaChance, 134½, of Lisbon, Me., in their scheduled 10-round non-title boxing bout at Manchester, N. H. Pep, who took every round with his buzz-saw, two-fisted attack, dropped LaChance for nine-counts in both the second and sixth rounds.

Infielder Johnny Berardino of Cleveland Indians has signed a double-barrelled contract which will permit him to play baseball in the summer and make movies in the winter. Under the contract the Cleveland ball club will have claim on the infielder's service starting before spring training and continuing until after the World Series when he will return to Hollywood.

A three-horse match race will feature New Year's Day harness racing program at Toronto's Dufferin Park. The Count B, owned by J. W. Brown of New Liskeard, Forest Ranger, owned by G. Morden of Chaffey, N. Y., and Billy Stout owned by Frank Plaunt of Brantford, meet in the special race, in two dashes over a mile and a sixteenth.

Hamilton Tigers trundled into Vancouver yesterday and promptly expressed their dislikes for west coast weather. The easterners, travel-weary, but ready to test Vancouver Blue Bombers in the Canadian junior football final series Jan. 1 and Jan. 3, said they would have preferred a small blanket of snow rather than the 40-above mercury level.

Passports Assured For Olympic Team From United States

Boston, Dec. 31 (AP)—Regardless of what happens in the jurisdictional dispute over United States participation in Olympic hockey, the American Hockey Association's team will sail for Europe, vows Walter Brown of Boston, that organization's vice-president.

"We've got our passport mix-up straightened out and our Olympic squad of 15 players, its coach and trainer, will be aboard the Queen Mary when it sails out of New York Jan. 9," Brown said today.

Brown, who successfully pressed the A.H.A.'s hockey cause before the Swiss committee organizing the winter Olympic games a few months ago, expressed confidence that the hand-picked A.H.A. team would carry the American shield into the international rink competition at St.

Port Arthur Jrs. Shellack Regina In Two Games

Winnipeg, Dec. 31 (CP) — A group of young Lakehead pucksters is all set to change the western Canada junior hockey picture, dominated by Saskatchewan last year.

Topping their own league easily, Port Arthur Bruins entertained Regina Pats during the last few days in a two-game exhibition series. Current leaders in the Saskatchewan junior loop, Pats couldn't quite approve of the lavish way Bruins scored goals.

The first encounter was won by Port Arthur 11-4...and this against the team held most likely to dethrone Moose Jaw Canucks from the latter's Saskatchewan championship.

The second match wasn't better from Pats' point of view. Bruins won it 10-4.

In Manitoba, meanwhile, Winnipeg Canadians are at present topping their four-team junior provincial league, with Winnipeg Monarchs sticking close behind.

Canadiens and Monarchs are rated as the two top teams in Manitoba, with Brandon Wheat Kings the third contender for provincial honors. Winnipeg Black Hawks, in fourth position, are given little chance of amassing any honors this year.

Only three points separate the three leading teams, Canadiens ahead with 13, Monarchs second with 12 and Brandon third with 10. Black Hawks trail with five.

Winnipeg Flyers still top the Manitoba senior league teams by a decisive margin, having won eight games against one loss. Plowmen are in rather distant second place with eight points, while the hapless Nationals bring up the rear with four.

Prime Minister Does Not Forget Gift of Flower

Kitchener, Dec. 31. (CP) — Four-year-old Marilyn Kilbasko, who last September became a personal friend of a Prime Minister, has a letter and a picture to show he hasn't forgotten her.

Marilyn, who lives at "Woodside", the former home of Prime Minister, Mackenzie King, received the gifts in answer to a Christmas card she sent to Mr. King.

The friendship started when the Prime Minister dropped in at "Woodside" during a visit to the Kitchener district last Fall. With no prompting or rehearsal—it was strictly her own idea—Marilyn presented Mr. King with a flower for his buttonhole.

Photographers caught the scene —and a picture that a prime minister and a little girl prize greatly.

ghly Mechanized,

-soup Fog

—But it's still a push-over for a pea-soup fog.

Old timers will tell you the fogs nowadays aren't a patch on those of 40 or 50 years ago when even a hansom-horse was apt to get lost on the way home. Fewer factories in the heart of London and superior types of fuel have meant less smoke and consequently lighter fogs. But a fog still can handcuff the city, rendering movement difficult and danger-us.

Dusk may fall as early as three .m., with it comes a thickeng of the yellowish-grey wisps f vapor writing along the river and through the streets. The steady throb of city traffic is deadened. Street-lamps form little murky pools of half-light which give every passer by a jaundiced look.

Buses become fewer and taxis scarcer. "Fog Serve" signs go up at commuters' railway stations, and they mean an office-worker may be delayed as much as an hour as his train crawls homeward.

Despite these precautions, accidents—though rarely of major proportion—are frequent. One recent foggy night saw three rail accidents, all involving a small number of fatalities, and several bus smashes.

In office buildings, where the lights have burned all day, the rooms gradually become darker and more dismal as the fog creeps through and up staircases. You just can't keep a real London fog in its place; if it's foggy outside it's foggy inside too.

And by midnight it can indeed by foggy. The Thames, from the Embankment, seems a limitless cauldron of cold steam, through which are heard the sullen mutterings of foghorns far down the river.

At London's major airports planes are grounded at least until dawn.

Happy New Year !

As Nineteen Forty-Seven ends,
We send tnis greeting to our friends—
From all of us to all of you,
Whate'er you are, whate'er you do,
Where'er you live — from ocean to ocean,
Prairie farmer or Nova Scotian,
Here's New Year's wish for health,
Happiness, good-cheer and wealth!

Yes, here's a greeting on behalf
Of everybody on our staff;
From President and all directors,
Buyers, salesfolk and inspectors.
The folks who sell you toys and tents,
And those who write advertisements!

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
We wish the very best for you;
We'll hope for better world conditions,
With no more threat of atom fissions;
Prosperity on farm and foundry,
Scads of soap-flakes for the laundry;
And a real amelioration
Of the housing situation.

Yes, and in the way of weather,
We wish you everything together:
Snow for skiers, ice for skaters,
Sun and warmth for winter-haters;
Bracing days for country jaunts—
An end of shortages and wants;
And, sure as earth spins on its axis,
We wish you lower income taxes!

And that's our greeting, quite sincere,
To usher-in the Brave New Year—
A wish for joy and happiness
From all your friends at
